Freedom From Fear

Coincidentally, the fourth and final Norman Rockwell painting Freedom From Fear was scheduled for the Bulletin in December, a month when much emphasis is on joy and peace. The world gives much time in celebrating the birth of Jesus Christ, whose arrival prompted multitudes of angels to shout "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

Tragically, the world yet groans in distress and agony with masses wrought with anxiety and frustration. On the whole, people are far from being at peace or relieved of fear. Today we wrestle with the breakdown of homes, with families being torn asunder. National leaders prove to be dishonest. There is distress at every turn.

A popular contemporary television commercial asks, "How do you spell relief?" In watching the world struggle with anxiety and stress, we are constrained as Christians to ask ourselves the same question.

How do YOU spell relief? Does this question, the most important question of one's life, reach the heart of your existence? The troubles and injustices of this life are many. Job mentioned it by noting "Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble." The Apostle Paul concurred with ". . . our bodies found no rest, conflicted at every turn, fightings outside, fears within." At every direction are pressures, tensions, troubles, things that would do us in both internally and externally. Life is filled with both intentional and unintentional hurts such as illnesses, fate, pressures in business, social relationships, family problems, paying bills, family splits, and unfaithful mates.

What is causing this anxiety, the number one killer in the nation? Anxiety is the top psychological crippler, and sooner or later it gets to everyone. It is probably the most multi-faceted disease today.

How do you spell relief from this killer?

The world spells it E-S-C-A-P-E. Through drugs, legal or illegal, alcoholism, television, food, hedonism, work or music, many are laid in an all-too-common grave.

But Christians must not be ripped off by something so debasing. Each must get a handle on his pressures and anxieties and deal with them individually.

We can look at Paul, who spelled relief in this way: B-E-L-I-E-F. Paul came to know the God he believed in, even to write "I know whom I have believed." If we do not have our commitment in a God we can trust, we have a problem.

And our problems lie in a faulty theology — in a poor concept of God. People are torn apart by uncertainties because of this poor concept of God.

Paul recognized the majesty of God. His concept was of overwhelming awe, of a God so powerful that no man dare approach. Yet, filtered through that was a faith which realized this God loved him so much he gave his only son to die for the saving of his soul.

If your life is to depend on this genuine faith, it must depend on a true concept of God. Not a God hiding behind a tree ready to zap every shortcoming. Not an ill-tempered God ready to storm down and punish rather than reward. But rather in a loving Father, who cares for His children and hovers over them constantly with only His best offerings.

Believing is one thing; trusting is the implementation of that belief. When life begins to cave in, pressures come and put one's back against the wall, do you turn to God in trust? More than ever then there is a need to cast care on Him. Faith under pressure either rusts or trusts. Faith under pressure fails or prevails.

Paul demonstrated his trust as recorded in Acts 27:20-44. After advising against the voyage, and after the storm had reached its worst, Paul spoke to the men about their plight. With a kind but firm "I told you so" approach, Paul reminded the sailors of his previous words. Yet his faith overpowered his fear completely, even to the point of his persuading the men aboard to take food, which they had not done for 14 days.

Do you believe and trust? In Acts 2:38, did you hear that your wrongs should be forgiven, or are you still wrestling with guilt? If so, you aren't trusting. "If we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin." (1 Jno. 1:7) He will forgive.

However, listening to Paul say "Don't be anxious" won't make one any less anxious. It may very well cause more anxiety and more depression. Hearing someone else say it doesn't help you. You'll have to find the same commodity which Paul found operational in his life, then you can say with Paul "I can do all things in him who strengthens me."

The Gospels — Matthew, Mark, Luke and John — can help you see if the God described there is like the one Paul describes in the letters. In the Gospels one finds power to do what is in the letters.

The Gospels amplify the character of Christ, and the essence of this character was unwavering faith. The Son of man resisted temptations with a longsuffering faith; he overcame fear with a powerful faith; and he conquered death with a total faith. As we read of his life in the Gospels, we learn to emulate his ways, and if we take on his name and follow his footsteps, surely we will have to reach out for this same faith and complete reliance in God the Father.

A daily, personal reading of God's Word is the only way one can come to know Him. Setting aside a time to read, adhering to it, giving yourself the spiritual food through a one-to-one meeting with the scriptures and feeding daily on this food can change your life. It may require you to get up earlier, or restructure some habits. But in this way you can examine the Lord of the Gospels. Let Him talk to you through His Word. You will come to the same conclusion on confidence at which Paul arrived.

Every Christian can come to this believing, trusting, confident faith. Through a daily, personal, self-examining study of the Word comes a faith free of fear, a complete trust in God.

This trust led Paul also to write "The end of the charge is love out of a pure heart, a good conscience and a genuine faith." (1 Tim. 1:5) This is what it involves. Your faith will be demonstrated by your trust — how you cope and how you spell relief. □

ON THE COVER — During the calendar year of 1976, our nation's Bicentennial, we have been privileged to reprint the four paintings of Norman Rockwell which are known as the "Four Freedoms." What better way to celebrate our nation's birthday than to recall the freedoms which were basic to her establishment and constant in the times of conflict and trial. Harding is indebted to Mr. Rockwell and the Curtis Publishing Company for allowing us to reprint the memorable "Freedom" series on the cover of our Bulletin. We are confident in the hope that America will continue to be the sanctuary of freedom with responsibility.

(Editor's Note — Many requests have been received for copies of the March, 1976, July, 1976 and October, 1976 Harding College Bulletin which carried the first three of Norman Rockwell's Four Freedoms painting, Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship and Freedom From Want. A few copies of those issues are still available.)

SAWYER ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

Chairman-elect Roy Sawyer and his wife, Marj, greet Harding faculty members at a Board reception.

Richard Gibson

Jim Bill McInteer

James Cone

Roy Sawyer, a Sardis, Miss. banker and businessman, was elected chairman of the Harding College Board of Trustees Oct. 29 during the annual fall board meeting on the Harding campus.

Sawyer succeeds Dr. Richard E. Burt of Dallas, Tex., who has been board chairman since 1972. The 27-member board is the governing body of the college.

Also elected as officers of the board were Richard H. Gibson of Longview, Tex., vice-president; Jim Bill McInteer of Nashville, Tenn., secretary; and James Cone of Little Rock, treasurer.

Sawyer is a 1944 graduate of Columbia University and a retired colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve. A member of the Board of Trustees since 1966, he is married to the former Marjorie West of Sardis and the couple has three children, John Edward, Sheryl Ann and Roy H. III. Sheryl Ann is a senior and Roy III a sophomore at Harding.

He is past president of the Sardis Chamber of Commerce, and has been active in civic involvement with the Lions and Rotary Civic Clubs. He also is a director of the Sunnybrook Children's Home in Jackson, Miss.

Don Shores Sr., a north Arkansas businessman, was added to the Board of Trustees at the fall meeting.

A native of Cave Springs and an elder in the church there, Shores is a board director for Green Valley Bible Camp near Rogers. He is a 1948 graduate of Rogers High School and attended the University of Arkansas.

In 1971, he was appointed to the college's President's Development Council, a group of about 325 men and women from throughout the United States who serve in an advisory and public relations capacity for Harding. He becomes the 27th member of the Board.

Miss Keller Honored by Board of Trustees

Miss May Keller of Hayti, Mo., for whom Keller Hall on the Harding campus is named, received the Harding College Trustee Award for 1976 the night before the board meeting at a dinner in her honor at the Heritage Building. The presentation was made by Dr. Richard Burt, the retiring chairman of the Board of Trustees.

"This award represents our expression of the wish that our students could exemplify the characteristics of your life in generosity, thrift and Christian concern," Burt said. She was presented a framed certificate in honor of the award.

A native of Yell, Ark., she spent her early life near Dardanelle, moving to Missouri in 1921 to pursue a farming operation. The family, who started as tenant farmers, labored to accumulate a sizeable farm. Miss Keller, in addition to working in the fields, moonlighted for owners of other farms for money with which to make her own clothes. Through the years the thrifty Missourian served as overseer for the farms and, with her late uncle, Albert Keller, continued the farming operation. Keller Hall, dedicated October 30, 1971 as the

Visitors Throng Campus For October Events

Visitors from 32 states and Austria, Canada, New Guinea and Zambia gathered here Oct. 12-15 for Harding College's 53rd annual Lectureship, which centered around the topic "Count It All Joy."

"We were pleased that attendance was up in comparison with past years," Neale Pryor, Lectureship coordinator, stated. "In planning an all-Harding speaking program, we wanted to take advantage of our numerous qualified personnel here at Harding. According to attendance and visitors' feedback, others agreed with that."

Concentrating on the theme taken from James 1:2, "My Brethren, count it all joy . . .," the 50-plus speakers, all associated with Harding, participated in theme forums, lectures and classes and emphasized the blessings Christians enjoy in life.

Bill R. Cox, vice president of Harding College and director of the American Studies Program, received the Christian Journalist of the Year award from the 20th Century Christian magazine at the annual dinner sponsored by the publication Oct. 14 during the Lectureship events.

Dr. Clifton L. Ganus Jr., Jimmy Allen, Dr. Harold Hazelip and Dr. Jerry Jones keynoted the four evening sessions. Family Weekend and a High School Day were held concurrently Oct. 16 and capped the weekend's activities.

Homecoming weekend, Oct. 29-30, was visited by torrents of rain and bone-chilling winds, but all activities proceeded as scheduled and the attendants seemed not to notice the elements.

About 300 gathered for the Black and Gold Banquet on Friday night to hear Jim Bill McInteer entertain. He jabbed the administration ("They call this the Black and Gold — to stay in the black, they take your gold"), the faculty, the students, the alumni and generally kept the enthusiastic alumni enthralled.

Dr. J. D. Bales, a member of the class of '37, received the Distinguished Alumnus Award for the year. Dr. Harry Olree, retiring president, presented a plaque to Black and Gold Banquet emcee Jim Bill McInteer delights attendants.

Smiles were the order of the day during homecoming as evidenced by Eunice Hogan of Troy, Tenn., left, and Sue and Sidney Roper of Bartlesville, Okla.

Bales and his wife, Mary, "in recognition for his many years of service to Harding and the brotherhood, his commitment to Christian education and for emphasizing the ideals of Harding College."

President Clifton Ganus, who emceed the affair, made a chapel seat sale appeal and collected $8 each for 272 seats that night. The project of reupholstering the faded and worn cushions in the main auditorium is underway with a cost of $8 per seat being sought. The work is scheduled to be done during the Christmas break.

An outlay of sumptuous foods greeted early risers Saturday at breakfast in the Hammon Student Center.

The honor class of '51, with Lott R. Tucker Jr. in charge, conducted Alumni Chapel in the Heritage Auditorium with 27 members of the class in attendance. A gift of $4,093 was made to the college by class members.

board chairman Richard Burt of Richardson, Tex. With the class and queen floats leading the route, music was provided by the Bison Marching Band and the band from Harding Academy of Memphis.

Miss Kim Webb, daughter of alumni Joe and Nell Webb of Searcy, was crowned queen during halftime of the Bison-Tarleton game, in which the Bisons treated the near capacity crowd to a 24-7 victory. Queen attendants were Kathy Matheny of Bastrop, La. and Cindy Cox Baggett of Houston. A gala pregame show in patriotic theme included presentation by the Band with a flag formed by members of the A Cappella, Chorale and Academy Chorus singing.

A final performance of Peter Stone's "1776" by the speech and music departments and two presentations of "Blackout '76" closed out the day. Interspersed in the weekend were class reunions, club and organization reunions and numerous, informal get-togethers around the campus and city. □

Doctoral Program in Ministry Approved for Graduate School

A doctoral program in ministry at the Harding Graduate School of Religion has been approved by the Board of Trustees and will begin in the fall of 1977, according to Dr. Clifton L. Ganus Jr., president of the college.

The Doctor of Ministry (D.Min.) program was approved Oct. 29 at the regular fall meeting of the Harding College Board of Trustees. Approval was also given to work toward a doctor of philosophy degree program scheduled to begin the fall of 1982.

"The D.Min. program will emphasize ministry and its practical applications," said Ganus. "Its curriculum will enable students to draw upon Biblical resources to meet the demands made upon the local minister."

The doctor of ministry is a practically oriented degree designed to prepare students for productive Christian ministry. A professional degree in the continuing-education trend, the program is following standard procedures for full accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Dr. Harold Hazelip, dean of the Graduate School, emphasized that the program was not to follow the same guidelines or pursue the same purposes as the Ph.D. program that is being planned to begin in the fall of 1982.

"The Ph.D. is a research degree, oriented to teaching and writing," Dr. Hazelip explained. "Whereas the program we will offer in 1977, the doctor of ministry degree, is ministry oriented."

"A Ph.D. research project is narrow in scope and theoretically explores a field that has not been investigated previously or where new interpretation of already existing data is offered," he continued. "But a D.Min. research project may be broad in scope and stress specific performance objectives."

Investigative studies relating to the need for such a program were initiated by Graduate School officials in 1972, according to Dr. Hazelip.

Surveys on ministers graduated from the schools' existing master of arts, master of arts in religion and master of theology degree programs revealed that they considered their training to be lacking in practical applications of ministerial services. The majority stated that they had not, for various reasons, taken enough courses in practical ministry.

"The net result was that we and our sister institutions have been turning out a lot of young men with a lot of information but without the ability to apply the information to their work," Dr. Hazelip said. "Our goal is to coordinate classroom teaching with the service skills of actual, day-to-day ministry."

Due to the practical emphasis of the program, a maximum enrollment will be limited to 12 for the first year, and students will be able to attend on either a full-time or part-time basis. Applications are now being accepted and candidates are requested to apply as soon as possible for consideration for the initial class.

Prerequisites for the 30-semester hour D.Min. program are a B.A. degree, a M.Th. degree or equivalent, three years of full-time ministerial experience, at least one year of elementary Greek and one graduate reading course of three semester hours in Greek, and a satisfactory score on an exam covering Biblical knowledge.

D.Min. students may pursue course work in one of three major areas of concentration: counseling, the nature of which would be beneficial in ministerial responsibilities; communications, which will encompass preaching and missions; and church growth, involving the latest trends in religious education.

Curriculum requirements include nine hours of basic courses, six hours of ministerial skills courses, six hours of supervised field experiences, three hours of a colloquium seminar which deals with the interrelationship of the various concentration areas and six hours of ministerial research including three hours of introduction to research and three of dissertation writing.

The doctor of ministry degree will emphasize ministry. It will stress learning of truth and its application in every avenue of ministry whether it be preaching, missions, counseling or church work in general. It is basically for the preacher of the gospel.

FIRST WINTER GRADUATION CONCLUDES FALL SEMESTER

Winter commencement ceremonies were held for the first time in the history of the school on Dec. 17 with 105 seniors receiving diplomas.

John D. Gipson, minister of the Sixth and Izard Church of Christ in Little Rock, addressed the graduates. President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. presented the diplomas.

The Board of Trustees approved the winter exercises at the request of the students. Generally about 100 finish requirement for the degree with the fall semester, and many find that job involvement prevents them from returning for the spring ceremony in May. The December commencement would make possible their receiving diplomas at that time.

FORMER COLLEGE ENGINEER SUCCUMBS AT AGE OF 80

Elbert Turman, 80, chief engineer for the college for 20 years before his retirement in 1965, died Oct. 8 in Searcy. A self-taught engineer, he had maintained the facilities of Harding with a skill that made Harding's plant one of the most efficiently operated in the state.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maude Martin Turman; two sons, Elbert of Stillwater, Okla., and Alfred of Albuquerque, N.M.; three daughters, Mrs. Alpha Lee Sprafford of Battle Creek, Mich., Mrs. Velma Ruth Moody of Dearborn, Mich., and Mrs. Mary Orzech of Honolulu; 12 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted Oct. 11 by Dr. George S. Benson and Avon Malone.

LONGTIME COLLEGE FRIEND REACHES CENTURY MARK

A wonderful Christian lady, Mrs. Ada Hall of Sikeston, Mo., celebrated her 100th birthday Dec. 2.

Mrs. Hall, whose family has been closely associated with Harding College for many years, has been a faithful member of the church of nearly three quarters of a century. She currently resides in the Sikeston Convalescent Center.

Her sons, Leslie G. Thomas and G. B. Thomas, have been faithful ministers of the gospel for more than a half century in Chattanooga, Tenn. and Poplar Bluff, Mo. respectively.

Though unable to walk, she is physically strong, mentally alert, and spiritually beautiful. These characteristics, combined with her delightful sense of humor and her genuine interest in people, have enhanced her Christian influence through the years.

13TH ANNUAL YOUTH FORUM SCHEDULED FOR APRIL 8-9

The 13th annual Harding College Youth Forum will be April 8-9, according to an announcement by acting admissions director Durward McGaha.

Terry Smith, associate minister of Searcy's College Church of Christ, will keynote this year's young peoples' rally. The fourth annual Spring Sing, involving more than 700 Harding students will also be a highlight with showings scheduled for April 7, 8 and 9.

More than 3,500 high school students from 27 states and two foreign countries were on hand for last year's Youth Forum and heard Joe Barnett of Lubbock, Tex., who spoke at three sessions.

The Youth Forum provides prospective students an opportunity to visit the Harding campus, stay in college housing and participate in spiritually encouraging activities while on campus.

For additional information, write the Admissions Office, Harding College, Searcy, AR 72143.

ANNUAL WINS ALL-AMERICAN FOR 17TH CONSECUTIVE YEAR

The Harding College yearbook, the Petit Jean, has won an unparalleled 17th consecutive All-American Honor Rating. The announcement was made at a meeting of the Arkansas College Publications Association Oct. 12.

Judged for general excellence by the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota, the 1975-76 Petit Jean was one of three in the state to earn an All-American grade.

Only 13 per cent of the 600 publications from a nationwide field attained All-American recognition, making the state College Publications Association's claim to three All-American entries a rare honor.

Miss Andrea Mannen of Stuttgart, was editor of the award-winning 1975-76 edition of the Petit Jean, and Mary Whitten Blake of Bay Minette, Ala., served as business manager. Dr. Joseph E. Pryor has been the faculty advisor for 32 years.

The Petit Jean received Marks of Distinction in Photography, Copy, Display and Coverage. Out of a possible 7,400 points, including bonus points, the Petit Jean totaled 6,960.

Summary comments by the judging staff included the following:

"The Petit Jean continues with its impressive record of excellence. Congratulations to the staff for an excellent job in expanding the many elements of the book. Keep up the fine work in presenting the year's story in style and uniqueness."

JOHNSON ACCEPTS POSITION AT MEMPHIS GRAD SCHOOL

Joel Johnson, a graduate of both Harding College and Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, is currently serving as Director of Student Services at the Graduate School.

A Ph.D. candidate in counseling psychology at the University of Mississippi, Johnson assumes oversight over such duties as student counseling, placement, student housing, health services, extracurricular activities and student government, and he assists in recruiting.

TWO HARDING GRID TEAMS WIN STATE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Harding has not one but two championship football teams on its campus. The Bisons reign as co-champions of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference and the Academy Wildcats are the state class B champions. (Additional information will be in the January Bulletin.)

Dr. J. D. Bales

WARREN, BALES TO DISCUSS MARRIAGE IN APRIL FORUM

Dr. J. D. Bales and Dr. Thomas B. Warren, both members of the Harding faculty, will keynote the 1977 Preachers' Forum, according to an announcement by Dr. Jerry Jones, chairman of the Bible department.

"Divorce and Remarriage" has been selected as the theme for the April 19 event, the ninth annual forum.

Dr. Bales, a member of the Bible faculty on the Searcy campus, and Dr. Warren, a professor at the Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, will consider the topic "Marriage, Divorce and Remarriage" in two 45-minute presentations in the morning program. An open forum will follow.

Afternoon activities include discussions led by Ed Sanders in "Premarital Counseling," Walter Buchanan of Bentonville in "Rebuilding Broken Lives" and Jimmy Allen in "Home as God Would Have It."

For additional details, contact Jerry Jones, Box 929, Harding College, Searcy, AR 72143.

FOUR SELECTED TO RECEIVE HAMMON SCHOLARSHIPS

Three seniors and a junior have been named Charles K. Hammon Scholarship winners for the fall semester.

Recipients for the fall term are David Johnson of Gadsden, Ala., Jimmy Cone of Little Rock, Marshall Grate of Waterloo, Ind. and Steve Leavell of Dover.

The four awards are made possible by Mrs. C. K. Hammon of Gainesville, Fla. Each semester Mrs. Hammon provides scholarships for the outstanding student in the departments of American Studies, business, history and journalism.

Johnson, a senior Bible and accounting major, received the American Studies scholarship. He is vice president of the Student Association and a resident assistant in one of the men's dormitories.

A senior accounting and economics major, Cone was selected as the winner of the business scholarship. The treasurer of the student body government and president of Galaxy social club, he is also a member of Alpha Chi national honor society.

The recipient of the history scholarship, Grate, is a junior American Studies major and one of the top long distance runners in the state. He is also a member of Alpha Chi and Sigma Tau Sigma social club.

Honored with the journalism award was Leavell, a senior journalism major. His activities include serving as associate editor of the student newspaper, The Bison and membership in Alpha Phi Gamma national journalism fraternity.
