Orr Kicks Off American Studies Lecture Series

Headlining the fall program of the American Studies Lecture Series at Harding University will be the president of the National Association of Counties, a nationally-known expert in motivation, and an award-winning tour guide and artist at Valley Forge National Park, Pa.

Roy Orr, who has years of experience in government and civic affairs, convention and workshop speaker "Brick" Brickell and tour guide George "Bucky" Walters will visit the campus in September and October, according to Harding President Clifton L. Ganus, Jr., director of the American Studies Program.

Orr is scheduled to open the fall lectures Sept. 17 in the George S. Benson Auditorium on the Harding campus. In addition to his duties as NACo president, he has been mayor of DeSoto, Texas; president of the DeSoto School Board, Lions Club and Chamber of Commerce; a delegate to the Democratic National Conventions of 1968, 1972 and 1980; treasurer of the National Democratic County Officials; chairman of the Texas State Democratic Executive Committee; and has held many other distinguished positions.

October: A Busy Month on Campus

A host of activities have been scheduled on the Harding campus during the month of October, including the 58th Annual Harding Bible Lectureship Oct. 14-17, the 22nd Annual World Missions Workshop Oct. 23-25, and Homecoming '81 Weekend Oct. 30-31.

Ten classes will elaborate on the theme "Love One Another" for the first event. In addition to the classes, the Lectureship will feature chapel presentations and both day and evening lectures as well as musical programs, special luncheons and dinner meetings

Fifteen hundred young people from Christian schools aroung the country are expected to attend the Missions Workshop, with a featured theme of "Where in the World?" Activities include featured lectures, multi-media presentations, panel discussions and question-and-answer sessions on six major mission fields.

Members of the classes of 1931 and 1956 will be guests at a reception on the afternoon of Oct. 30, as Homecoming activities begin with a salute to the 25- and 50-year honor classes. At 5:30 p.m. Friday, all alumni will gather in the Heritage Cafeteria to hear John Gipson of Little Rock speak at the Black and Gold Banquet. And at 8:15 p.m., the Homecoming musical, "Shenandoah," will be presented in Benson Auditorium.

On Saturday the festivities continue for alumni with a free Continental Breakfast from 7:30 to 9 a.m. at the Hammon Student Center. A special Alumni Chapel will begin at 9:30, an art exhibit by actor Will Sampson will be open until noon, and at 11:30 the Homecoming Parade will begin from the Brickell, who has been an instructor and sponsor with Dale Carnegie and Associates for the past 35 years, is scheduled to speak Sept. 22. A resident of Memphis, Tenn., Brickell has been both president and member of the Board of Directors of the International Carnegia Sponsors Association. For the last 20 years he has spoken in major cities of the United States and the world on topics such as motivation, human relations and effective speech, and has been called "one of the top motivational speakers in America today."

"Brick" Brickell

Walters, a Phoenixville, Pa. native, is an artist as well as a tour guide. He studied for five years at the Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, Pa., and after five years of military service during World War II, continued his study in Paris, France and Stuttgart, Germany. On returning to America, Walters opened a studio in Pottstown, Pa. and also began giving history lectures to local civic groups.

Officials of Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge heard Walters speak and invited him to become a tour guide, which he does while dressed in an authentic uniform of Washington's Life Guards. Walters conducts the tours on a part-time basis and continues to operate an art studio. He has received a George Washington Honor Medal from Freedoms Foundation, and is scheduled to speak Oct. 5.

According to Dr. Ganus, "We are pleased to have men of this caliber who are able to come to our campus and speak. We feel these individuals will uphold the tradition of excellence which has been associated with the American Studies Program."

Center for Management Excellence Established in School of Business

Harding University has established a Center for Management Excellence in the School of Business, according to President Clifton L. Ganus Jr.

The purpose of the Center is to provide management development opportunities for local and state businesses and industries. The program began with the fall semester of school.

"We are committed to a strong business program and believe the Center will enable us to expand the seminars and programs already in progress," Ganus said.

American Heritage Center.

At 2 p.m. Saturday the mighty Harding Bisons will confront the University of Arkansas-Monticello Boll Weevils in an Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference clash at Alumni Field. During the afternoon and evening, various club, organizational, and class reunions are scheduled at both on- and off-campus locations. The Blackouts Variety Show will be presented at 6:30 and at 8:30 p.m., and "Shenandoah" will again be presented at 8:15 p.m. in Benson Auditorium.

All in all, there will be lots of choices on where to go and what to do, with familiar faces, changed faces, new faces, old landmarks, new additions and plenty of events to choose from and make your visit worthwhile.

Dr. Bob Reely, associate professor of management, will direct the program.

Primary objectives of the Center will include development of short term management development courses for business and industry. These courses will award continuing education credit. Other areas will include coordination of the Small Business Institute, sponsorship of the annual Management Development Seminar and establishment of an interschool management competition in business simulations at the high school leve.

In addition, Dr. Reely indicated a local chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management, affiliated with the American Management Association, has been chartered for the University students. An annual newsletter will be published.

Specific areas of management will be covered in the short-term development courses, according to Reely. Attention will be given to measuring one's leadership style, management by objectives, motivational techniques, problem-solving, interpersonal communication skills, and group dynamics.

Dr. Reely joined the University in 1980. He earned his doctorate in administration from Auburn University in 1976 and served as dean of institutional analysis and continuing education (1976-1980) for the Air Command and Staff College at Air University, Maxwell AFB in Montgomery, Ala. He is a member of the White River Personnel Managers' Association.

Landon Saunders Highlights Fall Tahkodah Conference

"In these hills today we as Christian educators are determining the future of unborn generations," keynote speaker Landon Saunders told a spellbound audience of some 190 persons assembled for Harding's annual pre-session Faculty-Staff conference August 21.

The statement climaxed talks by Saunders on leadership and Christian education, serving to reinforce previous points and to impress upon those present the seriousness of their mission during the coming year. Saunders, who heads the Heartbeat outreach radio program, concluded by stating, "The bottom line for Harding University is 'What is the most we can do for one student?'"

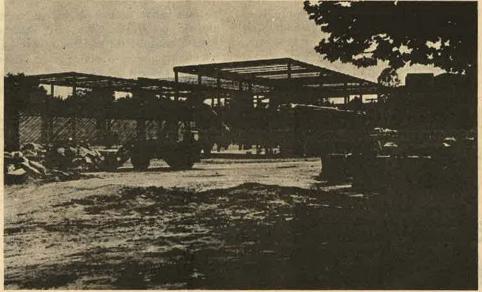

James H. Cone, chairman of Harding's Board of Trustees, then related some positive things he remembered as a freshman here in 1944. "Faculty members impressed me by their Christian example. It's important to remember that teachers are people first and teachers second," he said. "Students should be closer to the Lord when they leave than the day they come here," Cone summed up, "and they also should be taught to work. A friend of mine says he believes in working only half a day — either 12 hours."

After a delicious lunch of fried chicken and all the trimmings, the first of several panel discussions got underway. "Student Retention in the '80's" was the topic presented by Dr. Jimmy Carr, Dr. Ted Altman, Dr. David Burks, Durward McGaha, Dr. Lew Moore, Dr. Harry Olree, Dr. Joseph Pryor, and Lott Tucker Jr. Projected declines in enrollment during the decade of the '80's make it more important than ever to retain students who enroll at Harding, the panel said; and different approaches to retention were discussed.

The Student Affairs Committee then presented a panel discussion of the "Implementation of Institutional Objectives and Policies," primarily dealing with policies contained in the Student Handbook. Members included Dr. Jack Wood Sears, Beth Wilson, Dr. Raymond Muncy, Dr. Kenneth Davis, Dr. Wilt Martin, Barbara Barnes, Dr. Ted Altman, Patty Barrett, Eddie Campbell, Dr. David Burks, and Ted Lloyd.

The final panel of the evening addressed the topic "The Importance of My Example as a Christian Educator." Dr. Edward Sewell, Jerry Mynan, Dr. Dorothy Wright, Dr. Kenneth Davis, Dr. Don England, and Dr. Carl Mitchell participated in the discussion. The day's activities concluded at approximately 9 p.m.

The J. E. and L. E. Mabee Business Building assumes form as the George S. Benson Auditorium looms in the background.

Business Building on Schedule

Construction is on schedule for the August 1982 completion of the estimated $1.88 million Mabee Business Building at Harding University. "The steel is up and the brick work is about half finished," said Lott Tucker Jr., Vice-President of Finance at Harding.

The 33,000 square feet structure will house an Educational Media Center, Hedrick Memorial Conference Room, academic computer center and eleven classrooms.

One of the best advantages of the new building will be that the School of Business faculty will be housed in one single campus location. According to Dr. David Burks, Director of the School of Business, all faculty offices will be located on the second floor.

"We are excited about this facility because it will enable us to do our work in a more efficient way," Burks said. A special feature will be the horseshoe design of seven classrooms, with seating arranged in a semicircle so that teachers can function more as moderators. Two lecture halls are also planned.

"These classrooms will be among the most modern in the nation," Burks commented. Two lecture halls are also planned, and three classrooms will have color video monitors suspended from their ceilings.

Funding for the new building has come from a wide range of sources. According to Harding President Clifton L. Ganus, Jr., the University has been awarded grants totalling $750,000 from two foundations.

The J.E. and L. E. Mabee Foundation of Tulsa, Okla. has awarded a $600,000 grant to Harding towards the cost of the building, which has in turn been named in their honor.

A $150,000 grant has also been received from the Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich. According to Ganus, many other friends and supporters of the University have made or pledged donations toward the cost of the new School of Business complex.

"We're hoping to have the building roofed and ready for inside work this winter," said Tucker. "At this point we're making decisions about the interior furnishings for the building, and getting ready to order them."

New Faculty Members Told

Nine new faculty members joined the University program for the fall semester, with three additions to the School of Nursing, three to the School of Business and one each to the departments of music, physical education and social work.

The nursing faculty members include Cheryl Clark, a graduate of California State University at Los Angeles; Priscilla Parsons,

He was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the Searcy Noon Lions Club.

New Economics Team Selected

The Harding University Economics Team, barely refreshed from a championship victory in national competition, has regrouped to enter the 1981-82 regional contest, which begins Sept. 11-12 in Dallas.

Vying with colleges and universities from five states in the Mid-South Regional "Students in Free Enterprise" competition, Harding will be seeking a sixth first place trophy in as many years. The competition ends next April.

The team is composed of Sally Florence of Worthington, Ohio; Paul Holliman of Bartlesville, Okla.; Susan Collins of Atlanta, Ga.; Penny Hightower of Mt. Pleasant, Texas; Byron Carlock of Blytheville, Ark.; Stephan Haynes of Little Hocking, Ohio; David Hill of Nashville, Tenn.; and Ellen Reid of Sugar Land, Texas. Dr. Don Diffine, associate professor of economics and director of the Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education is sponsor.

The competition, this year entitled "Creative Capitalism," is co-sponsored by the National Leadership Institute, management training organization, and Southwestern Life Insurance Company.

"Students in Free Enterprise" competition seeks to challenge young people anticipating business careers to devise and implement programs to help preserve the competitive American business system, thereby preserving for their generation and those that follow the opportunities for a better life which it provides.

Project goals are to offer solutions to problems confronting the American economic system. The participating institutions are challenged through formal inter-collegiate competition to design and implement free enterprise programs suited for their particular campuses and communities.

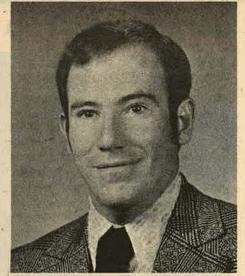

Dr. Diffine explained the program, "Free enterprise is simply the idea of freedom applied to the marketplace, and that has rarely been taught. We take the approach that economic individualism, private property and the market economy are not just neutral concepts. They are, in fact, worthwhile and attainable goals. We're supporting the system that supports us,"

David Burks

David Crouch

Burks, Crouch Assume Development Responsibilities

Two members of the faculty and staff have assumed new roles in the institution's development program, according to Floyd Daniel, Vice President for Development.

Dr. David Burks, Dean of the School of Business, and David Crouch, Director of Placement-Alumni Relations, assumed the additional roles effective September 1. Both men will continue to work in their previous areas of responsibility.

Burks has been assigned the responsibility of working with selected corporate and foundation constituents of the institution as well as with individual donors. He will be seeking to increase the financial support of these constituencies to the school.

In his new role, Burks will be working with the sponsors of Harding's American Studies Program. He also will be developing and conducting business seminars for corporate supporters of Harding.

Burks is a 1965 graduate of Harding. He holds the M.B.A. from the University of Texas and the Ph.D. from Florida State University. Burks, a C.P.A., joined the Harding faculty in 1967 and was named Dean of the School of Business in 1979.

"David has been an outstanding teacher and administrator at Harding. We are indeed happy that we will be able to utilize his expertise for the advancement of Harding through the development program," said Daniel. Crouch will be directing the school's Crouch will be directing the school's annual alumni Phonothon and the direct mail fund-raising program. He has been assisting in both of these areas, but now he will have greater responsibilities in planning and directing these two programs. Also a part of his new role will be the supervision of the computer areas of the Development and Alumni Offices.

Crouch will also be involved in inaugurating a volunteer annual fund campaign for Harding. The campaign will utilize Harding's trustees, development council members, alumni and friends of the institution as volunteer fund raisers for the school.

Crouch is a 1970 graduate of Harding. Since joining the Harding staff in 1970 he has served as Director of the News Bureau and Assistant Director of Public Relations. He was appointed to his current position as Director of Placement-Alumni Relations in 1975.

"David has been given increased responsibilities since joining the staff. These significant new responsibilities will greatly assist us in our total effort of institutional advancement," commented Daniel.

"We are pleased that we have men of their quality to fill these needs. Because of the increasing demands for financial support, we must be able to add quality people to our development team," he added.

Summer Grads Pursue Studies

Seven graduates of Harding's 1981 summer sessions have been awarded financial scholarships or assistantships, Dr. Joseph E. Pryor, vice-president for academic affairs, announced recently.

Monte Bret Cox, of Newnan, Ga., received a financial scholarship to do graduate work in the field of Bible at Abilene Christian University. Rick Straker of Bozeman, Mont., was awarded a research assistantship by the University of Nebraska at Lincoln in marriage and family counseling.

Three graduates — Edward Arley Hale of Kenova, W.V.; Gary Lee Luallin of Boulder, Colo., and David A. Verret of Searcy — received scholarships from the Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn.

Clay Wilkerson of North Little Rock will continue his studies at Harding University as the recipient of a graduate scholarship in education, while Daniel Phillip Summers of Durham, N.C. will attend Memphis State University this fall with the aid of an assistantship in accounting.

Ganus Calls Trip to Communist-bloc Nations a 'Learning Experience'

President Clifton L. Ganus Jr. finds Mongolia — one of three countries he visited this summer — on a map of the world in his office.

by Bruce Cook

Spending three weeks in Communistbloc countries this summer was both a learning and a depressing experience, Harding President Clifton L. Ganus, Jr. recently stated.

Dr. Ganus, a veteran traveler who has visited in some 60 countries around the world, was a member of a tour group which covered parts of Mongolia, Siberia, and the United Soviet Socialist Republic. The group, composed of ten Americans and their English-speaking guide, left New York and flew to Moscow, stopping in Helsinki on the way.

The trip marked Ganus' third time to visit Russia, and he was able to spend more time with the natives than other members of the group, since he had already seen the standard tourist attractions such as monuments and buildings.

Instead, he concentrated on learning about the lifestyles and religious practices of the native people. Ganus attended worship services at a Russian Orthodox church in Siberia and a Buddhist temple in Mongolia. He also strolled through the market places of various cities, comparing prices, quality, and availability of merchandise.

Ganus also 'roughed it' for two days in the Gobi Desert by living in a yurt — a round tent similar to the hogans formerly used by Indians of the American West. Other stops on the trip included ones at the Hujert Sanitorium for lung disease victims, famed Lake Baikal (the deepest fresh-water lake in the world), and Kara Khorum, 13th Century capital of Ghengis Khan's world empire.

While in Moscow, Ganus spent an hour-and-a-half visiting with the "Siberian Seven," a group of Pentecostal believers who have lived in the basement of the American Embassy for the past three years. Three armed guards are now stationed at each entrance to the Embassy in order to discourage similar attempts, Ganus reported.

In Russia, almost all Protestant members of the Christian faith are referred to as "Baptists," Ganus said, regardless of denominational affiliation, because the Baptist Church is one of the few recognized religious organizations in the country and because of the customary practice of baptism.

The city of Leningrad and its suburbs, which the group visited for four days, has a population of seven million, with 16 religious centers, Ganus said, including Baptist, Catholic, and 12 Russian Orthodox churches; a Jewish synagogue, and a Moslem mosque. In general, he said, there is one religious facility available for every 160,000 people living in the Russian cities he visited.

Christianity is tolerated in the Soviet Union, Ganus reported, but it is looked upon with suspicion, and believers are denied any important positions within the country. Young Christians are also denied the opportunity for a college education, he said.

"In one city I saw 52 people in line to buy an ice cream cone," Ganus said, and laughingly added, "I joined them, but it wasn't as good as American ice cream."

"There is a sense of depression throughout Russia," he said, adding, "It's the only country that I have visited where people on board the planes leaving the country clap their hands and yell, 'Hooray!"

Ganus said he doubts that he will ever return to the Soviet Union. "You don't go there for fun; you go to learn," he concluded.

German Missionary Family Visits United States

by Alice Ann Kellar

Gottfried Reichel (BA '53), speaker since 1965 for the World Radio Germany radio program, visited the Searcy campus briefly late in the summer on a tour of churches and individuals to secure the future of the highly successful evangelistic broadcast.

The minister, who conducts meetings, retreats, lectureships and numerous other mission efforts in addition to the radio broadcasts in his native Germany and behind the Iron Curtain, had been notified that the present contract for broadcast time over powerful Radio Luxembourge will not be renewed by the former sponsors when the contract legally expires January 1, 1982.

Therefore, he was in the States to consult the elders of the Johnson Street Church of Christ in San Angelo, Texas, whose congregation had been involved with Reichel's evangelistic efforts in Munich since 1953.

On July 8 the Johnson Street elders resolved to take over sponsorship of the work and pledged $5,000 toward air costs on the 600,000 watt station. An additional $12,000 had been pledged.

Efforts were begun to find the remaining $35,000 necessary for the broadcasts to continue being beamed twice each day. Since the programs started many thousands of pieces of mail have been received from at least 30 different countries, many of which are located behind the Iron Curtain. In 1970 the work took an added dimension with a Tape Mission, offering sermons on small tapes and cassettes for homes and hospitals.

Later a follow-up center, with offices, recording studio and storerooms, was added.

A former Hitler youth, Reichel was converted to Christianity shortly after World War II and came to Harding as a student in 1950. He returned with his wife Hannelore and four children to serve as Visiting Professor of Missions in 1972. Since then he has made numerous visits, including one to receive the Distinguished Alumnus award in 1979. Two of his children, Michael and Katharina, have been graduated from Harding and Katharina is currently pursuing the master's degree here.

Reichel returned to Germany in August, but is expected to be in the States again in October for finalizing the fund-raising efforts. Persons interested in more details of the work may contact the Johnson Street congregation in San Angelo or write the evangelist at Graubundener Str. 59, D-8000, Munich 71, West Germany.

Gottfried Reichel of Germany was in the United States recently to raise funds for the World Radio Germany evangelistic radio program. Gottfried is a former Visiting Professor of Missions and Distinguished Alumnus. Wife, Hannelore, is at left. Two children have been graduated from Harding — Michael and Katharina — and Katharina is currently pursuing the master's degree here.

Getting MFA Is 'The Pitts'

by Paul Pitt Assoc. Prof. of Art

I was asked to write about impressions of my M.F.A. work which is just completed at Memphis State University. The feelings I had of apprehension, amazement, repulsion, agony, discouragement, determination, struggle, encouragement, fulfillment, and finally ecstasy were probably normal for the average greenhorn graduate student in art. Ten years ago when I did my M.A. at the University of Tulsa the feelings were similar.

Perhaps the key word in the list above is struggle. Undergoing a struggle is what I feel the professors want students to experience because with it comes growth and some degree of success. Without it there is lethargy and falling into worn out patterns of artistic expression. These lack personal identity and integrity. They may show some knowledge of art history, craftsmanship, technique, etc., but they are clumsy excuses for shaping a future.

Being one's self is more important than ever before. Churning out art like one's professor shows heavy influence and some learning but not struggle. Being willing to take chances with one's work, trying things never tried before and risking failure helps pull out preconceived notions and then nail down some new ideas. Communication of these are then fresh and personable.

All this bravery comes, however, after considerable experience with basic fundamentals and feeds off them just as beginning drawings is a foundation for expression in any media.

The dandy little thesis paper which must be written is built on the foundation of all those term papers of the past, the thumbing through the thesaurus. That work finally pays off when one must say with words what has been said with paint, clay or steel. Even the orals which follow are made easier due to a foundation of learning and labor.

Before having been "put through the paces" I realized I had teachers that really cared. They were not making it difficult just to feed their egotism. They, rather, knew that an artist is much like a baby chick — if not allowed to struggle out of its shell, it will

by Elizabeth Mason

(Ed. Note: The following is Mrs. Mason's account of the tour she made with eleven students May 13-June 25.)

"This was certainly the most diverse group I ever tried to herd; therefore, we ended up each doing his own thing. I think it was because these were all, except for one sophomore and one junior, graduate students and teachers. They knew what they wanted to see. A fellow all wrapped up in modern art wasn't wanting to waste too much time with the Medieval paintings, nor did the lover of Ancient or Renaissance art want to miss a thing in order to see some latest painted pipe of Dewayne Hansenbaum. But none missed much, anyway. We saw a lot.

"Amsterdam may not be the best place to start, but it was the beginning for our six week tour of Europe. We rushed through Amsterdam, had the pleasure of being thrown off a super T.E.E. train and arrived in Koln for the first night. The Koln Cathedral is the largest French Gothic in Northern Europe and is jammed up against the railroad station and the Rhine river. We gleefully climbed (and the first climb is always gleeful) the 475 steps to the top of the gothic monster. Even at the end of the six weeks and many sights and dozens of climbs the group referred to the Koln as one of the best.

"Part of the fun, benefit and experience of traveling is in mixing and learning from people. For some reason, most of the men we visited with the first few days on the train, all flipped their coat lapels up and proudly showed their Communist Lenin pin. I wanted to ask why they hid it but language barriers hindered any political discussions. I also wanted to ask one, a top dog from Milan, why he had been to Western Germany to get his teeth fixed? Why not behind the Iron Curtain?

"We lucked into Nuremberg on a festival day. We had a fun day there and introduced some to their first wienerschnitzel. By now the gang had learned that home away from home is the railroad station. We took our only guided tour in Vienna. That is the best way to learn a city quickly and get through a palace. Vienna is such a classic lady of a city and everyone enjoyed it. There is just one Italy — full of art, emotion, love and people. The Communists are working so hard there, and the 24-hour nuisance strikes are common. We hit a bus strike in Padua. That wasn't a bother, though, because we usually walked.

"Florence is still a place you can't see in one trip. The meals at the Harding University - Florence villa were great; the personnel just make it one big home. It is certainly wonderful to have headquarters in the City of Art, and with the Eurail pass, the whole of Europe is yours. You could make an opera in Milano, or a weekend on Elba or in Switzerland. It's hard to realize all of Italy would fit in Arkansas.

"We lost people; we got split up and waved as some sped by on the wrong train. We spent one whole night riding buses in Rome, because of hunting a tiny substation where some latecomers had stashed their luggage and knew not where. We were lucky about illness. Colds, a couple of brief cases of upset stomach, and two seasicknesses on the channel crossing were about it. A few jeans and skirts were brushed by fenders and bikes, but that is par for Europe. No one was really slowed down by anything. It was a good trip."

Polish Transfer Student Bent on 'Discovering America'

by Sharon Bates

"I feel like Columbus, discovering America," said Urszula Bielecka, a Polish student attending Harding University this fall.

The 22-year-old, known to family and friends as "Ula," is sponsored and supported while in America by members of the College and North Street Church of Christ in Mountain Home, Ark.

Ula lives in Wroclaw, a city of about 600,000 population in southwestern Poland. She attended the University of Wroclaw for three years, majoring in English language and literature.

Polish students are required to study English in high school but can start earlier if their parents want them to, so Ula began studying English when she was 12. As a transfer student at Harding, she's not sure what her grade point will be, but she will have no difficulty in communicating.

"I had quite a lot of linguistic preparation," she said fluently.

Miss Bielecka first heard about the school from Harding students who were on a missionary campaign in Poland several years ago. It was through friendships Ula developed with them that she decided to continue her education at Harding. Last winter Ula began actively working on her trip to America, but it was a long, slow process. Eventually she received a passport.

"It's easier to leave the country now.

That was one of the grievances of Solidarity — the problem of getting out," she said. "Before, if someone decided to stay longer than they were supposed to, or decided to emigrate

when they were supposed to come back to Poland, the government wouldn't let others in the family go anywhere." The law is now being changed, she said, so there will be "no more collective responsibility."

In the past, most Poles traveled within the Socialist bloc because the exchange rate was less favorable in non-Socialist countries. Economics aside, "a funny thing" brought about by Solidarity "is that it's now easier to travel to Western countries," said Ula. Officials in the Eastern countries "don't want us coming there; they're afraid of their people catching the Polish disease."

Solidarity, she asserted, "is not just

Solidarity, she asserted, "is not just blue collar workers" but a movement that also involves academics and doctors: "a thing that really unites the people, the university professor and the worker."

The system, she conceded, has merits. "You don't pay for schools, for doctors, or medical expenses," she said.

Her parents hope to be able to take a vacation abroad, and would like to see this country, among others. "A vacation," she stressed. "They love Poland, and I do too."

But Ula is not unhappy in Arkansas. "Harding is everything I expected, and so much more," she said. "I am overwhelmed by the spirit of love and warmth radiated by the people here."

During her stay in America, Ula is looking forward to discovering new things — a sometimes painful, often joyous process. New ideas, customs, perspectives and friends are some of the things she hopes to discover. And from all indications, she is off to a good start.

Harding Laundry Announces Opening of New Addition

August 25 was the date for the formal grand opening of the new addition at the Harding Laundry located on Park Street. Thirty-six more washers and 18 dryers are now available to students, and according to Clarence McDaniel, laundry manager, the expansion was warranted in order to relieve overcrowding of the existing facilities.

McDaniel feels that the expansion will help to uphold the main reasons for the existence of the washateria: convenient location and flexible hours for students, and proceeds to channel back into Harding's budget. "We like to be here when they need us," said McDaniel, reflecting the motto of the Harding Laundry, "and with our additional units, we should be able to do this better than ever before."

McDaniel, who got his start as an employee at Searcy Laundry for two and one-half years, has managed the Harding Laundry for the past 16 years. "We offer a friendly atmosphere and competitive prices with the businesses in town," he said.

"In fact," he said, "We have a few advantages, including convenient location, somewhat lower prices, and the fact that Harding will benefit in some way from every dollar spent at the laundry."

A new $20,000 dry cleaning machine, which can process about 300 pounds of laundry during a normal working day, has been installed recently as part of the effort to update facilities and keep abreast of student needs. Alterations are also a service of the laundry, he noted.

McDaniel encouraged all students to tour the laundry facilities on campus and to offer their suggestions for improvements.

He and his wife have two children: Tammy, 17, and Tim, 18. McDaniel's favorite hobby is photography, and he prefers landscapes over portraits. He uses an Olympus 35 millimeter SLR camera.

He is assisted at the laundry by four full-time employees and one part-time student worker. One employee, James White, has been there a few months longer than McDaniel. Mrs. Lorene Carnahan is a nine-year veteran of the staff, and newcomers include Mrs. Alpha Neal and Mrs. Emma Pannell. Mark Brown is a student assistant.

McDaniel noted that their work is of a seasonal nature, with more dry cleaning in the winter months and more laundry in the spring and summer. A rule of thumb he tries to follow is to keep half as many dryers as washers on hand.

He mentioned that despite the best efforts of the laundry staff, some materials do unexpected things like shrink or fade. This usually occurs with materials which are not labeled, McDaniel said. On other occasions, some customers automatically assume that their clothes are at the laundry if they are not in a closet at home, he said.

"But in general," he concluded, "our customers expect good service and they get it at the Harding Laundry."

W. Bruce Cook has joined the Harding University public relations staff as director of information.

A 1977 graduate of the University of Arkansas-Little Rock, Cook earned his master's degree and teacher certification at Harding 1980. He was an English major and was actively involved in student publications. For the past year he has been a reporter-photographer for the Cabot Star-Herald.

"We're especially pleased to be able to add Bruce to our staff and feel he will be a real asset to the Harding program," Stanley Green, director of public relations said.

Cook will coordinate the release of institutional news and will be involved in the preparation of copy and features for the University publications.

A native of Little Rock and a 1971 graduate of Ole Main High School, Cook attended Freed-Hardeman College in 1971-72. He is serving as project director of a grant from the Arkansas Endowment for the Humanities. He is writing "The History of McRae, Arkansas and the Surrounding Area" under that grant.

At Harding, the 28-year-old Cook, was a member of Society of Collegiate Journalists, Sigma Tau Delta honor society and a graduate assistant in the English Department. He was a staff member of the Bison and the Petit Jean, University student publications.

Time of Day Releases Album: 'Sayin' It While There's Time'

The Harding University "Time of Day" has released a new album called "Sayin' It While There's Time," the fourth record in the 10-year history of the group. The album features 14 songs, including the traditional "Snap, Crackle, Pop" routine and contemporary numbers such as "All the Gold" and "Crazy Love."

The trio is made up of Jon Woodroof of Searcy, a four-year veteran of the group, Clay Sturgeon of Phoenix, Ariz., in his second year as a member, and Johnny Bowman of Morrilton, who joined the group in January.

Woodroof, a senior, is majoring in both journalism and management. He plays guitar, bass and banjo on the stage. Sturgeon, a senior music education major, transferred to Harding from Michigan Christian College in Rochester. He plays both the guitar and bass. Bowman, a transfer student from David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tenn., is studying preoptometry. He plays guitar and bass. The song "Gravy on a Bucket Lid" from the album was composed by his father.

The "Time of Day" was organized in 1971 and performs at youth rallies, college night programs and school assemblies, as well as for other special events. The musicians have scheduled fall performances in Arkansas, Missouri, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Texas, Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama, and a week-long tour in Florida that will include a concert at Walt Disney World.

"Sayin' It While There's Time" is available for purchase through the Harding University Admissions Office at $7 for record or cassette.

Three Night Classes Draw 52 Students

Fifty-two students enrolled for the three night classes offered for the fall semester as a community extension service.

The computing class proved to be the most popular with 24, the capacity number, enrolling. An additional 15 registered for the class in accounting principles and 13 in the basic management course.

"We're especially pleased with our enrollment," said Dr. Jimmy Carr, assistant to the president. "This is our first attempt at such a program and we think it has excellent growth potential."

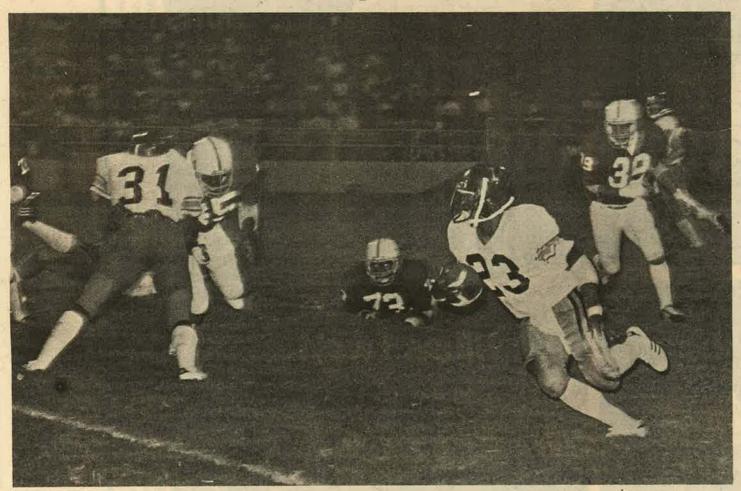

Record Enrollment At Graduate School

One hundred forty-eight students enrolled this summer for classes at the Harding Graduate School of Religion, a record enrollment for summer school. This broke the previous record of 142 which was first set in 1978.

Cross Country Team Sweeps AIC Opener

Inexperience could be the watchword for the 1981 Harding University cross country squad. With four all-conference performers graduated from last year's Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference championship team, the Bisons return only two proven runners to make a bid for their eleventh consecutive conference crown.

Harding opened its season with a victory over four conference opponents in the Ouachita Baptist University Invitational September 10.

In last year's banner season, the Bisons swept the AIC-NAIA District 17 Championship and went on to capture tenth in the national NAIA meet at Kenosha, Wis.

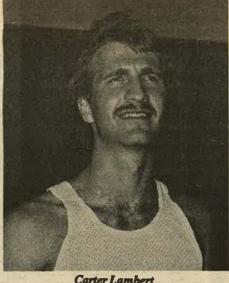

Senior Richard Teixeira won his third consecutive AIC-District 17 Individual Championship and earned NAIA All-American honors for the second year in a row with a 25th place in the national meet.

"Last year's team was probably the best we've had at Harding. I know it was the best I've had since I've been here," Coach Ted Lloyd said. "This year we're going to have to rely on all of the men to take up the slack."

Back to lead the Bison team are Carter Lambert and Joe O'Conor. Lambert, a senior from Pearl, Mississippi, was the runner-up in last year's AIC Championships and is an NAIA indoor track All-American in the two-mile run. He is also an All-AIC honoree. O'Conor, a junior from Shelter Island, New York, placed ninth in the conference last year and won All-AIC recognition for the past two years.

Lloyd will look to five middle distance runners to back Lambert and O'Conor. They are Marty Sewell from St. Charles, Missouri, Jeff Westover from Sidney, Ohio, Daryl Soules from Anchorage, Alaska, Tomy Sitton from Avondale Estates, Georgia, and Alan Adams of Brentwood, Tennessee. All are entering their second year on the Bison team.

Newcomers to the team include Mitch

Carter Lambert

McCohn of New London, Ohio, Jerry Harris of Lawrenceville, Georgia, Ron Norwood of Cheyenne, Wyoming, Ken Berry of Little Rock, Cossie Chandler of Cincinnati, Ohio,

Joe O'Conor

Travis Crowe of Madill, Oklahoma, Steven Hubbard of Brentwood, Tennesse, John Woodell of Searcy, and Jimmy Alderice of Madison, Tennessee.

Women's Team Premiers This Fall

Twenty-one athletes are candidates for Harding University's first women's cross country team, according to head coach Ted

"It's difficult to know exactly how they will be able to compete," Lloyd said. "Many of the girls competed in high school, but it has been a while and they are learning all over again. We're inexperienced but I believe we should compare favorably with the other conference schools."

The women will run at the 5000 meter distance in most meets, Lloyd said.

Athletes who make up the team are Kim Adams of Dallas, Texas; Lee Belew of Romance, Ark.; Kim Castle of Longmont, Colo.; Anna Ciccone of Orland Park, Ill.; LeAnn Eno of Boise, Idaho;

Tiny Fraley of Turrell, Ark.; Sherry Harris of Lawrenceville, Ga.; Gina Hodel of Naperville, Ill.; Cheryl Hostetler of LaGrange, Ind.; Meneia Gilbert of Rochester, N.Y.; Karen Koonce of El Dorado, Ark.;

Denise McCoy of Ashdown, Ark.; Angela Pyland of Searcy, Ark.; Teresa Reeh of Shreveport, La.; Tamie Rix of Marion, Ill.; Wanda Stone of Hope, Ark.; Elaine Sutton of Burns Flatt. Okla .:

Donna Thedford of Syracuse, N.Y.; Marla Upton of Greenwood, Ind.; Sharon Westover of Sidney, Ohio and Marci Williams of Salado, Texas.

A rigorous fall training paid early dividends as the Harding University Bisons opened the 1981 season with an impressive 12-6 victory over Lane College in Jackson, Tenn.

Junior quarterback Kyle Blickenstaff of Boise, Idaho led the Bisons with a one-yard touchdown and nine completions in 22 attempts for 93 yards. Sophomore linebacker Greg Poston of Memphis set up the game-winning score by blocking and recovering a Lane punt in the fourth quarter.

Poston and defensive end Ron Kohlbrand of Merritt Island, Fla. recorded impressive defensive performances. Kohlbrand was nominated for the NAIA Defensive Player of the Week for posting seven tackles, nine tackle assists and one and one-half quarterback sacks and a fumble recovery.

An improved ground game complemented Blickenstaff's passing. Fullback Pat Brown of Greenville, Texas had 50 yards on 12 carries and tailback Tony McCoy of Texarkana, Texas had 46 yards on 16

Harding will host Arkansas Tech October 10 and Livingston University (Ala.) October 17. Homecoming is set for October 31 when the Bisons will play the University of Arkansas-Monticello.

Harding's bare-footed kicking specialist, sophomore Steve Hunter of Temple, Texas, provided the early points for the Bisons with field goals of 28 and 40 yards.

The defensive unit stopped the Dragons with only 85 yards total offense. A first quarter goal line stand repelled the Lane runners four times from the Bison one-yard

Providing leadership for this year's team are six seniors. They are two returning All-AIC performers Lafe Caton of Inola, Okla., and Roy Kirkland of Cabot, Ark.,; and Klay Barett of Dallas, Texas; Dain Clark of Pavo, Ga.; Charles Cross of Drayton Plains, Mich., and Nicky Valls of Corpus Christi, BISON BITS - Basketball coach Jess Bucy will serve on the NAIA National Rating Committee for the 1981-82 season. The committee serves as the voting panel of coaches who will determine the weekly leaders in NAIA basketball . . . Joe Boyle, who was the 1968 cross country champion, is serving as assistant cross country coach this year while pursuing graduate studies . . . Former Bison footballers who are serving as graduate assistants this season are Ron Dicken, Scott Ragsdale, Jim Gentry, Doug Nickerson, and Kerry Thompson.
