Business Team Scores Victory in National Competition

Harding University has been named one of four national industry champions in the 1984 Intercollegiate Business Games, sponsored and directed by the Graduate Business Association of Emory University in Atlanta, Ga.

The four winners were announced at an awards banquet at the Omni International Ballroom in Atlanta March 3. The other industry champions were West Georgia College, the University of Calgary (Canada) and the University of Richmond.

Members of the Harding team are Byron Carlock, Blytheville, Ark.; Jeff Tennyson, Harrison, Ark.; Tonya Newell, Oak Grove, La.; Phil Berry, Atlanta; Blair Bryan, Nashville, Tenn.; Jena Conrad, Pauls Valley, Okla.; and Brant Holladay, Atlanta.

Faculty advisors are Dr. Jim Henderson, assistant dean of the School of Business and Dr. David Burks, dean of the School of Business.

“The attitude, dedication and performance level achieved by these was exceptional,” Henderson said.

For Harding, it was the seventh championship in 14 years of competition in the Emory University Business Games. This year 23 colleges and universities from the United States and Canada participated in the intensive, two-month-long business management competition.

In its industry, Harding competed against the University of Denver, Southern Methodist University, Simon Fraser University (Canada), Loyola College and Millsaps College.

The Harding team was also awarded a plaque for giving the best presentation, and was judged to have submitted the outstanding strategy report. This award was based on the team's presentation and defense of their strategy to a panel of judges, as well as a special presentation based on a case assigned to the team upon arriving in Atlanta March 1.

“Our performance indicates that Harding's business program continues to be on the cutting edge of competition with other major universities throughout the United States,” Henderson said.

Harding student business teams have compiled an outstanding record of success in intercollegiate competition dating back to 1964. Harding has won an unprecedented four national championships in business competitions at Michigan State University and a national title in competition at the University of Nevada at Reno.

“The performance of this year's team, from start to finish, was the finest I've seen in the 13 years I've been involved in intercollegiate business gaming,” Burks said.

At the conclusion of the competition a computer-generated simulation was conducted for the four industry winners. The simulation was based on standard formulas which had been submitted at the beginning of the competition. West Georgia was listed first, Harding a close second followed by the University of Calgary and the University of Richmond.

Burks indicated the computer-simulation was a first time experiment by the game directors to rank industry winners and represented more of an “average” based on the preset formulas submitted by the teams.

“The basic need of any management team is to be able to adjust their strategy to the changing conditions of the market. In the simulation there is no adjustment made,” Burks said. “We feel our students did an outstanding job of adjusting to the competitor's decisions and other external factors.”

1983 Donor Level Increases

The number of donors to Harding increased in 1983 as 5,213 individuals, corporations, or organizations made contributions according to a report released by Floyd Daniel, vice president for development.

During 1983 donations to Harding reached $3,395,842. In 1982 the contributions were $2,579,652. There were 3,353 of these 1983 donors who qualified for membership in Harding's Donor Recognition program. Participation in these gift clubs accounted for $3,357,891 in gifts.

The Donor Recognition program includes seven different levels of participation. These levels include the Founders' Fund, Trustees' Circle, President's Forum, Heritage Fund, University Fund, Century Club, and Harding Friends.

Forty-four donors were members of the Founders' Fund in 1983. Their contributions totaled $2,024,270. Membership at this level is for individuals or organizations contributing $10,000 or more during a calendar year.

The Trustees' Circle also enrolled 44 donors during the year. This group contributed $275,842. Membership in the Trustees' Circle requires gifts between $5,000 and $9,999 annually.

Membership in the President's Forum reached 279 in 1983. Donors in this group contributed between $1,000 and $4,999. In 1983 donors at this level contributed $498,870.

Members of the Heritage Fund gave $167,374 during 1983. There were 264 donors at this level, giving between $500 and $999. Donors giving between $200 and $499 were designated as members of the University Fund. Those in this gift club gave $213,348. There were 794 members in this club during 1983. This was an increase of 100 members over the previous year.

The largest increase in participants at any level came in the Century Club. In 1983 there were 1,046 participants compared to the 898 in 1982. Those giving between $100 and $199 are members of the Century Club. In 1983 this group contributed $124,916.

Harding Friends is the designation for those giving $50 to $99 annually. This group gave $53,271, and there were 882 members. In addition to the gift club members, there were another 1,860 individuals or organizations in 1983 who contributed $37,951 in gifts between $1 and $49.

The purposes of the Donor Recognition program are to encourage an active interest in the University by alumni and friends, to increase Harding's recognition of devoted financial supporters, and to maintain and to increase substantially the level of giving by alumni and friends.

Cloer Expects Good Crowd for 13-in-1 Bible Workshop

Eddie Cloer, director of Harding's 13-in-1 Bible Workshop, said he is expecting a record turnout for this year's spiritual bonanza.

“I'm excited to be associated with this year's workshop,” he said. “I've heard nothing but positive comments from everyone involved. Our Bible teachers and workshop coordinators are all mature, qualified individuals with a great deal of enthusiasm and insight into God's Word, and together we will accomplish some good things for the Kingdom.”

The biennial workshop, with three days of concentrated study in 13 areas, will be conducted July 31-August 2 by more than 75 teachers. Registration will begin July 30, but Cloer asks that everyone apply early to ensure suitable housing arrangements, and to avoid last-minute problems and long lines.

Classes will be held Tuesday through Thursday from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., with workshops and their coordinators as follows: Biblical Studies, Paul Pollard; The Christian Woman, Barby Smith; Counseling, Lew Moore; The Cradle Roll, Sheri Shearin; Death and Dying, Will Ed Warren; Early Childhood, Lynn England; Local Evangelism, Allan Isom; Mental Health, Jack Thomas; Spiritual Life, James Walters; Topical Studies, Tom Eddins; Visual Aids, Jennifer Hurd; Youth, Ken Spoor; and World Evangelism, L. V. Pfeifer.

A 7:30 p.m. opening session on July 30 will kick off the series with Avon Malone of the Harding Bible faculty speaking. His topic will be “This Is The Will of God, Even Your Sanctification.”

Neale Pryor will present “A Royal Priesthood” Tuesday night, and Jimmy Allen will speak Wednesday night on “Christ In You, The Hope of Glory.”

Kenneth Davis Jr. will direct congregational singing each evening at 7:00.

Further information may be obtained by writing Eddie Cloer, 13-in-1 Workshop Director, Box 939, Harding University, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Financial Aid Assistance Essential to Most Students

Russell Showalter, director of federal programs in the Financial Aid office and his staff are very busy these days as student applications are coming in requesting financial aid for 1984-85. The deadline for filing applications is May 1.

A total of 3,146 students are currently enrolled in the School of Biblical Studies (CCP), Harding University and Harding Graduate School of Religion. Out of this total, 2,335 students or 74 percent are receiving some type of aid.

Various forms of financial aid are available to Harding students who qualify, including grants, loans, scholarships, work study programs, campus work and off-campus work. A four month period, from January 1 to May 1, is set aside each year for student financial aid applications to be completed and turned in. Applications received after this deadline date will be on first come, first served basis as funds are available.

In all, approximately ten million dollars in financial aid will be distributed among Harding students this year. That figure includes: Pell Grants, $1,042,849; Scholarships, $1,500,000; Off Campus Work Program, $500,000; College Work Study Program, $420,584; Guaranteed Student Loans, $4,500,000; Harding University Work, $425,000; Harding Short Term Loans, $600,000; Nursing Loan Program, $5,303; National Direct Student Loans, $782,737; and Supplementary Educational Opportunity Grants, $65,148.

The Financial Aid Office encourages interested persons to apply early for their financial needs. To write for an application or further information, address letters to Harding University, Financial Aid Office, Box 940, Station A, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

New Degrees to be Offered

A departmental title change and a new major in that department, along with the development of a Master of Science degree in Education, have been approved for the curriculum beginning with the fall semester.

The Department of Foreign Languages and International Studies will be the new name for what was formerly known as the "Department of Modern Foreign Languages." Dr. Winfred Wright is chairman of the department.

A major in International Studies will be available, requiring 62 hours of prescribed coursework. A 21-hour career concentration in such areas as foreign political service, international business, international communications, human services, foreign languages or vocational missions will be decided in cooperation with the chairman of the various departments involved, according to Wright.

From three to 12 hours of credit may be earned by study abroad at approved foreign institutions.

The Master of Science in Education for students not seeking teacher certification was approved by the Graduate Council.

Foreign students who do not seek certification and who do not need certification will also be able to pursue this degree, and programs of study will be available to students who seek a master's degree for a non-teaching vocation. Dr. Bobby Coker, dean of the School of Education, noted. Dr. Wyatt Jones, director of graduate studies, will be in charge of the new 32-hour program.

Hymns Broadcast

Hymns from Harding, a 15-minute radio program of hymns and scripture produced by Harding University, is now being broadcast to half the population of the world on Radio Station KNLS, the powerful short-wave station recently constructed at Anchor Point on the Kenei Peninsula in Alaska.

For 35 years, Hymns from Harding has been aired by radio stations in the United States and is currently being broadcast in 24 states. The program features singing by the A Cappella Chorus, directed by Dr. Kenneth Davis, Jr.

Tuition to Increase By 5 Percent

Due to inflation the Board of Trustees recently voted to increase tuition, room, board and fees for the 1984-85 school year, according to Lott Tucker, vice president for finance.

Madison Academy Wins Harding Bowl

Madison Academy of Huntsville, Ala. took first place in the inaugural Harding University High School Bowl March 3, with Harding Academy of Memphis, Tenn. finishing second.

Thirteen schools from a five-state area participated in the competition, including Central Arkansas Christian, Crowley's Ridge Academy, Ezell-Harding, Greater St. Louis Christian Academy, Green Country Christian, Harding Academy-Searcy, Living Word Academy, Metro Christian, Mars Hill Bible School, Shreveport Christian and West Memphis Christian.

Five hundred dollar scholarships were offered by the University to members of the winning team who enroll at Harding for their first year of college study. Members of the second place team received $300 scholarship offers for their first year at Harding.

A double elimination format was used for the two day tournament.

Preliminary competition was held March 2 in the Mabee Business Center and final rounds were played March 3 in the Benson Auditorium.

Dr. Dennis Organ, chairman of the Harding English Department and co-sponsor of the Harding College Bowl team, directed the competition.

"This was a unique opportunity for Christian students to compete against one another," said Admissions Counselor Chris Dell.

The teams were housed on the Harding campus while team sponsors stayed in the homes of faculty members.

Each school received a certificate at an awards banquet Saturday night. Keynote speaker at the banquet was Dr. Neale Pryor, vice president for academic affairs.

Tuition will increase from this year's $92 to $97 a semester hour. Registration fees will jump five percent from $91 to $96 a semester, while the semester's fee for meals at Pattie Cobb Cafeteria will increase from $548 to $564 a semester and at American Heritage Cafeteria from $598 to $616.

The greatest increase will be in dormitory room rent. The rates for most rooms will be up $25 from the current semester rate of $364.40, an increase of seven percent.

According to Tucker, inflation has affected every service and item the institution purchases. He cited monthly utility costs averaging about $125,000.

Another factor involved in the increase is a proposed increase in faculty salaries, which are badly needed since most faculty members did not receive raises during the current school year, Tucker said.

The University's tuition increases compare quite favorably with those at other schools. Other Christian institutions such as David Lipscomb College and Oklahoma Christian College are planning six to eight percent increases, Tucker said.

The Harding chapter's motto — "WE MEAN BUSINESS (Among Other Things)" — was adopted as the official conference theme.

Students Arrange Bike-a-thon For Charity

Saturday, April 14, is a special day for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Rick Kee, a Harding University junior from Augusta, will lead a group of 14 other Harding students on a 10-hour, 110 mile bike ride from Searcy to Memphis to help raise funds for St. Jude's.

Kee said the group plans to leave at 6:30 a.m. from in front of the Hammon Student Center, and will make the trip unless the weather "is really bad." Kee said rain will not deter the group's plans, but in case of a severe storm, they will make the trip April 28.

Kee said the Arkansas State Police will provide an escort across the Mississippi River Bridge into Memphis, and on to St. Jude's. The bikers will follow U.S. 64 East from Bald Knob to Marion, and expect to arrive in Memphis at 4:30 p.m.

The bike-a-thon is part of an area-wide bike-a-thon being coordinated by Sarah Smith of Searcy. Smith said this is her fourth year in a row to coordinate a local bike-a-thon for St. Jude's. This year, for the first time, she plans to branch out from Searcy into the rest of White County in an effort to involve more people and increase donations.

Smith will be in charge of a local bike-a-thon Sunday, April 15 for interested persons. The bike-a-thon will begin at 1:30 p.m. in front of the Carmichael Community Center. And although most participants are in elementary and junior high school, Smith said one adult has already announced plans to be there.

Smith and a team of local volunteers will be calling on businesses in White County during the next two weeks in order to secure $10,000 worth of pledges for the two bike-a-thons. Sponsors and sponsoring agencies normally pledge a certain amount for each mile ridden.

Smith said she feels St. Jude's is a worthy cause because the hospital doesn't turn needy children away, and because children are dependent upon adults for help.

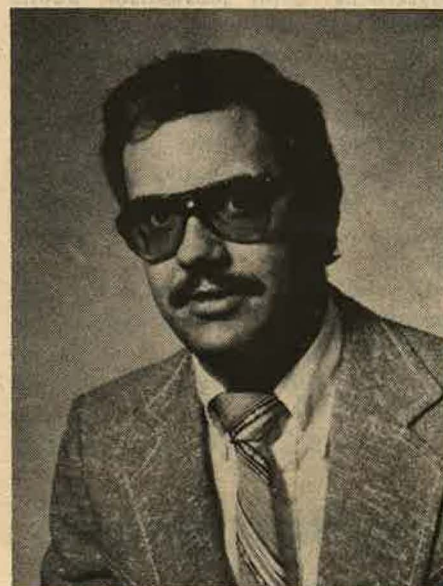

Kee expressed similar feelings. "I heard about what she (Smith) was doing and volunteered to help," he said.

But Kee is no stranger to either fundraising or bicycling. The amiable missions major stayed out of school last year to work at Circle C Youth Ranch in Linden, Tenn. as a counselor.

As part of his job, he regularly took youths on week-long bicycle trips in an effort to increase their feelings of confidence and self-worth. Kee said he and two other counselors decided that the positive results from the trips warranted an extended trip for problem youths at the camp.

So the three planned a three-month trip from Florida to California last spring, and took with them a 15-year-old, 18-year-old, and 19-year-old who had severe adjustment problems at the camp.

A church in Nashville, Tenn. furnished a van and driver to take the group to Cocoa Beach, Fla., Key said, and they began their journey March 4. Another purpose of the trip was to raise money for the youth camp, Kee said, so frequent stops were made along the way in Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas, Texas, and Arizona.

The group arrived in Los Angeles June 7, according to Kee, but was minus two of the delinquents, who had dropped out and returned home.

Kee said their trip raised $5,000, of which $2,200 was used for expenses and $2,800 was returned to the ranch, where it will be used to purchase a computer.

Kee also said that all three youths are currently adjusting well in their home situation or in society.

One stop the group made on their trip was in Searcy. "That was about April 22," Kee recalled. West Side church of Christ invited the youths to spend the night at the church building, which they gratefully did.

Mike Ireland, West Side minister, visited with the group and termed it "an interesting experience."

Kee is currently student coordinator for the Big Brother program at Harding.

He said it took determination to finish the cross-country trip. "Sixty mile an hour headwinds tried to keep us from going into San Diego," he said. "And the last night of our trip, we ran out of food and water and had to camp out in cold weather.

"But we made it," he added.

Now this determination is being applied to help raise money for St. Jude's. "Ten thousand dollars is a lot of money, but I think we can do it," he said. "After all what is the life of just one child worth?"

Petit Jean Wins 24th All-American

The 1983 Petit Jean yearbook at Harding University has received an All-American rating from the Associated Collegiate Press in Minneapolis, with marks of distinction given in all five categories of evaluation.

The rating makes the 24th consecutive such honor given the book, which was edited by Jay Simpson of Pocahontas and distributed to the student body last May.

In a report to Dr. Joseph E. Pryor, advisor for the publication, one evaluator from the critical service commented, "The book showed good, sound reporting, interesting features; a lovely book, display was super, copy coverage was excellent, lovely theme that seemed to exemplify the message of 1983 at your school."

The book was judged in the areas of photography, art and graphics, copy, display, coverage and concept.

The Petit Jean has also been submitted for evaluation in the Arkansas College Publications Association yearbook contest, but results will not be announced until the annual meeting set for April at the University of Central Arkansas in Conway.

Seminar Conducted

The Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) chapter at Harding University sponsored a seminar on "Careers in Public Relations" Friday, March 30 in the American Heritage Auditorium.

Jeff Smith, a senior from Greenwood, Miss., and president of the local chapter, coordinated the afternoon seminar, which began at 1:45 and concluded at 5:00.

Speakers included Jaquita Phillips of the Pulaski County United Way, representing non-profit public relations; Dan McMillon of Southwestern Bell, representing corporate public relations; and Tom Corley of Ronnie Milsap Enterprises, speaking on public relations from the professional entertainment field.

Students and faculty from several Arkansas colleges and universities attended.

School of Business to Form Associates Group

Effective with its first meeting in October 1984, the Harding University School of Business will launch a new organization called "Business Associates." It will be made up of alumni and friends of the School of Business who are interested in actively assisting with the implementation of School of Business goals and objectives. Dean of the School of Business, Dr. David Burks, has designated Dr. Don Diffine, director of the Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education, to coordinate the new program.

Business Associates will recognize men and women who represent excellence and professionalism in the business world and stand for and live by high moral standards as demonstrated in their work and in their personal life. Associates should be caring people who believe in service at work, at home, and in the community. Associates should believe in our private enterprise system and citizenship education.

Business Associates will be asked to serve in the following ways: (1) assist the faculty in the planning of curriculum and programs offered for our students; (2) assist in providing periodic career counseling for students by giving special presentations on campus concerning opportunities available in their special field of work; (3) assist graduates in finding meaningful job opportunities; (4) serve as resource personnel for special presentations on campus; (5) help identify and recruit students for Harding University; and (6) contribute financially to Harding University.

Associates will also benefit from this new organization: (1) Associates will receive an annual report from the Dean of the School of Business; (2) Associates will receive the Entrepreneur Forum, and other business related publications from Harding periodically; (3) Associates will be invited to American Studies dinners/programs and other special events at Harding; (4) Associates will have opportunities to make recommendations, when appropriate, to strengthen the School of Business; (5) Associates will receive periodic recommendations from the Dean of the School of Business concerning outstanding students and information concerning job opportunities; and (6) Inductees will receive a handsome honor plaque, ". . . in acknowledgement of and appreciation for being an excellent business example and community member, for working in support of a stronger American capitalism, for encouraging citizenship, education, and for the ideals that make for better Christian professionals in business. . ."

Members appointed to the Business Associates will be asked to serve for a three-year term with reappointment possible. Associates will be asked to meet once each year, usually in October and possibly in conjunction with a major American Studies presentation on campus. Regional meetings may be conducted periodically with business alumni in the geographic area in which they live to enhance communication between Associates, alumni, and Harding University. A chairman of Business Associates will be appointed from among the membership.

Communication Department Organized

Beginning in the fall semester of 1984, Harding University's departments of speech and journalism will merge to become the department of communication, according to Dr. Neale Pryor, vice president for academic affairs.

The new department will offer degrees in oral communication, theater, theater management, communication disorders, advertising, print journalism, public relations and radio-television, with minors in oral communication, theater, journalism and radio-television.

Dr. Evan Ulrey, chairman of the new department, said, "The need for a department of communication is evidenced by the increasingly significant position occupied by communication in world affairs."

He also said that there is increased recognition of the need for skilled communicators in all segments of society, including education, government, business and the church.

"It will be the aim of the communications department to prepare students to use their communicative skills in a responsible manner, in order to serve well both God and man," Ulrey said.

In conjunction with the departmental merger, some classes have been added, some dropped and some combined to improve the degree plans for each major. Among added courses are basic news writing, professional interviewing practicum, and advanced television direction and production.

School publications, oral interpretation of the Bible, and Christian communication have been dropped from the curriculum, while new offerings representing a combination of current classes include an introduction to mass communication and a course involved with religious applications of the media.

Internships will be required for every student seeking a major in the communication department, according to Ulrey. "Students who complete internships almost always receive a job offer from the employer with whom they have interned," he said.

Ulrey said the new department is similar to that at other universities. "The national trend is toward this type of department," he said. "This type of liberal arts education will help our students to become qualified for a wide variety of jobs in the communication field."

Graduates from the new department will have more marketable skills, Ulrey said, with all majors receiving an orientation to the broadcast media.

Downing Earns Doctorate

Maribeth Downing, Harding's dean of women since 1974, has completed requirements for the Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, where the honor will be conferred in May.

The doctorate in Community and Human Resources, an interdisciplinary degree from the Departments of Adult and Continuing Education and Human Development and the Family, emphasized family studies.

"Many of the problems I have seen in working with Harding students have been family related," Downing noted. "Parents and children are equally a part of the unique system we call the family. One is rarely independent of the other. Often individual problems are rooted in the family system. In dealing with students and their families, I have become more aware of the necessity to meet the needs of these two groups, both professionally and in the church."

Downing completed course work in August of 1982 in Lincoln, where she had worked for a year as a graduate assistant in the chancellor's office, serving as liaison between administrators, faculty, staff, and the chancellor's office. Her dissertation is entitled "Top-level Women Administrators in Private Higher Education."

A 1967 graduate of Harding, she also

Florence Villa Being Purchased

The purchase of a villa in Florence, Italy and the hiring of an assistant director who will work there year-round are two investments that give Harding University the potential to develop "the best international program in the country," according to Dr. Don Shackelford, program director.

The Harding University in Florence (HUF) program began in the fall of 1980, and for the past four years students and faculty have been housed in a facility owned by the Southwest church of Christ in Jonesboro, Ark. That congregation now plans to use their property to begin a Bible school for Italians.

The new villa contains 6,800 square meters of floor space, including 23 rooms and seven bathrooms, and is located on about three-fourths of an acre not far from the Florence suburb of Scandicci.

Three bus lines running to the train station, center of town, and the local church of Christ building form near the villa, making it a valuable location, Shackelford said. In the former location, students had to change from bus to bus in order to get to these much frequented spots.

The new facility, built in the 16th Century, will allow the HUF program to increase from 30 students and two faculty members per semester to a maximum of 40 students plus faculty. A cook and gardener will be employed at the villa, but housekeeping duties will be offered to students who qualify for work-study assistance, Shackelford said.

The villa has been completely modernized during the last 15 years, Shackelford said, including the addition of an underground electrical system, central heating and outdoor floodlights.

Terry Edwards, a Harding alumnus, will begin working June 1 as assistant director of the program after spending the past several years at Indianapolis Christian School as chorus director, music teacher and Bible instructor, and youth minister at a local congregation.

Edwards, who is married to the former Kim Klein (BA'78), lived in Italy for 12 years and is fluent in Italian. He has an M.A. degree in music history from Butler University.

Alpha Chi Members Attend Convention

Seven Harding University students who are members of Arkansas Eta chapter of Alpha Chi national honor scholarship society and four faculty sponsors were a part of the Region II convention of Alpha Chi March 22-24 at Southern University in Baton Rouge. Representatives of 28 colleges and universities participated.

Connie Aledander of McKinney, Texas and Cheryl Wilburn of Tulsa, Okla. presented piano solos. Becky Maupin of Daingerfield, Texas gave a dramatic reading and Ken England of Lisle, Ill. and Trey Reely of Searcy presented original papers. Other papers by Eddie Madden of Newport and Mel Sansom of Pensacola, Fla. were read.

Dr. Don England, a sponsor of Harding's chapter, was elected president of Region II for 1984-86. Other sponsors attending were Dr. J. E. Pryor, an executive director of the National Council of Alpha Chi, Mrs. Patricia Barrett, and Dr. Dennis Organ, editor of the organization's official publication, The Recorder.

Review Taught by Nursing Faculty

Three members of the Harding University nursing faculty completed teaching duties this spring in the Nursing Board Review course for the American Journal of Nursing Company in New York. They are Dr. Cathleen Shultz, dean of the School of Nursing; Louise Bradford, associate professor of nursing and Jerry Myhan, assistant professor of nursing.

Dr. Shultz serves as an on-site coordinator and has worked this year in Miami, Florida and Dallas, Texas.

Bradford taught a one-day psychiatric Nursing Review course in Albany, N.Y. on Jan. 20 and Myhan taught a one-day medical-surgical course in Atlanta, Ga. on Jan. 11 and Pittsburgh, Penn., Jan. 18.

The course includes a five-day review to prepare graduate nurses to take exams for registered nurse licensure.

Harding is the only NBR course site in the state and offers the information in May for nursing students at the University and also for others who register via the American Journal of Nursing Company.

Other faculty at the Harding site will be Charlotte Stephenson, who teaches medical-surgical nursing; Vicki Keck, who teaches pediatric nursing; and Dr. Nancy Clark, who teaches maternal-child nursing.

Microcomputers Expand Role at Harding

by Bruce Cook

This year the curriculum has reflected a change in format for Mathematics 101, a general education requirement now designed to teach students the fundamentals of microcomputer usage.

Dr. Bill Oldham, director of mathematics education at Harding, is primarily responsible for introducing microcomputers into the classroom. According to Oldham, the University needed a course that would give students certifying to teach in secondary schools and all other students in general the opportunity to learn the basic principles of microcomputer operation.

The only logical course that would catch everyone was Math 101, he said.

The original outline of the course, which included basic mathematical skills, fundamental probability and statistics, logic and mathematics of finance, is still intact but now is aided by the use of microcomputers.

Students in the class are required to get some hands-on experience with microcomputer operation, and are taught how microcomputers can be used in their own major fields of study.

"This is especially significant for those certifying to teach," Oldham said. "Now they will know how to teach their students with the aid of microcomputers."

Math 101 is being taught with a limited amount of facilities this year, Oldham said, but with the completion of the Science Addition this summer, a new Mathematics Education Laboratory will be available.

According to Dean Priest, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and chairman of the mathematics department, the new facility will contain about 20 microcomputers, compared to the present total of eight, and will occupy about 2,000 square feet.

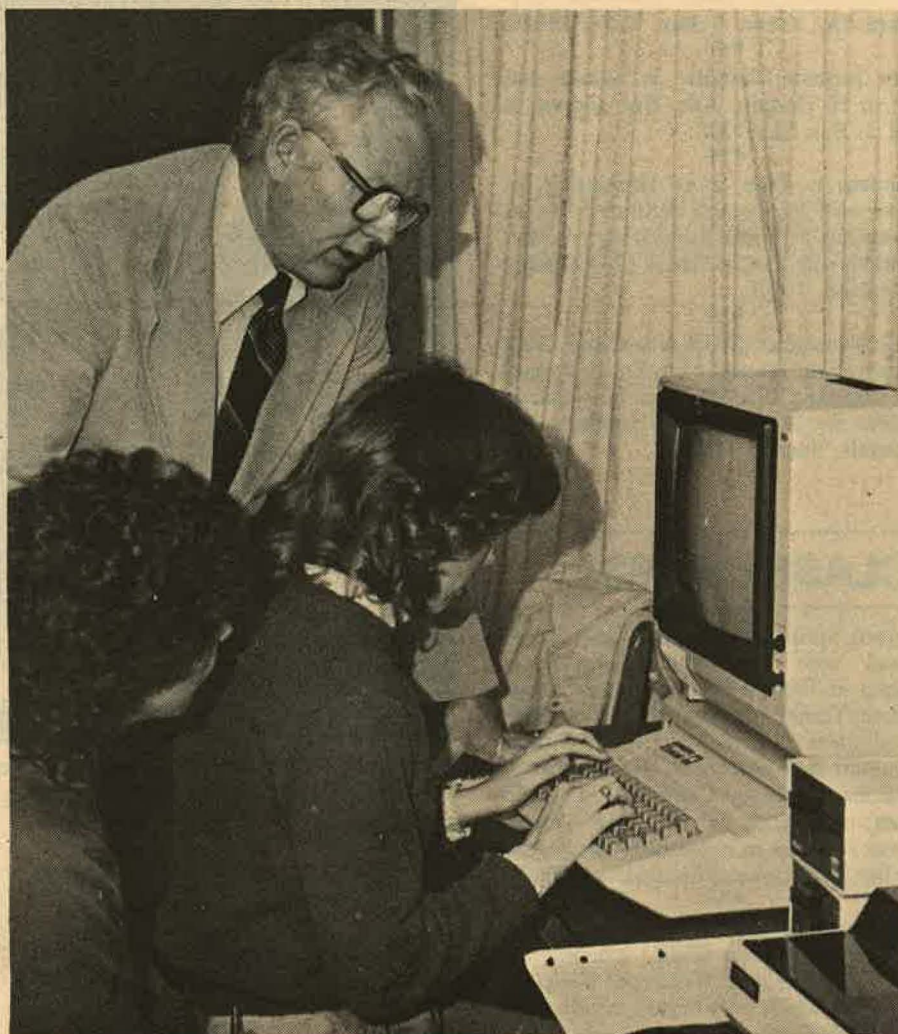

Priest has also been instrumental in the effort to bring microcomputers to Harding. "Mainframes have dominated our approach to computers here at Harding in the past," he said, "but now we're beginning to see the need for microcomputers in order to allow more students to access our facilities.

"The computer is doing for the mind what the machine did for muscle," he added. "It's important that all students — whatever their field — have a working knowledge of computers.

"We've moved into the information age," Priest continued, "and micro, or personal, computers are the name of the game for the future. They're standard in business and industry, and are rapidly becoming a common fixture in the home along with televisions, refrigerators, and telephones."

Priest said there are presently about 20-25 University-owned microcomputers on campus, and about 50 by students. There are also about 60 non-intelligent ("dumb") terminals linked to either the Vax academic computer or the DEC administrative computer. The largest number of these (32) are located in the Mabee Business Center, and are used by business and computer science students. The others are used by various offices and departments on campus.

Priest said currently student usage of computer facilities is so great that this fall the Vax system is scheduled to double its capability, increasing from about two-and-a-half megabytes to five megabytes. Dial-up phone lines allowing access to the Vax computer will also double this fall, Priest said, from the current two or three to about five or six.

The dial-ups are provided for students who own their own micros, Priest said, but presently the lines are constantly in use because each call ties up the computer for a long period of time. A solution would be for each student to spend about $50 to add uploadbe used primarily by non-business students, Priest said, including education, journalism, nursing, physics, chemistry, and psychology majors.

"These changes will address a real need among our students," said Priest, "and at the same time will strengthen the University and place us in a state-of-the-art position in the area of computer education.

"Our goal is to achieve computer awareness, literacy and usage skills at all levels among our faculty, staff and students," Priest said.

"The computer is doing for the mind what the machine did for muscle. It's important that all students — whatever their field — have a working knowledge of computers."

download capability to their micros. With this feature, the amount of time the computer is tied up per call is minimal, Priest said.

Another strategy planned for the fall is the establishment of a satellite computer room in the Science Building, Priest said. The satellite center will have approximately 28 microcomputers, and will

According to a 12-page report issued this year by the Southern Regional Education Board, entitled "Computers in Education: Implications for Schools and Colleges," the use of computers in the classrooms of elementary and secondary schools is rapidly increasing in the United States.

The report cited a recent study which showed that 85 percent of U.S. high schools had at least one microcomputer, compared to 42 percent for elementary schools. In addition, the proportion of secondary schools having five or more microcomputers doubled from June 1982 to January 1983, and the number of schools using microcomputers for instruction increased over 300 percent from October 1981 to October 1983.

The report also noted that "In Arkansas, the Microcomputer Task Force, composed of school and higher education representatives, has urged colleges and universities to include computer literacy in their teacher training programs . . . Arkansas State University at Jonesboro has approved a computer literacy requirement for its teacher education graduates, and several other Arkansas institutions are considering a similar move."

At Harding, the School of Education has played a vital role in the addition of microcomputers to the classroom. According to Oldham, Dr. Bobby Coker, dean of the School of Education, and Dr. Richard Duke, director of field experiences and assistant professor of education, contacted him during the 1982-83 school year concerning the need for education students to be computer literate. The result was the restructuring of Mathematics 101 for general and secondary education students, and Math 225 for elementary education majors, Oldham said.

Oldham teaches both courses, along with Gene Dugger and David Kratzer. Two hundred fifty students utilized the Mathematics Learning Laboratory last fall, Oldham said. Examples of software in the lab include "Meet The President," "Simulations in Social Studies" and "History Simulation," among many others.

Oldham also conducts a wide assortment of workshops, seminars and short courses throughout the year for faculty, staff, and other education professionals.

Oldham is understandably proud of the role the Mathematics Laboratory has played in recent years, especially when you consider that the lab received its first microcomputer in 1981. The lab itself began in 1972, when Oldham returned to Harding after completing his doctoral work. The lab was originally housed on the third floor of the old Science Building, before later moving to its present location on the second floor of Old West Dormitory.

Oldham has helped to administer several National Science Foundation grants while at Harding, and along with Priest, in 1977-78 co-chaired a project for the National Institute of Health in which Arkansas teachers were taught the metric system.

Both also are active in the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the Arkansas Council of Teachers of Mathematics. Oldham has edited the ACTM journal, Mathematics Currents, for the past four years and Priest served on the Education Materials Committee of the NCTM from 1980-83.

Their hard work and diligence at Harding has also reaped success, not only for the mathematics department, but for the entire University.

Busy Homemaker Hops to Serve Her Family

by Doug Thompson ['81]
of The Sherwood Voice

Vickie Burt, 35, is on the job seven days a week, but never brings home a paycheck. She makes sure her children have the finest-quality clothes to wear, but never goes to a clothing store. She makes sure her family eats well-balanced meals, but never buys them anything to eat but eggs and dairy products.

For lack of a better job title, Burt is a homemaker. " 'Oh, you don't work'; that's the reaction I get when I tell people that I stay at home, and it burns me up," she said in an interview. "There's not enough hours in the day to do everything that can be done at home."

Of course, staying busy is easy at 18 Forest Oaks Drive in Runyan Acres, where the Burts live. There is a rabbit ranch in the back yard that provides meat for food and hides for clothes, and there is a thriving organic garden which must be tended.

The produce from that garden has to be canned in quart jars and added to the pantry, which holds 2,000 such jars of produce. Then, when that is finished, it is time to start work on the homemade clothes that fill the Burt family's closets. Also, there are hot meals to cook and family devotionals to have.

After finishing her serious business, Burt trains for an upcoming 10-kilometer race or swims a mile at the Jacksonville Boy's Club. Then she can get a good night's rest before starting again tomorrow.

A visit to the Burt home is a field study on self-sufficiency. Apparently, the energy she has in her homemaking projects stems from two motives: an intense desire to do all that she can for her family, and a love of finding, meeting, and overcoming challenges relevant to that purpose.

Perhaps the best illustration of Burt's determination is the story of the rabbit-skin coat. Her interest in making such a coat for her daughter began after Burt started raising rabbits for meat two years ago.

Besides providing meat, the remains made excellent fertilizer for her organic garden. Even so, Burt felt it was a terrible waste to bury the beautiful white pelts among her corn and beans.

After learning how to tan hides, she called a local furrier, who was no help at all, Burt said.

"When I called and asked him how to make a rabbit coat he laughed at me," Burt said. "He told me that I didn't have the equipment, that I'd need a block to stretch the pelts on and special needles. Finally he told me that if I tried I'd end up with nothing but a mess."

"Well that just spurred me on, because if someone tells me I can't do something, I'll break my neck to do it," Burt said. However, she is the first to admit that she did not have an easy time making the coat.

"First of all, the pelts were a certain size and you had to fit them together so the lines would match," Burt said. "There were no patterns for a rabbit-skin coat, and I had to use a housecoat pattern."

"I had to trim the edges of all the pelts, and there was fur flying everytime I did that. I bet I was spitting fur out of my mouth for two days after I made the coat, and had to vacuum the house everyday I worked on it.

When she finished, Burt took her daughter, who was wearing the coat now, down to the furrier's to model the coat. "The man I talked to before wasn't there, but a man who I think was his son saw the coat.

"He couldn't believe it was a homemade coat. He asked me where I got the hides. I told him I grew them and treated them myself. He asked me what kind of equipment I used. I told him 'Singer'. He was just amazed."

That happened a year ago. Now, Burt is working on a rabbit-skin comforter for her bed, and her own coat. The coat she made for her daughter is still in excellent condition, and surprisingly does not shed at all.

Although she could sell coats like her daughter's for more than $250, Burt doubts she will ever make coats like it for sale. "I barely have time to do all the things for my family, and I cannot overextend myself to the point that I neglect some of the things I do for my family," she said. "My family comes first."

Burt's career as a homemaker began

10 years ago. Kept in the home by her commitment to stay with her young children, Burt's considerable physical energy found an outlet in providing food and clothing for the family, two items that were dire necessities at the time.

Her husband, Dennis Burt (BS'76), has resigned from the Navy because sea duty kept him away from his family too much. "When he'd get back from two months at sea, the kids wouldn't know him and cry when he got near," Burt said. "That tore him up." So, with two young babies in the house, Dennis Burt changed careers.

"He went to Harding University and studied accounting," Burt said. "He worked full time and took 21 hours a semester for four years, and I mean to tell you that times were tough."

Burt wanted to work and help support the family, but she didn't want to leave the children, with the oldest child still only three years old.

Anxious to do something to ease the financial burden, Burt learned to sew and took her stumbling steps into gardening. Her mentor was her mother-in-law, Ruth Burt, who lived four blocks away. "I wore out the sidewalks between her house and mine, and with great patience she taught me what I had to know," Burt said.

As her skills as a seamstress and farmer-canner-cook snowballed, Burt found she could provide more for her family by staying at home than by earning a wage.

"Sometimes I'd feel guilty about not getting a job, and my husband would tell me that there was no way I could buy all the clothes and the food that I make at home with the money I'd earn with a job."

Besides, she likes being at home. "I want my children to know that I'm here if they need me," Burt said. "I think that's one reason they (the children) are so well-adjusted and at the top of their class. Sometimes I think they are smarter than me and my husband put together."

Burt is not a slave to her family — both children have to help their mother in the garden and with canning. Burt is teaching her 10-year old daughter, Tracie, how to sew.

"They may not garden when they leave here, but they'll have memories of being with their mother, of all of us together, and of seeing the results of their hard work on their plates at supper," Burt said.

According to Burt, her children appreciate the work she does and tell her so, and leave her notes of thanks where they know she will find them. Although Burt said that she will definitely be sad when her children grow up and leave home, her reason for living still will not leave with her children.

"I'll fill up my life," Burt said. "As long as I can crawl out the back door, I'll work in my garden, and there are other things I'll find to do."

"You'll never be depressed as long as you are physically active," she added. "I'm seldom upset about anything. I don't have the time."

"I can't sit still for 30 minutes, for five minutes even. I've got to be doing something. I'm geared to go, go, go."

Record Number of Alumni Contribute in 1983

Records were made to be broken, and again in 1983 the number of alumni donors reached an all-time high, according to the annual report made by David Crouch, Director of Alumni Relations. During 1983, 4,793 alumni made a contribution to Harding.

It was the fourth time in the school's history that the number of alumni donors has passed the 4,000 mark. In 1974 there were 4,191 donors, 4,357 in 1980, and the previous high was 4,588 in 1982.

In his summary, Crouch reported gifts from alumni totaling $892,691. The average gift was $183. Although the total dollars contributed does not equal a record, it does mark the seventh consecutive year that total contributions from alumni have topped the $500,000 mark.

The 1983 total is also the second largest contribution ever made by alumni. The record was established in 1979 when $1,196,754 was contributed by alumni. The 1983 total is an increase of seven percent over the $835,303 contributed in 1982.

Also for the second consecutive year the percent of the University's alumni contributors was over the 26 percent mark. For the year, 26.1 percent of the University's active alumni made a gift to their alma mater. In 1982 the percentage was slightly higher at 26.6 percent.

During 1983, 32.6 percent of all graduates and 17 percent of all non-graduates contributed. The totals in 1982 were 32.1 percent and 17.4 percent respectively. In 1983 there was basically an increase of 200 donors over the previous year. In Crouch's report he noted it was very easy to pinpoint where these new donors came from. There was an increase of 333 donors in the class years 1975 through 1983. His report specifically mentioned the impact that young alumni are having in support of the University.

National statistics for alumni giving for 1983 have not been calculated, but the national average is expected to be between 18 and 19 percent. Harding's percentage continues to rank well above the national average.

Again in 1983 there was a special effort to have 30 percent of the alumni in each class to make a contribution to Harding. Nine classes had 30 percent or more members of the class making a contribution. Those reaching the goal were the classes of '25, '26, '30, '32, '37, '41, '43, '45, and '49. It was the second consecutive year for all nine of these classes to surpass the 30 percent mark.

Various congregations of the Church of Christ are listed as donors. These congregations have supported the Bible Department, the Christian Communications Program, or the Graduate School of Religion in Memphis, Tenn. Usually the financial support was in the form of scholarship assistance for men training to be preachers.

Editor's Note: Alumni contributions provide vital support to Harding. Each year a list of donors is published for the previous year. The following is a list of those who contributed to Harding University in 1983. Every effort has been made to ensure an accurate and complete listing. However, if for some reason your name has been excluded, please contact the Development Office, Station A, Box 932, Searcy, Ark. 72143.

Tri-Captains Selected to Spearhead 1984 Football Team

Tri-captains have been elected for the 1984 Harding University football team according to Bison head coach John Prock.

Three seniors, tight end Mark Adkison, linebacker Gordon Gerbholz and defensive tackle Gordon Roddenberry will lead the Bisons next fall.

"We ask a lot of our captains," Prock said, "and these young men are capable of providing the leadership and example that you must have. They are committed to our program, they're experienced and they are outstanding student athletes."

Adkison, a native of Tulsa, has been a three-year starter for the Bisons. Despite injuries which limited his playing time the past two seasons, he has caught 81 career passes for 1,137 yards and seven touchdowns. As a freshman he led the team with 41 receptions for 575 yards. A 6-2, 212 pounder, he is a former all-state honoree at Tulsa's Memorial High School. He is a marketing major.

A fifth-year senior due to a leg injury last year, Gerbholz will head up the Bisons' defense at the linebacker spot. A 6-0, 200 lb. native of Omaha, Neb., he has 105 career tackles, four fumble recoveries, a quarterback sack and a blocked kick. He is a 1980 graduate of Ralston High School (Neb.) where he was an All-Metro selection. Gerbholz is majoring in business systems analysis.

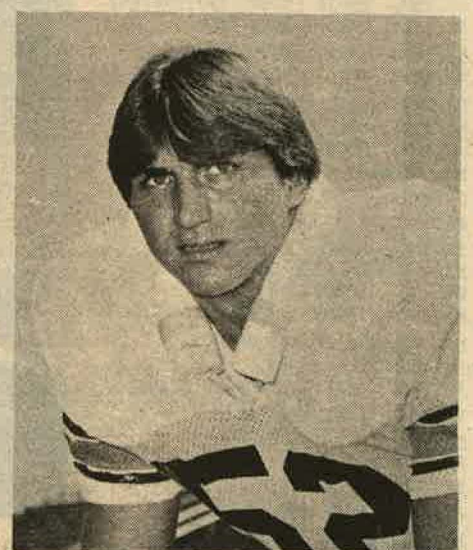

Roddenberry is a 6-1, 235 lb. native of Pavo, Ga. A three-year letterman starter, he has been a defensive standout in the Bisons' defensive front. He has 213 career tackles, three fumble recoveries, seven quarterback sacks and has stopped nine runners for lost yardage. A physical education major he was an All-AIC honorable mention honoree in 1983.

Harding Student Wins State Boxing Title

On March 24, with only three years of boxing experience, Harding University sophomore Dave Hicks won the Arkansas Golden Gloves Championship in the 147-pound welterweight division.

A 20-year-old management major from Davenport, Iowa, Hicks began boxing as a senior in high school. Before his Golden Gloves bouts, Hicks had only two fights under his belt, both victories by knockouts.

In the preliminary round of the Golden Gloves tournament in Little Rock, Hicks, who represents the Ray Rodgers Boxing Club, knocked out Robert Ray of the Knox Nelson Boxing Club in just over a minute in the first round.

"I was a little bit worried going in because I hadn't seen the guy fight before, so I didn't know what he could do. I was planning to just take my time and box with him, but I got him in a corner and dazed him so I just started punching. The referee gave him a standing eight count and his manager threw in the towel to stop the fight," Hicks said.

The following night, Hicks fought Wardell Barber, also of Ray Rodgers, for the Arkansas State Championship.

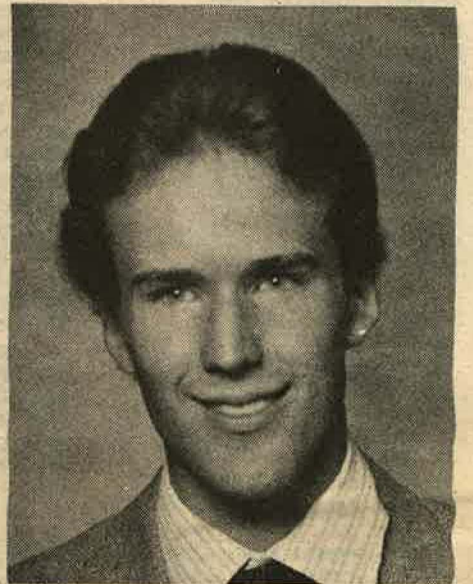

"I had seen Wardell fight before, and I knew that I'd have to be the aggressor. He's taller and weighs more, so I had to rely on my jab and quickness to beat him," Hicks explained.

Hicks won all three rounds of the championship bout, qualifying him for the Mid-South Regionals in Jackson, Tenn.

The first opponent matched up against Hicks was Mark Taylor of Jackson, Tenn., a veteran of 81 fights with a record of 61 wins and 20 losses.

"I was kind of nervous because the arena we fought in in Jackson was the biggest place I've ever boxed in. I really didn't know what to expect, because I had never been at this high of a level. I knew that everybody who fought at the regionals would be good because they're all the champions of their state. I just made up my mind that I was going to make them work to win against me," Hicks commented.

Hicks won the first round over Taylor, who bounced back in the second round and dazed Hicks with a left hook. The fight stood even going into the third and final round which, according to Hicks, could have gone either way.

The panel of five judges awarded the victory to Taylor in a close decision; three judges scored the fight 59-58 in favor of Taylor and two tallied the bout at 58-57 Taylor.

Hicks stated that, while he will box a little longer, boxing doesn't fit into his future plans.

"It's not totally out of the question yet; I really haven't decided how long I'll keep on boxing. I think that after I get out of school, I'll be busy with things that are more important to me," Hicks stated.

Tennis Outlook Promising

Harding tennis fortunes are headed in the right direction this year, with Coach David Elliott's netters in the thick of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference race as well as vying for a fourth consecutive NAIA District 17 championship.

Three All-District selections head the list of returnees, including Nigel Liverpool, Peter Nanton and Donnie Wallis. Liverpool was also an All-AIC selection last year.

Other starters include Mike Clayton, Jon Wood and Nat Malone. Malone is a senior three-year letterman and was an All-District Honoree in 1981. Last year in his first year with the Bisons after transferring from a junior college, Clayton established a 22-2 won-loss record, the best percentage on the team. And Wood played a key role in last year's District tournament, by virtue of his involvement in a three-set tiebreaker win at number three doubles, the last and deciding match of the meet.

Also seeing action for the Bisons this year are John Goodspeed, a sophomore from Pine Bluff; Keith Mays, a senior three-year letterman from Milan, Tenn.; senior letterman Rees Lloyd of Searcy, and junior Charles Dismuke of Atlanta, Ga.

In early season action, the Bisons have established a 10-6 season mark, with another dozen or so matches scheduled. Top conference opponents are perennial rival Southern Arkansas University, and newcomer Arkansas Tech University.

The Muleriders, under first year coach Baylor Guy, return three starters from last year's AIC championship team, but Harding has beaten them once already by a slim 5-4 margin.

Arkansas Tech returns Neil White, the number one singles player last year in the AIC and District 17, and his doubles partner Colin Davis. Five newcomers, including four foreigners, make them a force to contend with.

But Elliott has reason to be optimistic.

Bisons Advance to Finals of NAIA District 17 Playoffs

A red hot finish to the 83-84 basketball season propelled the Harding Bisons all the way to the finals of the NAIA District 17 Playoff Tournament, where a 56-48 win by Arkansas College left the Bisons with runnersup honors.

After qualifying for the playoff, Coach Jess Bucy's Bisons rose to the occasion in the playoff's first round game against Hendrix College. Even though playing on the Warrior's home court, Harding fans overflowed the gymnasium to boost the hot-shooting Bisons to a 91-80 victory.

Junior Dwight Weaver of Wheatley, although sick from the flu, had his best night of the year with 23 points and nine rebounds to lead the Bison contingent. Weaver came back in the semifinals to improve his output to 24 points as Harding rode roughshod over one of the preseason favorites Southern Arkansas University.

In the tournament finals Arkansas College used a strong second half in a game which went right down to the wire before it was settled. Weaver was named to the NAIA District 17 All-Tournament team.

"We knew we had a good team all along," Bucy said. "We lost some we shouldn't have, but the men put it all together when it counted the most."

Bucy was outspoken in his praise of the team and the fans. "The fan support was just tremendous. It definitely was the key to our ball game at Hendrix."

"This is perhaps the finest all-round team

we've had in some time," Bucy said. "We were up-and-down a little in mid-season but they came together and played like champions. I couldn't be prouder of a group of players."

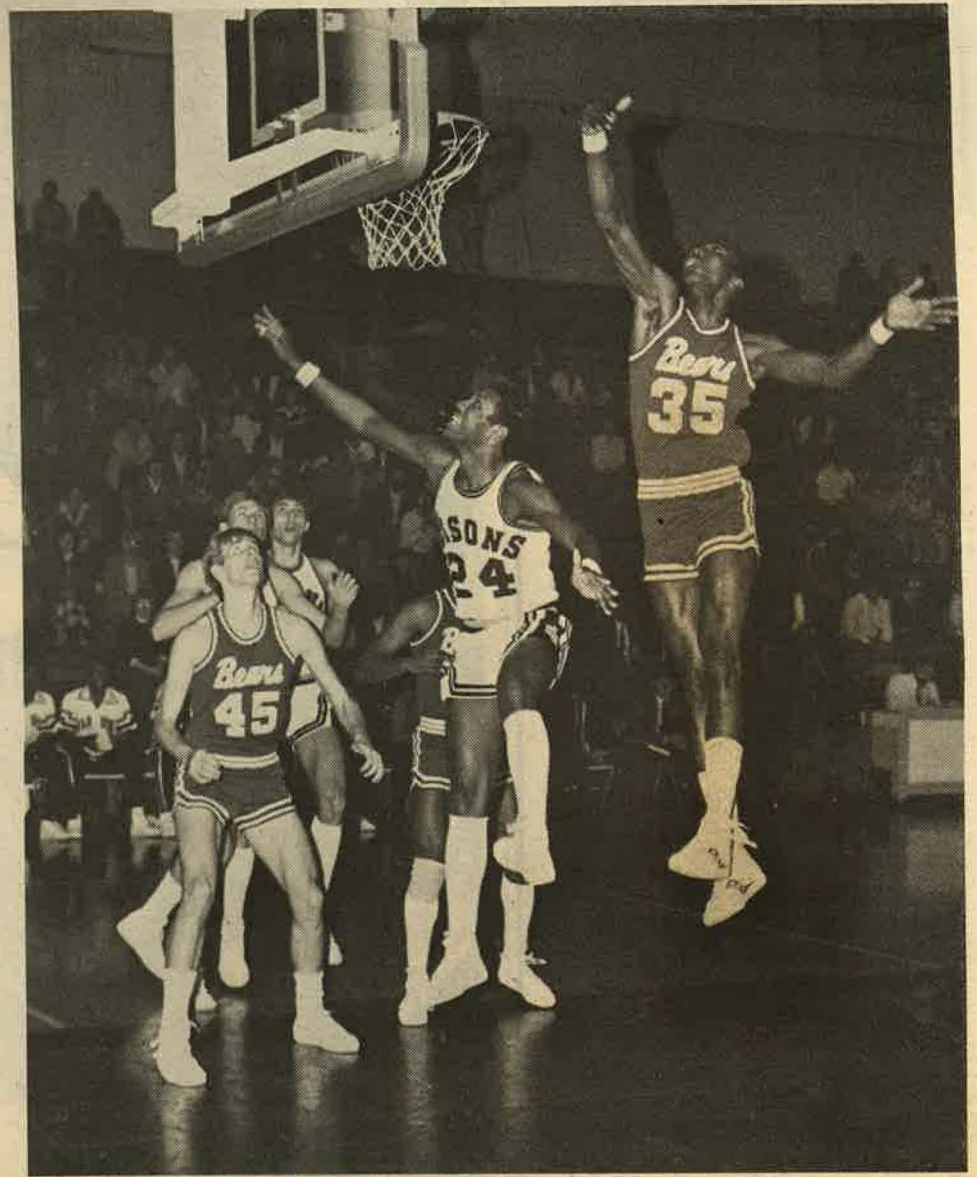

Senior Allen Gibbons of North Little Rock, was named to the All-Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference and NAIA District 17 all-star teams. He is a 6-9 post man who scored 1,402 points to finish his career as Harding's fifth-ranked all-time scorer. He also was an NAIA-All America honorable mention selection in 1983.

Gibbons, who was the AIC's leading scorer as a junior, averaged 14.2 ppg. to lead the Bisons this year. Rich Foster, a smooth-shooting junior from Festus, Mo., stepped in to score at a 13.2 point clip per game and sophomore Kenny Collins of Valley Springs, Ark., also was in double figures with a 10.8 ppg. average.

Senior point guard Floyd Smith of Marvel, Ark., led the team in assists with 183 and Gibbons was the leading rebounder with 223.

Teamwise, Harding closed the season with a 16-15 record. The Bisons shot .501 from the field and an impressive .721 from the free throw line.

In addition to Gibbons and Weaver, Foster and Collins received NAIA District 17 honorable mention recognition. Completing their collegiate eligibility were Gibbons, Floyd Smith and Lloyd Smith, also of Marvel.

Swimmers Set School Records

Setting ten school individual and relay records highlighted the 1983-84 competition for the Harding swimming and diving team, which culminated its season with a fourth place finish in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference championship meet Feb. 16-18.

Senior captain Terry Jones of Rogers, Ark. established the school record in the three-meter dive and qualified for the NAIA national championships, scoring 433.90 points in a triangular meet earlier in the season. He finished 17th in the nation among a strong field and was selected to the All-AIC team for his accomplishments.

"Terry had an outstanding season," Waterbuffalo coach Jack Boustead said. "He enjoyed competing in the national meet, although he didn't finish as high as we hoped. It was a tremendous experience to be able to compete in such a quality field."

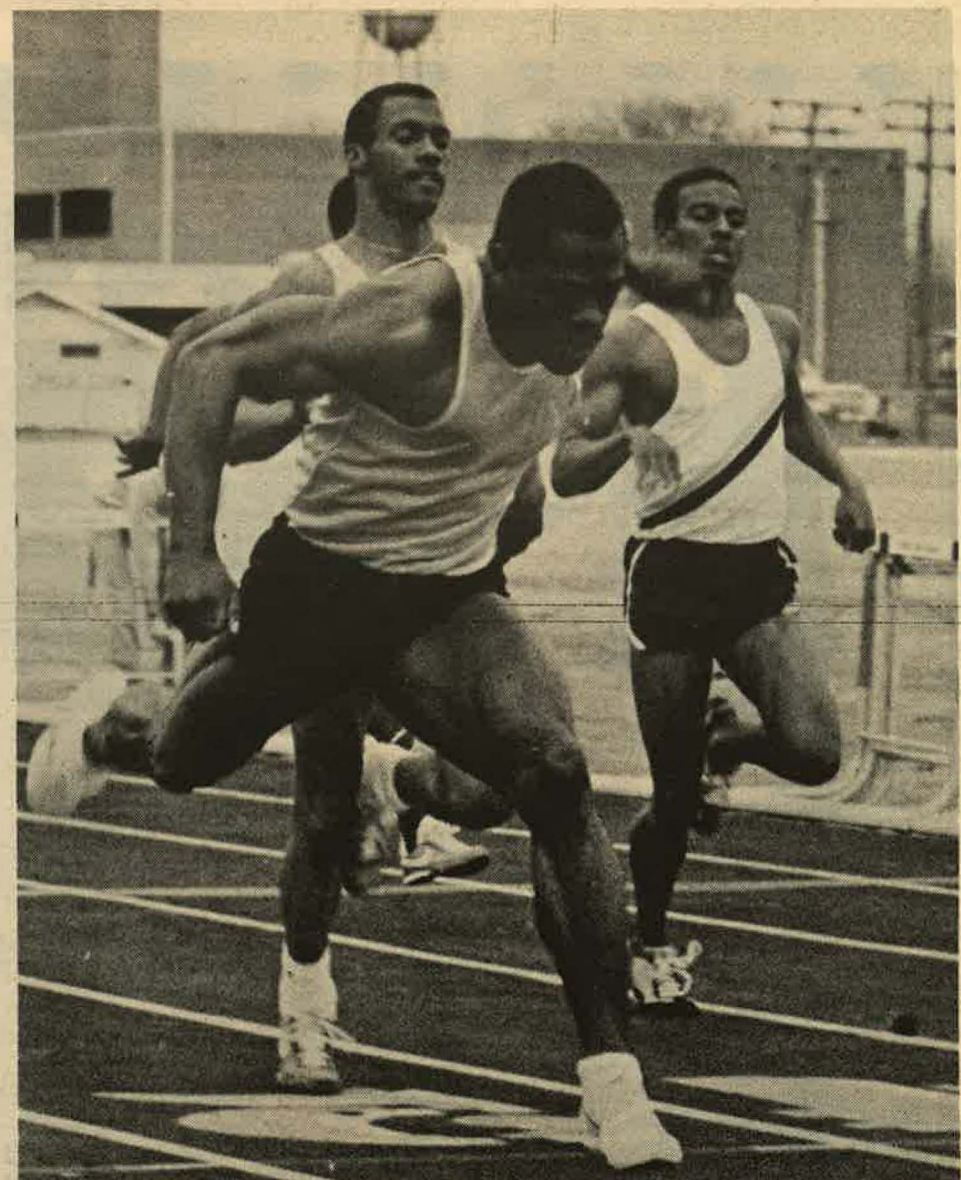

Senior co-captain Richard Denney of Rock Island, Ill. was selected by his teammates as most valuable swimmer. Freshman Matt Scorzelli of Liverpool, N.Y. was selected most improved team member. The Stroker Award went to sophomore Glen Alexander of Concord, Calif. Scorzelli and sophomore Chris Boutcher of Fountain Valley, Calif. were named captains for the 1984-85 season.

Boutcher was the only two-year letterman. Three year letters went to Denney and senior Mike Gurganus of Cordova, Ala. Jones was the only four year letterman.

"We competed hard and improved consistently over the stretch of the season," Boustead said in summary of the year.

Tony McCoy breaks the tape to win the 60-meter dash at Pine Bluff recently to help the Bisons win their first meet of the track season.
