Johnson Receives LLD; 314 Graduate

The largest graduating class in the college's history, 314 students, was challenged "to establish a goal in life" by Wallace E. Johnson, vice-chairman and co-founder of Holiday Inns, Inc., in commencement exercises June 4.

Receiving degrees were 234 candidates for the Bachelor of Arts, 73 for the Bachelor of Science and seven for the Master of Arts in Teaching.

"We have discovered everything in the world but ourselves," Johnson said, "but we need to understand ourselves and establish goals. We need a purpose in our lives, our schools and our nation."

He added, "You need to convince yourself of what needs to be done and then do it. For your mind is like a field, and you reap what you think."

Two department chairmen, Dr. Erle T. Moore, music, and Dr. Dean Priest, mathematics, and assistant professor of Bible Dr. Neale Pryor, were named Distinguished Teachers for 1969-70. Each received an award of $1,000.

Medicine and Missions Keep Farrar Busy

By Gene Ellmore

For three years, Dr. Henry C. Farrar labored as a medical missionary in Nigeria, Africa. Working at the Nigerian Christian Hospital, Onicha Ngwa, he treated over 200 patients per day for hookworm, malaria, bilharzia, scurvy, and all types of skin disease. In an area with a ratio of one doctor to every 35,000 people, his duties and responsibilities were tremendously time-consuming, but he never lost sight of the real purpose for being there — to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. Farrar preached three times each Sunday and established five congregations.

In a recent interview, Farrar reaffirmed his basic philosophy as a Christian doctor: "Doctors should be committed to the Lord first and to their patients second; being committed to the Lord, they will be committed to their patients."

In 1967, when war broke out in Nigeria, Farrar was forced to return to the United States. He moved to Searcy in 1969 and enrolled his children in Harding Academy. While setting up practice as a physician and surgeon with a medical group in Searcy, he remained in contact with brethren in Nigeria.

Demonstrating his faith that doctors should be committed to the work of the Lord, Farrar became involved with the Mission/Prepare Program at Harding College. Working closely with its director, Dr. Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible Department, a Medicine and Missions program was organized to inform Christian doctors about the opportunities for medical missionaries around the world.

Speaking as a moderator for the second annual Medicine and Missions Conference conducted May 15 on the Harding campus, Farrar said: "It has been a dream of mine since becoming a doctor to get medical doctors, nurses, and pharmacists together to communicate the most effective methods of serving the Lord all over the world; to inform them of the places where they are needed, the methods and means of getting there, and the reasons why they should go."

More than 100 doctors, nurses, pharmacists, dentists, laboratory technicians, pre-medical and medical students attended this year's Medicine and Missions Conference. "It was unique in that nearly all of the medical missionaries of the churches of Christ in history were here except Luke," Farrar quipped.

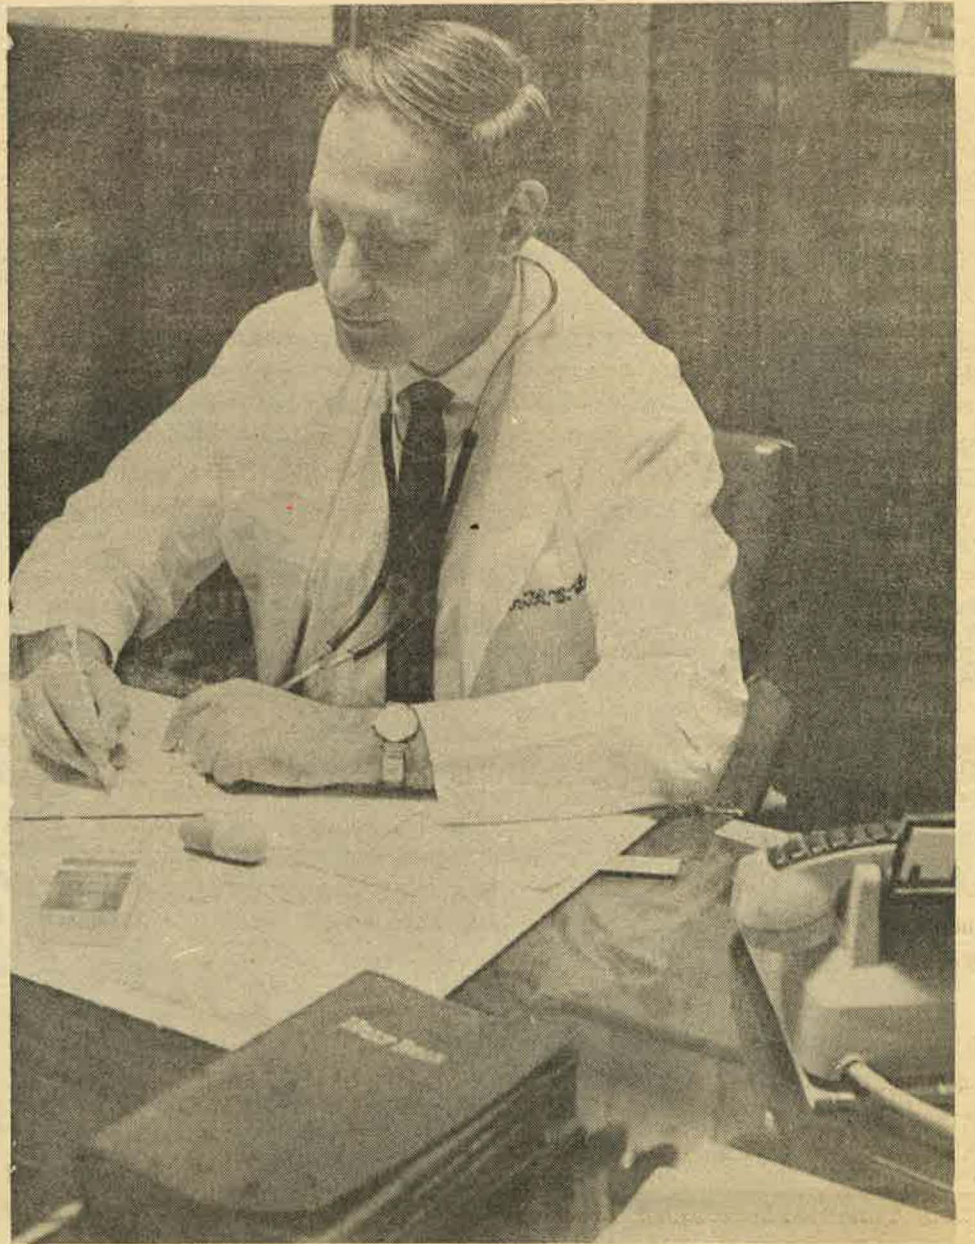

Dr. P. R. Wheeler, doctor for the Mbeya Christian Hospital in Tanzania, Africa, was scheduled to speak on the program but was unable to leave because there was no one to replace him at the hospital there. "One of the main things on our hearts and minds at the beginning of the conference was to obtain a replacement for Dr. Wheeler in Tanzania," said Farrar.

One week following the conference, Dr. Damon Martin of Ola, Arkansas called Dr. Farrar and committed himself to the work in Tanzania. Due to the communication of information at the conference, a medical doctor who attended was enlisted for foreign mission work. In addition, Robert Clark, a senior at the University of Arkansas Medical School in Little Rock, speaking at the conference, expressed an interest in mission work, but did not know how or where to begin his search for a field in which to serve. He was able to talk personally with four doctors and a nurse who had recently returned from overseas, mission hospitals of the churches of Christ.

Seeing the great need for the dissemination of information among medical doctors, and the positive results produced, Farrar and Hacker are working to set up regional meetings throughout the United States. "The Harding College Mission/Prepare and Medicine and Missions programs have a standing offer to any church located in the vicinity of a university or college with a medical school to go and talk with their students about opportunities for 'Christian physicians,'" said Farrar.

Farrar pointed out that the medical part of missionary work is a complement to the main objective—to reach all the world with the gospel of Christ. Underscoring Jesus' exemplary life of compassion, Farrar said: "The physical ills are just a part of the complications that arise in preaching. We must treat the ills to be able to preach effectively. Jesus did not disappoint crowds who gathered around him for physical relief, and we can't either if we have the compassion he had."

At his Searcy office Dr. Farrar's well-used Bible is always at hand.

Medicine and Missions Conference Quotes

"The people in Africa are made in the image of God like we are. We can neither preach nor heal like Jesus, but we must show our concern." —Dr. Henry C. Farrar, M.D., F.A.C.S.

"Christian doctors should practice making their office a mission—let them know you are a child of God." —Dr. C. G. Yarbrough, Arlington, Tex.

"In mission work, decide what your goals are going to be and then work to accomplish them. Remember, evangelism is a primary goal. This work can be enhanced by having a devotional at the hospital at the beginning of each day." —Dr. Kenneth Yearwood, former medical missionary with the Christian Mobile Clinic, Kumba, Cameroons.

"Doctors, like any other mission worker, should be fully informed of the field of labor they are entering to help ease the cultural shock for their families." —Robert Clark, a senior at the University of Ark. Med. School.

"We want to go to the Cameroons as we feel we can contribute to the good of the people both physically and spiritually. If we go now, we feel we will be able to save some souls that would not be saved otherwise." —Dr. William Robinson, recent graduate of U. of A. Med. School going to Cameroons in July.

"There is a great need for a 'clearing house' to communicate the necessary information to churches and medical students as to where to go and how to go—to prepare for all phases of the Lord's work." —Dr. Jerry Mays, three years service in Africa as medical missionary; presently practicing in Lake Jackson, Tex.

"Mission work is an adventure for Christ—to witness for Christ, to serve humanity, to heal bodies and to save souls." —Luther Hodge, pharmacist, Clarksville, Ark.

"A nurse not only gives injections, dispenses pills, and applies dressings, but she is a counsellor of a myriad of problems, especially in persuading the patients to take the medicine prescribed . . . Teaching Bible classes was the most rewarding part of my work. . . A single girl's social life suffers while on the mission field, but the opportunity of teaching a Bible class is so rewarding that it more than compensates for the loss." —R.N. Charley Bridges, served with Mobile Clinic in Cameroons, now serving at Coronary Care Unit, U. of A. Hosp., Little Rock.

"Others have been thinking and doing. It is time that we begin to think and to do. As clearly as baptism is essential to salvation, so is man's compassion to man. The love ethic is true if it is a love after the nature of God."

—Dr. Joe Hacker, chairman of Bible Dept., Harding.

"I cannot do some things as well as a specialist in a particular field, but I can do some things. And whether or not I am a preacher or teacher, I can tell others how I became a Christian. I can prepare to teach." —Ray Jouett, Neurosurgeon, Little Rock.

"A doctor is a person people look to for help. We must take advantage of this attitude. Christ healed as he taught. Although we do not possess miraculous powers, we must heal and teach by our abilities." —Dr. Joseph Ross, teacher at the University of Indiana Med. School, Indianapolis.

"When I heard what you preached, it went in one ear and out the other, but when I saw what you did, I was interested." —George S. Benson, quoting a Chinese convert to Christianity.

"Paul is a great example of a missionary. Chosen in 36 A.D., he never began his work among the people until nine years later, until he was prepared to do so. God did not get in a hurry." —Benson, Harding President Emeritus

"Whether doctor, nurse, or teacher—all must study their Bible every day to keep involved with the Lord; to keep from being secularized and egotized." —Dr. Jack Wood Sears, chairman of Biology Dept., Harding.

NASA Research Grant Awarded

A $45,000 increase in the 1969 contract of Harding College's research on physical fitness for astronauts has been awarded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The project, entitled "An Evaluation of the Exer-Genie Exercises and the Collins Pedal-Mode Ergometer for Developing Physical Fitness" was started April 30, 1969. It followed a two-year project in which the college's research program has been testing various methods of achieving and maintaining fitness for prolonged space flight.

Research director Dr. Harry Olree said NASA officials have commended the college on its work in helping show the need for fitness programs during flights. Recommendations have been made on the results of completed programs, dealing with type of exercise, workload, and frequency and length of workout needed to achieve and maintain a good level of fitness.

The program tests the Exer-Genie, an exerciser used in recent Apollo flights, and a pedal ergometer.

The Exer-Genie is a commercial exercising unit consisting of a metal bar and a combination of ropes and straps and is chiefly used to build strength.

The project will be completed May 1, 1971.

Philanthropist Overcomes Adversity to Succeed

By Gene Ellmore

With a $250 loan on his car, Wallace E. Johnson, vice-chairman of Holiday Inns, Inc., began one of the most extraordinary success stories in the annals of American business.

Endowed with the qualities of thrift and industry, the one-time high school dropout returned to school, graduated, and grew to become one of the nation's leading home builders. From this point Johnson launched a business empire in which he now owns wholly or is a major stockholder in 78 corporations. With his private plane or from one of his four home telephones or WATS line, Johnson stays in contact with all of his business associates.

In 1968 Johnson was presented the Horatio Alger Award for overcoming humble beginnings and achieving success in the American free enterprise system through hard work, initiative, thrift and integrity.

Speaking before 325 graduating seniors at commencement exercises June 4, he challenged them to "know what you want in life," and related his life's goals.

He built his first house when he was 18, finishing $400 in the hole. Repayment of the debt was sometimes in the amount of 50c per week, but he had a goal.

During his first year as a contractor, he built 181 houses. The next year he set his goal for a house a day and achieved that goal. The following year he set a goal of 3,000 houses.

In 1953 he joined forces with Kemmons Wilson to found Holiday Inns of America, Inc. and they built it into the largest motel-hotel chain in the world, presently numbering 1,055 in 48 states, Canada, the Caribbean and Europe.

"Today," said Johnson, "we have a grand opening every two and a half days and finish a new room every 20 minutes. We have 170,000 rooms open — with an open Bible in every room."

But his business accomplishments are only a part of the story. Johnson is a distinguished American whose life long constructive support of American ideals and institutions is evidenced by his outstanding business accomplishments and dynamic community leadership.

An honorary Doctor of Laws degree was conferred on him by Gordon College, Wenham, Mass., June 22, 1968 for his significant contributions to American life. He is a man of deep religious convictions with a great interest in American heritage.

While on the Harding campus, President Ganus interviewed Johnson to record the history of his business career, principally the Holiday Inn story, and the key principles which motivated him. Harding College, which has a strong American Studies program hailed by educators over the nation as one of the best in existence, will use the information in some of its American Studies classes.

Johnson was born October 5, 1901 at Edinburg, Miss., to hard-working God-fearing parents. Since early childhood he has known the value of using Christian principles in his daily business activities. He feels that God has helped him in life and he, in turn, wants to help others. Today, Johnson is nationally known as a humanitarian and philanthropist. He has helped many young people obtain an education, has helped churches and hospitals and has supported many religious, human welfare and civic endeavors.

He received the Churchman of the Year award in 1965 from Religious Heritage of America, Inc. for his outstanding contributions to mankind. The following year he was elected chairman of the Executive Committee of RHA, a position he still holds.

In 1967 he was presented a special citation by the sponsors of National Bible Week for his service to God and country. He served in 1968 as national chairman of National Bible Week.

During this year's commencement exercises, Dr. Ganus, with approval of the Board of Trustees, conferred on him an honorary Doctor of Laws degree for "his dedicated life of service to his fellowman."

Johnson's life can be summed up in a statement he once made to an interviewer. When asked why he was still so active in business and human affairs, he replied, "While I am alive I am trying to do as much good for my fellow man as I can."

Eight Alumni Earn Medical Degrees

Eight former students received doctor of medicine degrees from medical schools in Tennessee and Arkansas in June commencement activities.

Receiving degrees from the University of Tennessee College of Medicine in Knoxville were Wyatt Robert Algee, Jr. (BS'66), Jimmy W. Kee (BS'66), and Kenneth Timothy North (BS'66).

At the University of Arkansas College of Medicine in Little Rock, degrees were awarded to Thomas Otis Blucker (BS'66), Robert Thomas Clark (BS'66), Otis H. Edge (BS'66), George Alvin Hobby (BS'66), Lovard M. Peacock (BS'65), and James H. Golleher.

Also, Alice Hendrix Straughn, a 1969 graduate of Harding, received the Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree from the University of Arkansas, Little Rock, and Linda Kaye Forrest (BS'68) received the master of science degree in biometry from the University of Arkansas in Little Rock.

CAMPUS GUIDE

ALUMNI CORNER

QUESTIONS YOU HAVE ASKED

BY BUFORD TUCKER, EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Thanks to all who have taken time to write telling us you have moved, have a new job, have gotten married or have a new baby; to ask for information about a classmate, or to make some suggestion. Your communications give us needed information which helps us to serve you more effectively.

1. Why am I considered an alumnus? This is a logical question on the part of some. No one, I suppose, questions being an alumnus if he is a graduate of the institution. Some of the non-graduates do raise the question. Many colleges and universities consider a registered student an alumnus when he completes one credit hour of work. Others consider a student to be an alumnus when he has completed one semester of study. If one is not a graduate, but has attended one or two semesters, or has only a few hours at Harding and is in sympathy with her-ideals and objectives, that person is considered an alumnus.

In the case of some, one could logically be considered an alumnus of two or three institutions. One might think this to be undesirable and if so, then he should make a choice based on values he considers to be important, and support that college.

Harding has many junior college transfers and some of these feel a loyalty to the junior college. This feeling is understandable, but does this preclude allegiance to the college that confers your degree? Loyalty to both is not in conflict. When it comes to getting a job, it is the college giving the degree that counts. If one goes on for graduate work, the college that granted the degree is the important factor. This is the thinking of employers, too. It would seem fair to say that the college conferring your degree should be first in your loyalty and support.

2. Why do you need information about me? Just recently Dean Joseph Pryor made an extensive study of the college for the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He called us for information but much that he wanted was not available.

Currently, we have 2500 names in our "inactive" file; most of them are alumni who have moved and failed to notify us. We try every way we know to locate these people but to no avail in most cases.

The college wants to keep in touch with alumni so you can receive the college bulletin and keep informed of what is happening. We would appreciate knowing when you get married, the names of your children, where you work, your job promotion, advanced degrees earned, address of your parents, and news items. Such information keeps your friends informed of your activities and helps to make an interesting Bulletin.

Only about 75 per cent of our alumni had a chance to vote this year for Association officers because we did not have addresses for the others. We get telephone calls and letters every day asking about alumni. We like to have current information and be able to give meaningful service.

When we send out letters asking for certain information, usually about 15 per cent respond. A second request may bring another 10 per cent. Many of your records are lacking on personal data. Your response to our present effort will be appreciated and the information will be handled with discretion.

3. Why can't Harding be self-supporting? Generally speaking, the only self-supporting schools are privately-owned trade, technical, and business schools. Very few, if any, church related colleges have ever been self-supporting, yet they have played a vital role in our educational process. Most of them receive funds from the religious group with which they are identified. With Harding and colleges of like relationship, support from churches is not the practice. Funds come from individuals and business.

At Harding a student pays about sixty percent of his educational cost. Briefly that means for each enrolled student the college must raise an additional $400 to pay his training costs. After all tuition, board, fees and auxiliary earnings have been added, the college still must raise more than $300,000 per year to break even. This amount leaves nothing for new facilities or endowment. Last year the college provided about one-third of the students with part-time work or financial assistance in some form. This is one reason for the annual deficit.

For the college to pay its own way would mean the tuition charge would be so high that very few students could afford the cost. Such a practice would be self-destructive. Harding has proven her worth and we believe there will be a sufficient number of alumni and friends who are willing to give to see that those young people who want a Christian education of top quality will be able to get it.

4. Why is it necessary to send out repeated requests for gifts? The simple answer is to encourage more to contribute. Most everyone will receive an appeal for money for some cause about every week. We tend to become immune to giving, and this is understandable. It becomes a matter of "selective giving" with most of us, if in fact we give at all.

Here are some of the reasons for our appeals: To help alumni to realize that an investment in Christian education can have a lasting impact for good. Our society shows ample evidence that we need Christian-oriented education. We are convinced the Christian college comes nearer being the kind of an educational situation that is better than any other in our present society. It helps to safeguard moral, civil and spiritual values. As alumni you are familiar with the recognized excellence of this college. No better investment could be made than to see that young citizens have an opportunity to attend college under faithful and competent instructors, to associate with other fine young people, and at costs that are reasonable.

Private education historically has been considered a cornerstone in our educational system. After a fair and candid evaluation of education, one will see that an investment in Harding is not only wise, but a sound investment.

A key thought here is involvement. Be a participant in Harding affairs, not just a spectator. Help to make Harding College what you think it should be.

Dr. Dale Larsen accepts award from alumni president Dr. Jack Wood Sears.

Bison Gridders Open Fall Drills September 1

By Stan Green

Filling the vacancies created by the departure of seven graduating seniors will be the major task facing Harding coach John Prock when 1970 football drills get underway September 1.

Foremost on the list of priorities will be the settling of the man-under spot. Top candidates include letterman Tommy Lewey, a senior from Tusculumbia, Ala., McGhee sophomore Terry Welch and transfer Buddy Malone of Fort Payne, Ala. Lewey was running ahead during spring drills.

The Bisons' pro-style offense came into its own last year to post a 7-2-1 mark behind All-AIC Jerry Copeland's passing and field generalship. This year's prospects will likely hinge on the quarterback position.

Bull-like fullback Charles Caffey returns to key the rushing game. A 6-1, 220-pounder, Caffey stepped off 576 yards for a 4.2 average per carry last year after two years at linebacker. "He'll be much better with a year of experience," said Prock. "He's picking his holes better and knows what to do with a little daylight."

The Bisons have Ronnie Peacock, the AIC's leading pass receiver returning. The tough 175-pounder grabbed 52 aerials for 532 yards in '69. Tight end running mate John Manning, recovering from a knee operation, caught 32 for 401.

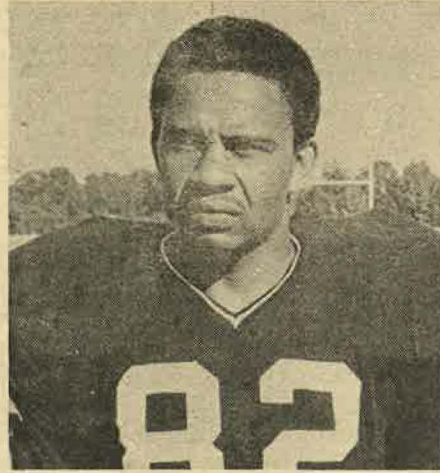

Charles Caffey

Flanker Harry Starnes rates as one of the AIC's top receivers and is an all-the-way running threat. Last year the McGhee junior caught 28 for 354 yards and carried a 4.4 rushing average.

Twenty-six lettermen return, including the entire offensive line, keyed by All-AIC guard Jerry Cook. A 6-2, 220 pound junior, Cook will have to bounce back from a knee injury suffered during spring drills. His running mate is sophomore Rick Brown, a 180-pounder with speed and toughness. Steady Vance Cox is back at center.

Tackle Mike Watson, who is 6-0 and 245 pounds, was named to the All-AIC team selected by the Arkansas Gazette and rates as one of the top blockers in the AIC. His counterpart, sophomore Edd Eason (6-4, 210) earned his spurs as a freshman starter and is as rugged as they come.

A major dilemma facing the Bisons is finding replacements in the defensive line, where four top men graduated — All-American tackle Jim Duncan, All-AIC defensive end Curtis Booker, middle guard Bill Ivey and linebacker Randy Delaet. Co-captain Eugene Johnson, a rock-ribbed senior, will doubtless carry heavy responsibility from his defensive end position. A 190 pounder, he's All-Conference caliber.

David Thompson has been shifted to defensive tackle and Dale Payne appears set at middle guard. Mike Payne returns at tackle and sophomore John Greer will step into Booker's shoes at end.

Dean Kilmer heads up the linebacker corps but the head-knocking of Delaet will be hard to replace. Ken Merritt, a hitter in his own right, will get first call.

Three starting secondary men return in seniors David Treadwell and Mike Conley, and junior Terry Brumley. Emerson Brubaker and Gary Gregg will contest for the fourth spot.

Depth appears to be a serious problem but Prock and his staff are hopeful that incoming freshmen recruits will be able to take hold.

Duncan, Ratliff Compete In NAIA

Bison shotputter Jim Duncan won fourth place in the NAIA Track and Field Meet in Billings, Mont., in early June.

The AIC champion threw the 16-pound ball 56-1/4, below his season's best of 60-1. Emporia State's Al Feuerbach won the event with 61-4.

Harding's entry in the mile, sophomore John Ratliff, clocked a 4:30 in his preliminary heat and failed to make the cut for the finals.

National Championship, AIC Titles Signal Spring Sports Development

A national bowling championship and a third consecutive conference tennis title marked 1970 as the high point of Harding spring sports.

With senior Charles Burt winning his second national NAIA singles title, Bison keglers brought home Harding's first national championship (see May Bulletin). Coach Ed Burt's team recorded a 16,946 total pinfall and placed four bowlers, Charles Webb of Carrollton, Mo., Gary Parsons and Mark Poteat of Suitland, Md., and Burt of Batesville, in the top ten in individual competition.

Bison netters made a clean sweep of AIC tennis honors as junior Freddie Marsh of Benton successfully defended his singles title. Marsh defeated teammate Dean Bawcom of Tyler, Tex., in an all-Harding final 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Coach Bob Knight's squad won every division title in the conference, compiling a perfect 29 point total.

Division winners were Marsh (I), Bawcom (II), Ray Kelly of Glencoe, Ala. (III), Lynn Dixon of Newport (IV), and Glen Blue of Searcy (V).

On the baseball scene freshman pitcher Marv Francisco was named to the NAIA All-American honorable mention team as Harding finished 15-11 for the year. A native of Pleasant Valley, Iowa, the 5-9, 160 pound hurler closed with a 5-1 record and a nifty 1.92 earned run average.

Earlier he had been named to the NAIA District 17 and AIC All-Star teams.

Roy Steele, senior shortstop from Columbia, Tenn., led all hitters with a .328 average. Steele and catcher Denny Dotson of Columbus, Ohio., earned second team honors on the NAIA District 17 team.

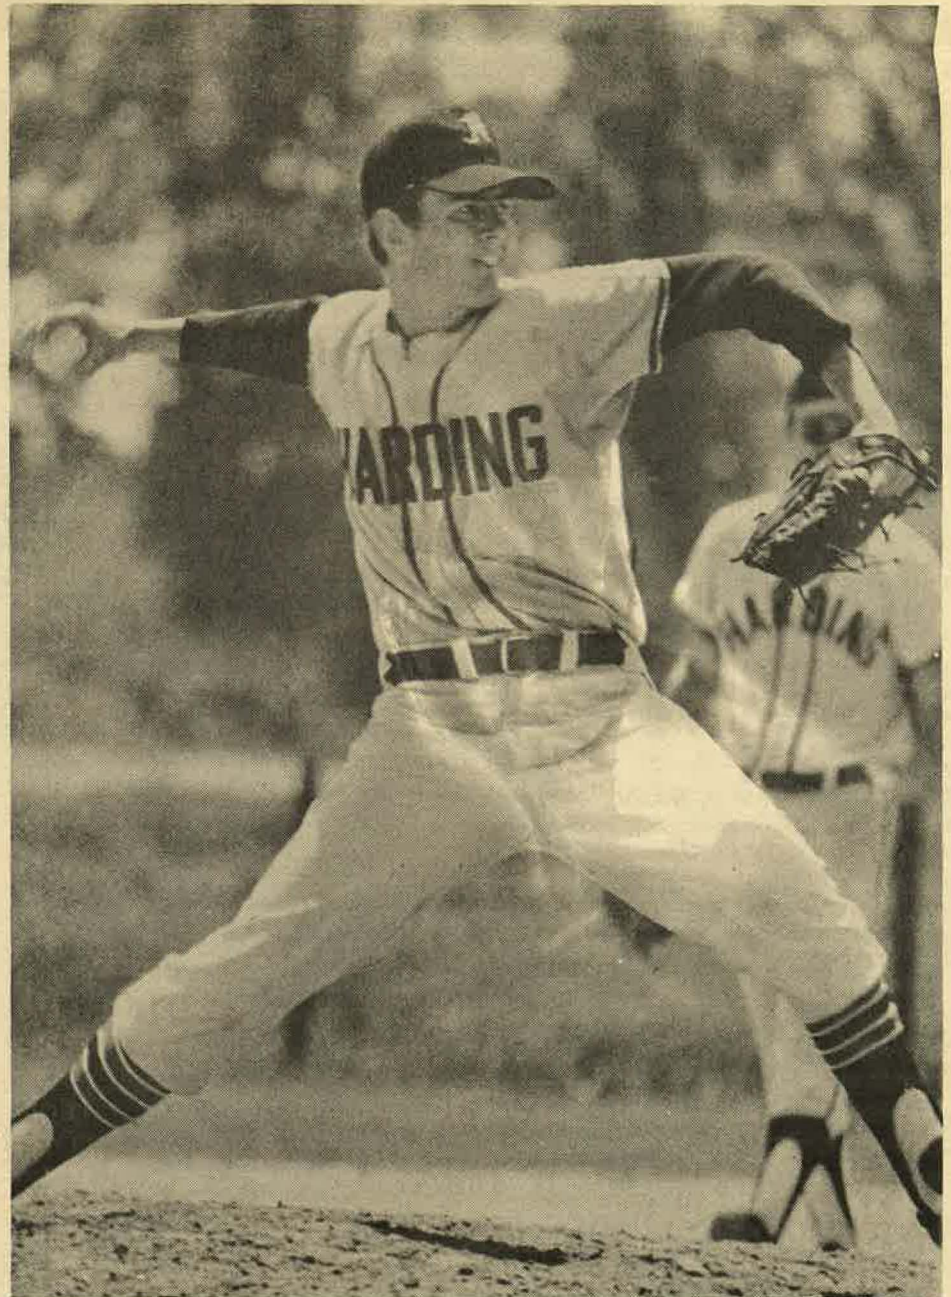

Coach Norman Merritt's golfers finished fifth in the conference tournament and recorded the best team score in school history (651). Memphis junior Jim Henderson was low man for the Bisons with an 80-81 — 161 score.

Shotputter Jim Duncan of Earle, and miler John Ratliff of York, Neb., recorded double victories to boost Coach Ted Lloyd's tracksters to a fifth place finish in the conference meet. Duncan set records in the shot (57-5 3/4) and discus (159-11) and Ratliff won the mile and two-mile in 4:17.0 and 9:32.2.

Senior David Byrd of Menifee ran a career best of 48.5 to grab third in the 440 yard dash and John Buck was fourth in the shotput and discus.

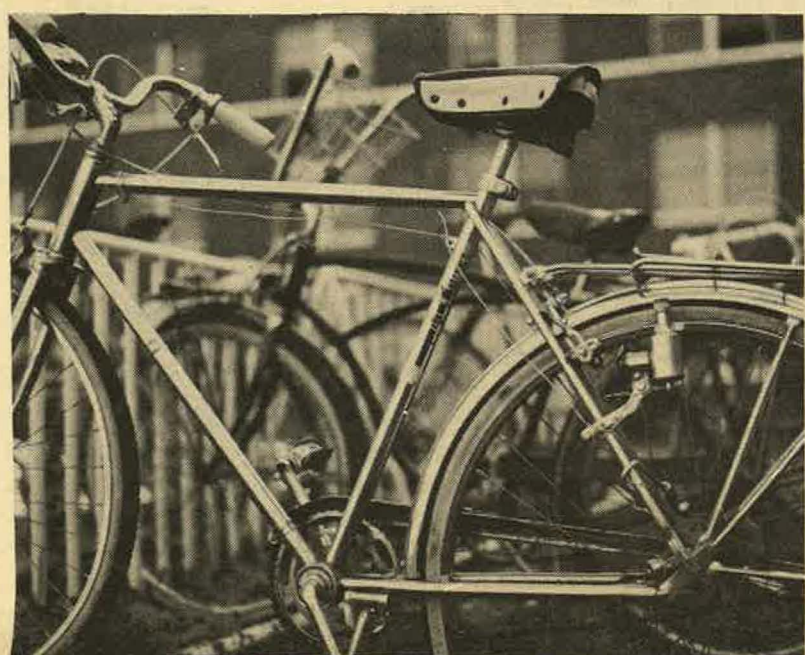

Other point getters were Larry Rodenbeck of Solsberry, Ind., fifth place in the triple jump (42-5), and Charles Kiser of Lawton, Okla., fifth in the 120 yard hurdles (15-0). The mile relay foursome of Kiser, Tim Geary of Merced, Calif., Byrd and Rick Harris of Searcy, placed fifth in the mile relay with a fine 3:25.8.

On the year, the Bisons won two conference championships, finished second in cross country and recorded an all-time best football mark of 7-2-1. The performances added up to a third place finish in the AIC All-Sports race.

NAIA All-American — Bison freshman Marv Francisco has been named to the 1970 All-American honorable mention baseball team by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. The Pleasant Valley, Iowa hurler compiled a 5-1 record with a 1.92 earned run average in 51 1/3 innings of pitching.
