WINTER 1998

David B. Burks

Our mission is developing Christian servants

“And who knows that you have come to royal position for such a time as this.” Mordecai’s declaration to Esther has resounding implications for those of us involved in Christian education today.

Today the spiritual soul of our great country is the sole target of Satan’s arrows and is unmatched by any time in our history. Families are being redefined: Some have two parents, some have four, some children are being raised by two fathers, and others don’t know their fathers. Culturally defined roles of men and women threaten the God-defined roles that operate so beautifully in the church. Society’s need for entertainment pressures our churches to become spiritual pep rallies while compromising our need to fear God and keep His commandments. The culture that is flooded with the “what can I get out of it” attitude hardly lends itself to the propagation and development of godly men and women. In the history of our nation, in the history of the church, and in the history of secular higher education, never has such a spiritually toxic time as now existed.

Those of us at Harding are deeply burdened by the need for spiritual revival in our world. I believe that we have arrived where we are today to serve in such a time as this. Never has there been a more important time for us not only to build on the foundations established more than 70 years ago by our founders, but to realize that the Lord, in His mighty wisdom, knew what the needs of the world would be today. This forces us to make a decision like Esther — that we as a university might be continually rededicated to our reason for existence.

Harding’s mission, as presented by President J.N. Armstrong in 1925, stated, “Remember that we who man the institution would betray a most sacred trust, did we not make first the instilling of the principles of Christianity into the heart of her students.” Our challenge today is to remain true to our mission of developing Christian servants in the integration of faith and learning into every aspect of Christian life.

Harding is committed to remaining distinctive in this area. Should we cease to emphasize the development of Christian character as our primary reason for existence, we would forfeit the right to exist and would discredit Christ in calling ourselves a Christian university.

I am very much committed to excellence in all that we attempt to do, but I am also aware of the fact that the accumulation of academic knowledge alone will never prepare a student for the time in which we live. No man ever grasped the skirt of God by knowledge alone. Knowledge may have raised his arm, but faith moved his fingers and closed them in a deathless grip. That grip is best accomplished by the formation of Christian character. We shall never wander from Christ when we make Christian character the end and aim of all of our intellectual discipline, and we shall never misconceive character while we hold fast to Christ.

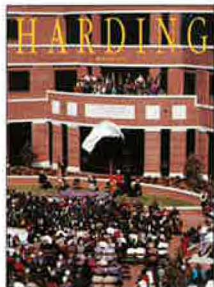

It is certainly not by accident that the brass letters around the map of the world in the rotunda of our newly dedicated Jim Bill McInteer Bible and World Missions Center form the words of the Great Commission. I am convinced that this mission is global in nature and that it is a necessary part in the life of every disciple of Christ. Without this mission, the church has no reason to exist; therefore, it becomes the reason for our existence. Surely, all of us at Harding and in the church need to be recommitted to the Great Commission.

God has placed us here for such a time as this, and we must respond with the courage of Esther and the passion of Mordecai to remain true to the calling of our mission. The best preparation we can give to meet the needs of the church of tomorrow is to rededicate ourselves to the mission of the Lord’s church today, and that is what we are attempting to do in our work at Harding.

“And who knows that you have been placed here for such a time as this.” ❏

Cochran earns doctorate from Boston College

Dr. Ross Cochran, assistant professor of Bible, has received his doctorate in theology and education from Boston College. He also attended the National Association for Professors of Christian Education Conference in Irvine, Calif., Oct. 13-16, 1994.

Senior works as research student

Raluca Eliescu, a senior biochemistry major from Bucharest, Romania, worked as a summer research student at Arkansas Children's Hospital in Little Rock, where her research project involved the linkage and mapping of adverse pregnancy outcomes.

$6 million gift to ensure University's future

THE UNIVERSITY HAS received the largest single gift in its 70-year history — $6 million — but the story behind it has been nearly 30 years in the making.

The gift represents Harding's share of the estate of the late Carl and Lura Moore, former members of the President's Council from Harrison, Ark. Their relationship with Harding

"I'm grateful to have witnessed their lives, which were rich in good works for God." — Floyd Daniel began in 1965 when Floyd Daniel, senior vice president, first joined the staff as director of development. A friendship budded upon meeting the Moores, and for 13 years Daniel visited regularly with them.

Carlene, the Moores' only child, had been significantly disabled since birth. She could walk only with assistance, requiring that she be supervised constantly. Carl and Lura cared for Carlene together, bringing her to work with them each day at the Harrison Telephone Co., which Carl owned. When the Moores became regular supporters of Harding's five-year campaigns as members of the President's Council, they always brought Carlene with them to Searcy for the meetings. They also made arrangements to include Harding in their estate plan.

Carl passed away in the summer of 1979, and Lura, stricken with grief, died six weeks later. However, before her death she created a trust for Carlene through her will. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hinkle, who were friends and business associates of the Moores, were named Carlene's guardians and trustees of the estate to invest its assets as long as Carlene lived. Upon Carlene's death the assets were to be distributed to Harding and several other good works named in the trust.

Carlene died June 17, 1993, at the age of 62. Because of wise investment of the trust by the Hinkles over the years, the fund grew considerably. Harding's portion of the remaining trust is slightly more than $6 million.

After careful consideration as to where needs are greatest for the gift, President Burks and the board of trustees have agreed to place the amount into the University's endowment fund to help ensure the University's strength in meeting future needs adequately. The current "Dream Continues"

Campaign seeks to raise $16 million for endowment needs; the Moore's gift brings the University significantly closer to reaching that goal.

"I believe Brother and Sister Moore would be pleased with the phenomenal growth that took place in their trust assets under the Hinkles' guidance," Daniel said. "In receiving this wonderful gift, I believe we have, and will faithfully fulfill, a stewardship responsibility both to God and to the Moores in using their gift to bless young people at Harding. I still miss them and am grateful for the privilege of having known and worked with them. Most of all, I'm grateful to have witnessed their lives, which were rich in good works for God."

Who's Who selects 63 students

SIXTY-THREE OUTSTANDING leaders from the student body have been selected for inclusion in the 1995 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges, the national publication that honors such collegiate leaders.

Students are nominated by the faculty and the Student Association based on their academic achievement, community service, involvement in extra-curricular activities and potential for continued success. The nominations undergo a second round of voting by the faculty in order to finalize the Who's Who selectees.

Students selected were Rachel Alexander, Amy Hawkins-Amy, Julie Anderson, Kimberly Ashby, Scott Baine, Jennifer Barnes, Adam Brooks, Jimmy Brooks, Mike Brooks, Keith Brumley, Jonathan Camp, Rick Chitty, Anna Clements, Ruzica Dakovic, Danielle Diffine, Forrest Doddington, Paula Donahue, Johnna Duke, Rebecca Evans and Tracy Evans.

Also listed were Jama Fullerton, Shane Gage, Bonnie Gant, Derek Hampton, Craig Hanson, Brian Harlan, Beth Henderson, Jason Hewitt, Carolyn Holmes, Kevin Jensen, Mistee Kerley, Jennifer Kramer, Lisa Madeley, Paul Mann, Jill Martin, Jim Massie, Danny Mathews, Melanie Matthews, Penelope Mayberry, Nathan Mellor, Joanne Mitchell, Michael Moore and Christy Morgan.

Completing the list were Chris Phillips, Elizabeth Pickens, Michele Regauld, Amanda Richey, Vikki Sachar, Liliana Sanchez, Shannon Smith, Todd Stewart, James Tate, Jan Traughber, Tod Traughber, Cathlyn Tsirgiotis, Christine Tucker, Jenny Tyree, Lori Underwood, Michele VanRheenen, Joseph Walker, Rick Warpula, Anessa Westbrook and Tim Westbrook.

Board adds Chism, approves new housing

IN ADDITION TO APPROVING the construction of two new campus housing complexes, officers and one new member were selected by the board of trustees at its annual fall meeting Oct. 28, 1994.

Dr. Bill Chism of Springfield, Mo., was elected to the board to replace Houston Ezell of Nashville, Tenn., who recently resigned. Chism, a 1972 alumnus, earned a bachelor's degree in general science and played intercollegiate athletics. He was a four-year member of the Bison basketball team, serving as co-captain his senior year.

Chism graduated from optometry school in 1976 and served in the U.S. Navy for two years as an optometry officer. He then opened his private practice in Branson, Mo., and since 1984 has had offices in both Ava and Springfield.

Chism has served on numerous community boards, including the United Way and Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and he has participated in medical mission trips to Panama. A member of Harding's President's Council for the past 10 years, Chism has served as chair of the group for two years. His wife, the former Frances Prater, is a 1971 alumna. They have two sons, Brent, who is a freshman at Harding, and Kevin, who is a high school junior.

In addition to selecting Chism, the board members also elected officers. Selected as the new chairman of the board is Pat Bell of Little Rock, Ark.; new vice chairman is Paul Carter of Bentonville, Ark.; and the new treasurer is Harry Risinger Jr. of Memphis, Tenn. Jim Bill McInteer of Nashville, Tenn., remains in the office of secretary.

Bell has been a member of the board since 1986 and has maintained a close relationship with Harding since his graduation in 1958. His three daughters have graduated from the University, and he served on the President's Council for 17 years before becoming a board member. Bell received his M.B.A. in 1959 from the University of Arkansas and then began a distinguished career with the Ernst and Whinney accounting firm, for which he has worked in Dallas, Little Rock and Birmingham, Ala.

Carter, executive vice president and chief financial officer of Wal-Mart Stores Inc., has worked for the retail giant since 1977. In addition to serving on Harding's Board, he also serves on the Wal-Mart Board of Directors, to which he was elected in 1988. Carter is a 1964 graduate of the University of Arkansas at Monticello. He and his wife, June, have three children, two of whom are Harding graduates.

Risinger, an accountant who holds the M.B.A. from the University of Memphis, has been a member of the board since 1985. He was raised in Searcy, and graduated from Harding Academy and the University in 1964 and 1968, respectively. He serves as corporate vice president for W.R. Grace and Co. in Memphis and is on its board. His wife, the former Janice Robinson, is a 1969 alumna. They have two sons, Matt, who is a recent Harding graduate, and Adam, who is a senior at the University.

In other business, the board approved the immediate construction of a new apartment complex for married students. The complex is scheduled for completion by the beginning of the fall '95 semester and will ease the housing crunch that Harding's enrollment growth has created. The new apartments will allow the current married-student housing facility to be used for single students, some of whom have been housed in University-owned homes during the past two years.

Additionally, a new women's dormitory is scheduled to be constructed, ready by the fall of '96. The dorm will house 200 women and will alleviate use of the Heritage Inn as a temporary fall women's housing facility.

Jewell, Williams give presentations at conference

Alice Jewell, professor of English, and Dr. John Williams, associate professor of English, attended the Southwest Regional Conference on Christianity and Literature Sept. 30, 1994, in Oklahoma City. Jewell read a paper titled "The Chinese Jesus: A Comparison of the Teachings of Jesus Christ (According to Luke) and Mo Tzu." Williams read several original works of poetry, one of which has been accepted for publication in the national journal First Things.

Early application encouraged

THE OFFICE OF ADMISSIONS SERVICES IS RECEIVING applications for the 1995 freshman class at a rate ahead of last year's record-breaking pace.

Mike Williams, director of admissions, said that nearly 800 applications have already been received, representing more than a 13 percent increase over figures at this time last year. Four hundred of these applications have been accepted for admission, with 386 applications still pending.

"We will be able to accept only 790 new students for next fall, which is the same number we accepted this year. Our staff is working very hard to encourage those interested in Harding to apply now in order to secure a space," Williams said.

Margaret Thatcher to complete American Studies lecture series

THE RIGHT HONORABLE Baroness Margaret Thatcher, first woman British prime minister and one of the most respected politicians of this century, will close the 1994-95 American Studies Institute Distinguished Lecture Series April 27 at 7:30 p.m. in Benson Auditorium.

Lady Thatcher was appointed British prime minister, first lord of the treasury and minister for the civil service, on May 4, 1979, following the success of the Conservative Party in the general election the previous day. When the Conservative Party again won the general elections in 1983 and 1987, she became the first British prime minister this century to contest three consecutive general elections successfully. In June 1983 she was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

She resigned as prime minister Nov. 28, 1990, after more than 11 years in that office, and she continued to serve as a member of Parliament for Barnet, Finchley, until 1992. In December 1990 she was awarded the Order of Merit by Her Majesty the Queen, and in 1992 she was elevated to the House of Lords to become Baroness Thatcher of Kesteven.

In 1993 Lady Thatcher published her first volume of memoirs, The Downing Street Years, which covers her years as prime minister from 1979 to 1990. She is chancellor of Buckingham University in England, and William and Mary College in Virginia. She is married to Sir Denis Thatcher, a baronet and former director of Burmah Castrol Co.

At 69 years old, Lady Thatcher remains an internationally recognized figure whose views and counsel are respected by many of today's world leaders. She is in great demand for speaking engagements, which give her the opportunity to share her own experiences and insights, and express her unique view of world events.

Also scheduled for the spring is Count Hubert de Germiny, a specialist in international relations. He will address an Administration Auditorium audience Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m.

De Germiny was born in Florence, Italy, and speaks four languages. A respected journalist, he holds degrees from Paris' Institut d'Etudes Politiques, Harvard University and the University of Toulouse.

His career led him to military service in Germany, then to NATO's Supreme Headquarters near Versailles, France. As a diplomat, de Germiny became private adviser to the prime minister of Laos, head of the Press and Information section of the French Embassy in Buenos Aires, and did similar work for the French consulate general in New Orleans. His assignments as a journalist and diplomat took him to more than 50 countries.

In 1981 de Germiny resigned from diplomatic service and married an American citizen. They moved to Birmingham, Ala., where he taught political science and history at several colleges. Today he occasionally lectures while dividing his time between Birmingham and his home on French Brittany's northern coast. Describing himself as "an enlightened conservative," de Germiny is a firm supporter of a close alliance between Western Europe and the United States. He has been awarded the Order of Merit by the French government for distinguished services, and he is a knight of the Sovereign Order of Malta.

Master's degree in counseling to be offered at Graduate School

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL of Religion announces a new two-year master's degree in counseling to be offered in the fall of 1995.

The M.A. in counseling degree is designed to meet the academic requirements for licensure in marriage and family therapy in Tennessee, and will also provide biblical training needed for students in ministry.

Among the new classes being offered for the degree are two short courses to be taught by two counselors from Atlanta. Dr. Ray Hawkins of the Genesis Center for Christian Counseling, a ministry of the North Atlanta Church of Christ, will teach Systems of Communication Theory. Dr. Don Hebbard, family life minister for the North Atlanta Church, will teach the other short course, Family Life Ministry.

The 66-hour degree program will be enhanced professionally by a renovated counseling center, located on the second floor of the Ijams Administration Building. The center is scheduled to open this month, according to Dr. Ed Gray, associate professor of counseling. "Students previously had to go off campus for clinical experience," Gray said. "Our center will give students the practical clinical component right on campus."

The Graduate School's counseling center will accept clients from the community and area churches. It houses three offices, a waiting room, and a video control room equipped for confidential video taping of counseling sessions.

Pilot Romanian missions program is launched

HARDING'S EMPHASIS ON international missions has created a new avenue of expression through a business/missions program coordinated by the Center for International Business.

Dr. Budd Hebert, director of the center, led a team of nine businesspersons and three students on a "trial run" to Romania in September. The program, designed to establish and/or support mission points in Eastern Europe, teaches capitalism and business methods to fledgling businessmen and students while emphasizing Christian morals, ethics and trust.

The selection of Romania to incubate this program was a great success. The country is emerging from the after shocks of the December 1989 revolution and overthrow of the Ceausescu regime. Five years ago it was illegal for three or more people to have a conversation in the street. Today, amid the move to privatize former state businesses, entrepreneurs are hatching, hungry for information and opportunities but lacking in hands-on experience. They look to America for direction and role models.

The church, too, is in the fledgling state, with 150 members in Bucharest, a city of 2.5 million, and 60 members in Brasov, a city of 800,000. The "official" religion of the state was Orthodox, and 45 years of political prejudice have left their mark for missionaries to overcome.

At universities and church buildings, the team offered business seminars and discussion sessions specializing in real-life situations. Most of the discussion sessions focused around one-on-one interviews with the "real American businessmen." Team members were able to share practical applications, including the influence of Searching the Word in Romania. Small-group studies of the Bible are available to all interested participants in the new program coordinated by the Center for International Business. Other mission efforts are being used in Romania along with the training that participants receive in Christian business principles.

Christ in their daily activities.

Mission objectives included visiting a state-operated orphanage for girls, where clothing and dolls collected by Harding students were given to each girl. The team also delivered medical supplies to the Bundeni Hospital in Bucharest. The supplies were collected stateside from supporters of the program and transported as part of each team member's luggage allowance.

Despite all that was shared with the Romanians, the team members received much more than they gave. Several will begin business transactions with Romanian sources within the next few months. Perhaps their greatest benefit has been the opportunity to synthesize the identity of a newly freed, struggling people.

"In addition to the trailblazing mystique of our own mission, we were counseling with pioneers of the future of Romania. We got a tactile sense of what it was like in the United States 200 years ago," said Robert Ross of New Mexico. Ken Dunn of Arkansas was struck by his "increased personal wealth" from the venture. Jon Raymond of Georgia pleaded that the call for missions of this type is "to create vision. Without an idea of what the future could be, there is no hope of achieving it. That's why Jesus left us a vision of our future."

Specific goals for Romania include sponsoring one or two business missions per year, developing selected small businesses through the use of Christian investment groups and/or stateside foundations, and supporting local ministries by continued contact with hospitals, orphanages and universities.

However, the vision is not limited to Romania or Eastern Europe. Plans call for program resources and skills tested in Romania to be channeled soon to developing countries worldwide.

For more information about the program or future mission trips, contact Dr. Budd Hebert, director of international business, Harding University, Box 774, Searcy, AR 72149-0001.

Childers joins admissions team

Tracy Childers, a 1993 alumnus, has joined the Office of Admissions Services staff as an admissions counselor. He is a native of Orlando, Fla., and will recruit students from the Southeast.

Verkler to edit newsletter

Dr. Bill Verkler, professor of sociology, attended the annual convention of the Arkansas Sociological and Anthropological Association Oct. 21-22, 1994, in Conway. He also was elected to serve as editor of the association's newsletter.

Tape accompanies Sewell's book

The Sounds of Joy, a book about church music by retired music professor Ann Sewell, now has an accompanying music cassette recorded by the Harding University Chorus. For copies contact the Harding Recording Center, Box 757, Searcy, AR 72149-0001.

Peck presents at Freed-Hardeman

Dr. Jeanine Peck, professor of education, made two presentations at Freed-Hardeman University during its education department's fall conference Oct. 8, 1994. Her speeches were titled "Portfolio Assessment: What Is It?" and "The Reading-Writing Connection."

Hosting the Show. David Rubio, Tracy Falwell, Erin Chandler and Chris Wagley will entertain thousands as 1995's Spring Sing hosts and hostesses.

Don McLaughlin guest speaker for Youth Forum April 14-16

YOUTH FORUM/SPRING Sing Weekend, set for April 14-16, is the biggest event of the year for prospective students to experience Harding. They can visit classes, tour the campus, find out about financial aid and the University's application process, catch a Spring Sing show and a play performance, and hear inspiring messages planned just for them — all in one weekend.

"As in the past, our guests can expect an exciting, non-stop weekend," said Mike Williams, director of admissions. "Our goal for this special time together is to inform, inspire and entertain, and the program we have planned will do just that."

Serving as guest speaker for Youth Forum is 1983 alumnus Don McLaughlin, minister for the Lindberg Road Church of Christ in Anderson, Ind. With four children of his own, McLaughlin brings experience and understanding to his frequent appearances to groups of young people. He is scheduled to deliver four messages to Youth Forum guests.

Highlighting the weekend's activities are four performances of the 22nd annual production of Spring Sing, the dazzling musical show that plays to nearly 12,000 spectators each year. The hundreds of student performers, who are primarily members of Harding's 33 men's and women's social clubs, compete for awards for best costumes, originality, choreography, music and participation, as well as overall sweepstakes trophies. Harding's Jazz Band and the four Spring Sing hosts and hostesses top off the show.

The 1995 hosts and hostesses, who were selected by audition, are Erin Chandler, a junior from Little Rock, Ark.; returning hostess Tracy Falwell, a senior from Camden, Ark.; David Rubio, a senior from Memphis, Tenn.; and Chris Wagley, a senior from Sikeston, Mo.

Producing Spring Sing for the 22nd time is Dr. John H. Ryan, professor of communication. Serving for the first time as the show's coordinator and director is Dr. Steve Frye, associate professor of communication.

The weekend's entertainment options are strengthened by several performances of "Wait Until Dark," the play made famous by the classic film starring Audrey Hepburn. Britton Lynn, a senior theater major from Morristown, Tenn., is directing the seven-member cast as his required senior project.

Those needing overnight accommodations are encouraged to make arrangements to stay in dormitory rooms with friends or make reservations at the on-campus Heritage Inn or another Searcy hotel as early as possible. Other on-campus accommodations for high school students and their adult sponsors will also be available upon arrival on a first-come, first-served basis.

For more information about Youth Forum/Spring Sing Weekend, contact the Office of Admissions Services at 1-800-477-4407. For Spring Sing and "Wait Until Dark" ticket information, call (501) 279-4255. A ticket order form for both events is included at the back of this magazine for your convenience.

Preachers' Forum, luncheon in April

CHURCH UNITY WILL SERVE as the theme of the April 11 Preachers' Forum at the Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn.

The one-day forum, "Church Unity: Stability and Flexibility in the Church," will feature six speakers addressing such topics as the essentials of faith, the basis for unity, and psychological concepts that help explain church splits. Group discussion and a question-and-answer period will also be included.

Speaking at the forum will be Dean Bill Flatt, Dr. Earl West and Dr. Evertt Huffard of the Graduate School; William Nettle of Vicksburg, Miss.; Charles Siburt of Abilene, Texas; and Dr. Neale Pryor of the College of Bible and Religion.

Being held in conjunction with the forum is the annual Alumni Luncheon. There will be a capacity of 100 people for the luncheon at $6.50 per person, and reservations are required. Reservations may be made by calling the Graduate School at (901) 761-1352.

150 students aid in Georgia flood relief efforts

HARDING'S STUDENT BODY is getting rather skilled with flood-relief precautions and clean-up.

In the fall of 1993, students traveled to Missouri to help the thousands of families who fell victim to Midwest flooding. This time they went to Georgia.

One hundred fifty students left Searcy Sept. 15, 1994, for Albany, Ga., where late summer rains had caused damage similar to that experienced in the Mississippi River area in 1993. Their goal was to serve the Albany churches — two of which had lost their buildings, and to help the community and the city council.

The students had not been told specifically what they would be asked to do in Albany. When they arrived, they helped move destroyed property from lawns onto the streets, gutted a house, steam-cleaned another house, cleaned a church warehouse, and aided in cleaning a devastated cemetery.

The cemetery provided the most interesting work because many caskets had been dislodged, and headstones and sepulchers had sunk into the ground. The workers gathered plastic flowers and other debris so that city crews could restore the grounds.

"It was unbelievable," said sophomore Bob Overton from Russell, Iowa. "Helping the people of Albany was probably the most humbling experience of my life."

The student workers touched not only the lives of those they served, but also a high school basketball team from Griffin, Ga. These boys and their coaches were also there to serve the flood victims and, consequently, worked with the Harding crew for the entire weekend. The Harding students so inspired them with their enthusiasm and spiritual outlook that one of them made the decision to attend a Christian university upon his graduation.

"There was a big change in them from the time they arrived to the time they left. They were great guys, and they even sang with us before heading back to Griffin," said sophomore Mellodie Benoit from Sulphur,

La. "I felt like we had served them as well as the people of Albany."

Nathan Mellor, Student Association president and organizer of the project, said that the crews worked quickly and efficiently, completing in a week-end what had taken two weeks for city workers to be able to accomplish.

Helping families theme of seminar

THE OFFICE OF CHURCH Relations will conduct its annual Religious Education Seminar Feb. 24-25 on the topic "Helping the Family: Suggestions to Bible School Teachers and Leaders."

Dr. Allan Isom, director of church relations, has scheduled three faculty members from the College of Bible and Religion to address the more than 200 educational ministers, parents, education directors and Bible school teachers expected to attend.

Dr. Carl Mitchell, dean, will open the seminar with his keynote address Friday night. Joe Jones and Dr. Edward Myers will deliver messages to men's classes during sessions held Saturday. Jones' sessions include "Teaching Revelation" and "Teaching the Holy Spirit." Myers' topics include "Teaching About Angels" and "Teaching the Godhead."

Women's sessions Saturday will be conducted by a mother-daughter team from New Braunfels, Texas. Billed as "the Imaginality Ladies," Jana Smith and her mother conduct their sessions with curriculum-enhancing ideas using visual aids, games and ways to motivate children in class.

The two-day seminar will conclude Saturday following the completion of the afternoon sessions. For more information about the seminar or accommodations, call the Office of Church Relations at (501) 279-4660.

Librarians attend state meeting

Ann Dixon, Ann Hobby, Henry Terrill and Shirley Williams of the Brackett Library staff attended the Arkansas Library Association's state meeting Oct. 9-11, 1994, in Hot Springs. Session topics included the Internet computer network and the handling of legal reference questions in a non-law library.

Fall Fest dates announced

Lectureship and Homecoming events will again be planned together in 1995 as Fall Fest, Oct. 23-28. Lectureship events are scheduled for Oct. 23-26, and Homecoming activities will be Oct. 26-28.

Lady Bisons take share of AIC volleyball title

THE LADY BISONNS CONTINUE to dominate volleyball in the AIC, winning their fifth championship in six years.

Harding shared the title with Southern Arkansas University, as both finished with 9-1 records. Each team won at home in hard-fought, five-game matches.

The 1994 schedule included some difficult NCAA Division II opponents, but Coach Karyl Bailey's team produced a creditable 33-11 overall record.

The Lady Bisons played brilliantly at times and drew praise as being Harding's best team ever, but consistency was a problem. With strong play from senior Amy Deuel, junior Lori Hendricks and junior Regina Huddleston, Harding displayed good offensive net play. Setters Angela Johnson and Casey Wolfe led the team in assists and were the effective blockers on defense.

Junior Marcy Winters and sophomore Shannon Massey supplied strong bench strength, and freshmen Hannah Crider, Amanda Rhoads and Jennifer Stein all played important roles in the very successful season.

Football team finishes second

THE BISON FOOTBALL team finished the 1994 campaign under first-year Head Coach Randy Tribble with a respectable 5-4-1 season, ranking Harding 14th in the nation and second in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference.

Harding's wins included a 24-8 victory over East Central Oklahoma University, the 1993

NAIA national champions, and a 39-27 victory over Southwestern Oklahoma University. Victories in AIC competition included wins over Southern Arkansas University (24-14), Ouachita Baptist University (34-14), and the University of Arkansas-Monticello (22-17).

In the tie game, Delta State University scored with three seconds remaining to knot the game at 24-24.

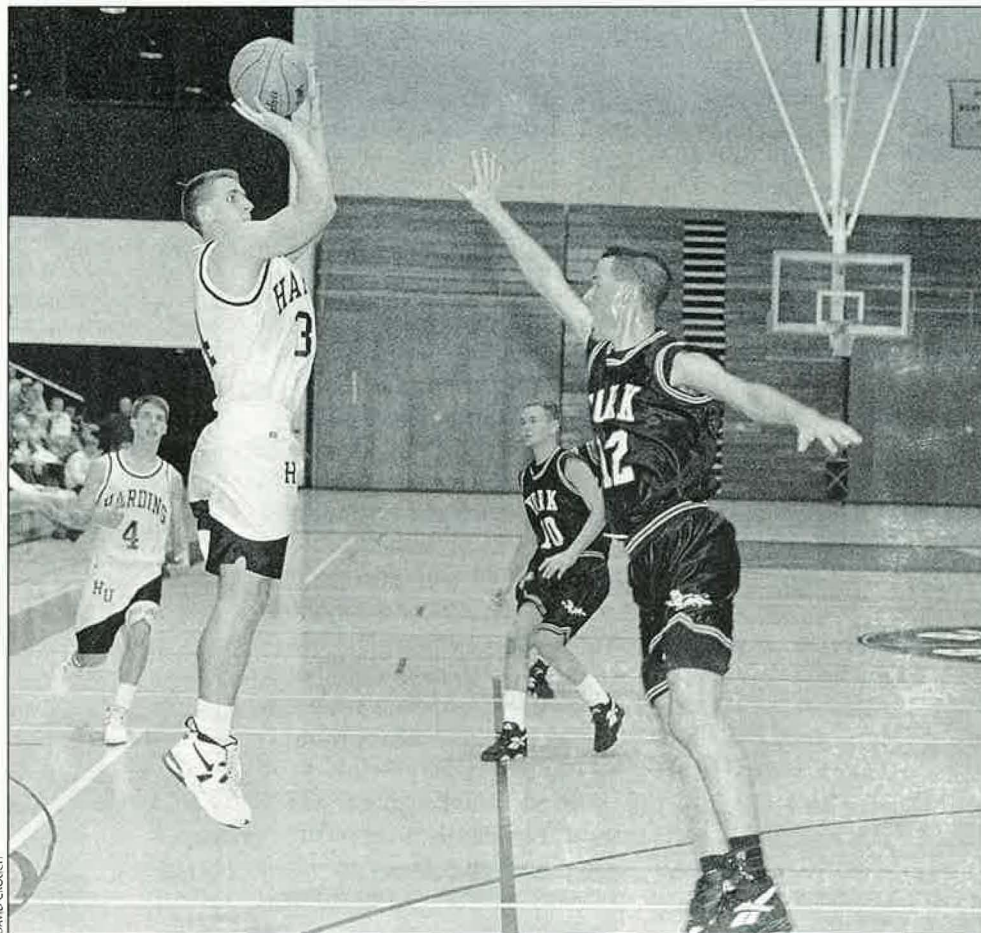

All four teams that defeated the Bisons were ranked higher than Harding in the final NAIA poll. In the season opener, the University of Arkansas-Pine Bluff (ranked ninth) scored late and made a two-point conversion to win 15-14. Southeastern Oklahoma (ranked fifth) won 30-29 as the Bisons failed on a late two-point conversion attempt.

Northeastern State University of Oklahoma (ranked third) crushed the Bisons 27-0. In the lone AIC loss, Arkansas Tech (ranked eighth) won 28-25.

Senior defensive captains Paul Simmons and Lorne Latiker had outstanding seasons and are likely candidates for All-American honors. On the offensive unit, senior Paul Mann set five Harding career records at quarterback. Seniors Aaron Walters and Thad Hill were one-two in receptions for the Bisons.

Also completing their senior years were linebacker Greg Mashburn, wide receiver Chad Howard, kicker Casey Smith and fullback Jon-Micah Clanton.

Hall of Fame adds six to membership roster

SIX NEW MEMBERS OF THE Harding Sports Hall of Fame were inducted Nov. 12, bringing the total membership to 43. The Hall of Fame is a project of the Bison Booster Club and is designed to promote Harding athletics by honoring past contributions to the various sports.

Honored posthumously was R.T. Clark, well-known professor, space scientist, coach and athlete. He returned to his alma mater in 1962 and was instrumental in establishing the Harding cross country and track programs that have produced 45 AIC championships since 1963. He was considered a top sprinter and long jumper when he competed in the 1930s. Dr. Clark died in 1965 while running with his athletes.

Eugene Johnson was an All-AIC defensive end for Coach John Prock's football team in 1970. Johnson came to Harding as a 160-pound quarterback and left as a 195-pound defensive lineman. He is recognized as one of the all-time outstanding team captains and defensive players. Johnson is now a business executive for Abbott Laboratories in Austin, Texas.

It is a shame the three-point line was not there for sharpshooting Bobby McKeel. Known for his long-range shooting ability, McKeel still holds the AIC free throw accuracy record. In addition to making All-AIC on the court, he was also All-Conference as a Bison pitcher and led the AIC with a 0.90 ERA in 1969. Bobby is now principal at Westside High School in Jonesboro, Ark.

Jerry Mote is a former Bison football coach and pioneer member of the football and baseball teams. Mote started on the first football team in 1959 and is the only player to have been a team captain three times. In addition, he was an All-AIC baseball player in 1962 as an outfielder. He is now a teacher and coach at Searcy High School.

Through all the years of successful cross country teams, only Richard Teixeira has been a two-time All-American. His dominance of the AIC saw him win three consecutive AIC individual championships ('78, '79, '80). Richard, after a brief coaching stint, is now director of fitness at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Former Bison Booster president and ultra-active member Harold Valentine enters the Hall of Fame in the Meritorious Service category. Valentine's involvement is multifaceted and has been constant since his collegiate days. He is now the General Cooperative Education

Coordinator at Searcy High School and dormitory director of Harding's Armstrong Hall.

While athletic achievement and coaching success are obvious, the Meritorious Service category recognizes those who have served for years in auxiliary roles that have truly helped to make the Harding sports program better.

Cross country teams win both AIC championships

THE BISONS AND LADY Bisons did it again Nov. 3, bringing home both AIC cross country championship trophies. Of the 13 Harding runners competing in the AIC meet, eight were freshmen. There were no seniors on either team.

Freshmen Abe Kirwa and Seth Crum led the men with a one-two sweep. The team gained 24 points to 76 for runner-up Southern Arkansas University. Freshman Tommy Noel finished fourth; sophomore Jonathan Griffin, seventh; junior Dave Parks, 10th; junior Jay Hurt, 13th; and sophomore Matt Quigley, 16th.

The Lady Bisons, whose team consisted of four freshmen, a sophomore and a junior, came together late in the season and performed exceptionally well. Freshman Christy Talburt and sophomore Jennifer Royer gave Harding the top spots and a 38-point total, compared to 50 for Lyon College and 70 for the University of Arkansas-Monticello. With approximately half a mile to go, Harding led Lyon 46-47, but a strong finish pushed the margin to 12 points.

Freshman Laura Rubio was sixth; freshman Jessica Biggerstaff, 13th; freshman Jamie Griffin, 16th; and junior Heather Muir was 18th.

The meet closed the curtain on AIC cross country. Since 1962, 33 men's and 12 women's championships have been contested. Bison teams have won 28 titles; the Lady Bisons own nine consecutive championships.

The Value of a HARDING Education

by PHILLIP TUCKER

ON TELEVISION, IN NEWSPAPERS, IN ADVERTISING, AND ON THE lips of every consumer has emerged one word these days: value. We contemplate the value of a car purchase, the value of a fast-food meal, the value of our tax dollars — and, more than ever, the value of education.

As a result, America's educators now face a public that is more conscientious and sophisticated in its search for educational value. Prospective students and their families are increasingly concerned with the cost of college and what they're getting — or not getting — for their money.

Granted, "value" is one of those words with as many definitions as there are human opinions, but in the realm of educational choices, one thing is clear: "Value" means getting the very best college education at the lowest possible price. And in the competitive world of student recruitment, where everyone is after the same talented students, colleges and universities are taking a hard look at the value of their own programs.

Harding, too, continually evaluates the need for its existence, the strength of its programs, the relevance of its mission — the value of its educational experience. Those evaluations prove that Harding's educational formula works, and when that opinion is mirrored by national publications, it only helps to support the notion that the University is right on target.

Harding recently received a triple honor by U.S. News and World Report magazine in its annual "America's Best Colleges" rankings (Sept. 26 and Oct. 3, 1994). Not only is Harding ranked by the magazine as number 11 overall in the Regional Universities-South category, it ranks as the South's second-best value in the same category. The publication also ranks Harding as the fifth most-efficient university, in terms of the amount spent per student while maintaining high quality.

To determine the overall rankings, U.S. News first divided America's colleges into five categories according to classifications defined by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching: national universities, national liberal arts colleges, regional universities, regional liberal arts colleges and specialized institutions. A school's inclusion in a certain category was based simply on the size of its program and the number and kind of graduate degrees offered. Harding and more than 500 other U.S. colleges and universities fell into the Regional University category — schools that offer a full range of bachelor's degrees, award at least 20 master's yearly, but offer no doctoral degrees.

Based on surveys and data from administrators at 1,400 schools, statistics for each school were then compiled to measure academic reputation, student selectivity, faculty resources, financial resources, graduation rate and alumni satisfaction. The result was Harding's 11th-place ranking.

Rankings for value and efficiency were determined from among the top 20 percent of schools chosen for the overall "best colleges" list.

President David Burks is glad to see Harding listed highly in the rankings; after all, they are esteemed by many people when making college choices. But he is cautious about putting too much emphasis on a ranking system that does not focus on the things most important to the work at Harding.

"A Harding education is distinctive and valuable because of our commitment to educating for eternity, our commitment to developing Christian servants, and our commitment to the Bible as the Word of God," he said. "The criteria used by U.S. News and most other publications in determining the quality of an institution measure only factors that are easily quantified — the number of teachers with a doctorate, the number of books in the library, the size of the school's endowment.

"These things do not necessarily get at the heart of any institution, particularly one that is devoted to character education. At Harding the factors that are important to us include citizenship and values education, the requirement of Bible classes and chapel, and the emphasis given to service. None of these factors is ranked at all by U.S. News, and yet, that's what is really important to us in our work."

Whatever measuring stick is used, however, Harding is getting noticed. Indeed, the University's national reputation has been boosted in recent years through its inclusion in numerous other publications, like the important college guides Peterson's Competitive Colleges, The 200 Most Selective Colleges and Best Dollar Values in American Colleges. The respected John Templeton Foundation also gives its nod to Harding through its biennial Honor Roll of Character-Building Colleges.

BUT ALL THE ACCOLADES ASIDE, MANY good colleges exist out there. In an age where college seekers are becoming more interested in cost than quality, how is Harding able to stand above the rest and meet the challenge without compromising either?

Burks said the answer is found primarily in the financial sacrifices made by the faculty and staff, and by the many who give of their means to the University in a real effort to keep costs down. In fact, the very generous nature of the University's constituency is evident in the fact that Harding's rating in the U.S. News study for alumni satisfaction, which takes into account alumni giving, was the highest among all the schools ranked in its category. Because of such generosity, tuition rates can remain significantly below that which is actually needed to cover educational costs for each student.

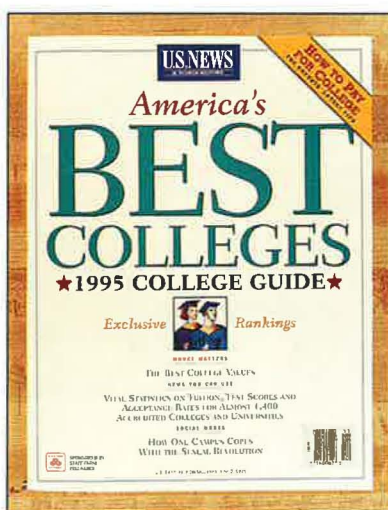

Burks added, "It is very unusual for the same school to be listed in a selective colleges guide, which tends to include many of the very pricey private schools, and in a dollar values guide, which typically includes many lower-priced public colleges. I think our being listed in both is a real statement about the value one gets at Harding."

Dr. David Warren, executive director of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, has said, "Schools will do better at what they do best." When a university is clear about its mission and its strengths, the benefits of that educational experience become clear, too. So what can today's young people, who are very concerned about benefits in education, expect at Harding?

"The benefit of a Harding education is simply found in our mission of developing Christian servants," Burks said. "At Harding our students find strong emphasis on relationships — relationships with teachers, with students, with the Word of God — and an atmosphere that encourages these relationships to last a lifetime.

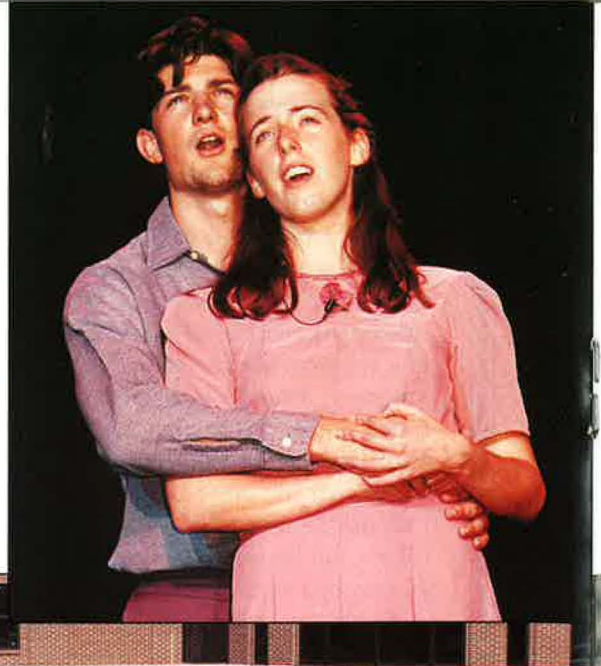

"This kind of people-oriented, Christ-centered community is different from that found on other campuses. It is unique, and it is worth the cost to experience it, especially if that cost represents a great value."

Few returns on an investment could be greater. ■

NOT ONLY WAS OCT. 29, 1994, A DAY OF DEDICATION, it was a day of renewal.

Thousands of students, alumni, faculty and staff members, administrators and friends of Harding packed the new C.L. Kay Plaza on Saturday of Fall Fest Week for the formal dedication of the Jim Bill McInteer Bible and World Missions Center. The mood was conta-giously celebratory as McInteer, President David Burks, Dean Carl Mitchell, Mrs. C.L. Kay and others remarked about the bold, functional new home of the College of Bible and Religion.

"This isn't just a building," Burks said. "It's a firm symbol of commitment — Harding's commitment to its mission of instilling real life into the soul of every student who chooses to be a part of this experience. At Harding we're in the business of changing lives, and this building will be a tool that helps us do just that. ... We've dedicated this building to a great and loyal friend of Harding, but we also dedicate to God the life-saving work that will be done inside this building and, in fact, spread throughout the world."

Adding to the celebration was Burks' thrilling announcement that, through gifts from hundreds of members of the Harding family, the complete debt on the McInteer Center and C.L. Kay Plaza is paid in full.

The dedication ceremony followed a special chapel service honoring Dr. and Mrs. McInteer, who met at Harding more than 50 years ago. A highlight of the service was a video presentation that included actual film footage of the Harding campus in the 1930s, '40s and '50s, and of Presidents J.N. Armstrong, George S. Benson and Clifton L. Ganus Jr. in their early years of service.

Both events were a fitting conclusion to a marathon week of fellowship. The 71st annual Bible Lectureship, a four-day study of Ephesians involving 60 guest speakers in more than 100 class sessions, began the week with one of the largest attendances ever. Homecoming festivities kicked in toward the latter part of the week, with class reunions, the Black and Gold Banquet, a special social club fair and barbecue on the Front Lawn, a football victory, and the well-attended Homecoming Musical, "West Side Story."

Fall Fest offered something for everyone. McInteer, in his usual eloquent manner, summarized his feelings about the building dedication and the week's festivities by saying, "When I saw my name on this building, I was grateful because it gives me the greatest example of grace I know of. When you put my name here, that's grace — totally undeserving. ... I thank you. And may other occasions arise that out-distance and eclipse this a thousand-fold as Harding reaches heights yet untouched. 'Thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.' That's what we're here for." ❧

A SOLDIER'S

A Flyer Changed His Life. Sergei Voronov, now a student at Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn., was converted to Christ through the "Let's Start Talking" program. He plans to return to Russia after graduation.

IT'S BEEN A LONG ROAD to Harding for Sergei Voronov.

Only a few years ago he was serving the Russian military and the Russian Orthodox Church. Now he's a Christian and is learning to serve the Lord's church as a student at Harding. Sergei's story is one that should inspire every tireless worker who has ever distributed literature to promote the cause of Christ.

It was a campaign flyer on a university bulletin board in Rostov-on-Don, Sergei's hometown in Russia, that eventually led him to Christ. The flyer advertised the "Let's Start Talking" program, which uses the Bible to teach English.

"I was an English and linguistics major at the university and thought I would go just for the chance to better my English skills," he said. His parents had raised their only child with strong ties to the Orthodox Church.

When Sergei saw the flyer, it was at a time of transition in his life. He was no longer a teen-ager, as he was when he entered the army at the age of 19, and he was once again enrolled at Rostov-on-Don University to complete the college studies that his two years of required military service had interrupted.

As a sergeant in the Russian army stationed in Odessa, Ukraine, Sergei drafted maps, schemes and diagrams for different military operations. "I was tired of plotting out where tanks and trucks should go for their specific operations. I had worked with the same three individuals for the past two years, and I was eager to take on new endeavors and to meet new people, especially those who could help me enhance my English studies," Sergei said.

Harding's first Russian student found his way from the military to the doors of Harding University after finding Christ.

AFTER A FEW LESSONS, the American campaigners knew that Sergei possessed a good comprehension of English, so they asked him to work with them as a translator.

"After interpreting the same lesson 10 to 20 times a day, something sunk in, and I realized that I needed Christ's church," he said. Sergei was baptized after two weeks of working with the campaigners, as were several of his university classmates who participated in the program along with him. It was this core group of new Christians who founded the first congregation in Rostov-on-Don, Russia, in July 1991.

"We were babes in Christ, and we still needed a lot of support and encouragement. We even needed to know how to conduct worship," Sergei said. And for these reasons, different groups of missionaries continued to assist the new congregation. What began as a church of 12 at the time of Sergei's baptism has grown into a congregation of more than 100. The congregation has become the center for area mission efforts and for the distribution of Bibles and correspondence materials.

A few months after his baptism, Sergei was part of a campaign effort in Donetsk and St. Petersburg. It was that effort that introduced Sergei to Harding University.

"Some of the members of the campaign were Harding graduates. They told me about the school, and I was very inquisitive because the idea of a Christian university was a concept totally foreign to me. There's no such place in Russia," Sergei said.

He journeyed to the United States in March 1992 and found himself in America for the first time. After visiting several Christian college campuses, Sergei decided to further his education at Harding after graduating from Rostov-on-Don University.

"I was so impressed with the disposition of the students and faculty and by their concern and interest in me as an individual. I could also tell they were committed to serving God," Sergei said.

He returned to Russia and completed his degree in linguistics in June 1992. Two months later, after financial assistance from his American sponsors and friends, Sergei found himself at Harding, enrolled in the School of Biblical Studies program.

"My time at Harding has been an excellent experience.

If someone had told me a few years ago what was going to happen in my life, I would not have believed it," he said. Sergei completed his studies in the two-year program last summer and is now attending Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn., pursuing a counseling degree.

"There's really no good psychological help in Russia, and there's definitely nothing available for church members who need marital counseling or other needs," he said. "Russia is in a period of economic transition, and it's causing an increased problem with divorce, drugs and alcoholism. I feel this is something needed very badly at this time."

Although Sergei would like to teach at Rostov-on-Don University, he also has plans to continue his work for the Lord. Since his baptism more than three years ago, Sergei has been continually involved in campaign efforts, including two more last summer.

"God has used me as an asset for His kingdom, and I can't sit back and do nothing. I have to be on the go, especially when it concerns teaching the Bible. I know there's no way to repay Him for what He's done in my life, but I've got to work to advance His kingdom," Sergei said.

Perhaps Sergei's greatest goal is to teach his parents, both of whom are strong believers in Orthodox traditions. Although there are many souls from Rostov-on-Don's population of 1 million who Sergei can work to save, the urgency he feels about teaching the Gospel to his parents is very noticeable.

"I'm an only child, as is common in Russia, and they're all the family that I have. So I hope to work and study with them and to finally convert them to Christ," he said.

SERGEI HAS OPENED A door to new life for the many individuals he and others have brought to Christ on the numerous campaigns in which he has participated. And he's also opened doors for other Russian students.

"I was the first Harding student from Russia, and more have followed since two years ago. I guess I was kind of the pioneer who led the Russian students to Harding," he laughed.

Whether leading individuals to Harding or to Christ, Sergei is humbly grateful for the hand of God in his life.

"I think it was the providential work of God that I saw and read the flyer on the bulletin board that day. It's hard to tell where my life would have led had I not seen it." ■

FOCUS ON THE FUTURE

By PHIL DIXON, DIRECTOR OF PLANNED GIFTS

IN 1931 MARY ANN ELLIOTT OF CALIFORNIA CAME to Harding College, which was then located in Morrilton, Ark. On her initial visit to the campus earlier that year, she had fallen in love with both the beauty of Arkansas and the people at Harding. Although the Depression did not allow her to complete her education, Mary Ann gives Harding the credit for developing the Christian principles that have sustained her during the past 60 years.

Mary Ann's subsequent visits to Harding have been few, but she and her husband, Tom Biggers, came in October of last year and stayed two weeks for Alumni College and Fall Fest '94. While she was on campus, we discussed how she could have a "guaranteed income" for life and benefit her beloved Harding at the same time. She liked the idea and obtained a Charitable Gift Annuity from Harding.

Many people like Mary Ann believe a guaranteed income for life represents an ideal financial position, particularly for those who are older. Some investments, like stocks, bonds, rental properties, savings accounts and trust deeds, are subject to a degree of risk and may not fit one's comfort level.

Having a guaranteed check for as long as she lives, without fear of using up all the money, gives Mary Ann a sense of security. The security comes from her confidence in Harding and its 70-year-old mission. She not only feels good about her security, but she also is glad to have done something to assure Harding will be here to provide the "fundamentals" for others.

Harding University enters into Charitable Gift Annuity contracts for almost any amount. If you would like information about a Harding University Charitable Gift Annuity, please write or call: Director of Planned Gifts, Harding University Box 2238, Searcy, AR 72149-0001; 1-800-477-4312. FINAL FRAME

Bible Lands. Students participating in the new Harding University in Greece program travel from the Church of the Ascension down to the Garden of Gethsemane on the outskirts of Jerusalem. The HUG program, which ended its first semester last month, takes students on a thorough tour of the Holy Lands as part of its fascinating curriculum.
