HARDING

SUMMER 1993

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Looking back while planning ahead

David B. Burks,
President

At the May commencement ceremonies, as I sat looking over the graduates, I couldn't help but think back to their four years at Harding. These 418 graduates were a part of some very important years, and they witnessed some significant accomplishments of the school.

During these four years the graduates saw more than $20 million in capital improvements made to the campus, including the construction or renovation of nine major facilities. They also were able in May to participate in the groundbreaking ceremonies for the Jim Bill McInteer Bible and World Missions Center.

They witnessed the national accreditation of the music and dietetics curriculums, as well as the School of Business curriculum. During their tenure the professional sales program was initiated, as was the honors program, the student lectureship series, women's intercollegiate tennis, the JOVE grant program with NASA, and at least six other major programs.

While all of this was happening, the students were a part of record enrollments every semester they were at Harding. Not since the mid-'70s has a group of seniors been able to boast of that accomplishment.

As I thought about the last four years, I began to think about what the freshman class of '93 could expect to see at Harding. I believe they will start their Harding experience as part of another record enrollment. Throughout the 1992-93 school year, applications for new student positions for the fall '93 semester have been consistently 10 percent or more ahead of last year. If that trend continues, Harding will again be at capacity. We have made some changes in on-campus housing that will allow us to accept 30 to 60 additional students in the fall.

The freshmen will also have the opportunity to watch the construction of the McInteer Center and, in approximately 14 months, they will participate in the dedication of that building. When completed, the McInteer Center will be the building in which the majority of Harding's Bible classes will meet.

From a technological perspective, during the next four years students will benefit from the installation of a campus-wide fiber-optic network, which will support a student information system, on-line academic advising and greater accessibility to library holdings through improved technology.

In addition to the McInteer Center and technological improvements, capital expenditures for renovation and expansion of facilities are projected to reach the $5.5 million mark. While all of these projects are under way, we also will be attempting to increase scholarships for students, particularly those which are need-based.

Our May graduates are gone, and the reminiscing about their four years must turn to the challenges of providing an excellent Christian liberal arts education for the more than 800 freshmen who will be arriving on the campus in just one month. In higher education there is never time to rest on your laurels because there is always a new group of eager young minds waiting to be "educated for eternity." ❏

Mitchells receive service award from Pepperdine

Dr. Carl Mitchell, dean of the College of Bible and Religion, and his wife, Frankie, were named recipients of the Distinguished Christian Service Award during an appreciation dinner at the 50th annual Pepperdine University Bible Lectures April 30. Mitchell previously directed the Bible Lectures during his tenure at Pepperdine.

Flatt named Graduate School dean

Dr. Bill Flatt, a professor of counseling and registrar at the Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, was named April 16 as the new dean of the school by President David Burks.

Burks made the announcement in April at the University's annual awards and recognition banquet for the entire system's 600 employees and faculty members. Flatt replaces Dr. Edward P. Myers, who will return to full-time teaching on the Searcy campus. Flatt's appointment was effective May 1.

Flatt joined the Harding faculty in 1965. He holds the doctorate in counseling and psychology from Memphis State University and the master's degree from Harding University Graduate School of Religion.

Flatt is a supervisor and fellow of the American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy and is a member of the American Psychological Association.

He is a past president of the Tennessee Association for Marriage and Family Therapy.

He is the author of six books, three video series and more than 70 published articles dealing with counseling topics. In 1981 he was named the recipient of the University's Distinguished Service Award.

Flatt becomes the sixth dean of the Graduate School of Religion since its beginning in 1952. The school had a spring enrollment of 218 students and offers extension courses in 14 cities across the nation.

Shearin, Howard and James new department chairs

Three University departments will have new chairmen when the upcoming fall semester begins. Dr. Arthur Shearin, professor of music, has been named chairman of the Department of Music; Dr. Tom Howard, professor of political science, has been named chairman of the Department of History; and Dr. Mike James, assistant professor of communication, has been named chairman of the Department of Communication.

Upon naming these appointments, President David Burks said, "I am very pleased to announce the selection of Dr. Shearin, Dr. Howard and Dr. James to fill these administrative posts. They each have demonstrated leadership on the campus and expertise in the classroom. They are also committed to Harding's goal of providing the highest-caliber liberal arts education in a Christian environment."

Shearin received his bachelor's in music from Harding in 1970 and earned his master's in voice from Memphis State University in 1974. He also attended the University of Colorado and received his doctorate in choral music there in 1977.

Shearin previously taught at Freed-Hardeman University, where he was chairman of its music department for five years. He came to Harding in 1982, where he teaches voice, theory and diction, and serves as director of the Concert Choir.

Howard received his bachelor's degree from Harding in 1969 and joined the faculty in 1972 after receiving his master's degree from Northern Illinois University in 1971. He then earned his doctorate from the University of Arkansas.

Howard has twice been named a recipient of the Distinguished Teacher Award, receiving it both in 1980 and 1987. He has previously served as the University's director of institutional testing and research.

James, a 1973 Harding graduate, joined the faculty in 1979 as an associate instructor of journalism. He had previously worked for the University as a staff member since 1973 as director of photography for the Public Relations Office.

A native of Kennett, Mo., James received his Ph.D. from Florida State University last year and returned to Harding this fall after being on academic leave. In addition to his present teaching duties, he also serves as director of TV-19, Harding's campus television station.

Shearin replaces Dr. Bob Holloway, who has served as Music Department chairman for five years; Howard replaces Dr. Ray Muncy, who has chaired the History Department for 27 years; and James replaces Dr. John H. Ryan, who has chaired the Communication Department for five years. Each of the present chairmen stepped down from their administrative duties to return to teaching full time.

1993 Distinguished Teachers selected

Three professors were recognized in April as 1993 Distinguished Teachers following student evaluations and approval by the University selection committee.

Selected were Dr. Pat Garner, professor of speech; Dr. Warren Casey, professor of music; and Dr. Lou Butterfield, associate professor of communication. Each received a $1,000 check in a chapel recognition program.

Four receive Distinguished Service Awards

Four University staff members received $1,000 cash awards as recipients of the 1993 Distinguished Service Awards April 16 at the annual faculty-staff recognition dinner.

Selected for the honor this year were Suzanne Spurrier, Brackett Library director; Pat Rice, R.N., student health services director; Larry Daughety, stockroom clerk; and Ronnie Burkett, director of electrical and plumbing services. Nominations for the awards were made by Harding faculty and staff members.

Spurrier has worked with Harding's library since 1975. She became director of the new Brackett Library in July 1990 following its construction and has worked extensively in computerizing the facility. Spurrier, a 1971 Harding graduate who received her master's degrees from the University of West Virginia and Indiana University, also serves as an associate professor of library science.

Rice began working in the Student Health Center in 1982 and became its director in 1984. She graduated from David Lipscomb University in 1969 and received her R.N. degree from Altman Hospital School of Nursing in Canton, Garner, a 20-year veteran of the communication faculty, is a 1971 Harding graduate. He received his doctorate from the University of Oklahoma, and is active in the Arkansas Speech Communication Association and with the Harding chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha speech honor society. He also sponsors the forensics team. Garner and his wife, Mona Lee, have four children.

Casey has been a member of Ohio. She and her husband, Guilford, the University's transportation officer, have a daughter, Laura, who attends Harding.

Daughety has been employed by Harding for 22 years. In addition to his duties as stockroom clerk, he also has served as a men's dormitory manager for 18 years. He and his wife, Mary Lou, who is secretary for the Harding in Florence and International Campaigns Office, have five children.

Burkett has worked in the Physical Plant Office for 20 years and now serves as director of electrical and plumbing services. He and his wife, Laveta, who works in the Registrar's Office, have three children.

In addition to the service awards, two Awards of Excellence were presented by President David Burks at the dinner. Recipients were Charles Liming, director of ARA Food Services, for his outstanding work both with the University and the community; and Dr. John H. Ryan, professor of communication and chairman of the department, for his 20 years of service as producer of Spring Sing.

Recognition for 30- and 35-year service went to Ted Altman, Eddie Campbell, Bill the Music Department since 1982, after completing six years with Oklahoma Christian University. A 1976 Harding graduate, he received both his master's and doctoral degrees in music education from the University of Oklahoma in 1978 and 1988, respectively. In his role as the University's director of bands, he conducts the concert, marching, jazz and pep bands. He and his wife, Suzanne, have two children.

A 1969 Harding graduate, Butterfield was a member of the faculty from 1970-78 and rejoined it again in 1982 after selling his multi-media production company. He received both his master's and his doctoral degrees from Indiana University in Bloomington. He teaches production courses in radio and television, and is a director of Harding's TV-19 and an adviser to campus radio station KHCA. Butterfield and his wife, Sandy, have three children.

Distinguished Service Award Recipients. Larry Daughety, Pat Rice, Suzanne Spurrier and Ronnie Burkett receive the honor for 1993.

Diles, Latina Dykes, Lyle Poindexter and Joe Segraves.

A 40-year service pin was presented to Nancy Walker on behalf of her late husband, Richard Walker, who would have completed his 40th year with the Communication Department this year. Walker died shortly before the fall semester began.

Reely published in magazine

Dr. Bob Reely (business) had an article published in the April issue of the American Management Association's Supervisory Management magazine. The article was titled "Do You Have a Minute? I've Got an Idea."

Writers' Institute appoints Pollard

Dr. Paul Pollard (Bible) has been appointed to the National Advisory Board of the Scholarly Writers' Institute. The institute is a professional development organization that addresses the nonfiction writing and publishing needs of college and university educators.

Verkler travels to Washington and Philadelphia

Dr. Bill Verkler (sociology) attended the American Association of Psychotherapy and Psychodrama April 15-18 in Washington, D.C. He also presented a paper titled "Moreno: Roots of Psychodrama Theory in Sociology" at the annual conference of the Federation of Trainers and Training Programs in Psychodrama in Philadelphia.

11,400 attend 20th annual Spring Sing

"I'm Steel Standin'," produced by members of TNT, Zeta Rho, Pi Kappa Epsilon and Chi Omega Pi social clubs, took overall sweepstakes honors for the 20th annual Spring Sing show, presented April 8-10. "Standin'," which featured students dressed as robots, also received first place in the costume and choreography categories in the judges' reviews of the Thursday, Friday and Saturday presentations in Benson Auditorium.

Spring Sing, produced annually in conjunction with Harding's Youth Forum Weekend, is the largest single student-recruitment event of the year. Approximately 11,400 spectators attended this year's five performances, including more than 3,000 White County elementary school children at a special Thursday matinee. More than 800 students participated in Spring Sing.

Other sweepstakes winners included first runners-up "Take a Walk on the Nile Side" (Egyptians), presented by Chi Sigma Alpha and Regina; second runners-up "Is There a Monster in the House?" (monsters), presented by Alpha Gamma Omega, Delta Chi Delta, King's Men, Knights, OEGE, Shantih, Tri-Delta Epsilon, Tri-Sigma Delta and Friends; third runners-up "Better Off Red!" (Indians), presented by Sub T-16, Ko Jo Kai and Tri-Kappa; fourth runners-up "Rescue 911" (firemen), presented by Ju Go Ju and Titans; and fifth runners-up "In a League of Our Own" (baseball players), presented by Delta Gamma Rho, Gata, Ka Re Ta, Phi Delta, Sigma Phi Mu, Sigma Tau Sigma and Friends.

Taking first place in the participation and music categories was "Take a Walk on the Nile Side," and receiving first for originality was "Is There a Monster in the House?"

Excellent performances also were given by the Harding Jazz Band and the hosts and hostesses. The 1994 Spring Sing production will be presented March 31-April 2.

Sweepstakes Winners. Club members from TNT, Zeta Rho, Pi Kappa Epsilon and Chi Omega Pi perform the number one production number from Spring Sing 1993.

Minor prophets topic of Lectureship

More than 40 speakers are scheduled to present lessons for the 70th annual Harding Bible Lectureship Sept. 26-29, supporting the theme "Today Hear His Voice: The Minor Prophets Speak."

According to Lectureship Director Dr. Don Shackelford, the theme surrounding the Old Testament books of the minor prophets was chosen to emphasize the important lessons found therein concerning "social justice, righteousness, one's relationship with God, the coming of the Messiah and His kingdom, and many issues that we deal with today."

Seven theme lectures are scheduled during the four-day event. They include "When Worship Is Not Worship" (study of Malachi) with Ian Fair; "Summons to Serve" (Jonah) with Cline Paden; "What Does the Lord Require of You?" (Micah) with Gregg Hood; "What Are Your Idols? Spiritual Adultery" (Hosea) with Harold Redd; "The Day of the Lord: God's Judgment" (Nahum) with Jimmy Allen; "Faith/Trust: Accelerating When You Can't See" (Habakkuk) with G.P. Holt; and "What Do You Do When Your Wife Goes to the Streets?" (Hosea) with Prentice Meador.

Along with the usual slate of classes, special-interest group discussions, dinners and choral performances, a 50-minute devotional relating to the Lectureship theme will be presented each morning by Jim Bill McInteer. McInteer, a Nashville, Tenn., resident who is a well-respected minister and president of 20th Century Christian, is secretary of the Harding board of trustees and the namesake for the University's new $6 million Bible and World Missions Center. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held for the building in May.

To receive a copy of the Lectureship Planner, contact Dr. Don Shackelford, dean of international studies, Box 754, 900 E. Center, Searcy, AR 72149-0001; or call (501) 279-4660.

"Funny Girl" to highlight Homecoming '93

"Funny Girl," Isobel Lennart's tale of an awkward, but ambitious girl who dreams of starring on the New York stage, will highlight this fall's Homecoming Weekend festivities Oct. 28-30.

Those festivities will provide numerous opportunities for Harding alumni to fellowship and renew old friendships. In addition to the musical, the schedule includes the annual Golden Circle Dinner Thursday evening and the Golden Circle Coffee Break Friday morning; the Friday evening Black and Gold Banquet, to which all alumni and friends are invited and during which alumni awards will be presented; a complimentary continental alumni breakfast Saturday morning; the 25th and 50th Anniversary Class Luncheons Saturday afternoon; and the Homecoming football game against Arkansas Tech Saturday afternoon at Alumni Field.

Also scheduled are the crowning of the Homecoming

Queen in chapel Friday, bus tours of the campus and city, alumni chapel Saturday led by the Class of '68, and several reunions. At press time, social club reunions were planned for Chi Sigma Alpha, Delta Gamma Rho, Galaxy, Gata, Knights, Ka Re Ta, Ko Jo Kai, Phi Delta, Shantih, TNT and Zeta Rho, and special reunions were planned for Art Department alumni, 1983 School of Nursing graduates, former Chorus members, former members of the Dactylogy Club, football and cheerleaders alumni, and all former HUF students and faculty.

"Funny Girl," which premiered in Boston in 1964 and was later made more popular by the screen version starring Barbra Streisand, will run for two performances, Friday at 8:15 p.m. and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Robin Miller, associate professor of communication, is director.

Playing the lead role of Fanny Brice will be junior music education major Jessica Pell of Wadsworth, Ohio. Pell transferred this year to Harding from Michigan Christian College, where she had played Nellie Forbush in "South Pacific" and was a hostess for MCC's "Celebration," similar to Harding's Spring Sing. At Harding she has played the lead of Miss Hardcastle in this year's Youth Forum Weekend production,

Jessica Pell

"She Stoops to Conquer."

"I am absolutely thrilled and just a little scared because it's such a big role," Pell said on the morning she learned about her selection for the lead.

In the musical, Brice recalls the scenes of her life, from the stagestruck teen years to her reigning stardom with the Ziegfeld Follies.

A full schedule of activities and "Funny Girl" ticket information will be mailed to alumni as Homecoming Weekend approaches.

Parents' Weekend slated for September

Parents' Weekend, one of the highlights of each fall semester, is scheduled for Sept. 24-25. The event is under the oversight of the Office of Alumni/Parent Relations.

During the special weekend, for which all students' parents are invited to the campus, a full schedule of activities is planned. On Friday evening a pep rally will be held to build enthusiasm for Saturday's football game against Southeast Oklahoma State University. Parents of football team members will be introduced during half-time activities of the game.

All families attending are invited to a barbecue at the home of President and Mrs. Burks Saturday afternoon preceding the game.

Visiting parents will also have the opportunity to attend a late-night devotional by the Lily Pool, entertainment by the University's musical groups, tours of all campus buildings, and informational presentations about various programs, such as Harding University in Florence, Italy. Financial aid information also will be available.

Many families enjoy having their portraits made in a famous Harding swing. This service will be offered near the Bell Tower under the tall oaks of the front lawn during the weekend.

For more information about Parents' Weekend, contact the Office of Alumni/Parent Relations, Box 768, 900 E. Center, Searcy, AR 72149-0001.

Nominations sought for Distinguished Alumnus

The Distinguished Alumnus Award is presented each year to an alumnus during the Black and Gold Banquet as recognition of service to the church and to God, a life consistent with Harding's ideals, distinguished professional achievement that has merited the honor and praise of peers and colleagues, and active support of the University. Your participation is requested by submitting nominations and supporting letters to Harding Alumni Association, Box 768, 900 E. Center, Searcy, AR 72149-0001. The deadline for nominations is Sept. 3, 1993.

Peck presenter at San Diego teachers meeting

Dr. Richard E. Peck (education) presented a paper titled "A Comparison of Academic Achievement of Education Graduates and Non-Education Graduates" at the annual meeting of the Association of Independent Liberal Arts Colleges for Teacher Education in San Diego Feb. 24.

Wilson, Daniel and Crockett earn credential

Dr. Beth Wilson, Dr. Ellen Daniel and Sharen Crockett (home economics) have all earned the Certified Home Economist (CHE) credential from the American Home Economics Association. To maintain certification, 75 professional development units must be completed every three years.

Frye receives doctorate

Steve Frye (communication) successfully defended his dissertation April 26 and received the Ed.D. in higher education from the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

DeYoung receives society's computer award

Joel DeYoung, a senior computer science major from Williston, N.D., was selected in March to receive the 1992-93 Arkansas Society for Computer and Information Technology Outstanding Achievement Award. The award entitles DeYoung to a $500 stipend, payable to him this fall, as well as a framed certificate and recognition at the 1993 Arkansas Computer Conference and Awards Luncheon in Little Rock in October.

Paper presented by Tucker

Dr. David Tucker (business) presented a paper titled "The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism" at the 18th annual conference of the Association of Private Enterprise Education April 4-6 in Washington, D.C.

Peck addresses literacy council

Dr. Jeanine Peck (education) spoke April 24 at the Annual Literacy Council Dinner on the topic "Special People." She also attended the Association for Teacher Education Conference in Little Rock, Ark., in March.

School of Business teams take honors

Three student teams of the School of Business received first-, second- and third-place honors in regional and national competitions in April.

First, the six-student Economics Team, also known as "The Capitalism Corps," won the mid-South regional Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE) competition in Dallas April 20. The first-place finish qualified the team for the international SIFE competition in Kansas City May 23-25, the results of which were not available at press time. Harding teams have qualified for the Kansas City trip for 15 consecutive years, winning the national competition six times and placing as first runners-up six times.

For the Dallas competition the Economics Team presented its entry, "Free Enterprise — It Works When We Do," to a panel of corporate executives who served as judges for the regional contest. The entry contained more than 60 projects and programs presented by the students to civic, professional and educational groups during the 1992-93 school year.

Members of the team were co-captains Clint Blair of West Liberty, Ky., and Tracy Crouch of Judsonia, Ark.; Aaron Hasten of Salem, Mo.; Sheri Benthall of Little Rock, Ark.; and Anessa Hobby and Jonathan Pace of Searcy. Dr. Don Diffine, professor of economics, is the group's sponsor. The team defeated students in the regional competition from York College, Houston Baptist University, Southwest Missouri State University, Northeastern Oklahoma A&M College and East Central Oklahoma University.

Members of Harding's Business Team also fared well in recent competition, placing second at the International Collegiate Business Policy competition in Las Vegas April 14-16.

The team was involved in making a series of 10 business decisions throughout the spring semester. Then, at the competition site in Las Vegas, 10 more decisions were made by the team.

"The Business Team worked hard and competed very well. ... It was very competitive, but our team was smooth and articulate in its presentation."

"The team worked hard and competed very well," said Dr. David Tucker, a team sponsor and dean of the School of Business. "A wide array of marketing, finance and production decisions had to be made during the competition. It was very competitive, but our team was smooth and articulate in its presentations."

Clements, assistant professor of accounting, also serves as faculty sponsor for the Business Team.

Finally, eight other students attended the international convention of the Society for the Advancement of Management (SAM) in Orlando, Fla., April 1-3. Four of them, who comprised one of Harding's management case competition teams, earned third-place honors at the convention and competition.

In addition to the case competitions, presentations were made by national and international business leaders concerning how corporations can better deal with environmental issues.

Members of the SAM case competition team were senior Laura Adams of Jonesboro, Ark.; junior Maria Bendana of Managua, Nicaragua; junior Silvia Bulnes of Tegucigalpa, Honduras; and junior Lomas de Rodeo of Guatemala. Faculty sponsor for the team is Lavon Carter, associate professor of management.

1993 Petit Jean dedicated to Coker

The 1993 edition of the Petit Jean yearbook, with the theme "Making Our Place in the World," was revealed in a special chapel ceremony at the close of the spring semester.

The book is dedicated to Dr. Bobby Coker, dean of the School of Education. "He was selected because his character and leadership ability are outstanding, and they make an obvious difference to many people," said Editor Tracey Johnson, a senior from Searcy.

The student-produced yearbook was completed by as many as 50 individuals. And this year marked a new step for the Petit Jean: It was the first time it was sent camera-ready on disk and was prepared using Macintosh and desktop publishing equipment.

Editor of the 1994 Petit Jean will be Scott Baine, a junior graphic design major from Tyronza, Ark. Baine worked on the 1992 book and was a section editor of this year's book.

Behavioral Science papers sponsored at symposium

Seven students from the Department of Behavioral Sciences had research papers sponsored by Dr. Ken Hobby, associate professor of psychology, at the Arkansas Symposium for Psychology Students April 2-3 in Little Rock.

The symposium consisted of more than 90 papers from undergraduate students in Tennessee, Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas. The papers of the seven Harding students consisted of original experimental psychology research performed in Hobby's advanced psychology research class.

Papers sponsored at the symposium by Hobby include "Perception of Social Anxiety Around Persons with AIDS as a Function of Source of Disease and Gender," written by Lisa Badgely, a senior from Springdale, Ark.; "Perception of College Board Scores as Predictors of College G.P.A. for Males and Females," by Michelle Bebout, a senior from Upper Marlboro, Md.; "Racial Attitudes and Their Effect on the Workplace," writ-

Graduate School confers 31 degrees

Thirty-one men received graduate degrees in Bible and religion at commencement exercises at the Graduate School of Religion in Memphis Saturday, May 8.

One received the master of arts, 15 the master of arts in religion, 14 the master of divinity, and one the doctor of ministry. Bruce McLarty, minister for the College Church of Christ in Searcy and a graduate of the school, was the speaker. President David Burks conferred the degrees.

The total number of graduates from the school since it moved from Searcy to Memphis in 1958 is 1104. These graduates are ministering in 47 states and 25 foreign countries.

ten by Grant Brower, a senior from Dallas; "Differences in the Perception that Males and Females Have of Aggression," by Jonathan Hobby, a junior from Paragould, Ark.; "Perceptions Toward Christian, Atheist and Mixed Couples Values," written by Robin Luggier, a junior from Columbus, Ohio; "Perceptions Control Interpretations and Memory," by Jason Roberts, a senior from Summerville, Calif.; and "The Perceptions of People Who Have Phobias," written by Daniel Rosson, a junior from Casper, Wyo.

According to Hobby, the Harding students received positive feedback and praise from the professors at the symposium.

"They were virtually the only students who had collected and analyzed data early enough to report it in the symposium," he said. "We even know of a professor from another school who is considering a joint project with our students so that their research can be developed even further and presented at regional and national psychology conventions."

Lewis Grad School Alumnus of the Year

Annie May Lewis was honored by the Graduate School of Religion in Memphis April 13 as the school's 1993 Alumnus of the Year.

Lewis began her work on the Harding campus in Searcy in 1944. She served as a teacher as well as librarian. When the time came to select a librarian for the Graduate School, the administration knew that Lewis had the ability to make the Graduate School library the best among the brotherhood schools. They were not disappointed. She did a magnificent job and assisted multitudes of young people on the HUGSR campus from 1963 to 1983.

Twentieth Century Christian presented her with the Christian Literature Award in 1975. In 1979 she was co-recipient of the first Distinguished Service Award presented by the University to a Graduate School staff member.

She and her husband, Dr. Jack Lewis, worship with the White Station Church of Christ.

Four honored at Alpha Chi competition

Four Harding students were honored in scholarship competitions April 1-3 in Chicago at the national convention of Alpha Chi, the national college honor scholarship society.

Three students won scholarships or fellowships, and another was named as an alternate winner.

Sondra Smith, a senior English and history major, received one of five $1,500 H.Y. Benedict Fellowships given by the National Council for graduate study in 1993-94.

Amy Johnson, a senior communication major, received the Joseph E. Pryor Fellowship offered by Region II. The $1,000 award is to be used toward graduate study.

David P. Smith, a junior, received the other Region II award, the Edwin W. Gaston Scholarship. He will use the $1,000 stipend for his senior year at Harding.

Shauna Queen, a junior English and Spanish major, was named as third alternate for one of the five $1,000 Alfred H. Nolle Scholarships given by the National Council.

Magazine accepts Smith's poem

Sondra Smith, an English and history major from Muscatine, Iowa, who graduated in May, had a poem she has written accepted during the spring semester for publication in The Rectangle, the literary magazine of Sigma Tau Delta, the national college honor society in English. The Poem's title is "She Pads in on Big Feet."

Student publishes comic book

Ronnie Ashlock, an art major who graduated in May, has created and illustrated a comic book featuring his Chauncy and Clovis characters — a cat and bear, respectively. The book is the first effort of a publishing company he has formed with his partner, Larry Rains. Both are from Conway, Ark.

The cartoonists have been introducing the book at trade shows and retailers' conventions. A second printing may be in the near future.

Paper presented by James at convention

Dr. Mike James (communication) presented a paper titled "An Exploratory Study of the Perceived Benefits of Electronic Bulletin Board Use and Their Impact on Other Communication Activities" at the national convention of the Broadcast Education Association April 15-18 in Las Vegas.

Mission work accomplished on Haitian spring break

Spring break on a Caribbean island — a dream for most college students and faculty members alike. But this year, March 11-19, the dream came true for 19 students and two faculty members.

However, their dream was something more than nine days on the beach basking in the sun. It was nine days of long hours ministering to the health-care needs of Haiti, the poorest nation in the Caribbean.

Jerry Myhan, associate professor of nursing, and Sandra Long, associate instructor of nursing, directed the spring ence has on the lives of the students and other team members who go.

"Major eye-opening and life-changing experiences occur for people who have never experienced life outside the United States and our own culture. I believe God has touched, and will continue to touch, the lives of some of these people to return to do future mission work, if not in Haiti, elsewhere in the world."

The group of 19 was the largest to make the trip to Haiti, and in order to go, each had to raise $1,000. Like previous years, not all the participants were nursing majors. There were two Bible majors, a biology major, a history major, a psychology major and a communication disorders major, plus the 13 nursing majors in the group.

The students took with them approximately $20,000 in medicines, which were distributed to those coming to the health clinics. For two weekends before spring break, the students spent their Saturdays packaging the medicine and eyeglasses.

A portion of the $1,000 each student raised went to help purchase the medicine distributed during the trip. Through non-profit organizations Myhan was able to purchase the drugs at 10 to 15 percent of their actual retail value.

One of the highlights of the trip for the students was the presentation of a check for $1,592 to a Haitian orphanage. The funds were given by members of the Harding student body. Last year the students collected more than $1,400 for the orphanage.

Students who spent a Haitian spring break were Jennifer Alexander, Stephanie Alexander, Joan Chandler, Shari Deloach, Suzanne Forney, Shane Gage, Michelle Hammitt, Holly Hays, Laura and Bob

Lawrence, April Lemon, Wendi Murrell, Elizabeth Pickens, Gabe Polk, Leanne Putnam, Amy Rich, Duane Roggendorff, Randy Uthe and Jennifer Vest. Garret, Myhan's 16-year-old son, also accompanied the group.

AWH Service Award presented to Cone

Mrs. James H. Cone of Little Rock, Ark., was presented the Volunteer Service Award of the Associated Women for Harding at the group's annual spring meeting on campus April 23.

The award is annually presented to "the person who has given exceptional service to the organization," and is the highest recognition given by the volunteer group. AWH has more than 600 members in 10 chapters in Arkansas and surrounding states.

Mrs. Cone is a member of the Metropolitan Little Rock AWH Chapter and has served as chapter president twice. She now serves as a member of the National Council of AWH.

Her husband, James H. Cone, is chairman of Harding's board of trustees. The couple's three children are graduates of the University.

break activities of the students. It was Myhan's second mission trip with students to Haiti. Previously, he had taken students on four trips to Panama.

During the trip the students and faculty members provided health-care consultations and treatment for 653 Haitians. An additional 412 people received a vaccination against measles and rubella, and 150 people were screened for eyeglasses. Sixty of those were fitted with a pair of used eyeglasses to improve their vision.

"This was not a typical spring break, but it is the type these 19 students wanted," said Myhan. "The major reason I continue to return year after year is the effect the experi-

Wilson receives $4,500 grant

Dr. Edmond W. Wilson (chemistry) received a $4,500 grant from the Arkansas Space Grant Consortium to take interested faculty members to Johnson Space Center in Houston and meet with researchers in order to further establish the NASA research program at Harding.

Phonathon's goal is $1.5 million

Telephone lines on campus will be busy between Sept. 5 and Oct. 14 as administrators, faculty, staff, students and friends of the University dial for dollars.

The goal of the 20-night phonathon is to raise $1.5 million in gifts and pledges from alumni and friends to help meet the requirements for a challenge grant from the Harvey and Bernice Jones Charitable Trust of Springdale, Ark.

The $2 million challenge grant will be used for the construction of a marriage and family therapy center. The facility is included in the Jim Bill McInter Bible and World Missions Center, on which construction began in April.

When completed the 63,000-square-foot McInter Center will be the largest classroom building on campus. The new master's program in marriage and family therapy will be located on the third floor.

The challenge from the Jones Trust was issued on a two-for-one basis. Harding has until February 1994 to raise $4 million in gifts and pledges.

During the phonathon effort more than 100 callers will try to reach approximately 10,000 households consisting of alumni, parents and friends. During the five-week effort, callers will man the telephones on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Those contacted will be asked to make a three-year pledge or a one-time gift toward the goal. Twenty callers each night will call from "Phonathon Central" on the second floor of the Hammon

Student Center.

Funds raised from the phonathon project will be used toward the $7 million project of building and endowing the McInter Center.

'93-'94 American Studies lecture series begins Sept. 14

George R. Walther, author and sales consultant, will begin the 1993-94 Distinguished Lecture Series of the American Studies Institute Sept. 14.

His presentation, "Power

Talking," will be held in Benson Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The lecture is co-sponsored by Harding's Center for Professional Sales.

Walther's specialty is communication effectiveness. He is the author of the best-sellers Phone Power and Power Talking, which have been translated into Japanese, French, German, Chinese and Norwegian languages.

He holds the baccalaureate degree in speech and the M.B.A. in marketing from UCLA. The National Speakers Association has tabbed him as one of the nation's top 50 speakers. He is also a frequent spokesman on CNN's "Business Report."

Walther's corporate clients include AT&T, Ford, DuPont, FTD, Hewlett-Packard, GTE, and Snelling and Snelling. His articles have appeared in the

Templeton Honor Roll includes Harding

The University announced in April that it has for the fourth consecutive year been listed on the John Templeton Foundation Honor Roll.

The foundation, based in Pensacola, Fla., recognizes colleges and universities that promote high integrity, as well as a quality education. The Honor Roll was created by the foundation in hopes of renewing America's commitment to the development of moral values in the educational process.

All four-year, accredited public and private colleges and universities in the nation are eligible for the Templeton Honor Roll. Harding is listed among 111 institutions that meet the foundation's distinctive criteria.

The American Studies Institute will announce in August the remaining speakers for its 1993-94 Distinguished Lecture Series.

John M. Templeton, the investment adviser and philanthropist who created the foundation bearing his name, said that Harding "is among those schools which best exemplify campuses that encourage the development of strong moral character among students. They deserve to be recognized by prospective students and their sister schools for their achievement in this area."

Morgan reads paper at spring teachers meeting

Dr. Jan Morgan (education) presented a paper at the state spring meeting of the Arkansas Association of Classroom Teachers of Education in Little Rock. She also has been elected co-chair of the Higher Education Consortium for Early Childhood Education in Arkansas.

Australia site of Carr speech

Dr. Jim Carr, executive vice president, spoke April 5 in Perth, Australia, by invitation of the Perth A.M. Club. In his address he discussed Clinton's presidency and how it will affect Australian business.

Morgan selected basketball coach; Kirby assistant

Jeff Morgan, head basketball coach at West Texas State University, has been selected to fill the vacant head coaching position at Harding. His West Texas State Buffaloes were 17-10 in the 1992-93 season.

Morgan, a native of Corning, Ark., was a standout point guard at York College and West Texas State. As a senior he led the Buffaloes to a 24-7 season and a Lone Star Conference title.

Tim Kirby, head coach at Carl Albert State College in Poteau, Okla., has been hired as Morgan's assistant. He is a graduate of the University of Science and Arts of Oklahoma and East Central (Okla.) University.

Four championships won en route to fourth straight All-Sports trophy

Harding athletes used a strong showing in spring sports to win their fourth consecutive Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference All-Sports trophy.

The trophy has been captured by Harding six times in the 30-year history of the award. Only the University of Central Arkansas has won the award more times.

The All-Sports championship is determined by a point system based on the final standings of every team in all sports recognized by the conference. Harding won four of the 12 AIC sports championships and finished second in three others, scoring 58 points to 51 for runner-up UCA. Southern Arkansas University finished third with 46 points.

The Bison and Lady Bison athletes gained championship trophies in women's tennis and cross country and in men's tennis and track. Runner-up spots were captured in football, men's cross country and women's track.

Other Bison team standings were: baseball and volleyball, fourth; women's basketball, fifth; golf, sixth; and men's basketball, ninth.

Berryhill Awards go to Fitzhugh, Wilson

Steven Fitzhugh of Dallas and Nancee Wilson of Searcy received the M.E. Berryhill Awards for 1993.

The award, named in honor of the former coach and athletic director, honors senior athletes who have excelled in academics, character and spiritual development.

Fitzhugh was a starting linebacker and captain of the Bison football team. He was the second leading tackler on the squad. During his four years at Harding, the Bisons won a conference championship and two trips to the NAIA national play-offs.

Fitzhugh helped establish HARM (Harding Athletes as Role Models), a student group that supplied speakers and programs for area junior and senior high schools.

Wilson holds a handful of Lady Bison basketball records. She started in all 116 games during her career and holds career records in points scored (1,389), rebounds (1,093) and blocked shots (150).

Wilson was All-AIC or honorable mention each of her four years. As a senior she received the NAIA All-American Scholar-Athlete award.

Spring teams

Men's track places first; ladies second

The Bison men's track team added the AIC championship in April to the district title it won in February.

The Bisons tallied 135 points to Southern Arkansas University's 125 to claim the crown. Henderson State University (86) and Ouachita Baptist University (69) took third and fourth places, respectively.

The anticipated battle with the University of Central Arkansas, the defending champions, never-materialized as the Bears faded to fifth place.

Harding won only two events, but had more than one team member in many events garnering points. Tquan Moore won the triple jump, and sophomore Sigmond Donelson won the high jump. Both earned All-AIC honors.

Also named to the All-AIC team were Nathan Mills (1,500 and 5,000 meters), Matt Bien (discus), Jason Wyatt (high hurdles and the intermediate hurdles), and Damon Work (800 and 1,500 meters).

In the women's division the Lady Bisons finished a close second to the Riderettes from SAU, 63-54.

Harding's Shauna Queen was the high-point performer in the meet winning the 400, 800, 1,500 and 3,000 meter runs and anchoring the second-place 1,600 meter relay team.

Penny Mayberry won the high jump. Kitty Jensen and Keri Hutchison placed second and third, respectively, in the 800, 1,500 and 3,000 meter runs.

Moore, Queen, Hutchison and Mayberry represented Harding at the national NAIA track meet.

complete highly successful seasons

Baseball advances to district tourney

Baseball coach Steve Smith was able to use his short-handed pitching staff to advance this season, producing an 11-13 AIC record, good for fourth place and a trip to the district tournament.

The unexpected early loss of key pitchers hindered the Bisons. The limited pitching staff stalled the team's success, especially in non-conference games, as the overall record was 15-33.

All-AIC catcher Shane Fullerton led all batters with a .333 average and 25 RBIs. His defensive catching skills have caught eyes of major league scouts. He threw out more than 60 percent of opponents' base stealers.

Daryl Johnson set a record with 30 stolen bases in 37 attempts while hitting .308. Bart Jones had a .305 batting average, and Randall Hunter, center field, was errorless for the season while handling more than 100 chances.

Strong finish lands golfers in fourth place at districts

After a slow start Harding's golf team played its best in the NAIA District 17 championship, claiming fourth place with a 632 score.

In the district championship the team responded with rounds of 316 both days, which gave them third- and fourth-place finishes. The final tally had Harding in sixth for the six rounds of conference action.

Freshman James Clark played well both days of the district match, and his 77-74 (151) was good enough to put him in the top seven with All-District honors. Other team members included Bart McFarland, Kevin Kelly, Dave DeWitt and Matt Tiller.

Men's tennis takes AIC, district titles

A young Bison tennis team rolled through the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference, compiling a 13-1 record to claim the AIC championship.

The Bisons finished the year with a 21-2 match record, losing only to Oral Roberts University and Ouachita Baptist University. The team also won the NAIA District 17 title, earning a spot in the national tournament. Harding's top four players, Ignacio Ruiz, Diego Perez, Ruben Gonzalez and Leoncio Dominguez, were named to the All-AIC team. Those four plus Eduardo Giralt and Juan Dominguez were named to the All-District team. The team is comprised of four freshmen and two sophomores.

The 1993 team is dominated by former players from the Mexican junior tennis program. Ruiz was the number-two player in the 20-and-under group, and Perez was the national juniors champion. Gonzalez, L. Dominguez, Giralt and Oscar Andrade were all highly ranked as well. Juan Dominguez is from Caracas, Venezuela.

Conference, district titles won by Lady Bison tennis team

The Lady Bison tennis team, in only its second year of intercollegiate competition, went undefeated in AIC competition to win the conference championship.

All-AIC. Leoncio Dominguez from Mexico City returns a serve during a home match. He helped the Bisons win the AIC and District 17 titles.

Runners-up to the University of Central Arkansas in 1992, the Lady Bisons defeated the Sugar Bears 9-0 in both 1993 meetings. The Harding team finished the season with a 17-5 record and ranked 19th nationally by the NAIA.

The team stormed through the NAIA District 17 championships without losing a match to score a perfect 27 points. The team qualified for the national NAIA tournament in Kansas City, Mo.

Six freshmen and one sophomore earned the top spots on the 1993 team. Amy Whittle, last year's number-one player, played in the number four position. The top three Lady Bisons were Alicia Rojas, Jessy Ruiz and Beatriz Arvizu.

Rounding out the team were Sandra Gonzalez, Melody Miller and Lety Diaz. The entire team won NAIA All-District honors, and Rojas was named All-AIC.

Coach David Elliott's team finished 12-0 in the AIC and split 10 matches with NCAA Division I and II schools.

53 years of Service

BY DAVID CROUCH
PHOTOGRAPHY BY JEFF MONTGOMERY

For 53 years Jim Bill McInteer has been a member of the Harding family — as a student, an alumnus, a member of the board of trustees, and always as an involved supporter of the Harding experience.

Except for Clifton L. Ganus Jr., Jack Wood Sears and Joseph E. Pryor, no other living alumnus has had a closer or longer relationship with the University. That relationship began in Bible classes taught by J.N. Armstrong and literature classes taught by L.C. Sears, two of Harding's pioneers.

Now the McInteer name will be more indelibly etched in Harding's history. In October 1992 the board of trustees made the decision to name a new classroom building, now under construction, the Jim Bill McInteer Bible and World Missions Center. President David Burks made the announcement at Homecoming chapel services attended by the student body, faculty, trustees and members of the class of 1942 — McInteer's class.

"Because our new Bible and World Missions Center will be so important in helping us accomplish our mission at Harding, the board of trustees wanted to honor someone who had a long association with the University and who is a model for all of us," said Burks. "It was obvious that person was Jim Bill McInteer, a man who epitomizes what Harding stands for."

McInteer, in his characteristic way, responded to the announcement. "The highest honors that have ever come to me have come on this campus. I've been on this board for 43 years and never missed a meeting, except yesterday. The one meeting I miss, they go and do something foolish.

"There is no way to thank these trustees and the Harding family for what you've meant to me all these years and for the honor of having this building named for me."

McInteer was elected to the board of trustees in 1950, and since 1980 he has served as the group's secretary. In 1964 he was named the University's Distinguished Alumnus, and in 1991 he was awarded an honorary doctorate from Harding. Even though he has received the institution's highest honors, there is still one gift from Harding that he says has topped all the others. "The best thing that has happened to me at Harding was when my precious wife accepted my proposal of marriage. We have been together for almost 50 years, and it all began in Searcy."

The couple's two children, Mark and MariLynn, continued the family tradition by graduating from Harding, as did Mark's wife, Melinda. According to the patriarch of the family, in a few more years the McInteer family will join the growing list of families who have the distinction of being three-generation Harding families. "We've been saving for those grandchildren's educations ever since the first one was born. I want Matthew, Martha Lynn, Seth, Catherine and Michael to have the same wonderful experiences that Betty and I had and that their parents had at Harding.”

When most men of 72 are settling into the routine of retirement, Jim Bill is keeping a schedule that would challenge a much younger man. For him, “retirement” is almost a dirty word. He stepped down in 1986 as the pulpit minister of Nashville’s West End Church of Christ after 30 years with the congregation — but his schedule is as busy as ever. He and his wife, Betty, are on the road 32 weeks out of the year while he preaches in evangelistic meetings. “As long as I’m needed and as long as the doors are open, I’ll be there,” explains McInteer. “The calls come from all around the country, and I respond to the requests in the order that I receive them. One week I may preach for a congregation with 1,000 members, and the next week it may be for a congregation with 24 members. The size of the congregation has never been a determining factor in my availability to preach.”

Jim Bill schedules his activities around two events each year. Those events are the semi-annual meetings of Harding’s board of trustees in the fall and in the spring. No other member of the board has served longer than McInteer.

Jim Bill and Betty McInteer

Even when he’s home, McInteer is on the go. As president of 20th Century Christian, he is always at the office by 8 a.m. in time to participate with the staff in a morning devotional before beginning the two to three hours of dictation that take up most of his morning. A part of his afternoon is filled with office work, including editing the company’s “New Life” series of Bible school materials as he has done for the last 15 years. Then he and Betty visit local hospitals and the homes of friends who are ill. His days are packed, but he enjoys each to its fullest.

When not on the road preaching, he and Betty spend one day a week on their Kentucky farm, which has been in the McInteer family for three generations. “I’ve always enjoyed the farm and its physical activity. Even today we work in the garden, and I cut and split wood.”

Whether in Nashville or hundreds of miles away, McInteer has a habit of walking each day when possible. His walks, however, are more than just physical exercise. “I try to spend 30 minutes walking each day. Most people enjoy having someone walk with them, but not me. My ‘prayer walk’ each day is one of those joys of life that I love so much. If you see me out walking, just honk and wave, but don’t stop to talk. I’m already involved in a conversation with God.”

Jim Bill McInteer’s indomitable spirit has surfaced during the last three years as he has confronted cancer. Although pain has racked his body, he is a man on a mission. “I made a vow with the Lord. If he would just let me go to preach, then I would endure the pain. He let me go, and He relieved the pain as well. By grace I’ve been able to continue my ministry.”

When the name of Jim Bill McInteer is etched on the new Bible and World Missions Center, future generations of the Harding family will have a daily reminder of his commitment to ministry and his unselfish service to others. It may also be a reminder of what can happen when a person misses just one meeting of the board of trustees. ■

Computing the Cost of Higher Education

BY PRESIDENT DAVID B. BURKS

Why must tuition increase each year in American higher education? What about the cost of Harding's tuition? What does Harding's near future hold regarding tuition increases?

At least six variables have a very strong impact on tuition. They are scholarship assistance, the labor intensity of universities, the cost of information services, the cost of books and journals, building maintenance and construction, and the higher education price index (HEPI) vs. the consumer price index (CPI).

Scholarship assistance has been increasing much faster than tuition, and universities are finding it necessary to put a higher proportion of the total money available for the university back into scholarship assistance.

When I assumed the presidency of Harding in 1987, $2.2 million in University funds were used for scholarship assistance along with about $1.6 million in federal funds. In 1992, five years later, the Harding commitment had risen to $4.4 million, while the federal commitment was $2.3 million. During this period Harding increased scholarship assistance by 100 percent, while federal assistance increased only 43 percent.

In many ways universities face the same problems faced by big business. The annual budget at Harding is about $43 million. However, one of the ways in which we are not like most businesses is that a much greater percentage of our total cost is for labor (salaries). Consequently, when health-care costs escalate, it can have a more negative effect on universities than it would on a business.

A similar effect occurs when a university's contribution to Social Security rises. A total of 56 percent of Harding's educational and general revenue goes toward salaries and fringe benefits.

Through the years the cost of maintaining American universities' libraries and computing facilities has escalated rapidly. Society would have us believe that the cost of computing has come down as technology has advanced — and, for machines of a given capability, that is true. But this theory holds little water where a university is concerned.

One thing disregarded in this theory is growth patterns. For example, in 1987-88 only 10 to 20 percent of our undergraduate students and 20 percent of our faculty members actually used computers. Six years later, 1992-93, 90 percent of the undergraduate students and 80 percent of the faculty use them. Consequently, the number of computers owned by Harding has increased dramatically as well. In 1989 the University owned 265 computers. Now it owns 416 computers — up 57 percent in three years.

Most people are aware of the increased cost of books and journals today. For example, the U.S. Periodicals Price Index in 1991 was more than four times what it was in 1987. However, the cost of scientific journals and books has increased even more rapidly. Let me give you a dollar-and-percent-age increase on a selected group of scientific journals for one year.

From 1991 to 1992 the price of the American Journal of Public Health jumped from $80 to $160, a 100 percent increase; and the journal Academy of Management Review increased from $38 to $65, or 71 percent, in one year. That same year the Journal of Physical Chemistry cost $998, and the Chemical Abstracts subscription for one year cost $7,999. The percentage increases are shocking for a single year, but notice how much these single-year subscriptions cost.

The problem of deferred maintenance is one that seriously affects American colleges and universities. Its roots are 20 years old, dating back to the high-inflation years of the '70s when most universities found it extremely difficult to keep up with the maintenance cost of buildings.

Harding, however, is fortunate in that we have been able to spend more than $25 million on maintenance and new construction over the past five years. Nonetheless, Harding still must continue to provide new roofs and maintain all of her existing buildings as we plan for the future.

Most people relate tuition price increases to the consumer price index (CPI), but they should instead use the higher education price index (HEPI) when talking about American higher education. The HEPI includes things which are not found in the CPI calculations at all — for example, the rapidly escalating prices of high technology and scientific journals.

There is no simple relationship between the HEPI and the CPI. However, over the last 10 years, the HEPI has generally run about 2 percent more than the CPI. Hence, if Harding is to keep up on a year-to-year basis, tuition will have to be about 2 percent higher than the CPI just to remain on a level playing field.

In comparison with our sister four-year Christian colleges, Harding's tuition is among the lowest. In fact, only two of our 14 sister Christian colleges have a lower tuition, and our room-and-board costs are competitive with, or are less than, other senior Christian colleges as well. The national average for tuition for private colleges in 1992-93 was $10,498, while Harding's was $5,460.

Interesting to note is the fact that Harding is listed in Best Dollar Buys in American Colleges and Universities and also in a guide published separately, The 200 Most Selective Colleges. It is unusual for a university to be listed in both publications because, typically, if you are a very selective college, you will also be very pricey. I believe our students are receiving a tremendous value for the amount they are charged.

Harding is committed to keeping tuition as low as possible while still providing an excellent program for her students. I am very hopeful that we will be able to maintain tuition increases in the near-term future at about the level of the increase in the higher education price index. Through effective strategic planning and very careful use of our resources, I believe we can continue to improve our quality and maintain a tuition level similar to that which exists at the present time, adjusted for inflation.

For the 1993-94 academic year, tuition will increase 5.5 percent to $163 per hour with general fees at $30 per hour. Room and board will increase an average of 5.5 percent for the year as well. This represents the second-lowest increase in tuition for Harding in the past seven years, truly a blessing in these times of national economic uncertainty.

Gifts of $2.5 million will be needed annually to balance the general budget in order for these objectives to be met. Capital expenditures for new buildings or renovations also must be financed with gift income.

With these things in mind, friends of the University should be assured that, with prayerful stewardship of each dollar paid by our students and raised from outside sources, together we can meet — and maintain — the cost of higher education at Harding University. ■

FOCUS ON THE FUTURE

Rate your estate plan

BY DONALD KEE

Many things occur to date your estate plan: changes in your beneficiaries' lives, property changes, tax law changes and, most significantly, changes in your wishes.

Take this easy test to rate your estate plan by checking each statement that prompts you to some action. When you are done, count the check marks to discover how your estate plan rates.

Your Beneficiaries

- You want to change your designated beneficiaries.
- You want to be sure your children get your estate after your spouse's lifetime.
- You want to provide for the care of a minor child.
- You're worried about the ability of an adult child to manage money.
- You want to make a bequest to Harding or another charitable organization.

Your Property

- Your estate has increased through good investments, an inheritance or life insurance.
- You have given away or sold property named in your will to go to an heir.
- You need to review the beneficiaries of your corporate benefit plans.
- You are not sure which assets are probate assets and which are non-probate assets.

Taxes and Legal Concerns

- You'd like to know what estate taxes you will pay.
- You want to take full advantage of the unlimited marital deduction when a spouse is named beneficiary.

You'd like to learn how charitable bequests — even with a life income to a surviving relative or friend — can reduce your estate taxes.

You've moved to another state with different probate and tax laws.

You wonder if the executor (or personal representative) in your present will is qualified to settle your estate and dispose of your assets properly.

You'd like to consider the benefits of a living trust for your current needs now and for probate simplification later.

You now own property in another state or in a foreign country, and you're worried about potential probate and tax difficulties there.

You'd like to have a self-proving will so missing witnesses won't hold up probate.

Rate Your Estate Plan

Calculate your plan by counting the number of check marks:
0 to 4. Congratulations! Your estate plan is better than most.
5 to 9. Not bad, but there are some nagging concerns.
10 to 14. You need to consider seriously a review of your estate plan.

Over 14. You're courting disaster. For the sake of those you care about most, don't put off an immediate check-up.

Why Put It Off?

In estate planning, the worst sin of all is procrastination. We know we should make plans, but for one reason or another, we don't get around to it. Remember, anticipation is usually worse than the reality!

"I came to Harding because I knew I needed to grow spiritually and academically. I made the right decision. Harding's been a wonderful place for me to grow in both aspects, and I never regret coming here."

Matt Habecker
Randolph, N.J.

"On my first visit to Harding I noticed the people were so warm and friendly, and it really made me feel secure. Harding has become my second home, and I'm getting an education that is both professionally and spiritually satisfying."

Anna Pettit
Elkin, N.C.

"I transferred to Harding because I knew it would be a wonderful opportunity for a great education with an emphasis on Christian values. I love the people here, and I wouldn't want to be anywhere else."

Yvonne Stephney
Caney, Kan.

"I could've gone to any one of the many universities in Australia, but I knew I needed more than just a degree. I'm so pleased with what I've found at Harding, and I know I'm taking back more than a piece of paper when I graduate."

Rich Little
Capalaba, Australia

"I felt after my campus visit to Harding that the academic preparation I received there would be unmatched. Now as I prepare to apply to graduate school, I realize that my Harding education will open doors I never thought possible."

Brett Jones
Nashville, Tenn.

"The relationships I have established with my teachers have been one of the best things about Harding. They really care about you as an individual, and they are willing to do all they can to help you succeed."

Melanie Johnson
Dothan, Ala.

There are but a few institutions that you and I cherish: our families, our churches and our schools. Right now, I want to give you the chance to affect all three.

With increasing enrollments and the planning of new programs like the master's degree in marriage and family therapy and master of arts and sciences in Bible, more and more students are being served by our College of Bible and Religion. Since 1988 Bible majors at Harding have increased from 133 to more than 300. We have students who, after graduation, will be relocating across this country while others go overseas. They will all be serving in their respective areas, such as youth ministry, missions, vocational ministry and Bible.

Our need is quite simple. Once again this year an anonymous donor has offered $15,000 for Bible scholarships if Harding University can raise at least that amount from our alumni and friends by August 30.

Your gift of $25, $50, $100 or more is needed so that our students can continue to benefit from the Harding experience. There are freshmen who receive Bible scholarships and are just beginning to prepare for their lives of service to the Lord. We had 38 seniors graduate who possibly would not be able to do so had it not been for individuals like you who make the Bible scholarships possible.

The more generous your response, the more you will help strengthen Harding, her Bible students and, ultimately, the Lord's church — the institution that we all cherish the most. I look forward to hearing from you and hope that you will respond today.
