Cultural Opportunities

The educational impact of a college is never limited to the academic offerings in the curriculum. Most Christians, in fact, believe that an institution not stimulating a growth of the spiritual side of man is failing to meet an integral aspect of his educational needs.

Still another educational aspect Harding attempts to foster in her students is that of cultural growth. Through the Lyceum Series students are given an opportunity to be exposed to the fine arts.

Although lighter entertainment is sometimes featured on a Lyceum program, the real heart of the series is quality music and drama.

Musical and dramatic performances and art exhibits by students supplement the cultural opportunities on the campus. Thus, the college's emphasis in the fine arts is designed both to build in all students an appreciation of the arts and to provide a creative outlet for students so inclined.

The 1967-68 Lyceum Series already has featured pianist Robert Dumm and hypnotist Franz Polgar. Coming attractions will be the New Orleans Symphony, Nov. 15 and 16; the National Players performing "The Lute Song," Dec. 13; the Arkansas Intercollegiate Band, Feb 10; Les Chanteurs de Paris, March 8 and 9; and pianist and humorist Henry L. Scott, April 5 and 6.

Guests always are welcome at the programs, with tickets available on a reserved seat basis.

SECOND CLASS POSTAGE PAID AT SEARCY, ARK. 72143. PUBLISHED THREE TIMES MONTHLY IN JULY AND SEPTEMBER, TWICE MONTHLY IN ALL REMAINING MONTHS.

29 Students Merit Who's Who Recognition; Faculty Names 6 Juniors, 23 Seniors to List

Six juniors and twenty-three seniors have been named to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, a national listing of outstanding college students.

Chosen by the faculty, the list includes students whose scholarship, participation in extra-curricular activities, citizenship, service to the college and promise of future usefulness make them campus leaders.

Two juniors were named last year and automatically are listed again. They are Dale Work, chemistry and mathematics major from Trenton, Mich., and Mike O'Neal, political science major from Antlers, Okla. Both are members of Alpha Chi honor society. Work is senior class president, and O'Neal is Student Association president.

The six juniors selected this year are John M. Black, Michael Framp-ton, Roger Lamb, Ronald Rubio, Mark Woodward and David Young.

The following are seniors:

Lyndal Dale, a Bible major from Russellville, is president of TNT social club and a member of Timothy Club.

Linda Dismuke, a home economics major from Lonoke, is president of the Arkansas Home Economics Association and a member of Kappa Delta social club.

Last year's May Queen, Nancy Ham is a home economics major from Shirley. She is a past president of Ko Jo Kai social club.

Sam Hester, a Bible major from Muscle Shoals, Ala., is senior S.A. representative, president of the Dactylology Club and a member of Beta Phi Kappa social club. He was junior class president.

Bill Howard, a chemistry major from Montgomery, Ala., was junior S.A. representative and is now elections chairman of the S.A. He is a member of Galaxy social club.

Homecoming Queen for 1966, Dianne Holder is a home economics major from Searcy. She has been a cheerleader and president of Regina social club. She is Sub-T-16 club queen.

Helen Howell, an elementary education major from Little Rock, is secretary of the S.A. and a member of GATA social club. She was junior S.A. representative.

First violinist in the emerging Harding orchestra and a member of Omega Phi social club is Elaine Huddleston, a violin major from Nashville, Tenn.

Doug McBride, editor of the Bison, is a journalism major from Camden. He is president of Alpha Phi Gamma journalism fraternity and a member of Sub-T-16 social club.

Henry McDaniel is a member of A Cappella Chorus, Belles and Beaux and Campus Players. He is a speech major from Jackson, Miss.

Carolyn Medearis, an English major from Overland Park, Kans., is a member of Campus Players, Collegiate Players and Regina social club. She served as freshman and sophomore S.A. representative.

A general science major from Santa Ana, Calif., Mark Miller is a member of A Cappella, Belles and Beaux and is president of Chi Sigma Alpha social club.

Garry Parrish, a business administration major from Fayetteville, is a member of American Studies and Lambda Sigma social club. He has lettered in track and is beau for Theta Psi social club.

Judy Pentecost is an elementary education major from Washington, D. C. She is a member of Campus Players, Chorale and Zeta Rho social club.

An English major from Mobile, Ala., Maryetta Sandley was a Big Sister and is on the Bison staff. She is a member of Campus Players and Phi Delta social club.

Hiroko Sando, a music major from Tokyo, Japan, is a member of A Cappella and Zeta Rho social club.

Mary Ann Sewell is an English major from Searcy. She has been a member of A Cappella and is a member of Regina social club.

Loretta Taylor, a business education major from Dardanelle, is a member of American Studies and Zeta Rho social club.

A Searcy sociology major, Barbara Thompson is a member of Alpha Chi and Theta Psi social club.

Fannie Timmerman, a psychology major from Lachine, Quebec, Canada, is a member of A Cappella and is teaching chorus and is teaching French in the Academy this year.

Gailyn Van Rheenen, a Bible major from Paragould, is S.A. vice president and a member of TNT social club.

Summer Workshop In World Evangelism Planned for June 1968

A month-long World Evangelism Workshop, an expanded summer training program, will be held at Harding next June, according to Dr. W. Joe Hacker, director. The workshop is an outgrowth of and replacement for the annual Seminar in Missions held by the college since 1963.

"Leadership training is urgently needed in the areas of campaign evangelism, personal evangelism and mass evangelism as well as in the more traditional foreign missionary training," Hacker said in explaining the new series.

A faculty of experienced leaders will conduct two sessions, each two weeks long. The June 3-14 classes will emphasize "Training for Campaign Workers," especially for persons planning campaign efforts later in the year.

Participants may receive four hours college credit on the graduate or undergraduate level. Tuition, including room and board, will be $50 per week. Hacker announced that reservations may be made beginning immediately.

AS Students Visit Dallas, Tex., Firms

Models of free enterprise were studied by Harding students Oct. 15-19, as members of the college American Studies Program toured Dallas.

The group of 40, composed of business, accounting, secretarial science, history, social science, political science, psychology and sociology majors, visited businesses to become acquainted with business policies and projects.

The students visited the Neiman-Marcus offices, Dallas Cowboy manager Tex Schramm, Fidelity Union Life Insurance Company, the Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc. brokerage firm, the WFAA Communication Center, the Dallas Market and the First National Bank. Free passes to the Texas State Fair in Dallas also were provided.

The project was under the sponsorship of Billy Ray Cox, director of the program, and George Cooper, instructor in history. This was the 16th annual trip with the last trip to Dallas in the fall of 1965.

As the old geographer, Gwen Horton punctuates an opinion in the Department of Speech's first production of the year, a readers' theater adaptation of "The Little Prince," given Sept. 28 and 29. Paddy Chayefsky's "Gideon" will be presented for Lectureship guests Nov. 21 and 22.

Record Lectureship Attendance Expected; Student Performances to Be Added Feature

Another record attendance is expected Nov. 20-23 at the 44th annual Harding College Lectureship, whose theme is "Restoration: A Continuing Challenge."

An added feature of this year's program will be performances by the Department of Speech and the Belles and Beaux. The thespians will present Gideon, a play by Paddy Chayefsky based upon the Biblical story of Gideon. A variety showcase will be given by the Belles and Beaux.

Each group will perform at 9 p.m. both Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov.

21 and 22, following the last lecture. Free tickets will be available to Lectureship registrants.

The entertainment programs will not interrupt the full schedule of lectures and forums, which will involve a faculty of more than 40 persons.

Evening lectures will be given by four Christian college presidents: Norvel Young, Pepperdine; Clifton L. Ganus, Harding; James Baird, Oklahoma Christian; and H. A. Dixon, Freed-Hardeman. General lectures on Thanksgiving day will be by E. W. McMillan, Ganus and Jimmy Allen.

Enrollment Soars to All-time High; 1,919

Harding College has counted another record enrollment this fall with the registration of 1,919 students, a ten per cent increase over last year.

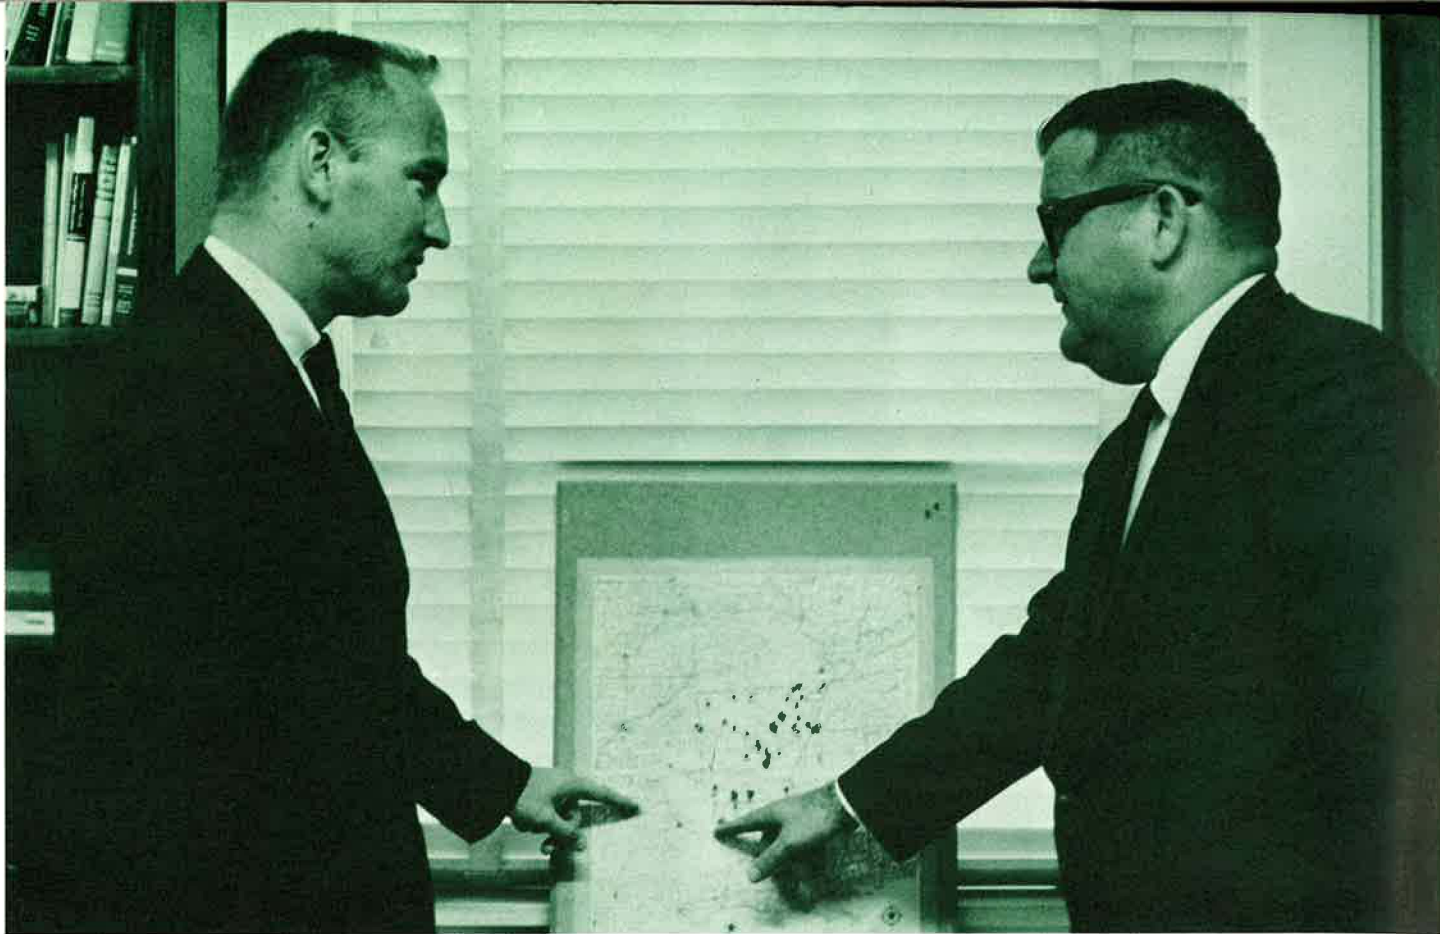

While the increase is neither numerically nor proportionally as large as those of the past two years, the gain is considerable in view of the crowded housing conditions.

In most cases, students in all dormitories except the new men's dorm are living three in a room. In addition, women are housed on two floors of the American Heritage Center and in the Benson House. Extra male students are in the Berryhill House and Stapleton House.

Of the total enrollment, 613 or 31.9 per cent are from Arkansas. This percentage represents the smallest proportion ever attending from the state.

There are 594 freshmen, 487 sophomores, 449 juniors, 346 seniors, 30 graduates and 13 special students. Twelve per cent of the students are married. Men outnumber women 1,001 to 918.

Harding's enrollment has risen dramatically in the past three years, from 1,234 in the fall of 1964 to the present total, a 55 per cent increase. The student body numbered 1,471 and 1,742 in 1965 and 1966, respectively.

Floyd Daniel and Billy Ray Cox do advance planning for a trip by consulting a pin map of the Development Council.

Mrs. Louise Rivers is one of three full-time secretaries in the Development Office. Record keeping is a constant effort.

PRESIDENTIAL AIDES

Someone has said that the modern college president must be "all things to all men"—scholar, administrator, teacher, public relations envoy, planner, after-dinner speaker and fund-raiser. And that is true. But gone are the days when a college of any size can rely only upon its leader to represent the institution away from home and to round up the funds so necessary to its life and progress.

In the last couple of decades, then, there has come into the arena of higher education an unusual animal—someone who can help the president fulfill at least some of these roles, particularly those of public relations, planning and fund-raising. That creature is the development man.

Extra Legs for Dr. Ganus

Harding's development fortunes are still very much in the hands of President Ganus—as ultimately they always must be—but much of the legwork has been delegated to two energetic, enthusiastic spokesmen for the college, Floyd Daniel and Billy Ray Cox.

Daniel, Director of Development, is beginning his third year at Harding in that capacity.

Cox has been with the college since 1964 as assistant professor of business administration, but since September has been working in development as Assistant to the President.

The backgrounds of the two men, in relation to the college, differ considerably; Cox is a Harding graduate, while Daniel had never been on the campus three years ago. But a great similarity binds them in their work: an intense belief in Christian education and a commitment to the future of Harding College.

Daniel's enthusiasm as an ambassador of Harding has been the spark of a $700,000 campaign, hoped to be completed by next May. The campaign, begun Thanksgiving 1965, is to furnish the two new dormitories and the Science Building and is the largest drive the college has conducted among members of the Church of Christ.

"We've had a wonderful reception among the church people," said Daniel. "Fully two-thirds of those approached have taken part in the campaign. It has been a tremendous encouragement and support to find Christians so willing to be a part of Harding and Christian education."

Daniel, a crew-cut blond with a quick smile and a slow Alabama drawl, jumped into the mainstream of Harding life in October 1965 almost without preparation. Having become acquainted with the college in 1963 through Jimmy Allen, Harding teacher and widely-known evangelist, he later decided he wanted to work in Christian education.

Joined Harding in 1965

In August 1965, again through Allen, Daniel was put in contact with Dr. Ganus and soon had a job—and an important one.

Especially important, because August 1965 was only two months after Clifton L. Ganus Jr. had assumed the presidency of a private institution on the brink of rapid growth—an institution, however, whose fund-raising staff at the time consisted of only one secretary.

Clearly, Dr. Ganus was faced with an immediate need of full-time development workers, and when the eager Alabaman visited Harding for the first time for an interview, the choice was natural.

Daniel and Cox off on a Typical Trip

New to Fund-Raising

Daniel had never done fund-raising work, nor was he an authority on Harding College. His background as manager of Southern Bell's Mobile office suggested, however, that the likeable young man could be adept at meeting people and carrying the Harding story.

That suggestion turned out to be a sound one, for Dr. Ganus has generous praise for the effective work Daniel has done in his two years.

Daniel and his wife Juanita have always enjoyed working with young people, and this interest prompted his decision to give himself full-time to a work whose aim is training, educating and inspiring youth.

Raised and educated in Tuskegee, Ala., Daniel received a B.S. in business from Auburn University in 1953 and spent two years' active duty in the Air Force before joining Southern Bell. The Daniels have three children: Dan, 15; Nita, 13; and John, 10.

Working very closely with the Director of Development since the summer, Billy Ray Cox has long been an active supporter of Harding. A lightening of his teaching load to two classes this semester allowed him to devote part of his time to development work.

A Man of Many Jobs

Cox is certainly one of the most vital cogs in the college machine, having four separate titles and four distinct jobs. In addition to his teaching and work in development, he is Director of the American Studies Program and Director of Placement.

Cox sees both of the latter responsibilities as having definite development or public relations implications, since contacts made with businesses and institutions are important ones for the college. About three-fourths of his time is spent in administrative duties—development, placement and American Studies—and one-fourth in academic ones.

The activities of the former Texan hardly end there, however. A fervent Bison fan, Cox is the "voice of the Bisons" for all Harding football games broadcast in Searcy. He also is the sponsor for the college's successful Business Teams, which have garnered several honors and considerable notice far away from home.

Still another job for Cox this year is as a lecturer in a series of management seminars around the state, sponsored by the American Management Association and the University of Arkansas.

That Daniel smile can almost be seen over the telephone.

Mrs. Janet Davis takes a turn at one of the Robotypes which turn out multiple letters, with stops for individual fill-ins.

Mrs. Dorothy Woodruff at one of the card cabinets, is a part of the full effort of keeping up-to-date records on contributors and prospects. All activities are tied to the aim of growing accuracy.

All of the Development Department secretaries are capable of sharing all types of work—keeping records up-to-date.

The impressive list of tasks undertaken by the genial teacher is not surprising to those who saw the young student from Gladewater, Tex., progress through Harding with a superior record.

Cox's entry into Harding's gates was almost as unexpected as was Daniel's. As a high school senior in 1954, he was planning on attending either Abilene Christian College or Texas Christian University, both of which had offered him sizeable scholarships.

Burton Coffman, then in Harding development work, saw him by chance on a television quiz show in Tyler, however, and met and offered him a scholarship immediately afterwards. Cox soon was on his way, somewhat reluctantly, he admitted, to Harding.

"The person who made the biggest impact on my life at Harding was Dr. Ganus," said Cox. While still a freshman, he was put in the American Studies Program (one of only two freshmen so honored), and his subsequent work at Harding justified the distinction.

Honor Graduate in 1958

He was graduated with honors in 1958 and immediately took a job with Ernst and Ernst accountants in Dallas, with whom he worked till 1960. That year he became employed by Dallas Ceramic Co., a client of Ernst and Ernst, and was general manager until 1964.

Cox holds Certified Public Accountant certificates from four states, is qualified as a Treasury Department Agent and has a Master of Business Administration degree from Southern Methodist University, completed in 1964.

He and his wife Pat have two boys: David, 9, and Dale, 4.

Also on the development staff are three secretaries working directly under Daniel, keeping records and sending reminders concerning all gifts the college receives. They are Mrs. Louise Rivers, Mrs. Dorothy Woodruff and Mrs. Janet Davis.

Cox has three full-time workers assisting him, including his personal secretary, Mrs. Patsy Howard. Mrs. Mildred McCoy serves as Assistant Director of Placement, and her secretary is Mrs. Donna Hall.

Ganus Still Travels

Of course, Dr. Ganus still travels many miles and makes many appearances on behalf of the college, but his schedule is ever-tightening at the same time the college's constituency is ever-widening. But his influence in development will continue to be Harding's most important.

Two dynamic Bible teachers, Jimmy Allen and Jerry Jones, are assisting in the current campaign among church members. They maintain full teaching loads but manage to represent the college in official capacities from time to time.

In all levels and among all personnel in the development program, commitment is the dominant theme and enthusiasm the prevailing characteristic. All are proud of Harding's record and dedicated to increasing her ability to serve the young people of today.

"When we talk with people about Harding, we are not selling a single building or need, but rather Harding's entire program. We have a wonderful story to tell, and we believe people will respond if they hear it," said Daniel.

Cox summed up both the challenge and hope of Harding by saying of her present and future students:

"The young people of today are the most sensitive, vibrant generation in our history. They are anxious to join in some significant action, and it is our job as a Christian college to prepare, inspire and channel their restlessness in the right direction. They certainly cause me to be excited about the challenge of the future." □

Students Select 1967-68 Class Officers

Work, Bostic, Carr, Burress Are Presidents

Campaign posters covering the Student Center for two weeks finally came down late last month as Harding students elected class officers for the 1967-68 school year. Freshmen also chose representatives to the Student Association.

Alpha Chi Inducts Ten New Members

Ten juniors and seniors were initiated into Alpha Chi, national scholastic honor society, at a banquet Oct. 12 at the Mayfair Hotel in Searcy.

Seniors must attain a 3.50 grade average and juniors a 3.70 to be accepted by the society. Sponsors for Harding's chapter this year are Dr. Joseph Pryor, Dr. James Atteberry and Dr. Earl Wilcox.

Seniors initiated were William Dempsey, Texarkana, Ark.; Robert C. Erickson, Massillon, Ohio; Jane Jamison, Jonesboro; Earl Martin, Bixby, Okla.; Leo Perdue, Wynnewood, Okla.; and Joy Thomas, Wichita, Kans.

The four juniors accepted were Carolyn Craig, Godfrey, Ill.; Linda Forrest, Morrilton; Barbara Thompson, Searcy; and Julia Wade, Iuka, Miss.

Alpha Chi officers are president, Dale Work, Trenton, Mich.; vice president, Mike O'Neal, Antlers, Okla.; secretary, Faye Brewer, Foley, Ala.; treasurer, Earl Martin; and representative to the Regional Council, William Dempsey.

Another induction will be in the spring.

Freshman Steve Hamlin Named Radio Announcer For 'Hymns from Harding'

Steve Hamlin, freshman political science major from Selmer, Tenn., has been selected as the new announcer for the "Hymns from Harding" radio program featuring the A Cappella Chorus.

Hamlin was chosen by audition from among 25 candidates for the position vacated by John Ryan, assistant professor of speech, who is on leave to complete his doctorate.

"Hymns from Harding" is heard each week on some 170 radio stations in the United States.

Dale Work, math major from Trenton, Mich., was elected senior class president. He is also president of Alpha Chi, national scholastic honor society, and was named last year to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Senior vice president is Earl Martin, English major from Bixby, Okla., and secretary is Marlene Hall, home economics major from Alma.

Elected junior class president was Randall Bostic, a Senatobia, Miss., Bible major. He is a member of Galaxy social club and is active in intramural sports. Serving with him are vice president Johnny Freeman, business major from Memphis, and secretary Dee Gregory, pre-medical technology major from Lorenzo, Tex.

Sophomores chose Jimmy Carr, pre-dentistry major from Tallahassee, Fla., as their president. Vice president is David Storey, a Senath, Mo., biology major. Ethelle Vick, a physical education major from Valdosta, Ga., is secretary.

Wayne Burress of Durant, Miss., was named freshman president. Cathy Morris, English major from Hot Springs, and Paula Puckett, business major from Memphis, are vice president and secretary, respectively.

SA representatives are freshmen Rick Harris of Searcy and Carol Markham, business major from Little Rock.

Talkative Mynah Bird Stars at Open House

There were cookies, punch, optical illusions and guided tours, but a loquacious mynah bird stole the show Oct. 5 at the open house for Harding's newest addition, the Testing and Counseling Center and Department of Psychology and Sociology headquarters in the Clinic Building, formerly Hawkins Hospital and Clinic.

"Sam," the feathered feature, was lent by his owner, Ray Thornton of Sheridan, and gladly entertained visitors to the new center with a variety of words and phrases, including "I cook with gas," "Ring the bell" and the Razorback hog-call, "Soooooiee!"

Dr. Bob Gilliam, chairman of the Department of Psychology and Sociology, and the four other department faculty members gave tours through the renovated center, which includes

2 Transfer Students Win '69 PJ Positions

Two junior college transfer students, Diane Hoagland from York and Gail McKinney from Alabama Christian, have been elected editor and business manager, respectively, of the 1969 Petit Jean, Harding's yearbook.

The coeds, both juniors, will serve this year as assistants to their elected positions.

Miss Hoagland, a political science major from Overland Park, Kans., edited York's yearbook, the Crusader, last year. At Alabama Christian last year Miss McKinney set a sales record as business manager of the yearbook, the Sheaf. She is a business administration major from Montgomery, Ala.

Editor and business manager of the 1968 book are Ann Camp, Wichita Falls, Tex., and Randy Jackson, Paducah, Ky.

six offices, a classroom, a testing and observation room, a lounge-seminar room, a laboratory, a testing and individual learning room, a shop, an animal room and a workroom.

About $6,800, half of which was provided by a federal grant, was spent to renovate and equip the Clinic Building for the center. Until last spring the college's research program was housed in the building.

Improvements to the building included installation of new flooring, lowering of the ceiling and rearrangement of partitions. Still in the building are the student health center, the development office and three Bible faculty offices.

The department faculty has increased from two to five in the last three years.

Belles and Beaux Are Looking to USO Tour

Harding's traveling musical entertainers, the Belles and Beaux, are rehearsing four times a week in busy preparation for their nine-week tour of the Far East which begins in January.

Informed last spring of their selection by the National Music Council and USO Shows, the singers have begun putting together a second complete show to alternate with their "America in Song" program of last year.

The overseas tour is the fourth for the Belles and Beaux, their second to the Far East and the fifth tour for Harding groups. In 1960 the singers toured the Far East on their first trip, and the American Collegiate Players took "Where's Charley?" to the Northeast Command in 1966.

The fifteen-member tour group includes the following: Sopranos: Joan Ritchie, Searcy; Connie Taylor, Diamond, Mo.; and Jan Chesshir, Magnolia; Altos: Jean Lewis, Shreveport, La.; Patty Bowman, Monticello, Ind.; Beverly Holeman, Louisville, Ky.; and Sheri Tipps, Ft. Worth, Tex.

Tenors: Bruce Stidham, Alexandria, Va. and Larry Griffith, Thayer, Mo.; Basses: Jim Green, Valdosta, Ga.; Darrell Chitty, Houma, La.; Mark Miller, Santa Ana, Calif.; and Bob West, Indianapolis, Ind.

Accompanist is Cynthia Hawkins, Oklahoma City, Okla. Dr. Kenneth Davis Jr. will sing tenor as well as direct the group.

Tour alternates are accompanist Carol Adams, Benson, Ariz.; soprano Danette Key, St. Louis, Mo.; alto Rachel Rivers, Searcy; tenor Henry McDaniel, Jackson, Miss.; and bass Jim Dowdy, Meridianville, Ala.

Miss Adams and Dowdy are new members recently selected to the group. Four other new performers are soprano Margie Powers, Columbus, Miss.; alto Carolyn Wilson, Little Rock; and tenors Larry Costlow, Ft. Worth, Tex., and Charles Davis, Robstown, Tex.
