Awards, Degrees Presented as 380 Graduate

Dr. William Teague, vice president of Kerr-McGee Corporation, received Harding's Distinguished American Citizen Award before addressing 380 graduating seniors at May 11 commencement ceremonies.

President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. made the presentation, saying, "Harding University honors William J. Teague as a distinguished American citizen in acknowledgment of his lifelong, constructive support of American ideals, as evidenced by his outstanding business accomplishments, his dynamic Christian leadership, his great interest in our American heritage and his love and service to his fellow man."

The 52-year-old Teague was vice president for development at Harding 1957-59 and has also served in executive positions at Abilene Christian University and Pepperdine University.

Recognized as the Distinguished Teachers of 1980 were Dr. Gary Elliott, chairman of the English department, Dr. Tom Howard, assistant professor of political science, and Dr. Wyatt Jones, director of graduate studies.

Several students also received special academic recognition.

Nancy Ann Dawkins of Ketchikan, Alaska, and Dan Sears of Bloomington, Ind., won top honor scholarship awards from Alpha Chi national honorary society. Mrs. Dawkins had a perfect 4.0 grade point and Sears had a 3.99.

Special awards included the Ganus awards, to the male and female students with the highest academic averages for the year, to Mark Piller of Neenah, Wis., and Jennifer Ann Robison of Moundsville, W. Va.; the Ray Kinslow Science Award to Terry Lessly of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; the Charles Pitner Mathematics Award to Mrs. Dawkins, and the Morton Utley Awards for academic improvement to Angelyn Renniger of Birmingham, Ala., and Bill Gammill of Earle, Ark.

The M. E. Berryhill athletic award was presented to Scott Carstens of Salina, Kan., and the Duane Priest premedical memorial scholarship to Bill Hefley of Little Rock.

Ceremonies were held for the first time in the university's new 3,400-seat George S. Benson Auditorium, completed this spring.

Degrees granted included the master of education, bachelor of arts, bachelor of science, bachelor of science in nursing, bachelor of business administration, bachelor of social work and associate of arts.

After commencement exercises, Harding President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. chats with commencement speaker and Distinguished Citizen Award recipient Bill Teague and Board Chairman Roy Sawyer of Sardis, Miss.

13-in-1 Workshop Set for August 4-7

Final preparations are being made for the 1980 Harding University 13-In-1 Workshop, to be held August 4-7.

The second 13-in-1 workshop will feature individual programs on The Christian Home, Biblical Studies, Singles, Christian Evidences, Church Growth, Christian Schools, Nursery, Preschool, Primary, Juniors, Youth Ministry, Adults, and Educational Directors and Supervisors.

Each workshop will provide a minimum of 16 hours of intensive instruction. Participants are encouraged to select one of the 13 topics and attend each of the related lectures in order to receive the maximum benefit from the 13-in-1 program.

"We are looking forward to the largest crowd of any workshop Harding has ever had," said Dr. Jerry Jones, chairman of the Bible Department and director of the workshop. "We have already had tremendous response with more than 500 reservations in so far, and we're getting calls for housing every day. We are looking for over 7,000 people, from over 40 states, on the closing night of the program when Gary Beauchamp of Dallas, Texas and Batsell Barrett Baxter of Nashville, Tenn. will speak on 'Jesus Is for All the World,'" said Jones.

Other speakers for the all-together programs at night include Landon Saunders of Houston and Wayne Kilpatrick of Birmingham. Joe Beam of Montgomery, Ala., will give morning devotionals 8-8:30 a.m., and Nick Boone of Madison, Tenn., will lead singing for the all-together sessions.

The 13 simultaneous workshops will be conducted on the University campus and at the Downtown, Cloverdale, College and Westside Church of Christ buildings.

Several special departmental reunions are scheduled throughout the workshop, including Athletics, Christian Communications Program, History, Home Economics, Journalism, Mathematics, Nursing and Speech. Details will be available at registration.

The registration fee is $7.50 for all three days. This amount includes a syllabus for the workshop. An unlimited number of participants from one congregation will be accepted for a group rate of $100.

Air conditioned and non-air conditioned dormitory rooms are available for $5 and $3 respectively. Participants should bring linens and soap. A complete list of area motels and restaurants will also be provided upon request. For campers, a KOA campground is located near Searcy.

The new Benson Auditorium will be registration headquarters. To make reservations, write the Housing Office, Box 937, Harding University, Searcy, Arkansas, or call 501-268-6161, Ext. 448. For more information, contact the Harding Bible Department, Box 939, Harding University, Searcy, Arkansas, or call 501-268-6161, Ext. 448.

Harding Presentation, Publications Win Awards

Harding University has been named the recipient of four awards of excellence in Honors Competition of the Southwest District of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE).

The announcement was made by awards chairman Mary Ellen Bowers of Texas A & M University at the annual conference in Corpus Christi, Texas April 16.

Awards were presented for entries in the categories of multi-media presentation and publications.

In the multi-media category, "Harding - It's a Whole New World," a 15-minute color slide presentation with narration, was recognized. The presentation was produced by Mike James, director of photography and the script preparation was by James.

In publications, the student recruitment folder, "Harding," and the student recruitment periodical, "The Harding Report," were recognized, along with a university fund-raising brochure, "Harding - Building Better Christians and Citizens."

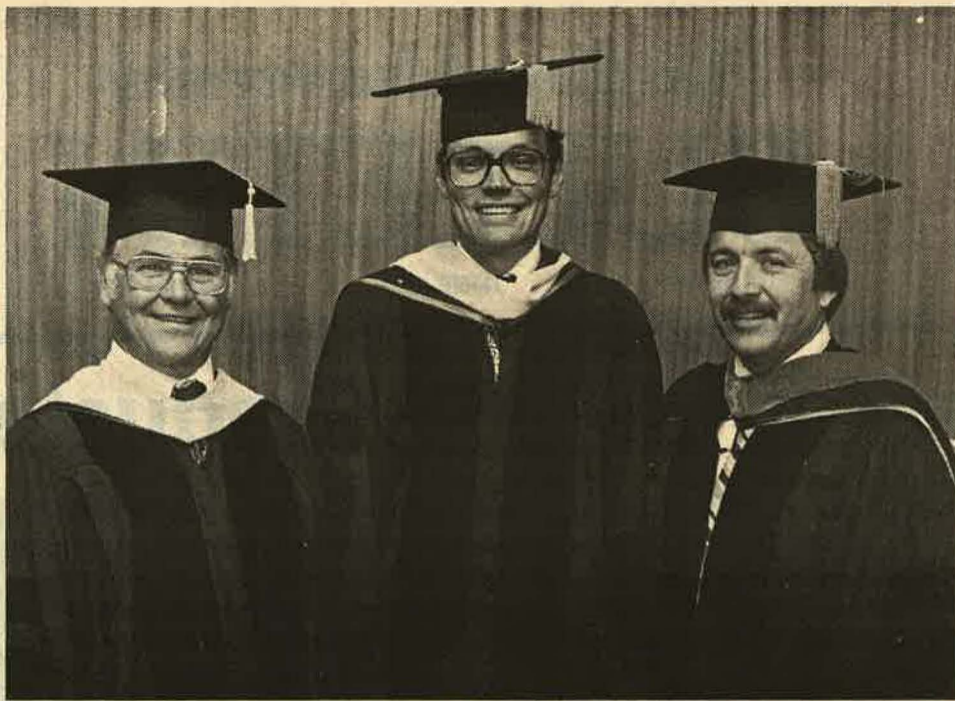

"Harding," a 24-page full color brochure, was designed by Stan Green and is used as the primary recruitment brochure by the university's admissions office. "The Harding Report" is a four-times-a-year direct mail piece directed to prospective high school students. Andrea Mannen is editor of the publication which was designed by graphic artist Chuck Hicks.

The fund raising publication, which is being used by the university in the current Phase IV campaign, is a two-

HGSR Graduates 56 Two Doctorates Conferred

Fifty-six students graduated May 17 from the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn. Dr. Jerry Jones, Harding University Bible chairman, spoke on "Practical Advice for Preachers" at the commencement exercises.

The graduates are planning to serve the Lord in 17 states and in nine foreign countries. Degrees conferred and number of candidates for each included: master of arts, eight; master of arts in religion, 20; master of theology, 26, and doctor of ministry, two.

received the D.M. degree, becoming the second and third students to graduate from Harding with a doctoral degree. Casey has completed 17 years at the Memphis campus. The doctor of ministry program was begun in the fall of 1977.

Honor graduates included Allen Black, winner of the M.Th. Academic Award with a 3.96 grade point average, and Randy Chesnutt, winner of the M.A. Academic Award with a 3.90 GPA.

This marked the 22nd annual commencement at the Graduate School.

Orientation Scheduled For Freshmen, Transfers

The second early orientation session for all new students and transfers who have been accepted to Harding for the fall semester will be held July 17-19, according to Dr. James Carr, director of summer programs.

The session will offer tours of the campus, a chance to make new friends, and an opportunity to talk with teachers and administration officials in planning a schedule of classes.

The CLEP test (College Level Examination Program) will be given on July 17. Additional information may be obtained from Dr. Tom Howard, director of testing.

Tryouts for positions on the Bison varsity cheerleading squad will be held for the freshmen and transfers on July 18.

The $10 registration fee for the orientation includes housing in university residence halls. Participants should furnish linens and towels. Meals may be purchased in the campus cafeterias.

A special orientation for parents of new students is also offered during the session. Information will be presented on college procedures, and questions will be answered. For parents, a $3 registration fee is charged, and residence hall housing is available at $4 per night.

For more information, contact Dr. James Carr, director of summer session, Box 1224, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Local Firm Matches $1000 Gift to Harding

A $1,000 matching gift from the Ernst & Whinney public accounting firm has been made to the Harding School of Business.

The joint announcement was made by J. E. Cox, partner in charge of the Little Rock office of Ernst & Whinney, Harding President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. and Dr. David Burks, dean of the School of Business.

"This generous contribution was the result of alumni who are Ernst & Whinney employees giving a total of $1,000 to Harding and having it matched by a gift from the company," explained Ganus.

"Ernst & Whinney's Matching Gift Program is part of its broad support for higher education," said Cox.

The funds will be used for the equipping of an accounting classroom in the new School of Business Building. Construction on the proposed facility will begin in 1981.

Hefley Receives Duane Priest Scholarship

Bill F. Hefley Jr., a junior premedical student at Harding University, has been named the 1980 recipient of the Duane Priest memorial scholarship, according to Dr. Don England, chairman of the Premedical Advisory Committee.

Hefley was presented the scholarship during commencement exercises May 11.

The biochemistry major is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hefley Sr. of Little Rock. He has served as vice president of Kappa Sigma Kappa men's club, Ju Go Ju club beau, and a member of the school's Food Services Committee.

The scholarship fund was established by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Priest of Memphis, Tenn., after their son, Duane, was killed in an automobile accident in September 1969 as he was entering his senior year of premedical courses at Harding.

Based on a criteria of Christian character, academic ability and financial need, the award is presented annually to a student planning a career in medicine. Nominations are made by the Harding Premedical Advisory Committee.

Student Writers Honored

Harding's Bison student newspaper captured third place in general excellence at the annual meeting of the Arkansas College Press Association meeting in Little Rock in April and seven individual awards went to staff members.

The paper received second places in editorials and news coverage and honorable mention in the headlines category overall. The papers of University of Central Arkansas and Ouachita Baptist University took the top honors.

Individually, Miss Linda Hilbun, a junior from Memphis, received a first in sports column, second in sports feature and third in sports news.

Allen Completes Books During Sabbatical Leave

The completion of two books, The Foolishness of God and Survey of Hebrews has been announced by Jimmy Allen, associate professor of Bible at Harding University.

Allen was on sabbatical leave during the spring semester and devoted his efforts to completing the manuscripts.

The Foolishness of God is Allen's seventh published book. Survey of Hebrews, a commentary on the book, is planned for fall publication.

Allen is a full-time instructor in the Bible department and maintains an active schedule of evangelistic meetings. A 1952 alumnus of Harding, he earned a master's degree from the Harding Graduate School of Religion and joined the university faculty in 1959.

He is the recipient of an honorary doctor of humanities degree from Oklahoma Christian College.

Other books he has authored are The Need for Revival, Persuading Men to Receive Jesus, Survey of Romans, and Survey of I Corinthians. Two of his works, The American Crisis and What Is Hell Like? are now out of print.

The new books will be available at the Harding Bookstore.

Growing Interests, Facilities Create New Drama Major

by Andrea Mannen

One famous line from Shakespeare's "As You Like It" says, "All the world's a stage." At Harding, the stage is a world — of opportunity, fun and education.

While some students decide on a career in drama, many others choose to use stage productions as extracurricular activities.

"We have a good program for people to be involved in continually if they want to participate," explained Charles Parker, drama director. "Last fall, we had 14 one-act plays and several interpreters theatres in addition to "The Sound of Music" and "The Rainmaker," he continued. This spring more than a dozen productions have been staged, including George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" and a folk play entitled "Master Pierre Patelin."

Looking back over plays of recent years — such as Shakespeare's "Othello," Neil Simon's "Star Spangled Girl" and a variety of musicals: "Annie Get Your Gun," "1776," "My Fair Lady," "Brigadoon," and "Fiddler on the Roof" — Parker feels that it is the wide spectrum of offerings that involves students from many other fields of study. More than 100 participated in last fall's musical production.

Facilities for the drama program have increased recently with the completion of the George S. Benson Auditorium. The 80 by 66-foot fan-shaped stage with orchestra pit will be used for major productions while the Administration Auditorium and the 175-seat Little Theatre will continue to be used for the smaller plays.

Servant-girl Teresa Bonner has an intimate conversation with a Bulgarian soldier, portrayed by Keith Smith, during a spring performance of George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man."

For those who work on the sets, makeup and properties or for those who actually appear in the cast, the long hours spent in preparation seem worthwhile, according to Parker. "One advantage," he related, "is the good camaraderie which develops while working together. That's not to say that there aren't problems, but in our productions, the major focus is on interpersonal relationships."

Parker thinks that producing quality entertainment is also a main consideration at Harding. "Here, we have strong commitments as Christians to produce plays that glorify God," he explained. A strong tradition has developed to produce above-average plays, and I think that the people who have attended have been very well satisfied," he said. Judges at the annual American College Theatre festival seem to agree with him. Harding productions have received high marks each time they have entered the contest. Last year, the university's entry represented Arkansas at the regional festival in Fort Worth. And this year's play, "The Rainmaker," received awards in the state contest, including best scene design, best acting award and best properties.

Beginning next fall, a new drama major will be instituted. Although the stage is a major emphasis, Parker points out that the broad-based curriculum requiring 65 academic hours covers other related areas in speech, English and art. "With a drama major, we feel that our graduates should be able to do more than just act. They should be able to stage a play by themselves, know all the aspects of technical theatre, how to budget and manage a production, how to build a set, make costumes and direct."

These abilities, Parker feels, will allow the students to respond to the increased interest in drama across the country whether they teach, work with community theatre programs or pursue further professional experience.
