Business Team Wins Third National Title

*Wins In '66, '68, '70 Retires Trophy;
Rider College, LSU 2nd, 3rd*

First place in the International Intercollegiate American Marketing Competition at Michigan State University was won April 11 by the Harding College Business Team.

Winning first place for the third time since the competition began eight years ago, Harding is the first team to retire the rotating J. E. Chrissy Cup trophy.

Harding won over such competitors as Notre Dame, Michigan State University, Louisiana State University and other major universities.

The finals in East Lansing, Mich. climaxed a six-month contest among 50 college business teams from the U. S., Mexico and Canada. Beginning with the same assets for a theoretical business, each team had a chance to run the "business" against the computerized statistics of real-life corporations.

"The computer is programed with the composite facts from the actual operation of several large American companies," Harding team captain Rick Venable explained. "Seasonal and regional marketing changes, therefore, affect our theoretical business just as if they were in actual operation."

Venable said that these "businesses" were run, on paper that is, for a full year. Monthly reports and the necessity for decisions, however, came every two weeks.

At the end of these two-week months each team received through the mail a computer print-out of the results of the past "month's operation." Not only did it include changes that affected marketing but also a comparison as to how each team ranked in 1) return on assets, 2) retail sales of product and 3) profit.

"When we got our results every two weeks, we would spend about 8-14 hours making all the necessary decisions for the next 'month of operation,'" Venable said. The next step was a two-hour session defending these decisions in the office of the sponsor, Bill R. Cox, associate professor of business administration.

After ten rounds by mail, the team went to Michigan State where the last two rounds were played and an oral presentation was made before a panel of judges. This is where the championship was decided.

Concerning Harding's strategy, Venable said the secret of success was organized effort. "We experimented during the first three rounds, and basing our decisions on what we learned from those results, we played the last nine rounds," he explained.

The team members include Diana Dooley and Venable, both of Bartlesville, Okla.; Barry Milton of Tulsa, Okla.; Rodney Waller of Shreveport, La.; David Sain of Memphis, Tenn. and Suzanne Holland of Lake City.

In presenting the final round at the competition, Venable gave the oral presentation, only to be interrupted by spontaneous applause from the other contestants. Finally he received a standing ovation before he was able to finish.

HARDING CHAMPIONS — The Harding College Business Team which captured the International Intercollegiate Marketing Competition at Michigan State University are Rick Venable and Diana Dooley, Bartlesville, Okla.; Barry Milton of Tulsa, Okla.; Suzanne Holland of Lake City, Ark.; Rodney Waller of Shreveport, La.; and David Sain of Memphis with faculty advisor Bill R. Cox.

The annual World Evangelism Seminar will open June 4 immediately following graduation ceremonies. A Personal Evangelism-Campaign Workshop and a Seminar for American Youth will get underway at 1 p.m. and continue through June 6.

The Seminar will continue during the first session of summer school, June 8-July 11, with three hours of college credit being offered.

Both workshops will be held simultaneously with several of the speakers scheduled to address the combined groups. President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. will welcome the groups followed by "Let Us Let the World Hear" by Rees Bryant of Nashville, Tenn.

On Friday the groups will assemble to hear Eddie Cloer of Hot Springs talk on "Speak Up With Commitment," and Bryant's "The Lord Will Find a Way." Bryant will address the final group assembly Saturday on "Speak Up Now."

AWH Spring Meeting Rescheduled for May 2

The general meeting of Associated Women for Harding has been changed to coincide with High School Day and will be held at 10 a.m., May 2.

All members of the 12 AWH chapters have been invited to attend and other campus visitors will be welcome for the business sessions which will be under the direction of the Jacksonville chapter.

Traditionally AWH chapters have gathered on the campus sometime during the spring for a general business meeting and workshop. "We felt that since many will be planning to bring students for High School Day, we would move the AWH meet to that time. The campus will be beautiful, the May Fete during the afternoon will be enjoyable and we hope many ladies will plan to be with us for this occasion," explained Mrs. Harry Risinger, president of the Searcy AWH chapter.

Elected Class Officer

Blind Student Accepts Challenge, Determined To Achieve Degree

By Jim Worsham

Everybody else lives in a different world from him — the world of sight.

Yet freshman David Ransom of North Little Rock has come to Harding not only accepting the challenge of living in darkness in a society geared to light, but he has also taken on the job of his first year in college.

David, who has been blind all his life, has gained an amazing degree of independence for what may seem to many his "impossible" goal of a college degree. For with his white cane he can go anywhere he wants to on campus — when he wants to.

The canes are nicknamed "ponies" by the blind persons who use them, yet in Arkansas they are also appropriately known as "Arkansas Travelers."

His favorite pastime is reading and for David, reading his special way with Braille, he finds that in some ways he has the advantage over some of his sighted friends.

"I can read in bed much easier," he said, "and much longer — even after 'lights out' has stopped everybody else," he said.

David tells of the seemingly insignificant daily routines of sighted people that he has learned to do in some ways better than those who see.

"Like matching colors," David said, "I sew tabs at certain places on my clothes so that I know what color they are. I have already memorized what colors are supposed to look good together, so it is only a matter of getting the right combination. Socks, which are kept together when not being worn with a safety pin, are also matched using the tab method."

Taking notes is not that much of a problem either.

"When I am near the front of the class, I use a taperecorder," he said, "but when I end up in the back of the classroom, I take notes with a Braille writer."

With the Braille writer he can take notes remarkably fast by using a stylus to emboss Braille on special notebook paper.

"On a Braille typewriter I can really go — about 30 words a minute," he said.

And it is good that he can take such complete notes, for during the fall he was elected secretary of the freshman class at Harding this year — against a competition of six girls.

Yet David has other ways that he has been able to help fellow students in addition to his secretary job. For example, he has been able to demonstrate to a speech class the real importance of oral interpretation.

"When a person reads or talks in a monotone — with no inflection or feeling," he said, "it is very difficult to learn from him. For if a person reads as if he is bored with the material he is reading, pretty soon the listener is as weary of it as the reader appears to be."

This can be very much of a problem if a person must base much of his knowledge on taped books and readers.

But David's adjustment to the everyday jobs of the sighted world was no accident. For almost all his life he has worked to prepare for a life — not just of existence in a sighted world — but working as a part of it.

Preparation included many years in schools for the blind and before coming to Harding this year he was able to attend a special college preparatory course at the Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind — a nationally-known rehabilitation center in Little Rock sponsored by the Lions Clubs of Arkansas.

And for David this first year in college has a special challenge for him — living and working on a campus and in a society that even for the sighted it is often difficult.

David's aim is to "see" after himself, living as independently as possible, and to see his goal of a college education finally become a reality.

Using his "Arkansas Traveler" cane, David Ransom achieves an amazing degree of independence on the Harding campus.

With a Braille writer, Ransom can take notes even when he is too far back in a classroom to use a tape recorder.

Band Honored, Baggett Elected

Six members of the Bison Band were named to the honor Intercollegiate Band workshop at State College of Arkansas Feb. 27-28 and played in a concert directed by Dr. Joe Barry Mullins, director of bands at the University of Southern Mississippi at Hattiesburg. During the 15th annual clinic, Harding director George E. Baggett was elected secretary-treasurer of the Arkansas College Band Director's Association.

Students selected were Scott Fowler, a freshman from Warren, Ohio, Steve Smith, a sophomore music and math major from Corning, and Miss Beth Nutt, a senior music education major from Shreveport, clarinets; Ron Nicola, a freshman education major from Wintersville, Ohio, tenor saxophone; Wayne Shelton, freshman chemistry major from Paducah, Ky., cornet, and Mike Lucas, junior music education major from Slocomb, Ala., percussion.

The Band will be presented in a final concert of the year on May 17 at 2 p.m. in the main auditorium.

646 Attend Youth Forum

With students coming from many Arkansas cities and from surrounding states, the 6th annual Youth Forum was the best attended in history, according to Eddie R. Campbell, director. A total of 646 students and sponsors registered for the two-day event and heard addresses by several campus leaders and Hank McDaniel, a Harding graduate now on the faculty of Freed-Hardeman college.

One of the best attended sessions was the entertainment hour provided by a trio, Randy Burris of Little Rock, Drew Fuller of Shreveport and Jerry Flowers of Natchez, Miss. An overflowing crowd packed the Heritage auditorium for the folk rock group's show.

Among the groups from outside the state were bus loads from Bedford, Ind., Memphis, Shreveport/Bossier City, West Plains, Mo., and West Monroe, La.

Spring Enrollment Set at 1780

The enrollment analysis for the spring semester showed a total of 1,780 registered, after a 1,890 total for the fall. The decrease included 70 who completed requirements for degrees at the close of the first semester.

Arkansas continued to lead the state poll with 521 followed by Texas 167, Missouri 141, Tennessee 87 and Ohio 77. All states except Connecticut, Nevada and Rhode Island were represented.

By classes the juniors head the list with 499 with freshmen totaling 490. Sophomores number 389 and seniors 354. Thirty are graduate students, seven are special and eleven are post graduates.

Debaters Win Speech Festival

Three Harding debate teams garnered high point honors in the annual Arkansas Speech Festival on the Harding campus March 13-14 and received the festival trophies to add to an array already collected this year. More than 400 high school and college students participated in the meet which had competition in nine events in both divisions. Dr. Evan Ulrey, speech department chairman who is also secretary-treasurer of the Arkansas Speech Association, directed the festival.

The team of Pat Garner and Patty Edwards debated the University of Arkansas in semi-finals and won by a 3-0 decision. Two other Harding teams, Wayne Dockery and George Edwards and Jimmy Sigmund and Bobby Dockery, were undefeated also.

All Arkansas colleges and about 30 high schools entered the competition.

Professor To Teach in Europe

Mrs. Elizabeth Mason, professor of art and chairman of the department, will go to Heidelberg, Germany April 24 to teach in the Pepperdine College program there for the summer trimester. She will complete accelerated courses at Harding prior to her departure and will return to resume duties for the fall semester.

In Europe she will teach painting, art history and design. She will be accompanied by her daughter, Molly, who completed requirements for a degree in January. Other Harding students who will accompany her are Ruth Gosney, Mike Shannon and Max Newman.

SID Elected To National Office

Stanley Green, Director of Sports Information, was elected national secretary-treasurer of the NAIA Sports Information Directors' Association at the 33rd annual meeting of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics in Kansas City.

Other officers elected were Paul Newman of Edinboro State College (Pa.) president, and Fred Neusch of Texas A&I, vice-president.

Casting for "The Impresario" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," which will be presented May 8-9 in the annual spring musical, has been completed, according to Dr. Erle Moore, music department chairman.

The operas will be staged in the Main Auditorium with curtain time at 8 p.m. The musical will mark the final major production on campus for the school year.

Ex-Student Continues To Serve

By Gene Ellmore

"Our young people deserve the best training in the best environment we can provide for them," said Little Rock businessman James H. Cone, a member of the President's Development Council and National Steering Committee.

The native Arkansan was impressed with Harding's environment when he enrolled as a freshman in 1944. "The college has not changed in its wholesome environment and practical faith since that time," he said in affirming that Harding's environment is one of the greatest things it has to offer and that it is rooted and grounded in the practical faith and dedication of its administration and faculty.

"Harding College provides an environment where a student can be active, popular, and a campus leader and yet not be required to sacrifice Christian principles or scholastic standards," he said.

Cone attended Harding briefly prior to enlistment in the U. S. Army to serve in World War II. Following his discharge he enrolled for two terms and later transferred to the University of Oklahoma where he majored in engineering. "I always wanted to be in the construction business. My uncle, the late Jim Cone, former vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees at Harding, influenced me greatly in this direction. I took engineering in college because I felt this was the closest related subject to the business," he stated.

He is married to the former Bonnie Williams of Melbourne and they are the parents of a son, James H. Jr., 15, and two daughters, Annette, 16 and Maria, 3.

In the summer of 1951 he began working for a construction company. Five years later he moved to Little Rock, where he established his own construction company, specializing in commercial building. He operates his company on a policy similar to that of Harding College — gradual growth through personal service. Cone pointed out that a "steady, consistent growth is preferred to an explosive one."

While a student at Harding he was an avid lover of all kinds of sports. Before intercollegiate sports began, he was selected as an all-star on the intramural basketball team. Vividly recalling these days he said: "Harding has always been known for its outstanding intramural sports program, which is a contributing factor to good campus environment.

"We must build the kind of influence that produces good citizens and happy lives," he said. This statement is typical of the view he sustains and the service he renders to the growth of the church and the advancement of Christian education. He serves as a deacon at the Pulaski Heights church of Christ in Little Rock. He is a member of the Board of Directors of Ibaraki Christian Foundation; serves on the President's Development Council at Harding, and is a member of the National Steering Committee. His interest in students, quality of dedication, and responsible leadership are assets to Harding in the carrying out of its purposes and objectives.

A strong believer in Harding, Cone feels that it excels as a college where Christian principles and academic values produce good citizens and happy lives. He recognizes the urgency of supporting the school in its growth and development.

Six Athletes Cited In Sports Volume

Six Harding College athletes will be honored in the 1970 volume of Outstanding College Athletes of America, athletic director Hugh Groover announced.

Bisons honored are Charles Jones and Jerry Copeland, football; Roy Steele, baseball; Dean Bawcom and Freddie Marsh, tennis; and Charles Burt, bowling.

Outstanding College Athletes of America is an annual awards volume featuring the biographical and accomplishments of approximately 5,000 young athletes who have proven themselves outstanding in sports, campus activities and curriculum.

Criteria for selection include an athlete's sports achievements, leadership ability, athletic recognition and community service. The publication date for the awards volume will be July 1970.

John Putnam, one of the 1966 Ten Outstanding Young Men of America award winners and president of the Foundation, said, "It is the purpose of Outstanding College Athletes of America to recognize and encourage the all-round abilities of the young people who have distinguished themselves in the sports competitions of our colleges. These young people carry the mantle of their school, their state and their nation each time they participate in competitive sports."

Industry Trophy Won In Emory Games

The Business Team captured the industry plaque at the recent executive games at Emory University in Atlanta, defeating seven other colleges and universities in the division including Auburn, Samford, William and Mary, Capitol, Austin Peay State, Arkansas State and Belmont Abbey. Winner of last year's games, the team made an excellent presentation in the final but was declared second to Notre Dame, with Northeast Missouri State, Vanderbilt and Loyola as the other finalists.

Harding reached midway in the current games "in good position," according to faculty sponsor David Burks. Competing with 40 top schools from over the nation and Canada, the six Harding students pitted their business knowledge in the operation of a mythical corporation. Decisions were made by teletyping management operations to an Emory computer programmed with a simulated business environment.

Team members included Lynn Dixon of Newport, who served as captain, and Donald Hicks of Biggers, both members of last year's team, and Rick Harris of Searcy, Mark Milhollen of North Little Rock, Mike Cole of Trenton, Mich., and Dennis Reeve of Siloam Springs.

The group played the final round in Atlanta and appeared before a panel of business executives to present the team's strategy used in the ten rounds of play.

Trophy Presentation for Emory Competition

Hanaba Munn to be Woodrow Wilson Fellow

*First Harding Designee in Ten Years
Is an Art-French Major From Texas*

By Russ Simmons

Hanaba Munn, a double major in art and French, is Harding's first woman student to be named a Woodrow Wilson Designate. Previous Designates at Harding, who became Fellows upon acceptance at graduate school, were Gene Rainey in 1958, Gary Peddle in 1959 and John Michael White in 1960.

Miss Munn, the product of a North Texas farm a few miles from Vernon, is one of 1,150 Designates chosen from a list of 12,000 who were nominated by their colleges. An equal number received Woodrow Wilson Honorable Mention. Names of Designates and honorees are sent to all graduate schools by the Foundation. All graduate departments to which the Designates applied have already received the candidates names direct from their regional selection committee.

The Foundation attempts to support with fellowships those Designates who do not receive adequate support from the graduate schools to which they applied. Miss Munn has applied to Tulane, Missouri, Ohio State and Kansas.*

A lively young lady of many likes and interests, Hanaba is so full of enthusiasm for each one that a stranger would think she was overboard for the one activity at hand. In fact, those who know her feel that this dynamo who was not given a middle name could well wear an "E" for energy or enthusiasm.

This probably explains some of her long list of achievements and activities: As a high school graduate her record showed her as being active in basketball and tennis, being named to "Who's Who" in English, Science and Spanish, most versatile, most likely to succeed and a National Merit Finalist. She was also teen columnist for the school paper, a member of the annual staff and salutatorian.

At Harding she has been active in four music groups, the Chorale, A Cappella Chorus, the Band and the Recording Chorus (a group for recording hymns in foreign languages). She is one of the rare few who made Alpha Chi and Who's Who as a junior. She has served on the Student Association cabinet, is a member of the campus Art Guild and the Kappa Pi national art group, is active in Le Cercle Francaise, Les Bonnes de Christe and Ko Jo Kai, a campus social club.

In her remaining time, she studies, produces jewelry and ceramics and makes a habit of being on the Dean's List. Of course, she also works eight hours a week grading papers in the Department of Modern Languages. She also never misses any of the tours taken by the musical groups in which she is active, including, for example, last summer's Tour '69 of eight weeks in Europe. She plans also to be a part of Tour '71 with other present and past members of the Chorus.

Always energetic, Hanaba could never be accurately termed "jittery" — she just wants to stay actively busy, and what she does is usually filled with purpose. Back in her early days on the farm about halfway between Vernon and the Oklahoma border, she was energetic in all things — work or play. Her parents, the J. Z. Munns, still operate the farm where Hanaba had so much childhood joy in tree-climbing, horseback riding and furrow-jumping, but Mr. Munn's main activity is doing accounting and tax work for his neighboring farmers.

At Harding, this is her horse.

When one enters Mr. Munn's office, which was his childhood home, or their present home a half-mile away, one immediately notices a pleasant atmosphere that would contribute to a fullness of life in a youngster. Built-in bookcases on each side of the office entrance contain many years of National Geographics and Readers Digests, with plenty of reference volumes nearby and large maps on the main wall. The home contains other clear evidence of being the location of interesting people who are eager to live full and purposeful lives. Music, art, literature and an interesting mixture of period furnishings seem to be blended pleasantly to further describe the residents who accumulated them.

They also help to explain why Hanaba is such an interesting person that more than one observer has said, "Whoever gets her for a mate will never have another dull moment as long as she lives." Many others are ready to add an emphatic "Amen!"

* Early in April Miss Munn received and accepted an offer of an assistantship from the Department of Art at Tulane University, where she will earn her MA in Art History. She will begin there in September.

She earns part of her expense money grading papers eight hours a week for the Department of Modern Languages.

Miss Munn makes a final inspection of some of the 44 items she will include in her senior art exhibit at Harding.

Trustee Stresses Personal Evangelism

By Gene Ellmore

"At the end of the war we didn't think there were any fighter planes in the air. On April 7, 1945, while flying formation, a German fighter, black lacquered and shiny, came up under my wing and collided with the lead plane carrying my own bombardier, Fred, and my group commander, Col. Herboth. All in the plane were killed. My crew and I were flying less than ten yards away when the collision occurred. We were torn up, and crash landed."

Except for the grace of God and a few feet, Harding College would not have the esteemed services of Hillard Johnmeyer as a member of the Board of Trustees. Johnmeyer is a successful businessman . . . operating a construction company which lays underground telephone cable; an experienced airplane pilot . . . flying missions in two wars, in coordination with his business, and for pleasure; a dedicated member of the church of Christ . . . serving as a personal worker in evangelistic campaigns in the United States and abroad.

A staunch supporter of conservative Christian education, he regularly attends Harding's workshops and seminars on personal evangelism. Having received the needed training, he and his wife leave their business for a month each year, raise their own support, and participate in an evangelistic campaign in the United States or abroad. Besides scheduling each day's work in advance and making out reports each evening as group leader, he walks the streets, knocks on doors and conducts Bible studies to save souls during the day. His natural concern for others makes him effective in personal evangelism.

Johnmeyer was born in a rural community in Cooper County, Missouri. The family remained there only a few years before moving to Howard County where Johnmeyer attended school. Commenting on those early years in school, he recalls, "I quit school in the eighth grade and ran away from home. Later, my brother, Julius, put me through high school. I helped pay part of the expenses by driving a milk truck."

On December 14, 1942 he enlisted in the Army and, following intensive training in flight school, flew B-24 missions during World War II. He was recalled to active service during the Korean war and flew missions there. He attended the University of Missouri at Columbia for one year between the two wars, majoring in engineering.

Immediately following the Korean war he established a business in St. Clair, Missouri. Vividly recalling its establishment, Johnmeyer said, "I hired one man, rented a pickup truck and an air compressor, and began laying underground telephone cable in solid rock. No other company wanted to do this work even though it paid more, so I started my business with those jobs. My contact with the telephone company came from a local telephone man who was a customer years ago when my brother and I cut brush for a living, getting 50c a span, and it took one man a whole day to cut a span."

In 1965 Johnmeyer moved his business to Rolla, Missouri. Operating from an office on the Rolla airport, he scans the jobs listed in certain trade magazines, flies his own plane to inspect certain ones, and then bids on them. "I bid on jobs all over the United States," he said, "but generally within a 600 mile radius of Rolla."

Reflecting upon his years of campaigning — conducting Bible studies and teaching others of Christ, he recalled his own conversion and that of his wife while studying with an Air Force associate, Gale Cummings, and his wife, "T". "While we were overseas, separated from our wives, Gale Meyer, "and his wife befriended my wife and taught her." In 1952, while stationed at Davis Monthan A.F.B. in Tucson, Arizona, they both were baptized at the Country Club Road church of Christ.

Of his service during World War II, Johnmeyer said, "At the end of the war I was in London flying sight-seeing missions for the 'ground-pounders' over battle-torn areas. I saw America double-crossed by communist Russia. After the war, I watched the United Nations being built and saw socialism on the rise. As time went on, I knew I wanted to do something about it."

It was this deep sense of loyalty that led in the search for a conservative educational institution to an eventual meeting with Dr. Ganus and Dr. Bales, and his association with Harding College and the National Education Program. "Dr. Evan Ulrey, speech department chairman, directed the program. Greatly impressed with the campus and the friendliness of the students the awareness of the administration and faculty and their meaningful programs, Johnmeyer said, "Harding knows what's going on in the world."

Since that time, believing what he found still to be true, he has been an enthusiastic supporter and energetic worker for Harding College. He serves as a member of the Board of Trustees and faithfully executes his responsibilities in this capacity. He regularly attends the Bible Lectureships each fall, the Christian Workers' Workshops and the World Evangelism Seminars each summer, and encourages others to do the same. Of Harding's MISSION/PREPARE Program, Johnmeyer says, "The increase of personal evangelism both at home and abroad is one of the most encouraging signs in the church today, and Harding is contributing in a significant way to this increase through its MISSION/PREPARE Program."

Activism is not just a word with Johnmeyer, it is a way of life. He is endowed with a keen sense of loyalty to God, the church and his country. He is a participator, encourager and supporter of those things in which he believes. It is not uncommon to see the Johnmeyers on the Harding campus on any weekend. Although recovering from a broken back suffered in a recent jeep accident while hunting, his first trip from home during convalescence was to Harding to acquaint some friends with the school. Ten days later, he attended the Preacher's Forum, bringing with him other friends interested in visiting the campus and learning more about the school's programs. Not only do they come to see their son, "H," a junior at Harding, but they are enthusiastic with Harding's programs and eager to acquaint others with these programs.

Second European Tour Planned for A Cappella

Based on the success of the A Cappella Chorus tour to Europe last summer, the group has begun plans for a similar trek for 1971, according to Dr. Kenneth Davis Jr., director.

For eight weeks last summer, 63 tour members traveled 12,500 kilometers in Peugeot station wagons through 14 countries, presenting formal and informal concerts at church buildings, civic auditoriums, and outdoor pavilions.

Dr. Davis outlined plans for Tour '71. "We are planning to take 63 persons. This time we will probably tour in Volkswagen buses because of the added room. We plan to travel in nine buses with seven people per bus. We intend to keep the group balanced with about six or seven singers on each of the eight parts. These will be accepted on a first-come-first-served basis, according to a balance of parts."

To meet advance arrangement requirements, applicants must submit a $25.00 non-refundable deposit by May 15, 1970. Anyone over the 63-person limit will be placed on a waiting list. Persons whose deposits are received after May 15 will also be placed on a waiting list, and each time seven names accumulate on the waiting list an additional bus will be procured.

The tour will be approximately eight weeks and will cost $800 for transportation (from New York, round trip), food, lodging and travel in Europe. Money for "extras" must be supplied by the individual. Members of the families of chorus members and chorus alumni are welcome and will be accepted to sing with the group by audition. Travelers who are accepted as singers will pay the same fee as chorus members. For others the fee will be $50.00.

The Tour '69 group has released a two-volume album with proceeds being applied to incidental expenses for Tour '71. The albums are available at $8.50 and may be ordered from Tour '71, c/o Kenneth Davis Jr., Box 531, Harding College, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

To the Alumni

Dr. Jack Wood Sears

Our spring break has just been completed. For a short time our students have been scattered across this nation. Some have been home to visit loved ones; others have been engaged in religious campaigns helping churches spread the Good News to those who did not know it. Still others have used this time to catch up on classwork, prepare term papers, or complete other projects. It is sad to see them leave, even for a few days, for Harding is not Harding without her students. It is for them that the college exists. There is only one purpose for Harding College, or any other Christian College, and that is to provide an opportunity for young men and women to obtain an education that can truly be called education. Real education involves more than mind. It must involve the heart and spirit as well as the mind and body. No education is the highest that is not in harmony with the teachings and spirit of the Christ.

At times we and other Christian colleges have been criticized as being propaganda institutions indoctrinating our students. It is assumed that we are not educating them. Perhaps those who so criticize should use their dictionary. To propagandize is not essentially bad. It basically means to attempt systematically to propagate a doctrine, or a system or gain public support for an opinion or course of action. Of course, because of the abuse of some, it has often the additional connotation of dishonest distortion of facts to gain a point. Certainly I would not and could not as a Christian ever endorse deception on the part of teacher or student. To teach history, English, biology or sociology from the point of view of the teachings of Christ is not dishonest, nor deceptive, unless of course, while doing so one denies that he is so doing. Even the word indoctrinate is not a bad word. It simply means "to instruct in doctrines, principles, theories or beliefs." (Webster's New World Dictionary) Of course that is what we are openly trying to do at Harding. We plainly and frankly teach what we believe to be the "doctrine" of Christ as well as to instruct in the various secular subjects. It is for this that we exist.

As a Christian, I could do no less than to attempt in every way available to teach biology from the point of view of the eternal principles of Jesus Christ. I am convinced that there is no true education that does not properly relate to the teachings of the Christ. A biology class is not a "church service" nor is it a class of instruction in Christ's doctrine, but as a Christian my understanding of life and of the world in which we live is "colored" by the eternal principles taught in God's word. A Christian cannot teach biology like an unbeliever does, unless, of course, the unbeliever is greatly influenced by the teachings of Jesus. I do not believe a Christian history teacher will teach history like an unbeliever teaches history. Certainly the Christian sees more than the unbeliever. He sees God in the living word. He sees God in history. To teach biology or history as if God does not exist is to destroy biology and history. I am not saying that the Christian will have any more command of the secular facts of biology or of history than the unbeliever, but I am saying that because of the understanding of eternal truths that the Christian has, his understanding of and attitude toward the facts of biology or of history will be far superior to that of the unbeliever (provided that they both have equal intelligence and training). This is not egotism. The Christian is not in himself greater than others. But because of the grace of God and the revelation of the Holy Scriptures, he is blessed with understandings that the unbeliever has not perceived or has rejected.

I try to indoctrinate my students. I would, before God, that all of them were dedicated, consecrated Christians. Oh, I want them to know the facts of biology. Therefore, I teach these as thoroughly as I can, using every means available to me. But more than this, I want each one of them to know Him and understand and appreciate His universe. Any understanding of life, of history, of society and of self that does not place God in the proper perspective, I believe is inferior and false.

At Harding I propagandize, but I do it honestly and without apology as do also my colleagues. I teach the truth as I believe it to be, walking in the light as God grants me to see the light. If some do not approve, or think this is not education, I am sorry.

Associated Women for Harding Plan Combined Projects for Record $5060

The Searcy chapter of Associated Women for Harding approved a $5,060 combined project, the largest attempted by the chapter, for the current school year. The major expenditure will be the carpeting of halls in Kendall Women's Dormitory at $3,750. Equipment for the science department will be purchased at a cost of $590, a $400 skeleton and a $500 projector will be secured for the art department. Funds for the projects were raised through the annual Gift Fair which netted $3,268.55 in December, rummage sales, thrift store operations and an annual fashion show. Mrs. Harry Risinger, Searcy chapter president, said the project would be completed during the summer.

Buck Board At Work

Secretary Donna Friday demonstrates the procedure of issuing an emergency loan to Pat Kimbro from the Bison Buck Board fund established by the family of John Roberts Sapp, a sophomore who was fatally injured in a December traffic accident. Using the $100 young Sapp had saved from his earnings as a campus worker, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Sapp of Searcy, deposited the money at the college so that students could obtain quick cash. The money is loaned without interest for 10 days, with a $1.00 per week fee charged for late payment. Dean of Men Eddie Campbell, in whose office the fund is handled, said that many students have used the system and that all monies have been repaid within the 10-day period.

Harding Graduate Writes Spanish Basketball Text

By Harvey Johnston
North Texas State University
Public Information Office

DENTON, TEX. — A magazine ad seeking help for a summer basketball program in Ecuador sounds like a nice summer vacation, not a route to writing a book on basketball fundamentals for translation into Spanish.

However, it happened to Jack Rhodes (BA'61), a 30-year old North Texas State University doctoral student from Searcy.

Rhodes answered the ad in the January 1969 issue of "Texas Coach" and "immediately forgot about the application."

"Boy, was I surprised when I was one of two chosen from over 1,600 applicants," he recalls.

Rhodes also remembers a flight across Cuba at 600 feet and a view of the entire 50-mile-long Panama Canal from the same altitude. And all this while sharing the cargo area of a C-46 with a "very large Santa Gertrudis bull and four eager heifers," which were headed to breeding farms in Ecuador.

That all happened the first day after he left Miami on the freight aircraft owned by an Ecuadorian newspaper which sponsored the summer program.

Once in Ecuador, Rhodes immediately was thrown into the middle of the basketball program aimed at building toward the 1969 Pan-American Games and the 1972 Olympics.

He had his chance of finding out quickly if basketball was the all-consuming interest of his life, noted the NTSU graduate student, who is helping with the NTSU freshman team while finishing his work toward a doctor's degree in college teaching.

Rhodes received his bachelor's degree at Harding in 1961 where he participated in basketball and track. His coaching experiences include Kennedale High School in Tarrant County, and the Tuloso-Midway school system in Corpus Christi.

He returned to Tarrant County to coach at Fort Worth Christian College for the 1968-69 season.

While in Ecuador Rhodes worked from early in the morning to 11 or later each night, seven days a week, with every possible age group — male and female — from junior high school to national teams preparing for the South American championships.

The book on basketball fundamentals came about from a curiosity on the part of the visiting Texas coach and a need for fundamentals in the early stages of the basketball program. Rhodes found that many textbooks were from 12- to 15-years-old, and the principles being taught were badly outdated.

He said coaches in Ecuador generally taught a zone defense and the sandlot theory of "get the ball and put it up."

The book goes into the "one, two three of jump shots, different zone defenses, and various offensive moves," Rhodes pointed out.

Recalling his stay in Ecuador, the NTSU student said at one game the toward the referee with his hand out, apparently willing to shake and forgive," said Rhodes.

"But the ousted player pulled a turnabout on the referee and walked from the court. The insulted referee called a technical foul on the team; the team captain got mad; the referee got madder; and the chase was on."

Rhodes said it took quite a while to clear the court and restore order.

In discussing his accomplishments of the summer, Rhodes joked, "Well, I picked up a good tan and a working knowledge of Spanish." But in serious reflection, he thinks he helped by showing young lady chosen to represent Ecuador in the Miss World contest was flown onto the court by helicopter and caused quite an eruption of the game. Incidentally, Rhodes pointed out, the great majority of the games are outdoors, causing havoc with a schedule during the rainy season.

But Ecuadorians take their basketball almost as seriously as others in South America take their soccer, he added.

"In one game, a team was getting 'homered' pretty good," Rhodes said, referring to a suspected practice of the referee favoring the home team.

"During this game one player got his maximum of five fouls, walking that his country was interested in the program.

Also, he points out that the book will accomplish a lot by giving the coaches a firm foundation on which to begin with the basketball playing youth of Ecuador.

Rhodes and his wife (Glenda Ganus '62) hope to accept an invitation to return to Ecuador this summer. He is scheduled to finish his doctoral work in June and is looking for a job, "preferably in a small college situation."

Bill R. Barden, instructor in science and football coach at Harding Academy, was named "Outstanding Young Educator of the Year" by the Searcy Jaycees last month. He was honored at the annual recognition banquet and received a plaque from Searcy Jaycee president Charles Simpson. Barden is a 1963 graduate of Harding and has been at the Academy since 1967.

Baseball Outlook Bright

An all-veteran infield led by All-American shortstop Roy Steele and a promising young pitching staff should make Harding coach Dick Johnson's first year at the helm an interesting one.

Strength down the middle is assured with Steele returning for his senior year of competition. The Columbia, Tenn., shortstop is a slick glove man and an excellent hitter (.328 in 1969), Sophomore Dallas Howard of Ypsilanti, Mich., is a fine glove man and can make the all-important double play. Two-year letterman Denny Dotson returns in the catcher's spot. From Columbus, O., Dotson slipped to a .257 last year after a .313 average in 1968.

All-AIC third sacker Jerry Moore provides experience and hitting power at third base. A senior from Searcy, Moore developed rapidly last season and finished with a team-leading .377 average. Gary Corum of Independence, Mo., will hold down the first base spot.

Junior college transfer Dana Zartman of Columbus, O., has been installed in centerfield and Russ Parker of Lee's Summit, Mo., appears ready in left. The third outfield spot is still up for grabs. Zartman possesses excellent credentials with a .300 plus average while playing first base with the Ohio state semi-pro champions.

Lettermen hurlers returning are junior Ken Merritt (5-3) of Searcy, and senior Gay Wheatley (2-3) of San Pablo, Calif. Newport footballer Mike Payne, the team's only lefthander, returns to the diamond after a two-year layoff.

Freshmen hurlers with strong potential are 5-9, 160 pound Marv Francisco of Pleasant Valley, Iowa, 6-6 basketballer Joe Mathias of St. Louis, Mo., and Robert Helvering of Searcy, all righthanders. The bellweather of the 1969 Arkansas state champion legion team from Searcy, Helvering compiled a 16-7 record.

Team depth will come from Steve Allison, Mose Turner and John Greer of Searcy, Denny Holloway of Washington, O., Max Reibolt of Neosho, Neb., David Treadwell of Sand Springs, Okla., and Charles Young of Glen Burnie, Md.

Water Buffaloes Fifth In Conference Meet

Harding's Water Buffaloes finished fifth in the recent Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference swimming meet in Conway.

Defending champion Hendrix College, host of the league event, again took first.

Richard Gillenwaters had the highest finish on coach Mike Clark's squad with a fourth place in the 50-yard freestyle. His time for the event was :25.5. A 3:45 time earned Mike Moore sixth place in the 200-yard butterfly.

Both of the Water Buffaloes relay teams placed. Don Johnson, Terry Geer, Glen Davis, and Gillenwaters swam the 400-yard freestyle relay in 4:01 for a fourth place. The 400-yard medley relay squad, Doug Bashaw, Johnson, Moore and Davis, finished fifth at 4:54.

Solsberry, Ind., Dana Zartman of Columbus, Ohio; sophomore, Bill Chism; and freshman, Joe Mathias of St. Louis, Mo. Wayne Means of Wildwood, Fla. was awarded a managerial letter.

Field Event Strength Raises Track Hopes

Lack of team depth will hamper Bison track and field prospects but strong individual performances are expected.

Big things are expected in the shotput from senior Jim Duncan. An All-American second team selection in football last season, the 6-3, 265 pounder placed 11th in the NAIA last year with a throw of 53-5½.

Two-time All-American miler Jim Crawford has graduated and will be sorely missed. Sophomores Tim Geary of Merced, Calif. and John Ratliff of York, Neb. have excellent potential at the one- and two-mile distances.

Charles Kiser returns in the 120-yard high hurdles, Rick Harris and David Byrd in the 440, Jerry Evans in the pole vault, John Buck in the shot and discus, and Larry Rodenbeck in the broad jump.

Junior Freddie Marsh, 1969 AIC Singles Champion, returns to defend title.

Netters Prepare AIC Title Defense

Five returning lettermen, four of whom are seniors, will lead the Harding College campaign for its third straight Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference tennis title.

Coach Bob Knight will have 1969 singles champion Freddie Marsh of Benton and 1968 singles champion Dean Bawcom of Clovis, N. M. battling for the number one position. Marsh is only a junior and Bawcom is a senior.

Seniors Ray Kelly of Glencoe, Ala. and Lynn Dixon of Newport carry fourth and fifth rankings in the AIC. Both were division winners in the 1969 conference tournament. Glen Blue of Searcy completes the all-lettermen front line.

Narrowly Miss Playoff

Cagers Close Fast, Two Honored

Overcoming inexperience and lack of height, the 1969-70 Harding basketball team recorded a 10-14 season mark.

"The boys worked real hard," coach Jess Bucy stated, "and the overall team effort was tremendous."

Under the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference divisional classification, the Bisons missed the playoff tournament by only one game and finished 7-11 in league action.

North Little Rock senior Danny Russell was named to the NAIA All-District 17 team and was an All-AIC honorable mention choice. Larry Olsen, a senior from Omaha, Neb., was an honorable mention selection for both honor teams.

Three players joined the select 300-Point Club this year. Russell garnered 389 points for a 16.2 average and Olsen 356 points for a 14.8 average per game. Sophomore Bill Chism scored 334 points and averaged 13.9 on his first season as a Bison starter. Dana Zartman also finished with a 10.9 scoring average.

Lettermen announced by coach Bucy were seniors David Byrd of Menifee, Russell and Olsen; juniors, Charlie Boaz of Mayfield, Ky., Greg Franz of Henderson, Neb., Darrell Price of Seminole, Tex., Larry Rodenbeck of

Record Setter

Burly Jim Duncan established a new state record with a shotput of 60-1 at the Pine Bluff Zebra Relays in early April. The mammoth senior thus became the first Arkansas collegian to break the magic 60-foot mark.

Faces on the Campus — Susan Murray had no lines but plenty of hisses in her role of the Snakewitch in a recent campus production of "The Frog Prince." . . . 1969 AIC singles bowling champion was junior Gary Parsons . . . Senior Charles Webb took the singles title in the NAIA District 17 rolloff for the second consecutive year . . . Guess who stole the show in the Associated Women for Harding annual style show in March but Gregg Barden and Laura Priest as the AWH chapter raised funds for campus projects . . . Bison Editor David Crouch and his wife, Lola, met with some of the 600 high school students who registered for the 6th annual Youth Forum held March 13-14.
