ON THE COVER — Veteran overseas missionary Joe Cannon sits among nationalist brethren of the church in New Guinea and studies the Work of God with a people of a strikingly different background and lifestyle. Yet the Book he holds on his knee contains words which stretch across the expanse of the globe and bridges cultural, language and economic chasms. The same Book keeps Joe Cannon going, even after more than 30 years of service on the mission field. (See article on page 4.)

 to the Office of Publications, Harding College, Box 759, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Harding College admits the students of any race to all of the rights, privileges, programs and activities generally accorded or made available to students at that school. The school does not discriminate on the basis of race in administration of its educational policies, admissions policies, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other school administered programs. Also, as required by Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972, Harding College does not discriminate on the basis of sex in its educational programs or activities or employment except when necessitated by specific religious tenets held by the institution and its controlling body.

Four Freedoms Foundation awards have been won by Harding College and officials of the school, according to Foundation President Robert W. Miller.

The American Studies Program won the Goerge Washington Honor Medal in the Campus Programs category. Dr. Billy Ray Cox, director of the American Studies Program, was named winner of a George Washington Medal for Public Address for his speech, "Beyond '76 — The Healing of the Land." Dr. Cox was the 1976 national winner in Public Address with his presentation "Rebirth of a Nation."

Also honored by the Foundation was Dr. Clifton L. Ganus Jr., president of the college. His speech, entitled "America's Birthday, 1976," was his eighth award-winning entry since 1956.

The Center for Private Enterprise Education under the direction of Dr. Don Diffine, assistant professor of economics, is designed to promote the American economical system. It was selected as recipient of the Honor Certificate in the Economic Education Programs division.

The recipients were selected by a panel of 25 eminent Americans who are national officers of patriotic, veterans, civic and service club organizations, and state supreme court jurists.

Chaired by the Hon. Bond Almand of Atlanta, retired Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia, the jury convened at Freedoms Foundation's Valley Forge headquarters in November to review the thousands of nominations submitted in the Foundation's 1976 awards programs.

Cited as commendable features of the honored 1975-76 American Studies Program were the Searcy Lecture Series, the Memphis Lecture Series, the special Bicentennial field trip, the annual Youth Citizenship Program and Management Seminars.

Highlighting the 1975-76 Searcy Lecture Series were such international notables as former Army Chief of Staff General William C. Westmoreland, CBS White House correspondent Robert Pierpoint and nationally syndicated columnist Ralph de Toledano as well as numerous others.

The Memphis Lecture Series was established last year as an expanded segment of the American Studies Program. The Program featured General Westmoreland, Ohio congressman John Ashbrook, educator Max Rafferty, de Toledano, former Minnesota congressman

Walter H. Judd and Bob Anderson of the Foundation for Economic Education.

While the American Studies Program regularly schedules field trips to such business centers as Dallas, New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago, a nine-day tour of the Early American sites of Jamestown and Williamsburg, Va. and Philadelphia and of Washington, D.C. was included in the 1976 American Studies calendar to celebrate the Bicentennial.

Each summer high school students from seven states participate in the Youth Citizenship Seminar. Last year, more than 400 seminar attendants heard presentations by Roger Staubach, quarterback of the NFL Dallas Cowboys; Commander Steven Harris of the Intelligence Division of the Navy; and Vo Than Duc, a refugee missionary from South Vietnam, among others.

The 1975-76 Management Seminar was keynoted by Frank Goble, president of the Thomas Jefferson Research Center in Pasadena, Calif. The author of two highly regarded books in business management, The Third Force and Excellence in Leadership, Goble addressed more than 400 businessmen and business students in the two-day session.

The American Studies Program is an effort to train young men and women for leadership careers in business, public life and education. The task is undertaken through formal training, observation tours, special seminars with staff members of the college and lectures by leaders in industry, business, education and government.

Although all Harding students are exposed to a broad curriculum of American Studies as part of the general education requirements of the college, outstanding students in the fields of accounting, business, history and political science are invited to become members of the American Studies Program.

This is the 28th consecutive year in which the Foundation has honored Americans who speak up for America, contribute significantly to the practice of responsible citizenship and aid in developing solutions to contemporary national problems.

Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge is a nonprofit, nonpolitical and nonsectarian organization begun in 1949 to preserve and perpetuate the principles of the American system. In addition to the annual national awards program, the Foundation sponsors seminars and workshops for youth and high school social studies teachers. □

Joe Cannon

Thirty Years on the Mission Field

By Tim Bruner

He couldn't sit still. Joe Cannon nearly wore a hole in the seat upholstery as he squirmed restlessly in the chair and spoke excitedly of the mission program in Lae, New Guinea.

The same penchant for hyperactivity has been a key factor in explaining Cannon's stamina on the mission field. For 30 years, he and his wife Rosa Belle have been busily manifesting the charge of their Lord, to go into all the world and preach the gospel.

Currently, the Cannons, both Harding alumni, are on leave in the United States, reporting on the progress of their work. He is also actively raising additional funds and recruiting workers to join the team working with him in New Guinea. A 1947 graduate of Harding and a 1954 master's graduate from the Harding Graduate School, Cannon was the college's first visiting professor of missions in 1968-69.

After spending 15 years in Japan and nine in Okinawa, the Cannons in 1971 became the first missionaries from the churches of Christ to tackle the New Guinea assignment. Now there are 17 congregations of the Lord's church and approximately 1,000 faithful members. Cannon credits the program's success to "prayer and the providence of God."

"We are working the plan, and the plan is working," he said. "But God gives the increase."

The plan of which he spoke involves a deliberate goal-oriented approach. The author of two books, For Missionaries Only and The Experiences of a NEW Guinea Pig, Cannon bases his mission approach on four Biblical principles: (1) establishing a strategic center of operations, (2) employing a team effort, (3) being mobile and (4) relying on on-the-job training. The 25-year planned program in New Guinea is in its sixth year.

The base is a growing church in Lae, and the body of 300 Christians represents 20 tribes. The church operates a training program for national Christians, and the Standing atop a small hill which serves as his podium, Joe Cannon preaches the Gospel to a group of New Guineans.

Joe Cannon jots down a few names as he makes some acquaintances.

One of the experiences of a missionary is assisting in the baptism of a young, convert.

missionaries there follow a continuing-training program of orientation for new personnel. "From this we have a substantial in-reach program which is strengthening our base and an out-reach program which is gaining momentum."

Cannon is a firm believer in the continued influx of missionaries to work with an established mission effort.

"Too many times we have approached missions with a no-win policy," he charged. "But we need to stop this pattern where we drop spiritual guerrilla fighters behind the enemy lines, and then sit back while they shoot up a couple of villages before getting wiped out in one way or another."

The idea of strategy in missions, according to Cannon, originates in I Corinthians 9 where Paul uses such expressions as "not without aim" and "in order to win the more."

Of course, the Cannons have experienced many of the catastrophic burdens it seems missionaries are destined to bear. They know well the problems of being foreigners in a different culture, not knowing the language, suffering unusual diseases, getting caught amidst tribal wars, seeing real hunger and famine, etc. The extraordinary has almost become common to them.

But they have also known some mountain-top experiences because of their work. They have learned how to have complete dependence upon their God. They know the comfort of the Holy Spirit and the power of prayer. They have seen God's handiwork through nature in its most primitive state. They have felt the unmatched glowing joy that only one who helps another discover the Truth can understand.

Cannon identified the major obstacles confronting missionaries on the home-front as being a predominant negative attitude in the brotherhood toward mission work.

"This is not to imply that we have not done any mission work," he explained. "But it has not been our main concern. We have the men and the money but not the heart. While we may oppose mission societies, we have to realize and act upon the fact that we are God's mission society . . . all of us."

Turning his attention to the problems faced by workers on the field, Cannon pointed out that the greatest enemies are often the missionaries themselves.

"We send people who perhaps have mastered the mechanics of mission work but cannot apply them because they cannot get along with others . . . most frequently, the other missionaries," he said. "And we also must make a better effort in sending out missionaries who are fully prepared, both spiritually and educationally."

Rosa Belle and Joe Cannon display some of the artifacts they have collected during their six years of work in primitive New Guinea.

The missionary-on-the-go, Joe Cannon packs his bags and prepares to carry his story to the stateside brethren while he is home for a six-month furlough.

In addition to his numerous duties as a missionary, Cannon continues to pursue his field of study. He is now working toward an M.A. degree in missiology through Abilene Christian University. He still holds the title Professor of New Testament and English Bible, granted by the Japanese Board of Education, stemming from his years of Christian education mission work in Japan.

But when reminded of his long list of honors, Cannon shrugged off any right to deserved recognition and pointed out that the honor giving him greatest pride was his family. He and Rosa Belle have raised six children on the mission field. Joe and Leonard are seniors at Harding; Greg is a junior; Robin is a senior at the Academy, Deborah is a senior at ACU, and Eileen (Clark), a Harding alumnus, is living in Florida.

Reflecting back approximately 30 years, Cannon cited the words and examples of two former teachers, James N. Armstrong and George S. Benson, as being the inspirational factors in influencing his decision to become a missionary.

"The longer I live, the more important their lives become to me," he said.

Cannon recalled his days as a student at Harding in the mid-40's and hearing of the need for mission workers in Japan. Shortly afterward he met and later married Rosa Belle. The two have been on the go ever since.

"He's the same Joe that I knew as a student," said Robert Helsten, a former classmate of Cannon and now a member of the Harding Bible faculty. "He was gung-ho in his commitment to the Lord then and he still is today."

According to Harding history professor Virgil Lawyer who, with his wife Lou, teamed up with the Cannons and the Charles Doyles to establish Ibaraki Christian College in Japan in 1947, Cannon is probably the most unusual missionary of our time.

"Joe, with his zest and enthusiasm, went from working with the very literate and cultured Japanese to working with the highly illiterate and backward people of New Guinea," Lawyer noted. "Only a Joe Cannon could do that."

His vibrant youthful energy betrays his 50 years. Even as he concluded a two-hour interview, Joe Cannon was still restlessly squirming about, like a caged missionary who had known success.

When he returns to New Guinea sometime in July or August, no doubt he will continue to tirelessly use his abundant energy, his intellectual talents and his experience-purchased wisdom in making the Great Commission more than just a Biblical reference.

Richard Burt Honored by Board of Trustees

WHEREAS, Dr. Richard Burt has served with distinction not only on the Board of Directors of Harding College for many years but for the last four as its Chairman;

WHEREAS, his leadership has come at the time of the construction of Harding's largest buildings, its most numerous student body, and a very popular acclaim from an appreciative brotherhood, no doubt there being a strong correlation between Dr. Burt's effective leadership and the end results of those efforts;

WHEREAS, he has been an inspiration to his fellow trustees by virtue of his selfless service, generous gifts of time and talents;

WHEREAS, he has been a motivating force of immense power injecting within the Board of Directors a further involvement in the onward progress of Harding College;

WHEREAS, his devotion to Christ, godly example of his life, and earnest trust in the overruling providence of God for every direction of life;

WHEREAS, he has traveled many miles to faithfully attend all major functions on the Harding campus at the complete abandonment of his own practice and pleasure;

WHEREAS, he has requested of his fellow trustees that currently no further consideration be given him for the Chairmanship of the Board;

WHEREAS, it is with reluctance his request is accepted; be it resolved on the day of the meeting that this announcement was made appreciation be genuinely expressed to Dr. and Sister Richard Burt for the high quality of energetic leadership, devotion to duty, and exemplary conduct on behalf of Harding College;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Board express this appreciation to the Burts and look forward to continuous service with Dr. Burt as a fellow trustee;

BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED that gratitude be genuinely extended for a task extremely well done, unanimously adopted this 29th day of October, 1976.

Miss Anita Wells

Miss Anita Wells 1883 - 1975

That Harding College could not exist without the help and assistance of many individuals is reiterated forcefully and tirelessly by the Board, administration and all those interested in the institution.

The realization comes increasingly more meaningful through the years as alumni themselves are brought to understand how their education actually came about, and in turn begin to share of themselves to assist future alumni.

Many times the assistance of individuals goes generally unrecognized, although the gift itself has been a specific factor in the success of a program such as Harding's.

One such example of unselfish sharing of worldly goods has come into focus with the death of a California lady. Although she had visited the campus only once in her 91 years, she had been very much a part of the college operation since 1961.

Miss Anita Wells died at her home in San Diego in September 1975. She had first learned of the college many years ago through President George S. Benson, but she had visited Searcy only once briefly.

Miss Wells made a $10,000 loan to the college to be used in scholarship loans for students. She had renewed the note each year, at a low interest rate, and was vocally complimentary in her interest in continuing the loan. Countless students in the ensuing years have received assistance through her fund.

At her death the college was notified of being included in her will. In primary settlement, Harding received approximately $100,000 from her estate and should receive some additional funds in the final settlement.

Miss Wells was a native Floridian, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hayden Wells I. In the 1930's the family moved to California to make her home in San Diego.

In 1914 Miss Wells and her mother had an extensive trip to Europe and were on the last steamer to go down the Rhine when war was declared. She had traveled extensively throughout the United States, to Cuba, Bermuda and Canada.

Miss Wells was very much interested in architecture and in each place she resided she carried out her original ideas of planning and decorating. She was an avid gardener, often having a pool and always planting bright flowers. As a young woman she showed an interest in art, making sketches and learning the art of china painting.

She had pride of ancestry and, with her brother James Hayden Wells and Helen Huggins Wells, compiled a genealogical record entitled "The Reverend William Wells — His Family and Descendants (1744-1951)." Her grandfather was a Dissenter, having left England because of religious persecution. She was a Bible student and knew the scriptures well.

Lott R. Tucker Jr., vice president for finance, said of Miss Wells, "Through my many years of association with Miss Wells I was always impressed with her genuine interest in young people. She was always eager to assist Harding, because she believed that the students here were deserving and she wanted them to have opportunity to learn more and be of more service to the world in their lifetime.

"In memory of her, we have decided to make a $10,000 permanent loan fund in her name as a grateful tribute to this gracious lady who meant so much to us during her lifetime and whose generosity will not be forgotten."

MORE THAN 3,000 EXPECTED AT ANNUAL YOUTH FORUM

Despite the unusual circumstances stemming from the effects of winter weather, more than 3,000 young people are expected to be on campus to attend the upcoming 13th annual Harding College Youth Forum April 8-9.

"Many high schools are having to hold classes on weekends to catch up for days lost to inclement weather and flu epidemics," admissions counselor Stephen Tucker explained. "But we still expect a large turnout."

According to Tucker, who serves as Forum coordinator, this year's Forum will follow a similar format as last year's, with emphasis given to the needs of today's young people. A crowd of 3,000-plus from 27 states and two foreign countries thronged the Harding campus for the 1976 session.

"Resurrection Power" has been selected as the theme for the two-day program, and Terry Smith, campus minister for College Church of Christ in Searcy, will be the keynote speaker. A popular counselor at young-oriented weekend retreats, Smith will speak on "Power of the Man," "Power Available to Us" and "Power Shared" at three sessions of the Forum.

Other activities schedule include four presentations of the fourth annual Spring Sing and performances by the Belles and Beaux musical troupe, the "Time of Day" trio and the A Cappella Chorus. Last year more than 700 Harding students participated in the Spring Sing musical revue.

The Youth Forum, initiated 13 years ago, is designed to motivate and direct today's youth to greater service in Christ.

GRADUATE SCHOOL ENJOYS INCREASES IN ENROLLMENT

During the last seven years the spring semester enrollment for the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis has increased 216 per cent.

Enrollment figures for that period have increased from 112 in the spring of 1970 to a record enrollment of 241 in the spring of 1977.

FIRST INTERSESSION PERIOD SET FOR MAY 16 TO JUNE 1

A two-week Intersession, during which incoming or current students may earn up to four hours of college credit, will be offered May 16-June 1 at Harding this year for the first time. Several three-hour, two-hour and one-hour classes will be offered for selection.

Dr. James Carr, director of the summer session, said the Intersession classes will meet daily from 8 to 9:45 a.m. and 10:15 to 11:30 a.m. The one-hour classes will meet daily from 1 to 3 p.m. and 3 to 5 p.m.

The courses to be offered are Education 407, Psychology of Exceptional Children; History 111, Western Civilization; Management 368, Human Relations; Marketing 330, Principles of Marketing; P.E. 122 and 124, Golf and Bowling and Tennis and Racquetball; Physical Science 102, Physical Science; Political Science 205, American National Government; and Speech 101, Basic Speech Communication.

Interested persons may register through the office of Dr. Joseph E. Pryor, dean of the college, any time before Intersession begins.

Further information concerning the program may be obtained by writing Dr. Carr at the college.

SOCIOLOGY PROFESSOR FILLS PROFESSIONAL GROUP POST

Dr. Bill Verkler, chairman of the department of sociology and social services, has been elected vice-president of the Arkansas Sociological Association.

Dr. Verkler will concurrently hold the post of president-elect during the year. At the Association's fall semester convention, he read a paper entitled "Research Opportunities in Applied Sociology."

At the First Annual Kentucky Conference of Undergraduate Social Workers in February, Dr. Verkler and his wife Billie keynoted a two-day workshop in role-playing. The Verklers were assisted by five Harding students in the presentation.

In November Dr. Verkler served as a state delegate to the National Mental Health Association meeting in Philadelphia, where the group was addressed by Mrs. Rosalynn Carter.

Also, he has been appointed the representative of the Mental Health Association in the Arkansas Coalition for the Handicapped.

Dr. Bill Verkler

Roy Deaver

DEAVER REPLACES WARREN IN APRIL PREACHERS' FORUM

Roy Deaver, director of the Brown Trail School of Preaching in Ft. Worth, will replace Dr. Thomas B. Warren of the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis on the April 19 program of the Preachers' Forum, according to Dr. Jerry Jones, chairman of the Bible Department.

Due to reasons of health, Dr. Warren had to cancel his scheduled part in the Forum.

Deaver and Dr. J. D. Bales of the Harding Bible faculty in Searcy will both speak on "Divorce and Remarriage" in the ninth annual session of the Preacher's Forum. Each of the two Christian educators will consider the keynote topic in separate 45-minute sessions.

An open forum will follow the two consecutive 45-minute lecture periods, with the keynote speakers fielding the questions.

The afternoon session will feature Ed Sanders, director of Harding's Christian Communications Program, discussing "Premarital Counseling;" Walter Buchanan, minister for the Bentonville, Ark. Church of Christ, presenting "Rebuilding Broken Homes;" and Jimmy Allen, associate professor of Bible, speaking on "Home as God Would Have It."

Forum guests will be welcomed by Dr. Clifton L. Ganus Jr., president of Harding, at 8:30 a.m., followed by the lectures of Deaver and Dr. Bales at 9. Allen's presentation, which will conclude the day's program, will begin at 3:30 p.m.

Now in its ninth year, the annual Preachers' Forum is sponsored by the college's Bible department. Last year more than 500 attended the full day's schedule which featured such well known preachers and Christian educators as Hardeman Nichols, Deaver, J. D. Thomas, Everett Ferguson and several from the Harding faculty.

SUMMER SESSIONS TO OFFER THREE 3-HOUR WORKSHOPS

Three workshops during the summer sessions will offer credit in education and mathematics, according to Dr. James F. Carr, program director.

Diagnosis and Correction of Reading Disability, Education 415G, is slated for June 6-22. This workshop will provide training for extensive diagnostic testing of individual students. This will be followed by a plan for correction and remediation. Participants will work with students, ranging in levels from grades one through nine, with reading disabilities. The course will be available for three hours credit.

To emphasize laboratory practice in reading improvement, a Reading Seminar is scheduled for June 22-July 8. The three-hour course is labeled Education 533. Participants will practice the remediation plans developed for specific students with reading disabilities.

The Department of Mathematics will offer Introduction to Computing for Secondary Teachers July 25-Aug. 5. The BASIC language has made the use of computers in secondary schools quite feasible today. Direct hands-on experience with Harding's Digital Equipment Corporation PDP-11/45 Time-Sharing Computer will be made available.

Ways to apply the computer as a tool in the learning process will be explored in the three-hour course, coded Mathematics 215 or 515. It is anticipated that the participants will be able to implement a computer course in their high schools via a mini-computer or a time-sharing system in the fall of 1977.

More information can be obtained by writing Dr. Carr at the college.

21ST CITIZENSHIP SEMINAR TO ATTRACT 400 TO CAMPUS

The 1977 Youth Citizenship Seminar, scheduled for June 12-18, will offer a wide variety of educational programs for the expected crowd of more than 400 high school students.

Slated to participate in this year's program is Roger Staubach, all-pro quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys football team. He will be making his sixth visit to the Harding campus for the 21st annual Seminar and will be speaking on "The Role of Responsible Leadership."

Harding's American Studies Program sponsors the yearly week-long event in conjunction with the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation and Civitan Clubs. High School students from Arkansas, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida and Alabama will be attending.

Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly

James J. Kilpatrick

MRS. SCHLAFLY, KILPATRICK TO CONCLUDE YEAR'S SERIES

Mrs. Phyllis Schlafly, a nationally recognized spokeswoman for opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment, and James J. Kilpatrick, syndicated columnist and CBS commentator, will close out the spring semester Searcy Lecture Series segment of the American Studies Program.

Slated to speak March 24, Mrs. Schlafly will discuss recent developments in the controversial women's liberation movement and the ramifications of the ERA bill. An author, syndicated newspaper columnist and a broadcast media editor, Mrs. Schlafly has testified before most of the state legislatures which have voted against adding the ERA bill to the Constitution.

Kilpatrick's lecture on April 4 will conclude the 1976-77 schedule of nationally recognized guest speakers. Kilpatrick's syndicated column, "A Conservative View," now appears in 320 American newspapers. Also an editorial associate on the CBS program 60 Minutes, he will discuss "Washington Wonderland."

Both programs are to be held at 7 p.m. in the American Heritage Auditorium on campus. Persons desiring further information or tickets may contact Dr. Bill Cox, Director, American Studies Program, Harding College, Searcy, AR 72143.

Mrs. Schlafly and Kilpatrick have also agreed to speak in the Memphis Lecture Series on March 25 and April 5 respectively. Additional details concerning this program may be obtained by contacting Hoyt White, Director of Development, Harding Academy, 1000 Cherry Road, Memphis, TN 38117.

SUMMER COURSES PLANNED FOR GRADUATE SCHOOL

Twelve courses for ministers and prospective ministers are scheduled to be taught this summer at the Harding Graduate School of Religion by Dr. Thomas B. Warren, Dr. John Scott, Miss Annie May Alston, Dr. Jack Lewis, Dr. W. B. West Jr., Mac Lynn, Philip Slate and Dr. Carroll Osburn.

Sessions are scheduled for May 30-June 17, June 20-July 8, July 11-29 and August 1-19.

SWIM TEAM FINISHES SECOND IN INTRASTATE COMPETITION

Despite senior Dale Linge's record-setting high-point individual performances, the Harding swim team could not manage to defend its 1976 AIC Championship in the 1977 league meet held at Conway in February.

The Water Buffaloes were outscored 106-87 by the Hendrix College Warriors whose 10-year AIC reign was halted by Harding last year.

Linge, a two-time runner-up for the title meet's high-point honors, shattered school and conference records to score 21 points and win the individual award. A native of Bellevue, Wash., Linge swam to first places in the 1,000-yard freestyle and the 200-yard butterfly.

His 11:07.295 clocking in the 1,000-yard free event easily broke the 11:17.1 league record set by a Hendrix swimmer in 1969. It also established Linge as the new school record-holder, as he erased David Denman's 1976 mark of 11:34.2.

Linge recorded a 2:14.815 time in the 200-yard butterfly and rewrote his own school record while besting all AIC opponents in the event. He also lowered Harding's 500-yard freestyle record time, set at 5:31.7 by Norman Kahla last year, to 5:23.9 while picking up a second-place finish in that race.

Freshman Tim Boyd of Detroit, Mich. swept the field of 200-yard breaststrokers with his 2:29.7 time. Boyd and Linge accounted for all of Harding's first-place points.

Second-place points were won by sophomore Steve North of Orlando, Fla. in the 200-yard individual medley and the 200-yard backstroke, sophomore Kahla of Deer Park, Tex., last year's AIC meet high-point man, in the 100-yard freestyle and Linge in the 500-yard free.

Scoring third-place finishes were Scott Smith of Dearborn, Mich. in the 1,000-yard freestyle, Kahla in the 200-yard individual medley and Steve Pylkas of Searcy in the 200-yard butterfly. Harding relay teams in the 400-yard medley and 400-yard freestyle placed third.

Boyd and Jay Trotter of Raytown, Mo. earned fourth-place points in the 200-yard freestyle and one-meter diving events respectively.

Picking up fifth-place scores were North in the 1,000-yard free, Kahla in the 50-yard sprint, Boyd in the 100-yard free and Smith in the 500-yard free.

Others contributing to the Water Buffaloes' 87 points total were Pylkas in the 200-yard freestyle, Brad Watson of Memphis in one-meter diving and Al Wright of Park River, N.D. in the 200-yard butterfly and 200-yard backstroke events.

"I am satisfied with everyone's effort." Water Buffalo coach Arnold Pylkas said.
