Homecoming Activities Set for November 8-10

With university status in effect for the first time, Rodgers and Hammerstein's immortal "Sound of Music" on tap for musical entertainment, the Bisons and Ouachita Tigers set for their unpredictable gridiron clash, and reunions galore, 1979 Homecoming shows advance possibilities of drawing an unusually large number of participants on November 8-10.

The honor classes of 1929 and 1954, 50- and 25-year classes respectively, will be recognized, along with all other classes of years ending in four or nine. Several members of the '29 class will attend the Black and Gold Banquet as special guests.

Alumni may expect to find no changes in flavor of the campus activities, but the "University" signs will no doubt bring full realization of the Alma Mater's latest advance.

Fall Enrollment Hits 3000 Mark

It was a good possibility, but nobody knew for sure until September 6 that Harding University would have an enrollment of over 3,000 students.

Dan Stupar of Escondido, Calif., hit the magic number by registering for classes. By the September 17 deadline, 3,010 had signed up for classes, setting a new all-time record. The final total will be less than this as some students will drop classes.

The record enrollment set last fall was 2,879.

"Dormitory space is filled to over normal capacity in all ten residence halls, the married students' apartments and in Harding's off-campus facilities," said Ike Hamilton of the Housing Office. "We're crowded, but we have housed everybody," he continued.

The university's daily chapel time has also experienced some change, resulting from the population growth.

"With the George S. Benson Auditorium scheduled for completion during the late fall, the student body is now having to meet in three different places on campus for chapel," said Harding President Clifton Ganus Jr.

Freshmen are meeting in the Main Auditorium, sophomores in the American Heritage Auditorium, and juniors and seniors in the New Gym.

"So we are looking forward to the time when our entire student body can assemble in the new facility," Ganus continued.

The Benson Auditorium will have a seating capacity of 3,400.

The weekend will open officially with the crowning of the Homecoming queen at a pep rally at Rhodes Memorial Field House Thursday night.

The opening presentation of "Sound of Music" will be at 8:15 p.m. Thursday. The show will also be presented at the same hour Friday and Saturday. Reserved seat tickets are $3.00 and may be ordered through the Alumni Office.

Seniors Vicky Durrington of Wichita, Kan., and Bob Perkins of Rochester, N.Y., are cast in the roles of Maria and Capt. Von Trapp. Director Chuck Parker has selected others for leading roles to include Kerry Carter of Ft. Wayne, Ind., as Mother Abess, Karl Wendt of Shreveport as Franz, and Al McClurg of Joliet, Ill., as Rolf.

The von Trapp children will be played by Teresa Priest, a Searcy freshman, and Harding Academy students Greg Henderson, Jill Smith, Britt Thomas, Anna Conley, Beth Stanley and Jenny Parker.

Dr. Harold Hazelip, dean of the Graduate School in Memphis, will speak at the Black and Gold Banquet at 5:30 p.m. Friday in the Heritage Cafeteria. Bob Helsten will serve as master of ceremonies. Tickets are $4.50 each and may also be ordered through the alumni office.

While the banquet is in progress, the student body will hold a chili supper on the front campus lawn.

Alpha Psi Omega and Campus

Alumni planning to attend Homecoming on November 8-10 may look forward to seeing several changes on campus, including the new Harding University shirts like the one displayed by President Clifton Ganus Jr., left, and William Bridges, Bookstore manager.

players will host a reunion in the Blue Room of the Heritage building at 11 p.m. Friday. All alumni are invited.

Saturday reunions scheduled include the following: Delta Chi Omega, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., dutch treat luncheon at Bonanza Steak House; Galaxy, 10-11:30 a.m., breakfast, Bible 207; Gata, 8:30-10:30 a.m., College Church Fellowship Room, breakfast, $1.50; Ju Go Ju, 9-11 a.m., tea, Trophy Room; Koinonia, 7-8 a.m., breakfast, Bible 108; Ko Jo Kai, 8:30-10:30 a.m., breakfast, New Women's Dorm Study Lounge; Zeta Rho, 8:30-11:00 a.m., breakfast, Ray Muncy home, 1002 N. Hayes.

The Class of '54 will be in charge of Alumni Chapel beginning at 9:30 Saturday in the Heritage Auditorium. The annual parade will begin at 11 a.m. and will wind through downtown Searcy, ending at Alumni Field. Several area bands have been asked to participate with the University Thundering Herd. Special pre-game and halftime shows are being arranged.

During the final presentation of the Sound of Music, the annual Blackout variety show will be held in two shows, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m., at Rhodes Memorial Field House. Tickets, at 50 cents each, may be ordered in advanced or purchased at the door.

All alumni have been asked to register at Alumni Central in the Heritage lobby, where an information center, announcement board and message center will be manned.

Dr. Jimmy Carr, assistant to the president, has spearheaded a student-faculty committee to make plans for the weekend. Committee members are Chuck Parker, Monte Cox, Christye Hooten, Kathryn Campbell, Larry Long, Ed Wilson, Tom Alexander, Eddie Baggett, Barbara Barnes, David Crouch, Stan Green, Joe McReynolds, John Ryan, Jim Henderson, Tom Maddox, Bob Coker, Becky Moore, Richard Duke, Chuck Hicks, Alice Ann Kellar, Lisa Phillips, Bruce and Kim Binkley, Jan Fleming, Ken Moorner, Tracy Shacklett, Terry Blain, Barry Blain, Laura Brooker and Dennis Swayne.

Appointments and promotions at Harding University have been announced by the school's president, Clifton Ganus Jr.

Dr. Ted Altman has been named to the newly-created position of vice president for student affairs.

Altman joined the Harding staff in 1963. He has served as dean of students since 1972. A native of Beaver, Okla., he and his wife, Barbara, have three children. The 45-year-old Altman is on the Camp Wyldewood Board and is an elder at the West Side Church of Christ.

University Awarded Grant for Town Meeting Series

A $3,204 grant to fund a 10-city "Constitutional Convention Town Meeting Series" has been awarded to Harding by the Arkansas Endowment for the Humanities, according to Dr. Joseph Pryor, vice president for academics.

Co-directors of the project are Dr. Tom Howard, assistant professor of political science and director of institutional testing, and David Crouch, director of alumni relations.

The project will provide a dialogue among the general public, academia and political representatives on the question: what changes would result from the proposed constitution of 1980? The series of meetings will begin October 1 and conclude no later than December 15 in the north central Arkansas legislative districts 1, 48, 49, 50, 51, 57 and 74.

"The Arkansas Endowment for the Humanities is interested in involving the citizens of Arkansas in the discussion of this extremely important subject," Howard said. "We will strive to look objectively at the proposed constitutional changes in the context of how the people will be affected. The goal is to involve the people."

Participants for each town meeting will include a constitutional convention delegate, a local political leader and an academic resource person. The delegate and local leader will discuss the major changes of the proposed constitution, reasons for the changes and how such changes may affect members of the community.

The educator, who will serve as a reactor, will discuss those changes which may have ethical implications or are of other philosophical concern.

Serving as the academic resource persons will be members of the Harding and Arkansas State University-Beebe faculties.

From Harding will be Dr. Howard, Virgil Lawyer, associate professor of history; Dr. Fred Jewell, associate professor of history; Dr. Joe Segraves, professor of history; and from ASU-Beebe, Mike Hammond, assistant professor of social science, and Sybil Mitchell, assistant professor of social science.

"This project affords a tremendous opportunity to be of service to our communities," Howard said. "It will provide a forum for the people to make known their feelings about the proposed document."

Howard emphasized the town meeting series is not a project designed to advocate support, for or against, the proposed constitution. "Rather, this is grass roots democracy where the people can meet and talk with their constitutional delegates and officials and let them know of their concerns. Their involvement and their reactions are important."

"Also, of particular importance, is the role of the academic resource person. Particularly, as we assess the proposed changes, beyond the legal implications, and how they will affect our people, now and in future generations."

Cities selected as locations for the Town Meeting Series are DeWitt, October 2; Bald Knob, October 9; Cabot, October 16; Stuttgart, October 23; Des Arc, October 30;

Jacksonville, November 5; Lonoke, November 12; England, November 26; Beebe, December 4, and Searcy, December 11.

Preparations Finalized For Bible Lectureship

Final preparations have been made for the 56th annual Harding University Bible Lectureship, to be held on the campus October 2-5.

Using the overall theme "Let the Earth Hear His Voice," 40 speakers will deliver lectures and teach classes.

Night lectures will be delivered by Charles Coil of Florence, Ala.; Charles Hodge of Fort Worth, Texas; Richard Rogers of Lubbock, Texas, and Ira North of Nashville, Tenn.

The Harding Academy Chorus, Harding Chorale and A Cappella Chorus will perform for 30 minutes prior to each night's lecture on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, respectively.

The Wednesday through Friday schedule of classes will begin at 8 a.m. and conclude at 4:50 p.m. Video taped classes will also be available.

Concluding the Lectureship week will be the annual Family Weekend activities, designed for the entire family.

Activities open Saturday with an open house on campus. Entertainment by the Time of Day, and Belles and Beaux, Harding musical groups, will perform, and the annual free barbecue will be offered at noon in both cafeterias.

The Harding Bisons will meet Arkansas Tech University at 7:30 p.m., and a devotional around the lily pool will conclude the day's activities at 10.

Harding's Resident Delegate

The Constitution Should Reflect the Times

Tom Howard spent much of his summer at the Arkansas Constitutional Convention observing great historical contrasts.

The Harding social science professor believes that the changing times have brought about the need to remodel the state's 104-year-old constitution.

"The major modifications we made in the proposed constitution reflect the 20th century," explained the delegate. "Today we are confronted with problems of a clean and healthy environment, nuclear waste, and pollution of chemical dumps. These were not an issue in 1874, because they didn't exist," he continued.

Howard pointed out that the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant incident occurred while the convention was in session and provided the delegates a vivid illustration of the context in which they were working.

To change many parts in the 12 articles and three schedules which comprise the document required great debate, according to the 38-year-old Howard.

"Many of us wanted a balanced budget to be mandated by the constitution. Again," he maintained, "this is a sign of the times. We used the examples of the financial situations of New York and Cleveland to debate our point. The problem is simply spending more than you take in."

While Howard and the majority of his constituents felt needs for an update of the manuscript, they worked under the constant concern that too much change or one controversial decision might defeat the entire draft.

"We weren't willing to tie the whole document to one issue," said Howard. "The usury debate was a hot one, but we decided to make it a separate issue and let the people decide whether to limit interest rates to five or ten percent above the federal discount rate."

"Our main concern was writing a document that people would ratify, because it meets their needs and protects their rights. I feel that what we came up with goes to great lengths to protect the rights of individuals. It attempts to make government more responsible," he stated.

Howard, who received his doctorate in politics and education, does acknowledge parts of the document that are still applicable to needs of people in the 20th century.

"In the education article, nothing was basically changed, only a few additions were made to deal with children with learning disabilities and exceptional children," he said.

And what Howard termed "one of the most fiery issues" will also remain unaltered.

"Presently, the Highway Commission and the Game and Fish Commission have constitutional autonomy," he stated. "One group of delegates wished to take away their independence, granted by the Blackwell amendment of the 1950's, but it was voted to keep them autonomous."

After acclimating the people of the state to the proposed laws and getting feedback during the coming months, the delegates will reconvene next summer to finalize the draft.

However, the District 49 delegate feels the current draft is acceptable. "We retained the good from 1879, and really got the best of both worlds," he said.

In November of 1980, Arkansans will have the opportunity to decide if they agree.

Student Publications Earn All-American Ratings

Harding's two student publications, the 1979 Petit Jean yearbook and the Bison newspaper, have received All-American ratings from the National Scholastic Press Association, Associate Collegiate Press.

The Bison received the top marks of distinction in every area judged, including coverage and content, writing and editing, editorial leadership and opinion features, physical appearance and visual communication, and photography and graphics.

Edited by Karen Davis of Silvis, Illinois, the weekly publication featured editorials, the humorous "Fifth Column" (a satire on different aspects of college life), a review of current movies and plays, and sports features. Dr. Neil Cope sponsored the newspaper for 43 years before retiring last May.

In the judge's summary comments the following statement was made: "When a publication can communicate a community's feelings, experiences, progress, negative ideas, concepts and flavor, it has met its responsibilities. In every definable way, the Bison has met, and exceeded, this criteria."

It was the 20th consecutive year that the Harding yearbook has earned top ratings. Of all yearbooks judged from colleges and universities throughout the country, three percent are given the All-American rating.

Edited by Kay Williams of Birmingham, Alabama, the book also received marks of distinction in the areas of photography, copy, display and concept. The brown, leatherlike, 432-page volume featured a blue nameplate and centered around the theme, "Insights and Afterthoughts."

"We are delighted to receive this notice, even though it will be about six weeks before we learn how the book fared among publications in the state of Arkansas," Dr. Joseph E. Pryor, yearbook adviser, explained.

The reviewing judge described the yearbook as "A busy, tightly-packed and enjoyable book that also informs."

Harding Proclaimed a University on August 27

On August 27, more than 1,000 people gathered on the front lawn of the campus to witness the official proclamation of "Harding University" and to place signatures on papers designated for a special time capsule.

Searcy Mayor Jack Wiseman and other civic leaders joined President Emeritus George Benson, Board of Trustees members James Cone and D. P. Burton, and Dean Emeritus L. C. Sears as distinguished guests.

President Clifton Ganus welcomed the group and read the proclamation which states:

"By decision of the Harding Board of Trustees and in accordance with the requirements of the State of Arkansas and of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, be it known to all those present that on this date, the 27th day of August, 1979, Harding College does legally and officially become

HARDING UNIVERSITY

To the end that we renew again the purpose of Harding as an institution of higher learning — to give students an education of high quality which will lead to a philosophy of life consistent with Christian ideals—we do affix our signatures in pledge thereof."

Two copies of the document were signed by Ganus and will be signed by Board Chairman Roy Sawyer of Sardis, Miss., who was unable to attend the ceremony. One copy will be on display while the other will be placed in an historic time capsule.

After the audience was led in prayer by Vice President for Academic Affairs Joseph Pryor, the Chorale and A Cappella Chorus presented religious musical selections. The combined choruses joined with the Bison Band in performing "America the Beautiful."

Comments were made by Cone, Benson and Student Association President Kenny Stamatis, and the audience was invited to sign sheets of paper, to be placed in the historic time capsule later this fall.

This special capsule will contain 1,126 signatures, the declaration, the first University school catalog, a Harding medallion, an historical tabloid from the 50th anniversary celebration, a Petit Jean yearbook, Citizen and Bison newspapers, and photographs made of those present at the University Day.

The container will be sealed, encased in concrete and buried on campus, where it is scheduled to remain until 2024, the year Harding will celebrate her 100th anniversary as a four-year institution.

For the celebration finale, Dean Sears and Dr. Ganus unveiled the east Harding archway, which now reads "Harding University." Ganus and Vice President for Finance Lott Tucker revealed the new sign in front of the American Heritage Building.

Later in the day, on the Harding campus, the missionaries presented a report on the status of mission efforts among the French speaking countries.

Two-Record Album Released by Chorale

A two-record album of hymns and other choral and religious music has been released by the Harding Chorale. The music was recorded by the membership of the 1977-78 school year under the direction of Dr. Cliff Ganus III, director.

Included in the selections are such hymns as "A Wonderful Savior," "Rock of Ages," "When We Walk with the Lord," and others. Soloists Becca Dunn, Tracy Russell and Andy Holder are featured in "Mary Had a Baby," "Bound for Canaan's Land," and "Ain't Got Time to Die," respectively.

"Divine Poems of John Donne" by Bernhard Heiden and Rachmaninoff's "Glory Be to God" are included as well as the patriotic selections, "When I First Came to This Land" by Oscar Brand and "For Jefferson and Liberty" arranged by Goldman.

The album sells for $8.50 and is available through the Harding University Bookstore or the Harding University Music Department.

Bisons Post 2-0 Record In Early Season Play

Despite injuries to key personnel and an abundance of young players, the Harding University Bisons of Coach John Prock have posted a surprising 2-0 record in early season play.

Twice, once at home and once on the road, the Bisons have claimed victory. They came with a 13-12 win over Lane College at Jackson, Tenn., and a 13-7 decision against Southeast Oklahoma at home.

"Our veterans have really come through for us," Prock said. "Their leadership has been tremendous."

In the season opener senior quarterback David Jones of Ardmore, Okla., passed 16 yards to fullback Mack Wallace of Star City, Ark., for the winning touchdown with 3:53 left in the game. The winning play was set up by a 77-yard pass-run play on a pass from Jones to senior wide receiver Tim Perry of Rand, W. Va.

In the Parents' Night game hosting Southeast Oklahoma, freshman quarterback Kyle Blickenstaff of Boise, Idaho, passed 15 yards to Perry for the deciding touchdown over the Savages. The victory was the tenth straight victory in the 15-year history of Parents' Night games.

Through two games sophomore Carl Dickson of Clinton, Okla., is the Bisons leading rusher with 81 yards on 31 carries. Despite swapping around at three positions, senior David Bangs has 67 yards and two receptions for 32 yards. Perry leads the Bison receivers with five catches for 136 yards.

The 77-yard, Jones to Perry pass play is currently ranked third in the NAIA national statistics.

Harding will host Knoxville College on September 29, Arkansas Tech University on October 6, University of Arkansas-Monticello on October 27 and Ouachita Baptist University on November 10 in the annual Homecoming event.

Sophomore Lafe Caton [27] of Inola, Okla., shakes loose from Lane College defenders for extra yardage in a punt return in Harding's 13-12 opening game victory.
