Homecoming Activities Planned

An entirely new program has been planned by Harding's Alumni Association for the 1971 Homecoming weekend, Oct. 22-23.

The gala weekend of activities will include several new attractions for visiting alumni, according to the announcement made by Dr. Jack Wood Sears, Alumni Association president.

The new schedule of activities will begin Friday, Oct. 22, with a special chapel program in the college's main auditorium. That afternoon a concert by the Harding Band will entertain visiting alumni. Following the concert the coronation of the Homecoming Queen will present the Harding coed chosen by the student body to reign over the 1971 Homecoming activities.

Friday evening students will motorcade to Bee Rock at Camp Wylde-wood for the traditional homecoming chili supper, bon fire and pep rally. Visitors may attend the first Black and Gold Alumni Banquet. The banquet is a new feature of the activities and has been planned as a central location where all alumni may meet and renew friendships. The cost of the banquet is $3.50 per person.

Congressman E. LaMar Baker will be the guest speaker at the banquet. The third district Tennessee representative is a 1942 alumnus.

Also included on Friday's agenda are two student productions. The Student Association will sponsor a Variety Show and the speech and music departments will produce the homecoming musical, "Fiddler on the Roof." Both presentations are new attractions for the weekend celebration.

The day's activities will conclude with a devotional around the lily pool conducted by Dr. Neale Pryor, associate professor of Bible.

Saturday's activities will begin with a breakfast for alumni planned by social clubs on the Harding campus. Homecoming chapel ceremonies will honor the class of 1946 and present awards to outstanding alumni. Following the chapel program alumni may attend luncheons planned by the various classes.

At 2 p.m. Harding's 1971 Bison football team will be pitted against the Tigers of Ouachita Baptist University in the traditional gridiron clash. New stadium seats at Alumni Field have been erected on the south side of the field. Eighteen hundred new seats will be available, with 990 of these located between the 40-yard lines. The new alumni seats will extend from the 25 yard line on the west end to the 40 yard line on the east end.

General admission prices for the football game will be $2 for adults, $1 for students. Reserve seat prices will be $3.

A final presentation of the musical will conclude Saturday's activities. Cost of admission to both performances of the musical will be $2.00.

Individuals planning to attend all three events (banquet, musical and football game) may purchase tickets at the package price of $7.50, $6.50 or $5.75.

Advance information or reservations may be obtained by writing Dr. Jack Wood Sears, president, or Buford Tucker, executive secretary, Harding College Alumni Association, Searcy, Arkansas 72143.

'Faith in Conflict' Announced As 1971 Lectureship Theme

"Faith in Conflict" has been selected as the theme for the 1971 Harding College lectureship, according to Dr. Neale Pryor, associate professor of Bible and coordinator of the lectureship.

The 48th annual lectureship has been scheduled for November 22-25. The four-day program will be attended by an estimated 3,000 visitors. Dr. Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible department indicated 40 guest teachers and lecturers will present the daily classes and forums.

In announcing the theme for this year's program Pryor noted that the topic was chosen by the lectureship committee because of the need to meet the issues that are facing the Church and undermining the faith of many.

"Faith has always had its enemies. It has been in conflict with the forces of Satan since the beginning of time and this present age is no exception," Pryor added.

"It is the firm conviction of those who would follow Christ that the Christian faith gives the answers to the problems of life and that it will ultimately be triumphant. We hope that this fact will be clearly evident in the 1971 Thanksgiving lectures."

Ten well-known ministers and educators will deliver theme lectures during the lectureship. C. E. McGaughey of Oklahoma City and Jim Bill McInteer, minister of the West End congregation in Nashville, will open the 1971 program. McGaughey will discuss "Faith in Conflict" and McInteer will present the lecture "Growing in Faith."

"Justification by Faith" will be the topic for discussion by George Tipps, minister of the Midtown congregation in Fort Worth. Tom Holland, a teacher at Freed-Hardeman College, will present a theme lecture entitled "Security in the Faith," and Batsell Barrett Baxter of the Herald of Truth series will consider the topic "Restoration of the Faith."

Five theme lectures are planned for the final day of the program. Delmar Owens, minister in Norman, Okla., will speak on the subject "Where Are The Nine?" Harding's president, Clifton L. Ganus, will present the lecture "Stewardship in Action" and Rubel Shelly, minister for the Getwell

Dallas Evangelist Opens Seminar Series

David Arnold, minister of the Sunset Church of Christ in Dallas, will open the 1971-72 Bible seminar series October 4-6, according to Dr. W. Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible department.

The theme of the 1971-72 series is "Meeting Man's Needs." Arnold's opening seminar will be entitled "Meeting Man's Needs in a Secular Society." The seminars include two afternoon sessions with Bible majors and devotionals during the daily chapel period.

The second speaker will be Doug Kostowski, minister of the Highland Church of Christ in Detroit. His seminar will center around the theme "Meeting Man's Needs in an Industrial City." He will speak January 17-19.

The final two seminars will be conducted by Memphis ministers. Nokomis Yeldell of the Vance Avenue Church of Christ will conduct the February 21-23 seminar on the topic "Meeting the Needs of Men of Every Race." James Woodroof of the Whitehaven Church of Christ will close the series April 10-12 by discussing the subject "Meeting the Needs of Men of Every Nation."

Summer Commencement Hears ACC Chief Executive

The largest summer commencement in the history of Harding was held August 13 with 100 candidates receiving degrees.

The commencement address was delivered by Dr. John C. Stevens, president of Abilene Christian College.

Dr. John C. Stevens

Dr. Clifton L. Ganus, Harding's president, conferred the degrees upon the graduating seniors. Eight received the Master of Arts in Teaching degree, 17 the Bachelor of Science degree and 75 the Bachelor of Arts degree.

The record summer graduation brought the number of Harding graduates for 1971 to a record 435. The previous record for a single graduating class was 412, which was attained by the 1970 class.

In his commencement address Dr. Stevens challenged the students to become the solutions to the spirit of despair that has gripped the world. He encouraged the seniors to become involved in Christian education, to help build a stronger nation, to help solve the world's problems and to reach out for greater goals in the future.

Dr. Stevens joined the faculty of ACC in 1948. He has served as Dean of Men, Dean of Students, and Assistant President and became president of the institution in September, 1969.

Harding Expands Deferred Gifts Program

Harding's Development Office will intensify its solicitation program in the area of deferred gifts, according to a joint announcement made last month by Billy Ray Cox, vice president, and James Daniel, director of deferred giving.

Recent modifications in national tax regulations have added to the unique opportunities afforded donors by a variety of deferred giving plans. As the program was outlined, Harding will intensify its program to attract basically six types of deferred gifts; a remainder interest in real property, wills, unitrusts, annuity trusts, gift annuities and excessive life insurance.

All six types of deferred gifts are bonafide methods of reducing income and estate taxes, while at the same time making significant contributions to the program of Christian education.

"There is much to be gained through carefully planning one's contributions. Usually, individuals are able to make much larger gifts than they ever thought possible and at much less the cost," Daniel pointed out.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 allows an individual to deed a remainder interest of his residence or farm to a charitable institution and still retain the right to use the property for the remainder of his life.

Charitable bequests allow the donor to leave property directly to the institution, or leave it for the use of another individual with the remainder of property later going to the institution.

Daniel also noted that the unitrust guarantees the donor an income for life based on a stated percentage of the fair market value of the assets invested. The annuity trust also guarantees the donor a fixed income for life.

The gift annuity places the entire assets of the institution behind the donor's guarantee of life income. Cox stated that this type of charitable gift is highly recommended and favored by the law.

"By making a gift of excessive life insurance, the donor can obtain an immediate income tax deduction and also keep the life insurance out of the estate," Daniel explained.

According to Cox, the purpose of estate planning is to secure for the property owner maximum benefits from the possessions and use of his property. Estate planning enables the donor to dispose of the property, if he desires, with a minimum of shrinkage from taxation and legal expense.

"Historically, the greatest source of large gifts to colleges and universities has been of the deferred nature. The federal government offers great incentive for individual deferred giving, and the Tax Reform Act of 1969 continues the low cost of deferred gifts," Cox noted.

"I believe that good stewardship usually involves the planning of the final disposal of one's estate. It can easily be proved that the application of minimal estate planning procedures can result in enormous savings."

Further information about estate planning may be obtained by writing Director of Deferred Giving, Harding College, Searcy, Arkansas 72143.

Cast Selected for Homecoming Production

Teresa Rushton and Rick Moore run through their lines during rehearsals for the student production of "Fiddler on the Roof." The two seniors will head the cast of 40 performers in the Homecoming musical to be presented Oct. 22 and 23.

Seniors Rick Moore and Teresa Rushton have been selected to head a cast of 40 in Harding's student production of John Stein's "Fiddler on the Roof."

The two-act play will be presented October 22-23 during Harding's 1971 Homecoming activities. The homecoming musical is one of several new programs being included in the weekend's activities.

"Fiddler on the Roof," the longest running musical on Broadway, is the nostalgic story of Jewish community life in a tiny Russian village just prior to the abortive revolution of 1905.

Moore, a social work major from Hartford, Mich., will portray the role of Tevya, an elderly Jewish patriarch whose encounters with his wife, his five daughters and members of the tiny community produce some comical situations.

Miss Rushton, a speech major from Searcy, will play the role of the vociferous Golde, Tevya's wife.

The musical will be directed by Bob West, an instructor in speech. Clifton L. Ganus III, assistant professor of music, will serve as musical director and Morris Ellis, instructor of speech will serve as technical director and costume designer.

Campaign Workers Return from Europe

Thirty-five campaign workers from Harding College returned August 6 from an eight-week evangelistic effort in Germany, Holland and Italy. The campaigns are a part of Harding's MISSION/PREPARE program.

Seventeen members of the group under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Butterfield worked in campaigns in four cities in Holland. Harding graduates Mr. and Mrs. Russ Burcham directed 17 members in work in Germany and Italy. Dr. W. Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible department at Harding, coordinated the eight-week endeavor.

The college students employed the same techniques used in the 1970 summer campaigns. They went door-to-door extending personal invitations to the nightly services. They also sang each night before the regularly scheduled services.

The Holland group distributed 170,000 pieces of literature, made personal calls on 25,000 homes, conducted 55 direct Bible studies and arranged 50

Bible correspondence courses. Follow-up work was done by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Boyd and former missionaries Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bates.

The German and Italian workers made personal calls on 10,000 homes, distributed pieces of literature and sang in hospitals, orphans' homes, and homes for the aged.

There were four baptisms in campaigns in Holland and 13 baptisms in the campaign in Cologne, Germany. Hacker noted that the attendance at the various evangelistic meetings was the largest sustained attendance at campaigns of this type in these localities.

Missionaries and European nationals had words of praise for the work done by the college students. "Their work has produced an atmosphere here that we have tried to produce for years. They have opened doors we could not open and our work will be blessed for years to come," commented Ken Beard.

Cor van Bilderbeek added, "The campaign was a great success. As a Dutchman, I was in opposition to young Americans because of what I had observed in tourists and the hippie young people. I can say now that the work of these young people was one of the finest things that has happened to the Church here."

"These young people have attracted the attention of the Germans in our community to the work we are attempting to do. This campaign method of evangelism has opened the door of receptivity in Cologne. We have worked years using other methods unsuccessfully," missionary Jack Nadeau pointed out.

Hacker explained that the work of these students also was a source of encouragement to missionaries and their families. "These college students had a great influence on the young people in the various congregations where campaigns were held," he added.

The campaign workers have already been invited to work next summer in campaigns in Holland, Germany, Italy and England.

Book Review . . .

Dew Breakers, by John Dow Merritt, for forty years a missionary in Zambia, Africa is a unique, unforgettable book. In a simple, homely style that touches the heart and stimulates the imagination the author recounts in story after story his experiences among the African people. Encamped in the big game country with the elephants splashing the water in the pool and the baboons chattering night-long in the trees, facing a charging lion only a few feet away and so frozen with terror he could hardly pull the trigger, healing natives already at the point of death, attending a companion mortally wounded with a spear thrust through his body — the stories are filled with excitement, pathos, and tragedy, but also with a delightfully subtle humor and the deep joy of service. The little chapter, "African Humor," is a gem in itself, a classic of narration in the manner of Rudyard Kipling.

The wealth of first-hand information about the customs, traditions, superstitions, and beliefs of primitive peoples makes the book a treasury for the sociologist and psychologist. The quiet, enduring faith in the face, at times, of almost insurmountable hardships and difficulties makes the book an inspiration to the dedicated Christian, and hopefully an answer to the young who have not yet found the purpose of life.

Those who plan to be missionaries, abroad or at home, and those who would aid others to find an abiding faith and steadfast purpose will discover in this book a deep wisdom wrought from personal experience. It is a treasure all should possess.

congregation in Memphis, will discuss the subject "Young Preachers Face Today's Issues."

W. B. West, dean of the Harding Graduate School of Religion, will speak at the annual Preacher-Elder dinner. His topic will be "Challenges Facing Church Leaders."

The lectureship will conclude with a presentation "Faith is the Victory" by Jimmy Allen, assistant professor of Bible at Harding.

The Student Association's traditional watermelon party climaxed the first week of the fall semester. The annual event is the first all-school function of each new year. The students eagerly devoured the juicy red fruit, and some even shared their piece with a friend.

Thirteen Teachers Receive Promotions At Tahkodah Meeting

Thirteen faculty promotions were announced by President Clifton L. Ganus, Jr., at the annual pre-school faculty conference Aug. 20 at Camp Tahkodah.

Dr. Don England of the physical science department and Dr. W. Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible Department, were promoted from the rank of associate professor to professor.

Nine New Teachers Added To Faculty; Two Return from Doctoral Study Leave

Nine new teachers and two returning from leaves of absence have joined the Harding faculty for the 1971-72 school year.

The business and speech departments each will have two new teachers and the departments of art, Bible, home economics, mathematics and psychology will each have one new member.

Paul Pitt, a 1967 Harding graduate, has joined the faculty as an instructor in art. He taught art for three years at the Harding Academy in Memphis and has completed the M.A. degree in art from the University of Tulsa.

New members in the department of business and economics are Gary Bartholomew and Don Diffine. A 1969 Harding graduate, Bartholomew holds the M.S. degree in business administration from the University of Denver. In addition to his teaching duties, he will serve as acting director of the Placement Office.

Diffine, assistant professor of economics, holds a baccalaureate degree from California State College at Long Beach and the Master's degree in economics from St. Mary's University in San Antonio. He recently was discharged from the Air Force where he achieved the rank of captain and served as a squadron commander in the military school at Lackland Air Force Base.

Beth Wilson, instructor in home economics, received the Master's degree from the University of Alabama. She served two and a half years as dietitian at the University of Virginia Medical School Hospital. Mrs. Wilson is the wife of Dr. Edmond Wilson, assistant professor of chemistry at Harding.

New instructors in speech are Morris Ellis and Sammy J. Parker. Ellis received his B.A. degree from Harding in 1967 and is a candidate for the M.A. in drama from Stephen F. Austin State College. Parker holds both the B.S. and M.S. degrees in communications from Murray State University.

Dr. Walter L. Porter is the new addition to the faculty of the department of psychology and sociology. He holds the Ph.D. in clinical psychology from George Peabody College and has served as a clinical psychologist for the Mailman Center for Child Development of the University of Miami in Florida. He formerly taught at Southeast Missouri State College.

Two new members of the 1971-72 faculty have previously been announced in the BULLETIN. Dr. Steve Smith, assistant professor of mathematics, joined the faculty for his summer sessions. Gottfried Riechel, visiting professor of missions, assumed his teaching duties the beginning of the fall semester.

Gary Elliott and Charles Pittman, members of the English department, have returned to the faculty this fall. Both were on leaves of absence doing doctoral study in English. Elliott studied at Kansas State University and Pittman at the University of Tennessee.

Workshop Attendance Increases

Harding College's ninth annual Christian Workers' Workshop was attended by approximately 1000 preachers, elders, teachers and teenagers from 20 states. The four-day program concluded July 8.

Workshop coordinator Allan Isom pointed out that the 1971 attendance was a considerable increase. "The date of the workshop was changed from August to the first week in July to provide a greater opportunity for those wanting to attend the summer program," Isom added. "The response was particularly encouraging."

The workshop program included a teachers' workshop, a leadership forum and a youth forum. Participants in the workshop described the program as "thought provoking," "inspirational" and "practical and informative."

The presentations on family living by keynote speaker Dr. Thomas Cunningham of Stillwater, Okla., and Ron Brotherton, assistant professor of psychology and sociology at Harding, received praise from the visiting church leaders and teachers.

Workshop participants completed evaluation forms at the conclusion of the session. "We hope to incorporate these suggestions into our program. Plans are already being made to produce an interesting and challenging program in 1972," commented Isom.

Parents Reminded Of Procedures For Calling Students

Parents and friends writing students at Harding College are reminded to include the student's post office box number rather than the dormitory room number in order to assure prompt delivery.

Also, person-to-person telephone calls are suggested as opposed to station-to-station, since the customer starts paying as soon as the Harding switchboard answers although there may be a delay of several minutes before the student can actually be located or called to a telephone.

Personnel in charge are eager to assist in handling communication between parent and student and will seek to establish communication contact as quickly as possible.

Keynote speaker Dr. Thomas Cunningham of Stillwater, Okla., and Allan Isom, workshop coordinator, discuss the 1971 program. This year's attendance at the Christian Workers' Workshop showed a considerable increase over previous years as more than 1,000 registered.

New High School Guest Days Will Aid Prospective Students

A new High School Guest Days program will be initiated by Harding's admission office during the 1971-72 school year.

Twelve dates have been selected when high school students may visit the Harding campus, meet campus personalities, talk with faculty members and attend a special on-campus event. The special events will be in club football and basketball games, youth forums and musical productions.

Three of the High School Guest Days coincide with the dates for the administering of the ACT test. Students may elect to take the test while visiting the Harding campus.

For several years Harding has provided Senior Day and High School Day activities for special visits to the campus. The admissions office planned the new schedule of activities to allow more students to visit the campus.

"High school students are involved in numerous activities and often there were conflicts that made it impossible for them to visit the campus on one of our two special days," explained Fred Alexander, director of admissions.

"To solve this problem, we are this year designating several dates which we will call High School Guest Days. We hope to be able to accommodate more students and give them the chance to examine our facilities and meet our students and faculty," he continued.

Students may write to the admissions office for a reservation form and a complete schedule of High School Guest Days activities.
