Simon Headlines Spring Lecture Schedule

William Simon, former secretary of the United States Treasury, will join Frank Zarb, former U.S. energy czar; Richard C. Hottelet, CBS United Nations correspondent; and Arthur Goldberg, former Supreme Court justice, in headlining the Spring American Studies Lecture Series.

Speaking on his recently published book, A Time for Truth, Simon will appear on April 9.

Simon was chief financial officer from 1974 to '76. He was appointed by President Gerald Ford to chair the Economic Policy Board, making him the chief spokesman for the administration on economic issues. In addition to serving as chairman of several economic and financial boards, he is a trustee of Lafayette College, the Mannes College of Music in New York City, Newark Academy, the National Gallery and the Smithsonian.

The administrator of the Federal Energy Administration from 1974 to '77, Zarb has rejoined Shearson Hayden Stone Inc. as executive vice president and a member of the firm's Board of Directors.

During his career with the federal government, Zarb served as executive director of the Cabinet-level energy resources council, where he directed the energy activities of all federal agencies, and as assistant to the president for energy affairs. He also served as a member of the President's Economic Policy Board and Domestic Council. His contributions to government were given special recognition by the senate and house in a "Tribute to Frank Zarb" in the Congressional Record.

William Simon

Zarb will speak on "The Energy Challenge — Our Survival as a Free Nation Depends on It" on March 5.

Hottelet, who has established himself in the top rank of news correspondents and political observers on television and radio, will speak on February 22. His topic will be "America's Role in World Affairs."

Since joining CBS News in 1944, Hottelet has covered many historical events including the Cold War, the Vietnam Conference and the Four Power Summit Meeting in Geneva, and the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. More recently, the Middle East crisis has taken him to both sides of the struggle and he has traveled the length of the Arab world.

All of the above lectures will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Main Auditorium.

"Human Rights" will be Goldberg's topic on April 26. His lecture will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the American Heritage Auditorium.

Goldberg has served as ambassador of the United States to the United Nations and also as secretary of labor. He has taught at Princeton University, Columbia University and American University. Now practicing law in Washington, D. C., he is the author of several articles in American legal publications and journals.

The spring series will open January 26-27 with the Seventh Annual Management Seminar. Sessions will be conducted by Dr. Morris Massey of the University of Colorado; Dr. Laurence Peter, author and educator; and Nancy Stidger of Stidger-Barry management consultants in Bloomington, Minn.

On February 15, Richard Parker, chairman of Parker Drilling Co. in Tulsa, will speak to the American

Harding Actors Represent State

A Harding group, sponsored by the department of speech, has been named to present "The Four Vaudevilles," one-act comedies by Anton Chekhov, 19th Century Russian playwright, in the regional competition of the American College Theater Festival. The contest, which will include entries from a five-state area, will be held February 5-10 in Fort Worth.

Harding was the only Arkansas college or university to advance to the regional competition and was chosen for performances in the state ACTF competition held November 28-December 2 at the University of Arkansas at Little Rock.

Charles Parker, Harding speech instructor, is director of the plays. Cast members include Tim Holder, junior music major from Searcy; Teresa Simmons, senior English major from Anaheim, Calif.; Parker; Bill Brant, assistant professor of speech at Harding; Susan Wallace, sophomore speech major from Searcy; Billie Verkler, wife of Harding sociology professor of Bill Verkler; Stewart Jones, a freshman from West Fork, Ark.; Keith Smith, freshman speech major from Searcy; Michelle Mitchell, a senior physical education major from Agoura, Calif. and Ray Wright, English instructor at Harding Academy.

Eight plays presented in state festivals in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico were chosen for the competition. They will compete for the opportunity to advance to the national festival in April at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Per-

Dallas Associated Women Present $1,200 to College

The Dallas Chapter of the Associated Women for Harding has recently given the college more than $1,200, proceeds from a fall bake sale.

One of the newer AWH groups, having formed in the spring of 1978, the Dallas group has planned many activities for coming months.

According to Mrs. Richard Burt, president of the club, January's program will be a book review at the Magic Pan restaurant. Millie Cooper, wife of aerobics specialist Dr. Ken Cooper, will have the February program. In March, a spring fashion show will be presented. A picnic for families at Turtle Creek will be the main event in April. Entertainment on that occasion will be a ventriloquist act.

Installation of new officers will be held in the home of Mrs. Edwin Bonneau in May.

Other officers are Mrs. Norman Bennett, vice president; Mrs. Ron Wages, secretary; and Mrs. David House, treasurer. Mrs. Max Reiboldt, second vice president, recently moved to Shreveport and will work with the AWH chapter there.

The club, whose goal for the spring is 78 members, now has 65 women from the Dallas vicinity.

Anyone in the Dallas area wishing to become an active member or to renew membership may send the $12 membership dues to Mrs. Burt at 915 St. Lukes, Richardson, Texas 76080. Phone (214) 235-1848.

forming Arts in Washington.

Holder was one of five Arkansas college students selected to participate in the Irene Ryan regional acting competition in Fort Worth. He will compete for a scholarship and a chance to advance to the national Irene Ryan acting competition, also to be held in Washington. The competition is named for the late actress who left funds in her estate for an acting scholarship program in connection with the American College Theater Festival. Miss Ryan played "Granny" on the "Beverly Hillbillies" television series.

Pouring over a spring schedule of classes, Richard Duke assists a student in arranging an appropriate listing of courses that will meet requirements for the longed-for sheepskin.

Academic Summer Programs Announced

Harding will offer two regular summer school sessions this year in addition to an intersession and specialized courses.

Academic summer sessions allow many college students to graduate early or lessen their academic load while pursuing an outside job during the regular school year.

A student attending the two regular sessions and intersession, a 13-day period of concentrated study, can earn a maximum of 17 credit hours. A total of 13 hours are allowed in the regular sessions and four in the intersession.

"The summer provides an accelerated program for the student who wants to complete his college education in three years rather than four," said Dr. James Carr, summer sessions director explained. "This is of great help for the student wanting to go to professional school or graduate school."

Carr also noted other positive arguments for summer school. "For the student who must work during the year, the summer program enables him to take a lighter load and still graduate in four years. It helps the student who has not done well in academics during the year also.

"We get greater utilization of the physical plant," Carr said, "through the summer sessions. We have a $40 million physical plant and it is better to use it than let it be idle."

Summer students are affected positively by the summer session, according to Carr, by improvement of grades, a decrease in food and housing costs and an advantage of simply finishing early.

"Students find that their grades go up because they have more time to study," he commented. "We also have a large number of married students and it is more economical for them."

Academics do not occupy all of the summer student's time because there are school-sponsored float trips, a dinner theatre and movies every weekend to provide breaks from study time. Excellent recreational facilities are also provided on campus.

Beginning the summer activities will be Intersession May 14-30. "One distinct advantage of intersession is that a student can earn up to four hours of credit before June 1 and still be available for the summer job market before many other colleges have dismissed for the summer vacation."

Regular sessions are scheduled for June 4-July 6 and July 9-August 10. More than 100 courses will be offered.

A special developmental program for incoming freshmen will be offered concurrently with the regular sessions. The purpose of the program is to assist students whose preparation for college work has been insufficient in strengthening their academic skills and better preparing themselves for further college experience.

For outstanding high school students, an advanced studies program will be offered June 4-August 10. To participate, a student must have at least 12 academic units of high school credit with an overall B average or better. Credit earned may be used toward a degree at Harding or may be accepted at other colleges or universities.

'Time of Day' Musicians Serve As Ambassadors for Harding

Musicians Mitch Hamric, Jon Woodroof and Ken Pulley, known to many as the "Time of Day," combine talents to tell college-bound students about Harding.

The "Time of Day" travels throughout the country performing for young people at banquets, youth rallies and schools. Since 1972, the trio has released three albums.

The three men combine a number of instruments in their act. Pulley specializes in bass, guitar and banjo. Hamric and Woodroof alternate on guitar, bass, harmonica and tambourine.

Hamric, a junior transfer from Alabama Christian College, is studying for a career in physical therapy. While at ACC, he was a member of the musical group, "Lighthouse." He is from Huntsville, Ala.

A junior public relations major, Pulley is a three-year veteran of the trio. The Warren, Ohio, native is the only married member of the group. His wife is the former Jill Woodruff of Searcy. He is a member of Alpha Tau social club.

Woodroof brings musical experience to the "Time of Day" from his family's quartet. The sophomore is from Searcy, a member of TNT social club, and a dean's list student.

Anyone desiring the trio for a program should contact the Harding Admissions Office, Box 762, Searcy, Ark. 72143 or call 268-6161 Ext. 407.

The Time of Day is composed of musicians [from left] Jon Woodroof of Searcy; Mitch Hamric of Huntsville, Ala.; and Ken Pulley of Warren, Ohio.

Pryor to Speak on Sex, Marriage, Family

"Sex, Marriage, and the Family — As God Would Have It" will be the theme presented to high school students at the 15th Annual Youth Forum set for April 13-14.

Neale Pryor, a professor of Bible at Harding, will be the speaker for the weekend program.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. in the American Heritage Lobby. From there, campus tours will be conducted throughout the morning.

At 10 a.m., the Troubadors and Conquerors are in charge of the program in the American Heritage Auditorium. The Troubadors, a Christian acting group from Harding, will be presenting dramatic interpretations. The Conquerors, a Harding group which works with Christian young people at youth rallies and other assemblies, will center their part of the program around world evangelism.

Membership-At-Large Offered In Associated Women's Group

A special membership program in the Associate Women for Harding is now available to women who do not live in an area where a club currently exists.

"Women across America are interested in the kind of Christian education which Harding supports but do not have the opportunity to be part of an auxiliary which aids in the work," said Dr. James Carr, assistant to the president. "For this reason," he explained, "we have developed an at-large membership in AWH."

The membership at-large program is divided into three levels as is a regular organized chapter.

Regular dues are $12 per year, all of which goes directly into the operating fund of Harding. A contribution of $100 in any calendar year entitles the donor to a life members, and a patron membership is $500.

Members will receive a newsletter twice a year, the Harding College Bulletin and a certificate of membership.

"Also, we wish to continue forming new chapters where there are at least 10 women wishing to begin a new club," noted Carr. "Last year we had six new chapters in five states."

Organized clubs include Northeast Arkansas in Jonesboro; Russellville, Ark.; Texarkana, Texas and Ark.; West Helena, Ark.; Ark-La-Tex in Shreveport, La., serving parts of Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas; Ashdown, Ark.; Bartlesville, Okla.; Benton, Ark.; Benton County, Ark.; Birmingham, Ala.; Cabot, Ark.; Conway, Ark.; Dallas, Texas; Gainesville, Fla.; Greenville, Miss.; Harrison, Ark.; Hope, Ark.; Hot Springs, Ark.; Little Rock, Ark.; Magnolia-Waldo, Ark.; Mountain Home, Ark. and Newport, Ark.

The AWH groups have projects ranging from gift fairs, where members sell their hand-made items, to fashion shows and dessert suppers.

All proceeds benefit Harding students. Clubs have sponsored projects to raise funds for departmental equipment and for furnishings in the campus buildings.

Those interested in starting a new chapter or paying dues for a membership-at-large may write to the AWH, Box 1224, Harding College, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Faculty Focus: Life With A Racquetball Father

Editor's Note: The following article on Dr. Dean Priest, chairman of the Harding Mathematics Department, is reprinted from the December 1978 issue of National Racquetball Magazine.

by Carolyn Priest

How can one small ball, one sawed off racquet and a four wall court change life so drastically for a family of seven? I contrast life at our house as it was two years ago with life as it is today and marvel at the impact of this game.

Prior to the introduction of this all engrossing sport my husband was content being a mathematics professor at Harding College and a sports spectator. When other wives complained of their deterred dinners due to a last minute tennis match or an extra hour spent on the golf course, I could proudly boast of a husband who would come directly from his math office to a prompt six o'clock meal. Despite the faculty basketball games being played at night I could smile inwardly, assured that Dean would be sitting in his easy chair, glued to his football game, contentedly eating his ice cream with hot fudge sauce.

But that all changed abruptly. When the college's new athletic center was finished, a coaching friend invited him to try out the new racquetball courts one evening. Feeling inept at sports he reluctantly agreed. To make the game more enticing and to add extra incentive his righthanded friend played with his left. Determined to give enough opposition to force him to play with his right hand Dean challenged him to game after game. He arrived home weary and spent, but instead of collapsing into his easy chair he pensively replayed all the games, concentrating on the angles of the shots and the returns he should have given. I was a little concerned over his enthusiasm for this new sport but went to bed assured that he would forget it by morning. I was wrong. He was back at the court the next day, trying out those shots he should have made, trying to discover a backhand stroke and seeking further instruction. When this continued day after day, I became alarmed. Was he actually becoming a racquetball enthusiast? He, who in years had played nothing more physical than Rook?

Challenge Change

Then I saw many changes taking place. His reading material was changing. The weekly news magazines and math journals were gradually taking second place to National Racquetball magazine and Steve Keeley's Complete Book of Racquetball. His reputation was changing, too. The students who had previously stopped me to comment on his ability as a math teacher were now stopping me to comment on his ability as a racquetball player. Their calls at night were no longer in interest of the challenge of a mathematic problem but rather in the challenge of a racquetball game. He even began to smell different. His arrival home in the evening was preannounced by his dirty gym bag bearing all of his sweaty, smelly gym clothes. My work load changed, too. The mountains of laundry that piled up were enough to dishearten any mother of five.

As if it were not enough to center his evenings around racquetball, his early mornings were given to the phone calls necessary to reserve the courts and line up players for the afternoon. We no longer became alarmed when these calls brought loud laments because we soon learned that the bad news was probably not the death of a relative but a cancelled racquetball game or a fully scheduled court.

Our everyday lives were changing and so were our special days. Those few quiet Christmas days spent with my parents in Tennessee gave place to several frantic 150 mile roundtrips to the nearest racquetball courts in the middle Tennessee area — a small price to pay for staying in shape during the holidays, I was told. No longer were the usual clothing items appropriate for birthday and Christmas gifts, but there were the more desired gym bags, gym shoes, warmup suits and racquetballs. Then there was our eighteenth wedding anniversary when I was presented a lovely package bearing, not the expected sheer night gown, but — you guessed it — a set of his and her aluminum racquets. Accepting this as my clue to learn more about the game I began a light schedule of three hours a week and soon became invigorated, more alert and above all better able to communicate with my husband on his favorite subject. Our recreation, which had consisted of a late TV movie, a game of cards or a visit with friends, was becoming centered around racquetball. A game of doubles now took precedence over any other evening of fun. Our conversation topics were turning to ways we could improve our game.

Where Is Dear Old Dad?

My peak of concern over the extent to which racquetball had invaded our home was reached late one night when we had returned from a game of mixed doubles. After turning off the light and collapsing into bed Dean was whispering a "sweet nothing" in my ear. I barely caught the words "Remember, dear, your overhand shot is a low percentage shot." It was then that I knew he was completely possessed. I turned on the light to look at him. He didn't even look the same. His 180 pounds had diminished to 155, just what he weighed when we married. His muscles were firm, his waist had gone from 36 inches to 33½ inches and his eyes were sparkling with the thrill of a new challenge. I turned off the light and resigned myself to no longer being married to a sports spectator but rather to a sports enthusiast.

It was not a surprise when he announced that he was entering the racquetball tournament in the novice doubles with his coaching friend. Nor was it surprising when he came in proudly bearing the first trophy ever won in his 38 years. Nor will it be surprising when he announces that he will enter this year or next or the next.

The gleam in the eye of our seven-year-old son when he saw that trophy let me know that racquetball has not yet run its full course in our family. He was soon begging to learn the game and one of his main joys is going to the courts with his daddy to get a few pointers. Our 15-year-old daughter became intrigued with the game and placed second in her high school racquetball tournament. Even our 12-year-old daughter has an uncanny interest in racquetball and her main request now is for a racquet of her own just like her daddy's. There are seven members of our family and each of us has an interest in the game in varying degrees. Who would have thought that all this athletic activity started with a man who had not participated in sports since junior high football?

As I think back on the "good ole days" before racquetball was introduced to our family, I am not so sure they were all that good after all. We were a bit duller, a bit fatter, and a good bit less happy. So I reluctantly relent to the resplendence of racquetball!

Bison Basketball Leadership Provided by Senior, Soph

Pacing the Bisons' attack on the basketball courts of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference this season are a senior and a sophomore.

Stan Eckwood, the senior, is a forward-guard from Brinkley, Ark., who was an All-AIC and NAIA District 17 performer last season.

Tim Flatt, the sophomore, is a 6-0 guard who finds happiness is shooting the 20-foot jumper.

Between the two of them, they are averaging over 36 points a game, whether it be against an AIC opponent or non-conference foe. Individually, each one is one of the top shooters in the conference.

Eckwood averaged 21.7 points per game during the first half of the season, breaking the 30-point barrier three times. He led the Bisons in scoring in all but three of their 12 games before the holiday break.

"Stan is a good all-around performer," coach Jess Bucy said. "He led the AIC in scoring last season, but he was also one of the leading rebounders. For a 6-4 player in the AIC, that's impressive."

Playing against two conference opponents in the first week of December, Eckwood hit 31 and 30 points, respectively, for a two-game total of 61 points. It resulted in Eckwood being named the Southland Life AIC Player of the Week.

Before the season began, Eckwood was considered one of the top players in the AIC, and he assumed that ranking with respect. The 171-pounder, who can play either inside or outside, has scored 260 points and pulled down 114 rebounds this season.

Career-wise, Eckwood has scored 1,080 points to become the 11th Bison cager to exceed the magic 1,000 point total.

A business major, Flatt started last season as a freshman, and averaged 14.7 points a game. He's increased that average to 16.0 this season and is a leader on the floor for the Bisons.

But shooting isn't the only aspect of Flatt's game that pleases Bucy. A member of the Harding track team in the spring, Flatt is one of the fastest guards ever to play for the Bisons. And that suits Bucy's game plan this season.

Harding is emphasizing speed this season with an average of 6-foot-3 in height throughout the starting lineup.

"We like to play a running game," the coach said, "and so Tim fits very well in our offensive attack. He is a good shooter."

Flatt has led the Bisons in scoring twice this season, with totals of 17 and 26 points. He broke the 30-point barrier once last season for his highest collegiate total.

The Bisons posted a 6-6 record before breaking for the holidays.

Gail Gregg

Jeff Earnhart

Gregg, Earnhart Named To NAIA All-America List

Two Harding football players, tight end Gail Gregg and center Jeff Earnhart, have been named All-America honorable mention by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

A senior from Columbiana, Ohio, Gregg led the Bisons with 17 receptions for 260 yards. He was a unanimous choice of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference coaches for the All-AIC and NAIA District 17 First Teams.

Gregg caught 54 passes for 704 yards during his four-year career for the Bisons. He lettered four times, and was a three-year starter at tight end.

A senior from Cahokia, Ill., Earnhart was the quarterback of the offensive line. In addition to the NAIA honor, Earnhart was selected to the College Division All-America Academic second team sponsored by the College Sports Information Directors of America. Also a three-year starter, Earnhart is an accounting major and carries a 3.95 grade point average.

Combining that intelligence with strength, Earnhart is a good one-on-one competitor, according to Bison coach John Prock. He was an All-AIC and NAIA District 17 selection.

"We're certainly proud of these two players," the head coach said. "They were very valuable to us this season and we'll miss them next year."

Swimming Outlook

Youth Dominates Buffaloes

Youthfulness plus a new head coach mark the primary characteristics of the Bisons' 1978-79 swimming team.

The team, which includes 11 freshmen, will be coached by Jack Boustead, who joined the Harding physical education department faculty last summer as swimming instructor and coach.

"We're basically a young squad," the 46-year-old native of Detroit, Mich., said. "And, for most of our freshmen, this will be their first time to swim competitively."

In addition to the 11 freshmen, the team includes four sophomores and one junior. The experienced squadmen include Vernon Beach of Searcy; Wendell Cave of Gainesville, Fla.; Chris Cherry of St. Clair Shores, Mich.; Chris Davis of Searcy and Carl Waites of Dearborn, Mich.

The Bisons were second place finishers in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference meet last season and Boustead believes that the team has "a lot of potential for the future."

The freshmen members of the squad include Phillip Allen of Jeffersonville, Ind.; Russell Burkett of Mobile, Ala.; Cory Childs of Wichita, Kan.; Bradley Craig of Wichita, Kan.; James Davenport of Waldon, N.Y.; Steve Froelich of North Syracuse, N.Y.;

Jeffrey Perry of Wichita, Kan.; John Qualls of Royal Oak, Mich.; Richard Reynolds of Searcy; Scott Smith of Searcy and Dobson Waites of Norcross, Ga.

The Bisons swam in five meets prior to the Christmas holidays, taking victories in two of these meets.

The 1979 schedule of the Water Buffaloes includes a January 30 meet with Henderson State University and Southern Arkansas University at Arkadelphia, a February 3 meet with SAU and the University of Arkansas-Little Rock at Magnolia, Hendrix February 9 at Searcy, Arkansas Tech University and Henderson February 15 at Arkadelphia, UALR February 17 at Searcy, and the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference championships February 23-24 in Russellville, Ark.

"Our top swimmers have included Smith in the backstroke, Carl Waites in the freestyle, Cherry in both the freestyle and backstroke, Beach in the butterfly and freestyle, and Froelich in the breaststroke," Boustead commented. "I feel like Froelich has a good chance to place in the conference meet and I know that the others will also be contenders in their respective races."

The Bisons won the AIC swimming trophy in 1976.
