Nobel Winner, Newsmen Headline Lecture Series

Headlining the spring program of the American Studies Lecture Series at Harding will be a Nobel Prize-winning economist and two nationally recognized newsmen.

Milton Friedman, who won the Nobel Prize in economics in 1976, former CBS News commentator Eric Sevareid and syndicated political columnist James J. Kilpatrick will be on campus in upcoming months, according to President Clifton Ganus Jr., director of the American Studies Program.

Friedman, who spoke at Harding in 1974, will return on March 27. His lecture will be held in conjunction with the dedication of the new George S. Benson Auditorium.

The 68-year-old economist is currently a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institute of Stanford University in California. He has authored or co-authored 26 books on such topics as the monetary history in the United States, economic theory, inflation and social security. The Brooklyn, N.Y., native has served in various capacities in the United States Treasury Department and in 1977, was a visiting scholar at the Federal Reserve Bank in San Francisco.

Among Friedman's other honors are the John Bates Clark medal from the American Economics Association, Chicagoan of the Year, and Educator of the Year in Chicago.

He is a member of the National Academy of Science and the American Economists Association. A former Fulbright lecturer at Cambridge, Friedman has also taught at the universities of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Chicago.

On March 4, Eric Sevareid, former commentator on the CBS Evening News, will speak in the Benson Auditorium.

Sevareid, who retired from the Columbia Broadcasting System in 1977 after working there for 38 years, is now a consultant to the network. A North Dakota native, he had his first reporting job at age 18 with the Minneapolis Journal. He has been a war correspondent in France, England, China, the Dominican Republic and Vietnam; a columnist, and editor for the Paris Herald and United Press International. He has covered many major historical events, including the founding of the United Nations, the resignation of Richard Nixon, Lyndon Johnson's inauguration, and the state funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

His awards include the George Foster Peabody Award for interpretation of the news, an Emmy Award by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, and in 1974, he was inducted into the Hall of Fame of the Washington chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists.

Auditorium Dedication Scheduled March 27

Harding's new George S. Benson Auditorium, one of the largest facilities in the state, will be dedicated on March 27 at 4:00 p.m.

"We are so pleased to have this excellent auditorium on our campus and feel that it will be an asset for many years to come for our students and the community," said President Clifton Ganus Jr.

"Harding wishes to extend a welcome invitation to all alumni and friends to come and be a part of the festivities on March 27," he continued. "The dedication ceremony will be held in the afternoon, and that night, Dr. Milton Friedman, Nobel Prize-winning economist will speak for the American Studies Lecture Series. So, we are planning on a great day."

The dedication ceremony will recognize Dr. Benson, Harding's second president, who served from 1936-65, and his wife, Sallie.

The 81-year-old former missionary to China is active today as president of the National Education Program. Since his retirement, Dr. Benson has aided other Christian colleges across the nation in planning and building, and is still instrumental in the work of the Zambian Christian School. He also serves as an elder at the College Church of Christ in Searcy.

Seminar for Businessmen Planned for February 15-16

The annual winter Management and Economics Seminar for businessmen will be held February 15-16 on the campus. The December Bulletin erroneously carried an earlier date.

Sponsored by the American Studies Program and the School of Business, the Seminar will feature Dr. Ben Rogge, a distinguished professor of political economy at Wabash College, and Dr. Charles Hughes, director of the Center for Values Research in Dallas.

will speak in the Benson Auditorium on May 1.

Kilpatrick began writing his widely-syndicated political column, "A Conservative View," in 1964. The work now appears in nearly 400 daily American newspapers.

An Oklahoma City native, he is also recognized for his work in television, chiefly as the conservative spokesman on "Point-Counterpoint" of the CBS "60 Minutes" program.

In 1977, Kilpatrick's best-selling book, The Foxes Union, was published. He collaborated with former Senator Eugene McCarthy in 1978 on a political satire entitled A Political Bestiary.

Rogge will speak Friday night on "Economic Perspectives of the '80's." Hughes will be the Saturday speaker on the topic "Making Unions Unnecessary."

Registration will be held Friday 5:30-6:30 p.m. in the American Heritage Center.

Study in Cults Is April Forum Topic

Many different religious cults and what Christians can do to limit the growth of cults will be discussed at the 1980 Harding Preachers' Forum set for April 8 on the Searcy campus.

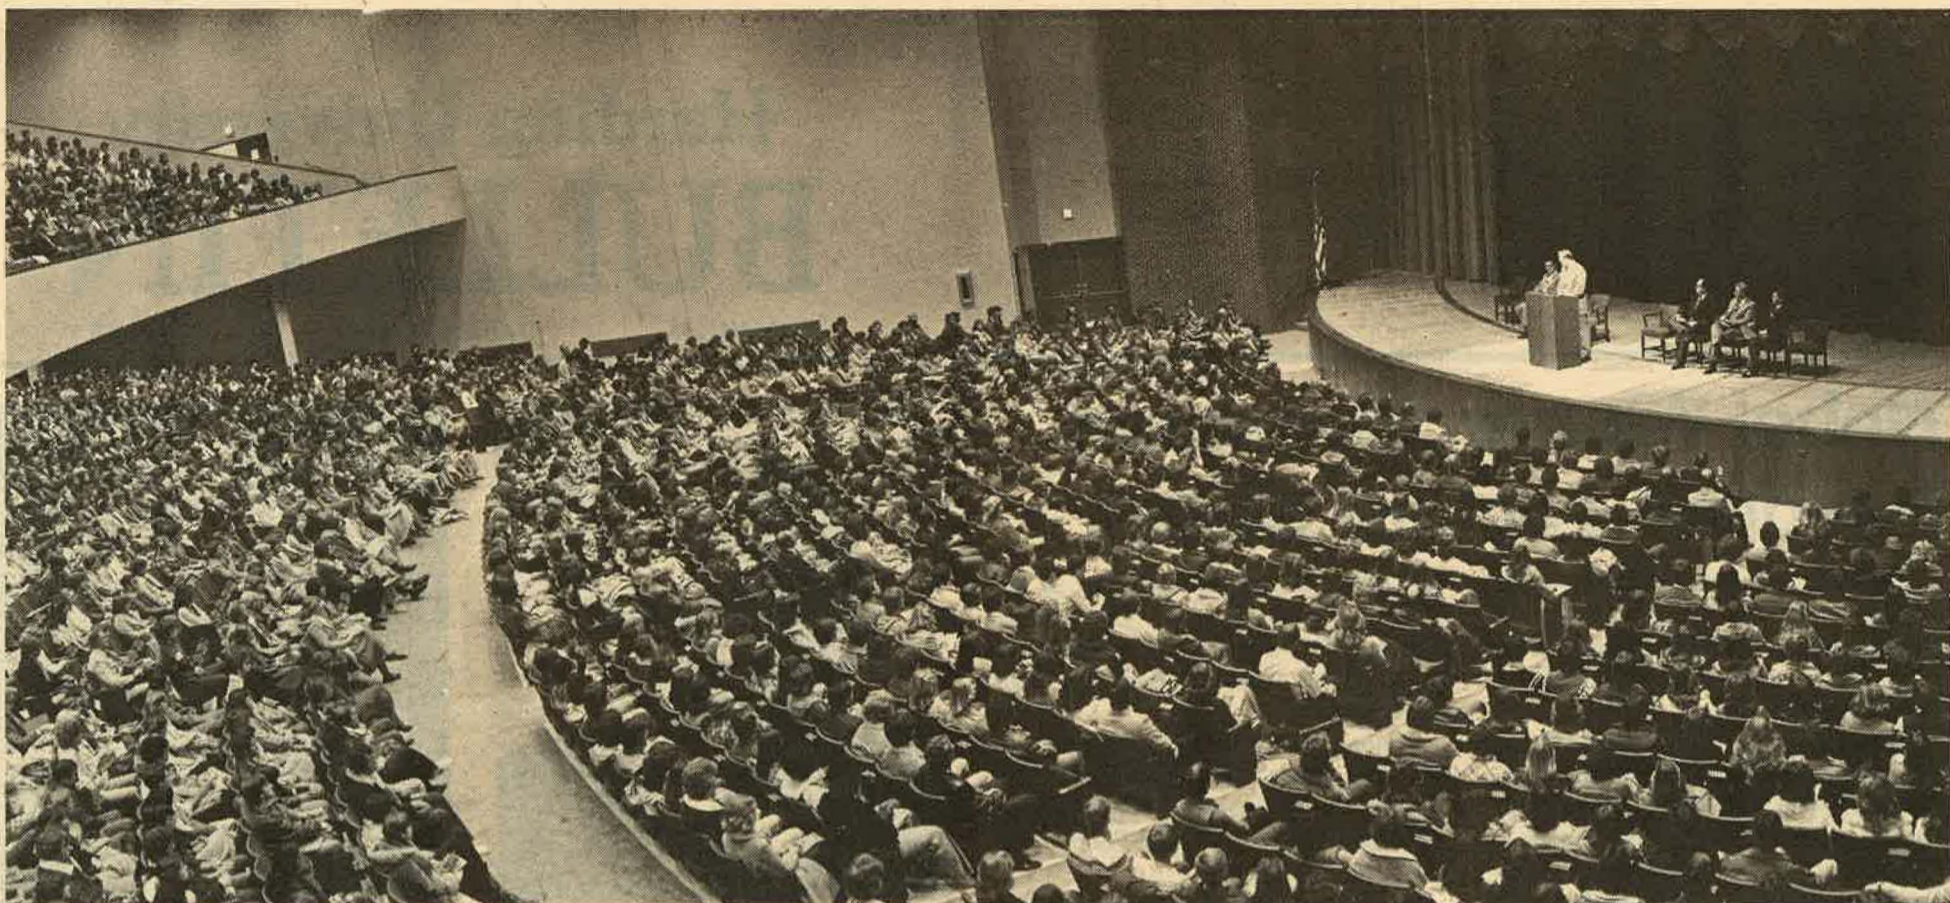

Ed Sanders, assistant professor of Bible at Harding, explained, "A study in the cults is a timely topic and relevant today. In recent months, newspaper headlines of national interest have informed us of the lawsuits against several of these groups including Scientology, the Children of God and Synanon."

Sanders, who teaches a popular Bible class on cults, just completed taking a course on sects and cults. He will join Bob Danklefsen of W. Monroe, La., and John Waddey of Knoxville, Tenn., on the Forum program.

There are 3000 national cults with 20 million people in the country today, and they have a definite cultural influence," Sanders continued.

He stated that cults may be defined

New Benson Auditorium Open for Daily Chapel

Although the finishing touches have not yet been applied to the new George S. Benson Auditorium, the school's 2,700 students, the administration, the faculty and staff gathered in one chapel assembly on January 10 to begin the spring semester.

President Clifton Ganus Jr. greeted the student body in the new facility, which has been under construction for more than 20 months, and, laughingly, said, "Each one pinch his neighbor to make sure we're really finally here."

It was the first time since 1965 that the entire school could gather under one roof, according to Ganus.

He explained that several jobs must be completed before the March 27 dedication of the $2.6 million auditorium. In addition to landscaping the surrounding grounds, carpet, wall decorations and chair arms must be put in place, and curtains for the balcony classrooms must be reordered. Work also remains to be finished in the stairwells.

Dr. George S. Benson, president of Harding from 1936-65 and the man for whom the building is named, told the audience, "I'm persuaded that Harding is the faculty and students, not the buildings." After reminiscing about the growth of the campus, Benson encouraged the group to continue to support Christian education.

"If you look back on American from 1607 to 1980, I believe that our greatest asset has been our Christian schools. They have built the character that America has needed," said Harding's second president.

Benson offered his advice for today's problems, saying, "In a world of distress, turmoil, on the brink of war, we need capable, dependable leadership. Make your efforts comparable to the facilities provided for you," he charged. "Become leaders today where you are. Begin now. Be leaders where you are."

Ganus then recognized the men responsible for the construction of the building. They included Lott Tucker, vice president for finance; Shorty Pearson, superintendent; Chester Williams, project foreman, and Herman Spurlock, engineer.

Following the opening remarks, a Bible devotional was conducted by Dr. Eddie Baggett, Dr. Neale Pryor and Dr. Evan Ulrey.

Dr. Joseph Pryor, vice president for academics, made announcements.

The chapel meets daily at 9 a.m.

speakers in the American Heritage Auditorium.

A 1955 graduate of Harding, Petrich commands the United States Navy's Air Logistics Wing with headquarters in New Orleans, La. He is responsible for more than 60 aircraft which provide support from the Mediterranean westward to Singapore. The wing also provides aerial targets along the East and West coasts of the U.S. for the Navy's fighter and attack aircraft training.

A program on February 14 in the Heritage Auditorium will feature Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau.

In 1974, Grant served as adviser to the secretary of agriculture's Trade Mission to Eastern Countries. Since 1976, he has been a member of the Advisory Commission for Trade Negotiations at the Department of Agriculture.

Grant served as president of several agricultural organizations and businesses in California and still farms in Visalia, Calif.

All lectures will begin at 7:30 p.m. and are open to the public.

The Management Seminar for Businessmen, annually sponsored by the American Studies Program and the Harding School of Business, will be held February 15-16 in the Heritage Auditorium.

Featured speakers will be Dr. Ben Rogge of Crawfordsville, Ind., and Dr. Charles Hughes of Dallas.

On Friday night, Dr. Rogge, a distinguished professor of political economy at Wabash College, will speak on "Economic Perspectives of the '80's."

Hughes, director of the Center for Values Research and author, will speak Saturday on "Making Unions Unnecessary."

Some of the "New Age Cults" active today that Sanders listed included Ba' Hai faith, Nicheren Shoshu, Unification Church, Ananda Marga, The Way International, Transcendental Meditation, Association for Psychic Research and the Alamo Foundation.

Those attending the Forum will receive a bibliography with current information. A question and answer session will also be held with J. D. Bales of Searcy, Marvin Robertson of Searcy and the Forum speakers serving as panel members.

While the day is generally planned for the church leadership and ministers, the seminar is open to the public. For more information contact the Harding Bible Department.

Air Express Head Relates Success Story

At the December 4 meeting of the Harding American Studies Program, Frederick Smith, 35-year-old chief executive of the Federal Express Corporation, credited the advance of his young company to the recognition of the country's need and the breaking away from old habits.

"We have been a success simply because we recognize that habits can be deceiving and they can be dangerous. Opportunities exist when you can peel away the tried and true formulas, those habits that have been utilized for a number of years," said Smith of the Memphis-based company with annual revenues of $258.5 million.

The Yale University graduate told the 125 students and guests that the basic driving forces in the economy influenced the birth of the overnight air-express service which operates 60 aircraft and 1,500 radio equipped vans.

"The four basic things that characterize our economy can be summed up as homogeneity, mobility, velocity and productivity," stated Smith.

"Today the most remarkable thing about these United States is that there are few differences between our population, regardless of where they live. Although we may have lost some of our regional and ethnic flavoring, we have become a more informed society as a result," he commented.

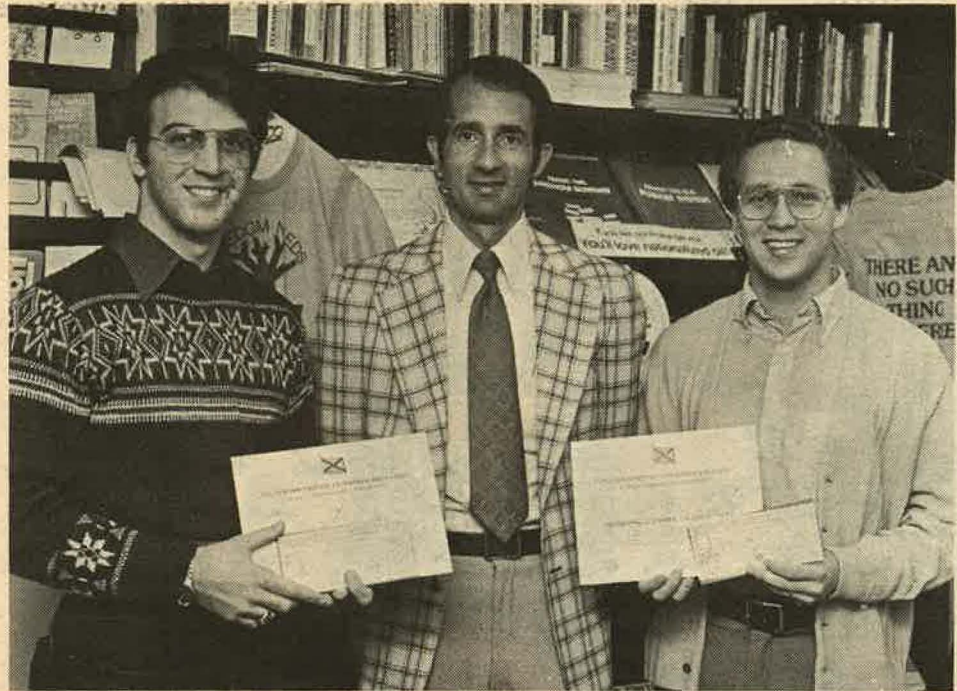

After World War II, Smith explained, manufacturers moved from the heavily industrialized areas of the Northeast and Midwest to the sunbelt and less populated areas.

He also characterized modern society as one of speed. Citing a study recently made in the Northeast, he related, "The average American citizen today gets angry, frustrated and resentful when he is waiting for a transportation system when it is on time. There is more pressure to perform faster, more completely, with more information at an ever-accelerating pace."

Gymnast Is Guest Speaker For April 4-5 Youth Forum

Ben Zickefoose, gymnast and Bible teacher, will speak on "Getting to Heaven From Where You Are" at the 1980 Harding University Youth Forum set for April 4-5.

The full weekend of events especially planned for high school students will be offered with the gala musical production "Spring Sing" scheduled to be held in the new George S. Benson Auditorium.

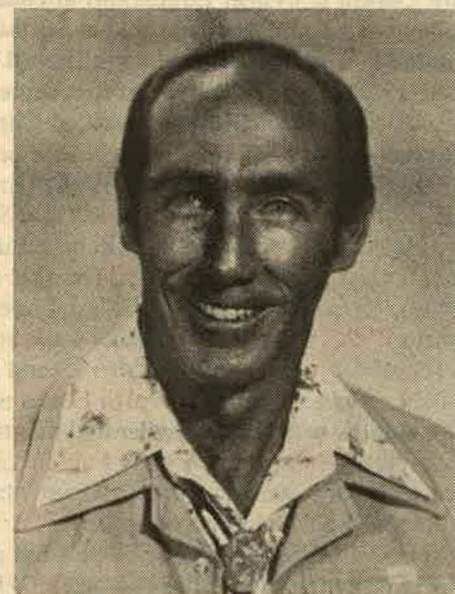

Zickefoose, an assistant professor of education and Bible teacher at Abilene Christian University, is known for his presentation "Gymnasts to the Glory of God." His topics for the Forum will include "Commitment," "Control," and "Confidence."

The Wichita, Kan., native served as chairman of the health and physical education department at Freed-Hardeman College before joining Abilene in 1963. He has also served as youth minister for the University Church of Christ in Abilene.

The athlete has traveled throughout the country combining his talents with the message of Christ for youth camps, rallies, churches and schools.

Harding's Youth Forum provides a time that high school students can visit the campus and experience college life. In conjunction with the spiritually-oriented forum, the university students also stage "Spring Sing," the colorful, fast-moving musical presentation involving more than 500 social club members.

Other entertainment throughout the weekend will include the Belles and Beaux variety group, the A Cappella Chorus, the Harding Band and a movie.

Ben Zickefoose

The "Time of Day," Harding's traveling musical trio, will perform, and a special ninth anniversary concert will feature all former "Time of Day" members.

Tours of the university campus will be offered for visitors, and an opening session hosted by the school's president, Clifton Ganus, Jr., will provide information and a slide show.

Participants may buy meals at the two campus cafeterias, the College Inn snackroom or a variety of eating places near the campus. Visitors may plan to stay in the room of a friend on campus or housing will be assigned at registration time. Everyone is asked to bring a sleeping bag and towels.

Information on the Youth Forum may be obtained by writing the Harding University Admissions Office, Box 762, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Host, Hostess Quartet Selected For Spring Sing Musical Event

The Spring Sing musical production, which annually involves more than 500 students, will feature a talented group of four hosts and hostesses when it is staged April 4-5.

"The thoughts of having the production in the new Benson auditorium are exciting to us," Dr. John Ryan, Spring Sing director, said.

The 80-foot stage will be an aid in staging the numbers. In addition, the number of seats available will allow almost 10,000 persons to see the shows in three performances. Last year only 6,000 could see the show in the five performances held.

Ryan said that currently there are 17 numbers registered involving 31 social clubs, the largest number of clubs ever represented in the show.

A slate of judges has been selected, with a different group reviewing each show.

Selected from a field of 50 who auditioned for hosts and hostesses were Chris Dell, Tonya Hesselrode, Ricky Qualls and Laurie Robinson.

Dell, a junior psychology major, is minoring in music and Bible. He is from Freeport, Ill., and is a member of Chi Sigma Alpha social club. Dell played a leading role in Harding's 1978 stage production of "Brigadoon."

A sophomore voice major, Miss Hesselrode is from Bell City, Mo. Her activities include the A Cappella Chorus, Belles and Beaux, and Zeta Phi Zeta social club.

Qualls is a music major with an education minor. He is a member of the Belles and Beaux troupe, the A Cappella Chorus and Galaxy social club. The junior is from Camden, Ark.

Miss Robinson returns from the 1979 spring sing production as hostess this spring. A senior from King of Prussia, Pa., she played a major role in this year's Homecoming presentation, "The Sound of Music." She is also in Chorale, Orchestra and Shantih social club.

The hosts and hostesses are already planning and practicing the colorful numbers which will be staged. Make plans now to come see them and the lively social club acts that will be presented at Spring Sing '80.

'University' Diplomas Awarded, Belden Honored

The first Harding University diplomas were presented to the school's 125 graduates in winter commencement ceremonies held December 21 on the campus. The graduation was the first held since Harding's change to university status last August.

Del Belden, Arkansas businessman and advocate of free enterprise education, was presented the first degree of the day by President Clifton L. Ganus Jr., who awarded him the honorary doctorate.

"Harding University is very happy to recognize the talent, philosophy and achievements of Del Belden. Because he loves his country and his fellowman, because he has achieved much in the business world and has effectively served his community and state, because he has liberally supported worthy causes and he firmly believes in and assists higher education, we bestow upon him our highest award — the doctor of laws degree," said Ganus.

Belden then addressed the group of candidates, including his son Paul, who received the bachelor of business administration degree. In his speech, Belden expressed his feelings for the United States government, the business world, faith and God. His advice for the students included: take an active interest in workings of government, become an asset to the employer by learning everything you can about the company, and allow love to grow in your life.

Over the past two years, Belden, president of Lomanco manufacturing company of Jacksonville, has taken classes in the Harding School of Business along with two of his other sons and a son-in-law. He is actively involved with the Clark David Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education, named for his late father. He is a sponsor of the American Studies Program and patron of a special energy project conducted by members of the physical science department.

academic affairs, Dr. David Burks, dean of the School of Business, and Dr. Bobby L. Coker, dean of the School of Education, recommended the candidates for degrees. Dr. Ganus presented six associate of arts in secretarial science degrees, 45 bachelor of arts degrees, 18 bachelor of arts degrees in education, 20 bachelor of business administration degrees, 27 bachelor of science degrees, two bachelor of science in medical technology degrees, three bachelor of social work degrees and four master of education degrees.

Others on the program were Dr. Fred

R. Jewell, Dr. James Mackey and Dr. Karyl Bailey.

A luncheon was held in the Heritage Room, following winter commencement ceremonies at the university, to honor Del Belden and his family and unveil the plaque for the Clark David Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education.

The plaque will be set in place upon completion of the proposed Business and Economics Building, which will house the Center, the American Studies Program and the School of Business. Construction is scheduled to begin next summer.

In honoring the Belden family, Harding President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. related the history of the family's louver business and its interest in free enterprise education.

Clark David Belden began the business in 1946 and invented an adjustable louver called Vari-Pitch. Together with members of his family, he developed, manufactured and patented other pieces of equipment. He retired in 1951, leaving the operation of Lomanco manufacturing company to his family. Belden died in 1966. Today, his son Del Belden carries on traditions of the free enterprise system in the Jacksonville, Arkansas-based business.

Other members of the Belden family honored by the university included Valerie Belden (Mrs. Del), and their children, Penny Belden Stender and her husband Lyndell, John, Dennis, Paul and Ted.

Lomanco and the Beldens have supported the Harding American Studies Program and a special $90,000 energy research on the campus. Their endowment of the Clark David Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education will allow the continuation of free enterprise promotion from the Harding campus. The Center, directed by Dr. Don Diffine, collects, writes and disseminates information on economics and free enterprise. The student economics team which staffs the Center speaks to civic groups, sponsors special programs and competes annually in free enterprise contests.

Special Summer Programs Announced

Two special programs for high school students will be included in Harding's summer academic sessions set for June 9-July 11 and July 14-August 15.

The Developmental Program for incoming freshmen is provided for a limited number of students who desire to attend college but whose preparation has not been sufficient to meet current admission standards. Primarily, the program assists students in strengthening academic skills to better prepare for further college experience.

Class size will be limited to a maximum of 20 students. Basic courses are offered in English composition and literature, mathematics, Bible and physical education.

Instructors in the program are selected because of their special interest in helping students overcome educational deficiencies. Students who successfully complete the program may enroll as freshmen in the regular fall semester.

For qualified high school students wishing to pursue college-level work during the summer, Harding offers an Advanced Studies Program.

To participate, students must have at least 12 academic units of high school credit with an overall B average or better.

Credit earned in the program may be used toward a degree at Harding or may be accepted at other accredited schools. Successful work in the advanced studies courses may also enable the student to be admitted to college without completing the senior year of high school.

Courses will be available in the areas of art, Bible, biology, chemistry, economics, English, French, history, mathematics, music, physical science, physics, political science, psychology and speech.

Scholarships of $100 each are awarded to full-time students who participate in the program at both sessions and $50 scholarships to those who attend only one five-week session.

For more information, contact Dr. James F. Carr, Jr., Director of Summer Session, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Trustee's Campus Visit Is Memorable Occasion

by Alice Ann Kellar

For good reasons and some not so good, the fall meeting of the University's Board of Trustees will always be a memorable one for Mrs. Nina Grayson Warnock.

The Magnolia lady was honored by her daughter and three granddaughters at the Board's dinner, and soon after dismissal of the business session the next day, Mrs. Warnock received a broken hip in a fall and had to have surgery in Little Rock.

The establishment of the Nina Grayson Warnock Endowment Fund was a complete surprise to Mrs. Warnock, one of two ladies on the 26-member Board. She arrived at the meeting with her daughter, Mary (Mrs. John) Harsh of Magnolia, who always accompanies her mother to Searcy.

The granddaughters, Mrs. Molly Burns of Mineral Springs, Mrs. Roxie Whittemore, accompanied by her husband Don, of Brinkley and Miss Amy Harsh of Little Rock, arrived without her knowledge and were seated inconspicuously at the dinner.

Mrs. Warnock was not aware of their presence or the honor until a plaque was unveiled.

"We are so grateful that Mrs.

Warnock's children have chosen to honor her in this way," President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. said at the dinner. "She has been a tremendous help to Harding through the years, and in this way, many other students will benefit in years to come. This living tribute is a great way to honor this great lady."

The Endowment Fund was established, in the words of Mrs. Harsh, "as a living tribute to Mama's dedication to Harding through the years." Mrs. Warnock first served on Harding's board in 1924, but served only one year as travel to and from Morrilton was difficult. She was re-elected in 1967. Through the years she maintained interest in Harding and assisted the school in various ways.

When Associated Women for Harding chapters were organized in 1965, Mrs. Warnock loyally assisted in getting the Columbia County chapter started. She volunteered for all of the group's functions. "She held rummage sales in empty business establishments that were not heated in the winter or cooled in the summer," her daughter related.

"We just wanted to honor her in a living way. Since Harding has always been so much a part of her life, helping Harding was the best way we knew of to honor Mama," Mary emphasized.

Mrs. Nina Grayson Warnock, center, receives the honor her family bestowed on her through the establishment of an endowment fund for the university in her name. From left are her daughter and granddaughters, Miss Amy Harsh of Little Rock, Mrs. Molly Burns of Mineral Springs, Mrs. Mary Harsh of Magnolia and Mrs. Roxie Whittemore of Brinkley. The plaque will be placed in Benson Auditorium lobby.

A native of Columbia County, Mrs. Warnock has long been active in community development. She has served in Eastern Star at various levels, including Worthy Grand Matron of Arkansas and Worthy Grand Esther of the General chapter. She is a past president of both the PTA and PEO groups in Magnolia and served on the board of Magnolia City Hospital 15 years. In 1955 she organized and implemented the exhibit in the Old Territorial Restoration in Little Rock of the inaugural gowns of the wives of Arkansas governors.

As was expected, her recovery in the hospital was fast and she returned to her home in Magnolia earlier than was anticipated. She continues to improve daily and is already making plans to be back in Searcy for the May meeting.

The plaque will be placed in the lobby of the Benson Auditorium.

Jan Burt Chosen Chairman Of National AWH Council

Mrs. Jan Myer Burt of Richardson, Texas, has been named chairman of the 16-member national council of Associated Women for Harding. The recently-formed group will give direction to AWH in an advisory role and will aid in organizing new chapters around the nation, according to Dr. James Carr, assistant to the president at Harding and liaison officer for AWH.

Mrs. Burt is the wife of Dr. Richard Burt, a member of the Board of Trustees. She was charter president of the Dallas AWH chapter. The Burts' daughter, Barbara (Mrs. Carl Kuwitzky), is a former student at the university.

The new council will assist in promoting the membership-at-large program, a new concept in enlisting women to be a part of Harding's programs. "We are interested in having women all over the world join us in support of Harding. Many ladies who do not have an AWH chapter nearby have elected to join as members-at-large. They receive membership certificates and regular mailouts from the university," she said.

Membership is not restricted to alumni, Mrs. Burt explained. There are three types of memberships available. At $12 per year, the ladies are considered annual members. Life membership is available at $100 given within a calendar year, and with a $500 contribution one is entitled to patron membership.

With chapters currently located throughout Arkansas, Texas, Tennessee, Louisiana and Alabama, the group is investigating organizations in Tulsa, Baton Rouge and Huntsville, Alabama.

"Our numbers are growing, and we anticipate a membership of 5,000 by 1983," Mrs. Burt said.

Persons wishing to join AWH may send dues to Box 1224, Harding University.

Mississippi Library Named For '47 Grad, Jean Gunter

Jean Gunter, a 1947 graduate, was honored last fall by the Mississippi State Department of Welfare with the naming of the Social Welfare Library in Jackson in her honor.

Miss Gunter joined the library staff in 1951 and built the library holdings from equipment that included two sections of book shelving, a nine-drawer card catalogue cabinet, a magazine rack and numerous pamphlets to a relocated office that included 4,000 books, 9,000 pamphlets, 65 professional periodicals and video tapes covering all aspects of social work administration.

At a ceremony in Miss Gunter's honor, Mississippi Lt. Gov. Evelyn Gandy made the dedicatory address.

Miss Gunter received national recognition and honor when she presented a paper to the 63rd conference of the Special Libraries Association in 1972 in Boston with a presentation entitled "Emergency Measure Establishes Treasure."

Help Find Lost Alumni

We need your help. Sometimes alumni move and forget to inform the Alumni Office of their new address. As a result we are unable to send them the Harding Bulletin and other informative materials. Below is a list of Harding alumni who have been placed in the inactive file because we do not have an accurate address. Additional names will be run in future Alumnotes. If you can provide an accurate address on any of these alumni, please write the Alumni Office, Box 768, Harding University, Searcy, Arkansas 72143. The Alumni Office wants to provide information to all alumni. Help us find these "lost" alumni.
