Musical Extravaganza Leads 1984 Homecoming Agenda

"It's so nice to have you back where you belong" will be a refrain heard often during this year's homecoming events, Nov. 2-3, as "Hello Dolly" has been cast as the homecoming musical and reunions have been announced by nine graduated classes and 13 clubs and organizations. With the class reunions in mind, "Class Acts '84" is this year's homecoming theme.

Director C. Robin Miller said "Hello Dolly" will be one of the most colorful and extravagant musicals produced by the University in recent years. The production will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Benson Auditorium. Reserved seat tickets are available now. (An order form for tickets to all homecoming events is printed elsewhere in this issue.)

The list of class reunions is lead by the 50th Anniversary Class of 1934 and the Silver Anniversary Class of 1959. The 1934 class has scheduled a dutch-treat luncheon Saturday at 12:30 p.m. in the Pattie Cobb Private Room. Also on Saturday, the class of 1959 has scheduled three events.

Class members will meet for alumni chapel in the Heritage Auditorium at 9:30 a.m. A light lunch will be shared at 12:30 p.m. in the Olen Hendrix Reception Room. A private dinner is set for 7 p.m. at a local restaurant.

Scheduled class reunions on Saturday in addition to those for the gold and silver anniversary classes are as follows: 1944, a noon, light luncheon at the home of Dr. Tom Formby, 1 Windy Ridge Dr.;

1949, 12:30 p.m. soup and salad luncheon at the home of James and Marie Yingling, 1601 W. Arch St.;

1954, noon light luncheon in Harding Academy home economics room;

1964, reception after the football game at Carmichael Community Center;

1969, reception from 1 to 3 p.m. at Westside Church of Christ fellowship room;

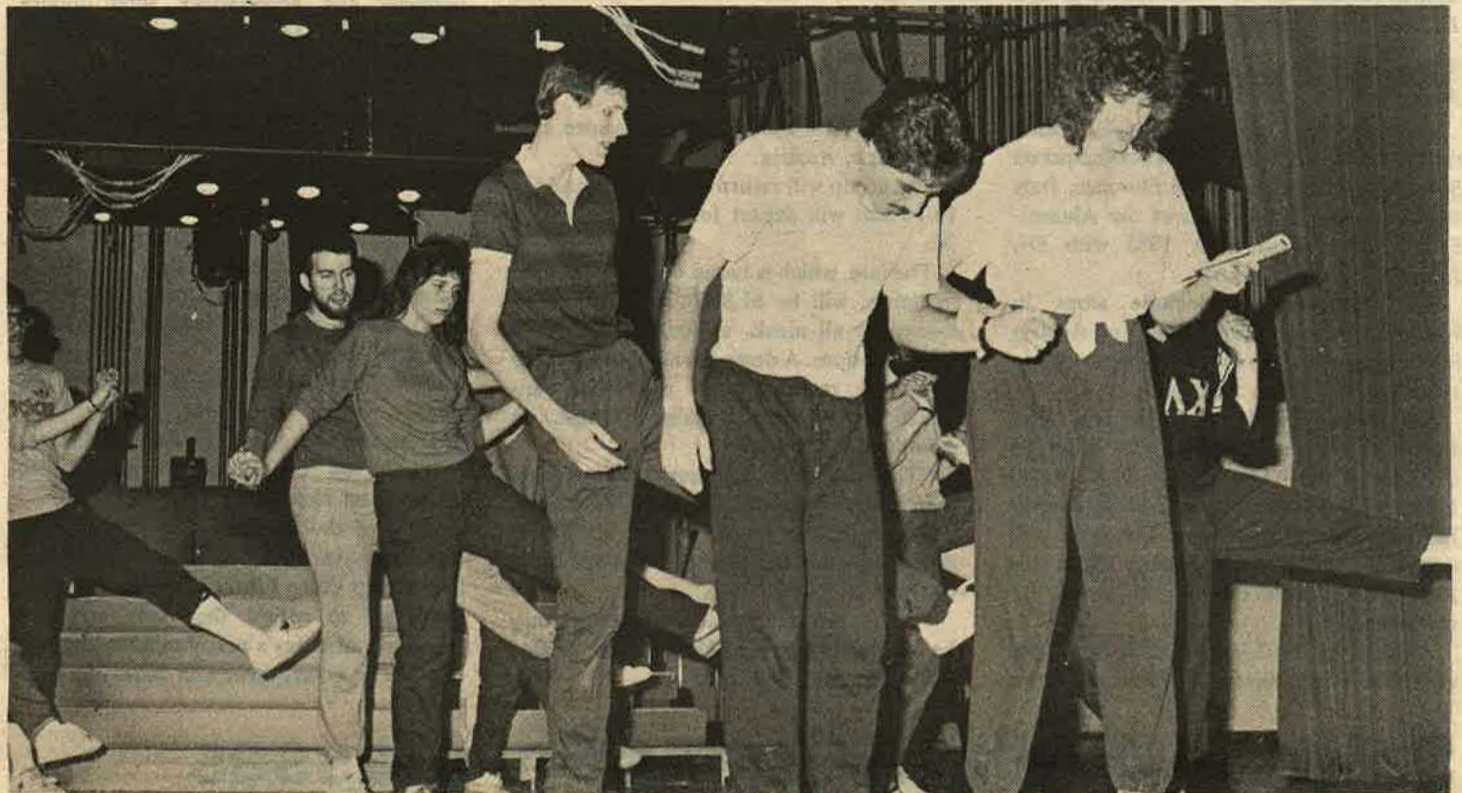

1974, reception following the football game until 8 p.m. at the College Church of Christ fellowship room;

1979, reception following the football game in the Harding Academy home economics room.

Homecoming officially begins Friday, Nov. 2, at 1 p.m. with registration in the American Heritage Center lobby. The Black and Gold banquet is set for 6:00 that night in the Charles M. White Dining Room of the American Heritage Center. Jim Bill McInteer is scheduled to speak at the event. The dinner will be over in time for attendance at "Hello Dolly" at 8:15 p.m.

Saturday's events begin with "Breakfast Classics," a complimentary continental breakfast in the Hammon Student Center from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m.

For running enthusiasts the "Bison Stampede" begins at 8 a.m. from in front of the American Heritage Center. The event includes a five kilometer race, a one-mile fun run and a bicycle race. All registered participants will receive a Stampede T-shirt.

Alumni Chapel will be from 9:30 to 11 a.m. in the Heritage Auditorium. Following chapel the Belles and Beaux will perform in the Benson Auditorium beginning at 11:15 a.m.

The Bisons face off against the Southern Arkansas University Muleriders at 3 p.m. at Alumni Field. The start of the game is one hour later than past homecoming football games.

A reception for Morrilton alumni begins at 4 p.m. It is scheduled for the Olen Hendrix Reception Room.

At 7 p.m. the Alumni Variety Show replaces "Blackout" as the annual homecoming talent presentation. Alumni who are making careers in the entertainment field are being sought to perform.

"We're looking at it as an opportunity for alumni in the professional entertainment field to come back and present their talents at Harding," said Dr. Jerome Barnes, who is coordinating the event. "We hope to have at least four shows in the program," he said.

Already scheduled to appear are Ann Ulrey and Tim Holder. Both are successfully building music careers in Nashville, Tenn.

High School Day Set October 13

Final preparations are being made for the third annual Harding University High School Day set for Oct. 13, according to Durward McGaha, director of admissions.

"We would really like to encourage senior high students to attend this high school day program," said Admissions Coordinator David Wright. "By visiting the campus they can get a taste of what college life is really like. This is also a great opportunity for them to see the career plans Harding has to offer and talk with students and faculty on our campus."

Nationally known evangelist Avon Malone will be the featured speaker during the day's activities. He will present two lessons entitled "Help Yourself to Happiness" and "I Can Do All Things Through Christ." Malone speaks frequently on college lectureships, seminars and gospel meetings and is an associate professor of Bible at Harding.

Registration will be in the Benson Auditorium lobby from 8-9 a.m. President Clifton Ganus, Jr. will welcome those attending followed by a performance by "Nashville Swagin'," a country-pop music show from Nashville, Ark. A presentation of the Harding slide show will be given and Malone will give the first address at 11 a.m.

The Time of Day Reunited will perform at 1 p.m. Time of Day groups from the past four years will join together again for this performance. Malone will speak again at 2:15 p.m. Representatives from each department will be on hand for the Academic Fair in the Benson Auditorium lobby. They will discuss academic interests and programs with students deciding on college career choices.

Student hosts will conduct campus tours at 4 p.m. and at 5 p.m. an old-fashioned barbeque dinner will be served for $4

All those officially registered for High School Day will be given free admission to the evening football game at 7 p.m. The Harding Bisons will host Evangel College of Springfield, Mo. At the end of the game, High School Day will be officially ended and sponsors will be responsible for overnight housing if it is necessary.

For further information about High School Day, contact the Admissions Office, Box 762, Station A, Harding University, Searcy, AR 72143 or call toll-free 1-800-643-3792 from out of state, and 1-800-632-4751 in Arkansas.

2nd European Group Tour Slated

A 20-day tour to Europe that will include time at the University's newly acquired Seventeenth Century villa in Florence, Italy will be among the features of the Alumni-Friends Tour May 1-20, 1985 with Dr. Jimmy Carr as tour host.

The itinerary will include stops in Holland, Germany, Switzerland and Austria in addition to Italy, where travelers will go to Rome as well as Florence.

Developed for Harding alumni and friends of the University, the tour is set for departure from Atlanta by KLM Royal Dutch Airlines with two days of sightseeing in Amsterdam at the outset. The group will depart by train for a journey down the Rhine River Valley through the Swiss Alps to Lucerne.

After time in Lucerne and Bern, the vacationers will depart for Florence, Rome and Pisa with a brief trip to Venice and Innsbruck, Austria.

The group will return to Amsterdam May 18-19 and will depart for Atlanta on May 20.

The fare, which is based on two to a room in hotels, will be $1,800 and will include essentially all meals, although there are a few exceptions. A down payment of $200 per person is required with reservation application and the remainder must be submitted by March 1.

"The success of last year's tour gave us reason to plan another for 1985," Carr said, "and we believe we can offer a delightful time for friends and alumni. We hope many will join us."

Further information and a brochure may be obtained by writing Carr at Sta. A, Box 1224, Searcy, AR 72143.

News Briefs . . .

Raymond Muncy, chairman of the department of history and social sciences, has been chosen county coordinator for the Arkansas Sesquicentennial Celebration.

"We're going to hold several activities for the 150th anniversary of Arkansas on a local level as well as a state level," Muncy said.

Muncy is the liaison between the state celebration offices and White County. He will be responsible for developing public awareness of the Celebration throughout the county.

Michael E. Chalenburg and David A. Lilly of the University Administrative Computer Center staff have been appointed to new positions effective this fall.

Chalenburg, a 1978 graduate, has been named assistant director of the Administrative Computer Center. He joined the staff as a systems analyst in 1980.

Lilly will be Manager of Programming of the Center, and will supervise a staff of part-time student programmers. A 1983 graduate, he is married to the former Gerri Hale, currently a student at the University. For the past year he has served as a programmer/analyst at the Center.

Science Addition Opens For Classes

The $1.1 million addition to the science building is being completed on schedule, according to Dr. William D. Williams, chairman of the physical science department.

Work on the 14,600 square-foot project was begun in April, 1983. Faculty members are moving in and classes are also being held in the new complex although much of the equipment remains yet to be installed.

The new addition increases the square footage of the building by one-third. It includes two biology laboratories, two lecture classrooms, one larger lecture hall, a science curriculum laboratory and learning center for students in mathematics education, a computer science laboratory and four faculty offices.

In addition to the 26 new rooms in the new complex, the project also includes a chemical instrument room and a biological natural habitat area. The habitat will be used first by Dr. Michael Plummer, associate professor of biology, who will conduct research with several reptiles whose body functions will be monitored electronically.

However, the habitat area remains unfinished, and must be fenced and covered before being used. It is not the only uncompleted aspect of the project, either. The vast majority of the $450,000 in equipment will not arrive for installment for a few months. Such equipment as the electronic balances, the pH meters, and an ultraviolet-visible spectrophotometer will not be installed until late October.

Williams attributes the delay to two factors: a desire to wait before introducing the new equipment to the students and a lack of funding. "We still haven't got the money," he said. "We're still out trying to raise it."

Room 120E, one of several classrooms being converted from lecture rooms into laboratories, also remains incomplete.

The new computer laboratory will provide almost three times more space for instruction in computer application and computer science for the University. Forty-two Apple II computers are being purchased for the new computer lab and will be installed Nov. 1.

The new construction and the new equipment are designed to help maintain and the new equipment are designed to help maintain the University's standing in science, Williams said. "Of course in any science area, you get out-of-date pretty fast," Williams explained. "So this will help us get more up-to-date in science equipment."

He added that some of the new instruments are ones the students will use when they obtain jobs after graduation, instruments that they have not been able to get experience with before now.

Student workers put the finishing touches on a classroom in the new science addition.

Lomanco, Inc. to Sponsor Invitational Business Games

Lomanco, Inc. of Jacksonville, Ark., has joined with Harding University as the corporate sponsor for the 1984 Invitational Business Games.

The announcement was made by Lomanco, Inc. President Paul Belden and the Harding Dean of the School of Business, Dr. David Burks.

The 1984 competition in the computer-simulated-games will involve 18 high school and five junior colleges from eight different states. The program was inaugurated in 1983.

David Johnson, an assistant professor of accounting, will coordinate and direct the competition.

"For these young people, this participation will be their first exposure as to how a corporate business is actually run," Belden said. "The students will not only learn from their experience, but they will be able to share the concepts of the free enterprise system they have learned from the games."

Burks said the schools are given control of a company and will make decisions concerning the marketing of the company's product, the number of products produced, the financing of inventory and other decisions necessary for a normal day-to-day operation of a business. Teams will be required to make eight decisions which will represent a two-year (eight quarters) period of time.

Team decisions will be reported by phone each week with the final round to be held on the Harding campus Nov. 16-17. At that time each school will defend its decisions before a panel of judges of businessmen and Harding University business majors.

High schools participating in this year's competition are Searcy High School (Ark.), Central High School of Little Rock, Boyd-Buchanan School of Chattanooga, Tenn., Ouachita Christian School of Monroe, La., Madison Academy of Huntsville, Ala., Bald Knob High School (Ark.), Mars Hill Bible School of Florence, Ala.;

Harrison High School (Ark.), Luckett Christian Academy of Warren, Mich., Shreve Christian School of Shreveport, La., Living Word Academy of Oklahoma City, Okla., West Memphis Christian School (Ark.);

Harding Academy of Searcy, Judsonia High School (Ark.), Greater Atlanta Christian School of Norcross, Ga., Nashville Christian School of Nashville, Tenn., England High School (Ark.) and Christian Academy of St. Louis (Mo.).

Competing in the junior college division are Great Lakes Christian College of Beamsville, Ontario; York College of York, Neb., Ohio Valley College of Parkersburg, W. Va., Northeastern Christian Junior College of Villanova, Pa., and Michigan Christian School of Rochester, Mich.

Harding Honors Irma Dumas

Political candidates consider name recognition beneficial in conducting a campaign. An Arkansan who for a long time has had name recognition throughout the state now has voice recognition as well, at least in the National Leadership Video Library at the University.

Mrs. Irma Dumas of North Little Rock, whose name still identifies ladies' apparel shops in several cities although she sold the stores in 1967, was inducted by Dr. David Burks into the Harding network of business recordings in August. In telling her story, she became the first woman among the listing, which has such other well known contributors as Gen. John S. Eisenhower, Alex Haley, Zig Ziglar and others.

Now retired from the shops but still active in civic, community and charitable organizations, Mrs. Dumas, now 81, entered the retail business in 1949 "to help a friend," she declares. But the enterprising young mother, who even today projects enthusiasm and drive, had already held a job somewhat new to what had been expected of women. She had held a job as a traveling saleslady.

Without consulting her husband, Ned, a well known Central Arkansas real estate executive who died in 1974, she gave her beautician $600 to buy inventory, ". . . mostly to get her to quit talking and finish my appointment," she says with a smile. The results were so successful that soon she found herself a little more deeply involved, and from there she quickly but carefully added inventory as the venture showed more profits. At that she admitted she was hooked.

"When Ned found out about it, he was very supportive. I think he already knew about it, anyway," she admits.

The success of the business, she feels, came as a result of getting to know her customers personally. "I always felt that my customers were of utmost importance. When I went to market I'd look at clothing and fit it on folks," she remembers.

And it worked. Soon she would find herself commissioned to "get me a dress for my daughter's wedding," or other occasions. "And most of the time, the customers were pleased with what I'd pick," she said.

One rule which she emphasized, in her overall goal of living by The Golden Rule, was that she wouldn't make a sale unless the customer felt good about it. "I instructed my sales people never to allow a lady to 'just buy a dress'; she must be satisfied with it and she must feel it looked 'right' or we were not interested in having her purchase it."

Mrs. Dumas, who was introduced to Harding through alumna Brenda McClain, was honored at a luncheon on campus. She complimented the institution with an endorsement: "I sure wish I were younger; I'd like to come to college here."

system that supports us."

Harding's entry last year was entitled "Enterprise — Let's Reinvent the Wheel." It included an annotated supplement and appendix, that described 68 projects and programs with 14 on-campus and 44 civic, professional and educational groups in the Mid-South.

Diffine indicated two of the team's projects drew special attention — a "Free Market Calendar" and the Personalized Employee Economic Program (PEEP). The PEEP program was designed to assist employees to become more knowledgeable and aware of the economic system they work in.

Since 1976, Diffine, the Economics Team and their projects have received 14 awards in the category of private enterprise education, advertising and public affairs, non-profit publications and platform addresses.

With the feeling of a second wind, the Harding University Economics Team will attempt to win its fifth First Place trophy at the National Students for Free Enterprise Competition in the summer of 1985.

University economics teams have won first place eight times at the regionals and four times at the nationals which were started in 1978. Harding teams, the winningest in the country to date, were national runnersup in 1978 and 1983. Harding regained the national title in 1984 winning the first place trophy and $3,000 presented at the awards banquet.

The 1985 team is composed of Glenda Collier, co-captain from Memphis, Tenn., Bruce Picker, co-captain from Searcy, Ark., Deborah Garrett from Brookston, Ind., Kevin Thompson from San Diego, Calif., and sponsor, Dr. Don Diffine, professor of economics and director of the student-staffed Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education.

"Business and economics students and faculty are a great hope for providing credible free enterprise education to other school disciplines and the community," said Diffine. "For this reason, the business community chooses to ally itself more and more with schools of business in preserving and improving a free enterprise and incentive system which develops the talents of the people."

The team will attend an orientation meeting in early October to map out their strategy and meet regional competitors. There will be approximately 20 regions with 15 colleges in each.

Sponsored by the National Free Enterprise Center in Bolivar, Mo., the program theme is to be "Free Enterprise — An American Revolution." Project goals are to offer solutions to problems confronting the American economic system.

The participating schools are challenged through formal intercollegiate competition to design and implement free enterprise programs suited for their particular campuses and communities.

Diffine said, "free enterprise" is simply the idea of freedom applied to the market place, and this has rarely been taught. We take the approach that economic individualism, private property and the market economy are not just neutral concepts. They are, in fact, worthwhile and attainable goals. We are supporting the

Paul Gardner

Paul Gardner Joins Development Staff

Paul Gardner, a Harding alumnus, has joined the institutional advancement staff of the University, according to C. Floyd Daniel, vice president for university relations.

Gardner joins the Harding development staff from the Christian Care Center, Inc., in Dallas, where he served as president of that facility.

"The addition of Paul means that we have been able to bring an experienced professional on board," Daniel said. "He has a broad background of experience in fund raising and that is tremendously important."

Gardner was a member of the Harding staff from 1971-75, serving as director of annual giving. From 1975 to 1983 he served as vice president for institutional advancement at Ohio Valley College in Parkersburg, W. Va.

"Christian education has been a major part of our lives for 18 years and when the opportunity presented itself, we accepted the challenge," Gardner said.

A 1965 graduate of Harding, he earned his master's degree from West Virginia University in 1966 and the doctorate in higher education administration in 1975 from Ohio University. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa educational honor society and Rotary International.

Gardner is a native of Sistersville, W. Va., and is married to the former Mary Cronin of Wheeling, W. Va. The couple has a son, Jay Patrick, 5.

October Celebration Events Mark Harding's 50 Years in Searcy

Harding's move from Morrilton to Searcy 50 years ago in September will be celebrated during the week of Oct. 15-20 with several special events that will include the dedication of the new addition to the Science Building.

"We have had 50 good years in Searcy," President Clifton Ganus noted, "and we want to commemorate this occasion with a tribute to the City of Searcy and to White County as an expression of appreciation for the friendship and encouragement we have enjoyed through the years."

The week will be designated "50 Years in Searcy" week by Mayor Jack Wiseman, to recognize the city and university for their growth together during the half century.

The quarterly Chamber of Commerce Coffee Club will be held on the campus on Oct. 17, when Paul Carter, vice president of Wal-Mart who is also a member of the Board of Trustees, will be guest speaker.

The Science Addition dedication, with all White Countians as special guests, will be held at 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 20, and the new building, along with the Mabee Business Center and Benson Auditorium, will be open for tours.

There will be no admission charged for the Harding-Henderson State football game Saturday night.

Throughout the week on campus, there will be special chapel presentations for the student body and faculty members, with Dr. Ray Muncy and Dr. Ganus in charge. Several Searcians and former Harding alumni will be recognized.

A display of memorabilia will be exhibited throughout the week in Hammon Student Center as a part of the recounting, and speakers from the University will provide programs for the various civic clubs throughout the city and county.

Student Learns Other Side of Politics

For some people, politics is a dirty word. They think of politicians as corrupt, hypocritical individuals who are only out for themselves. Senior Cindy Billingsley used to think that, too.

But she says that this summer, while attending the Republican National Convention Aug. 23-26 in Dallas, she discovered that that viewpoint isn't always so. Politicians can, in fact, be people who honestly care about others.

"I see them now as real people who have a real interest, a genuine interest, in the good of other people," Billingsley said.

Billingsley, a systems analysis and accounting major from Lemoore, Calif., and the treasurer of the University's College Republican chapter, attended the convention as a guest of the Arkansas delegation.

Going to the convention, she has decided, was "one of the best things I've done for myself to understand politics."

She compared the political party to the church: "You're together with a bunch of people who believe in pretty much the same thing, and they're going in the same direction."

Billingsley decided last spring to attend the convention, after Mike Johnson, a University student and vice-chairman of the Arkansas College Republicans, told her that he had guest passes available for the convention. Johnson attended the convention as an alternate delegate.

As a guest, Billingsley was given passes for each session and traveled back and forth between the hotel and the convention on the delegation buses. She said they were guarded carefully, and the security at the convention center was very tight.

Part of the excitement for Billingsley involved seeing and meeting important people. "You were meeting the people who make policies and the laws. And it was exciting to be around them."

She said that at first she was a little apprehensive about meeting them. "But you'd see some of these people," she said, "and think, 'I'm never going to see them again.' So I'd introduce myself."

Some of the national figures she met included Congressman Jack Kemp, President Ronald Reagan's aide Michael Deaver and U.S. Senator Howard Baker. Most, she added, were willing to talk to her and other young people attending the convention, because "they saw the youth as the future of the Republican party."

Billingsley added that she also got to see former Reagan press secretary James Brady, ABC correspondent Peter Jennings and Cable News Network owner Ted Turner. "And I smiled at Wayne Newton and he smiled back," she said. "It was kinda neat."

Several of those Billingsley met at the convention knew about her school. Some congressmen had met people from the University on American Studies trips.

Billingsley added that one particular special night for her was the night Reagan was nominated. Former Arkansas Governor Frank White gave her his delegate pass so that she could sit in the delegate seating for the nomination.

Going to the convention changed Billingsley's perception of politics. And it gave her a good feeling. At the convention, she said, "you felt good because you felt like the leaders in power now are really intelligent and sensible."

"Each night," she said, "you would walk out with just a great feeling."

Cathleen Shultz

Shultz to Serve NLN As Accrediting Visitor

Cathleen M. Shultz, dean of the School of Nursing at Harding University, has been selected as an accreditation site visitor for the National League for Nursing.

Shultz will attend an orientation session Oct. 22-23 in New York City, N.Y.

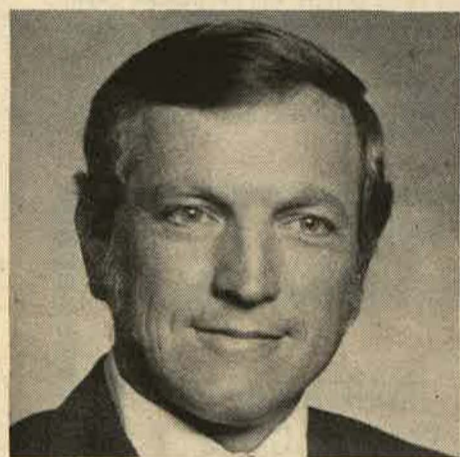

She will then visit the campuses of several colleges and universities to check their program performance with their accreditation report. Two visitors will be sent to each site and will be matched to the campuses they attend in areas of private schools, rural areas, enrollment size and baccalaureate and higher degree programs.

The National League for Nursing accredits schools of nursing to assure a quality nursing program. The criteria for accreditation includes the areas of students, faculty and curriculum. At the site, the team is responsible for preparing a report on this topic for the National League for Nursing and will be shared with the schools visited.

Shultz completed undergraduate work at the University of South Carolina at Columbia. She received her master's degree from Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., and the doctorate degree from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

The accreditation process is a quality assurance inquiry and can be granted from one to eight years.

Higginbotham Earns PhD

Ed Higginbotham

Academy Superintendent Ed Higginbotham was awarded a Doctor of Philosophy degree from North Texas State University in Denton Aug. 18. Higginbotham completed requirements with the defense of his dissertation entitled, "Perceptions of the Arkansas Student Assessment Program by State Legislators, Superintendents and Teachers."

The East Texas native joined the Academy faculty in 1960 following graduating from Harding College. He completed the Master of Science in Education from the University of Central Arkansas in 1969 and was named Academy superintendent in 1967 at the retirement of Perry S. Mason. He also serves as manager of Camp Tahkodah.

Higginbotham is married to the former Loleta Meredith, who is a member of the University home economics faculty. Their two children, John Ed and Amy, are students at the University.

Higginbotham heads a staff of 34 faculty members at Harding Academy, with 26 of those holding the master's degree or higher. A total of 448 are enrolled in kindergarten through 12th grade at the Academy, which was granted full accreditation from the North Central Association in March of 1983.

Coons-Farrar Seminar Hosts Biochemist Richard Anderson

Nationally recognized research biochemist Richard Anderson was the featured speaker at a Harding University Science Seminar Sept. 27 in the American Heritage Auditorium.

Anderson is associated with the Human Nutrition Center, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Vitamin and Mineral Laboratory in Beltsville, Md. "Diabetes and Cardiovascular Disease — The Chromium Connection" was the topic of his discussion.

"Dr. Anderson is one of the foremost experts in the field of nutrition research," said Edmond Wilson, Harding professor of physical science who coordinated the event. "His primary area of investigation concerns chromium and its essential quality as a micronutrient in the human body and its behavior as a regulator of insulin in the bloodstream."

Anderson was a speaker on nutrition for a symposium held in conjunction with the recent Olympiad. His research concerned the topic of chromium and its effect on distance runners. A 1968 honors graduate of Concordia College, Anderson, 37, completed doctoral work at Iowa State, and in 1974-75 performed postdoctoral research with Dr. B. L. Vallee at the Harvard Medical School on an NIH Postdoctoral Fellowship.

Anderson has published more than 50 papers. In 1983 he received the USDA Merit Award. The seminar was presented through the auspices of the Coons-Farrar Endowment Fund for the Sciences.

Coverage of the 61st Annual Bible Lectureship will be in the December Issue.

An eager group of University students and faculty members prepare to depart Searcy for a semester of study in Florence, Italy.

Medical Alumni Learn Ministering in Nigeria

They went to teach and learned how to minister.

Charles Murphy (BS, '80) and David Collier (BS, '80) were seniors at the University of Arkansas Medical School when they decided to take three hours of elective credit toward their M.D. degree. But these credits turned out to be more valuable, in some ways, than any they had earned before.

To earn these credits, Charles and David became staff members of the Nigerian Christian Hospital in the Imo state of Nigeria, one of the most densely populated areas of the country. The hospital, directed by a board of American Christians, operates with a mission of curing the diseases of the body while treating the problems of the soul.

Their first hurdle was overcoming the extreme changes of social culture between middle class American life and the Ibo, the tribe of people with whom they worked.

"Life in 'the bush' is probably similar to the conceptions of most Americans," Murphy said. "The typical Nigerian bush family has five or six children and lives in a wattle and daub hut. They haul water by hand, cook over a wood fire outside and very few have electricity."

Nigeria is poor relative to American standards, but is more advanced than most of the rest of Africa, Murphy said, and is making rapid changes in living standards.

"Nigeria's culture is being dragged kicking and screaming into the twentieth century," Murphy said. "Innovations are more plentiful than the technicians to operate them. There are tremendous problems with anything mechanical or electronic."

Even with the obvious lack of "creature" comforts, however, Murphy and Collier learned valuable lessons about hospitality from the Ibo people.

"After a day's work, I would jog through the villages," Murphy said. "With few exceptions, everyone I met greeted me, and many invited me to their homes. Some of the children would even run with me through the village."

Murphy and Collier worked under the direct supervision of the hospital's chief of staff, Dr. Henry Farrar ('49). Their medical work covered almost every phase of treatment, and much of the day was spent in the surgical theater assisting Dr. Farrar.

Each day started with morning "rounds" at 6:30, and were followed by a 30-minute devotional in the outpatient area. Surgery usually began at 8:00 a.m. and lasted until early afternoon. Common procedures in the surgical theater included Caesarean sections, hernia repairs, and other relatively minor corrections.

The hospital is not a small clinic. Although most of the work is performed on an outpatient basis, nearly 100 beds are available for those preparing or recovering from surgery. More than 100 people, mostly Nigerians, staff the hospital on three shifts for seven days a week. In addition to Murphy, Collier and Farrar, two native doctors worked in the outpatient clinic.

"Much of the medical work in Nigeria concerns teaching about public health and sanitation," Collier said. "Also, because their diet contains little meat or protein, malnutrition because of protein deficiency is endemic. This complicates any other diseases that they may have."

Probably the most memorable experiences for the pair was in their work with the local churches, proving to them that the power of the Gospel touches the hearts of people the world over.

"My views were reinforced by what I already knew," Murphy said. "Christianity is for all people. Our material blessings should not affect our relationship to the Lord."

Since their month-long stay with the Ibo people, David and Charles graduated from medical school in May. Collier was wed to Ula Bielecka (BA '84) May 13 and has started his first year of family practice residency at St. Vincents Hospital in Jacksonville, Fla. Murphy's choice for residency training was Oklahoma City's Memorial Hospital in pediatrics.

Mary Ann Harris

Mary Ann Harris - Professor of Education. B.A., (1954) Harding; M.Ed. (1969) and Ed.D. (1976), Memphis State University.

Had Mary Ann Whitaker Harris been included in the Scriptures, she probably would have been compared with Zacchaeus. Not because she's short (although she is only 5'1"), but because she wanted to see Jesus and has been willing to take advantage of all opportunities that have come her way.

Except she defines the opportunities as providence of God. "... the Lord opening doors for me," she says of finding herself teaching on the college level.

A long-time teacher on the elementary level in her hometown Memphis, where husband Jack is an area specialist in the city school system, she was encouraged to pursue the doctorate. A few years later, when sons Bob and Lee were grown, she was summoned to Harding.

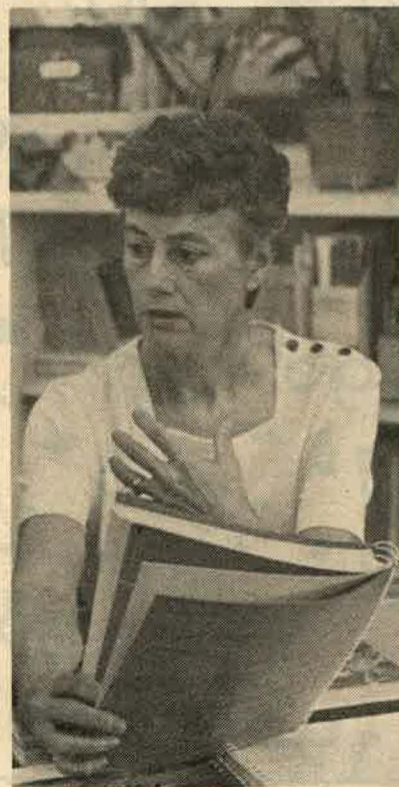

At first she said no, but, "I decided that if I wanted to continue to grow in my profession, this was the time to do it," she said.

Decidedly people-oriented from early childhood, she had come to regard Harding as a place where the spirit of Christ really dwelt in the hearts of people.

That spirit is being perpetuated through her classroom work and her life today. "I'm not all that much for speaking out," she will say, "I'd rather act out my goals. A lot of my teaching is in modeling the way I feel the students ought to be able to teach."

"She's so very professional," one of her colleagues commented, "yet she is very, very warm and she knows just how to relate with the students to make them want to accomplish."

The students must understand. They had rated her so highly that she was chosen, after teaching the minimum required years to be eligible, as a Distinguished Teacher of 1983 — a natural result for someone who's life is centered on service.

Coach Bucy Hopes to Rekindle NAIA Playoff Momentum

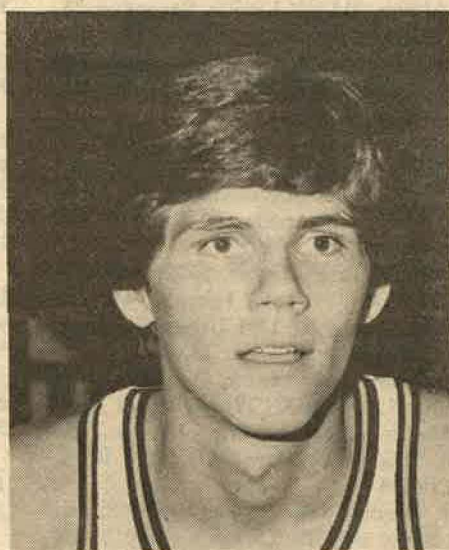

Harding coach Jess Bucy hopes to take advantage of last season's outstanding stretch drive to the playoffs as he looks forward to the 84-85 season.

The Bisons surprised everyone by driving their way to the finals of the NAIA District 17 Playoff Tournament before falling to Arkansas College. Three key members of the district runnersup squad return and they represent quality.

Two seniors, Dwight Weaver (6-2+) of Wheatley, Ark., and Rich Foster (6-5) of Festus, Mo., and junior Kenny Collins (6-6) of Valley Springs, Ark., give the Bisons a trio that can hold their own with anybody. Bucy must find the personnel to fill the other two spots to have a shot at success.

Top candidates are 6-5 senior David Allumbaugh of Dallas, Texas, and sophomore guard Curtis Carter of Houston, Texas, and 6-5 sophomore Shannon Hughes of Tyler, Texas. Experienced inside help is available from 6-8 senior Troy Sanstra of Littleton, Colo., a three-year letterman.

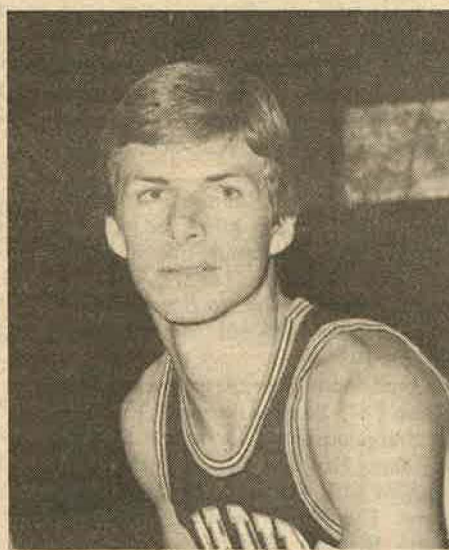

Carter (6-0) will get first call at filling the point spot vacated by heady Floyd Smith, now a graduate assistant at Kansas State. Allumbaugh missed the final two thirds of last year with a thumb injury which required surgery. Until the injury, he had turned in some superior performances.

New faces who are expected to play a big role in Bison prospects are a pair of standouts from the Oklahoma State championship team from Cuashing, Okla. They are point guard Mike Hall (5-11) and forward-center Bryan Fowler (6-8). Another Oklahoma all-stater, 5-9 guard Tim Smallwood of Tulsa could be a real surprise and the other freshman signee, Shane Parker of Rolla, Mo., brings strong credentials to the college level.

If the Bisons can build onto the momentum of last year, they will be a solid contender for the first division in the cut-throat tough Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference.

Overall team speed is good, shooting could be outstanding, but rebounding could present some problems. The Bisons learned to enjoy the taste of winning though, and Bucy is counting on making it a habit.

Bisons Run to Best Start in 5 Years

by Ken Bissell

The Harding University Bisons are off to their best start in five years as they hold a 2-0 record in the young 1984 football season.

The Bisons opened the campaign with a 24-19 win over Lane College of Jackson, Tenn. in the annual Parents' Night contest, and defeated Southeastern Oklahoma State, 10-7.

"It feels good to win the first two," Bison head coach John Prock said. "I wouldn't say that either of the two games were that pretty, but a win is a win."

Against Lane, the Bisons used a balanced offensive attack and a stalwart defensive rushing game to hold back the Dragons. With stevens, Miss., senior Bobby Jones leading the ground game with 77 yards and a touchdown, the Bisons rolled up 163 yards rushing.

Quarterback Mannie Lowery of Little Rock passed for 166 yards to balance out the offensive attack. Lowery connected on scoring passes to senior split end Don Shumate of Sherwood, Ark., and speedy flanker Gill Stegall of Searcy. Freshman placekicker Stu Varner of Marietta, Ohio, scored the first points of his college career by converting all three extra points and a 26-yard field goal against the Dragons.

Defensively, tackle Phillip Nannie of Nashville, Tenn., was named NAIA District 17 Player of the Week for his performance in the game. He recorded four tackles, five assists and two-and-a-half quarterback sacks. Free safety Todd Potter of McGhee, Ark., stole two Dragon passes to lead the Bison secondary.

The Bisons' win over Southeastern was a costly one as Lowery, the starting quarterback, sustained a broken thumb in early action.

Freshman Roddy Mote of St. Mary's, W.Va., showed a great deal of poise as he stepped in to lead the Bison victory. He scored the Bisons' only touchdown on a 24-yard run and had a 15-yard score nullified because of a penalty. Varner's foot provided the winning margin when he kicked a 35-yard field goal with 3:45 left in the contest.

Again the defense was superb against the run as it allowed the Savages only 29 yards rushing. With an average of 22 yards per game, the Bisons are nationally ranked in the rushing defense category.

Standouts defensively have been Nannie, a 230 lb. defensive end, Fanasial "Dump" Quinn, a transfer noseguard from Killeen, Texas, senior tackle Gordon Roddenberry of Pavo, Ga., and senior linebacker Gordon Gerbholz of Omaha, Neb.

The Bisons open Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference play Oct. 6 at Russellville against Arkansas Tech University. They return home the following week to face Evangel College.

Bisons Ranked 20th in NAIA; Number One in Rushing Defense

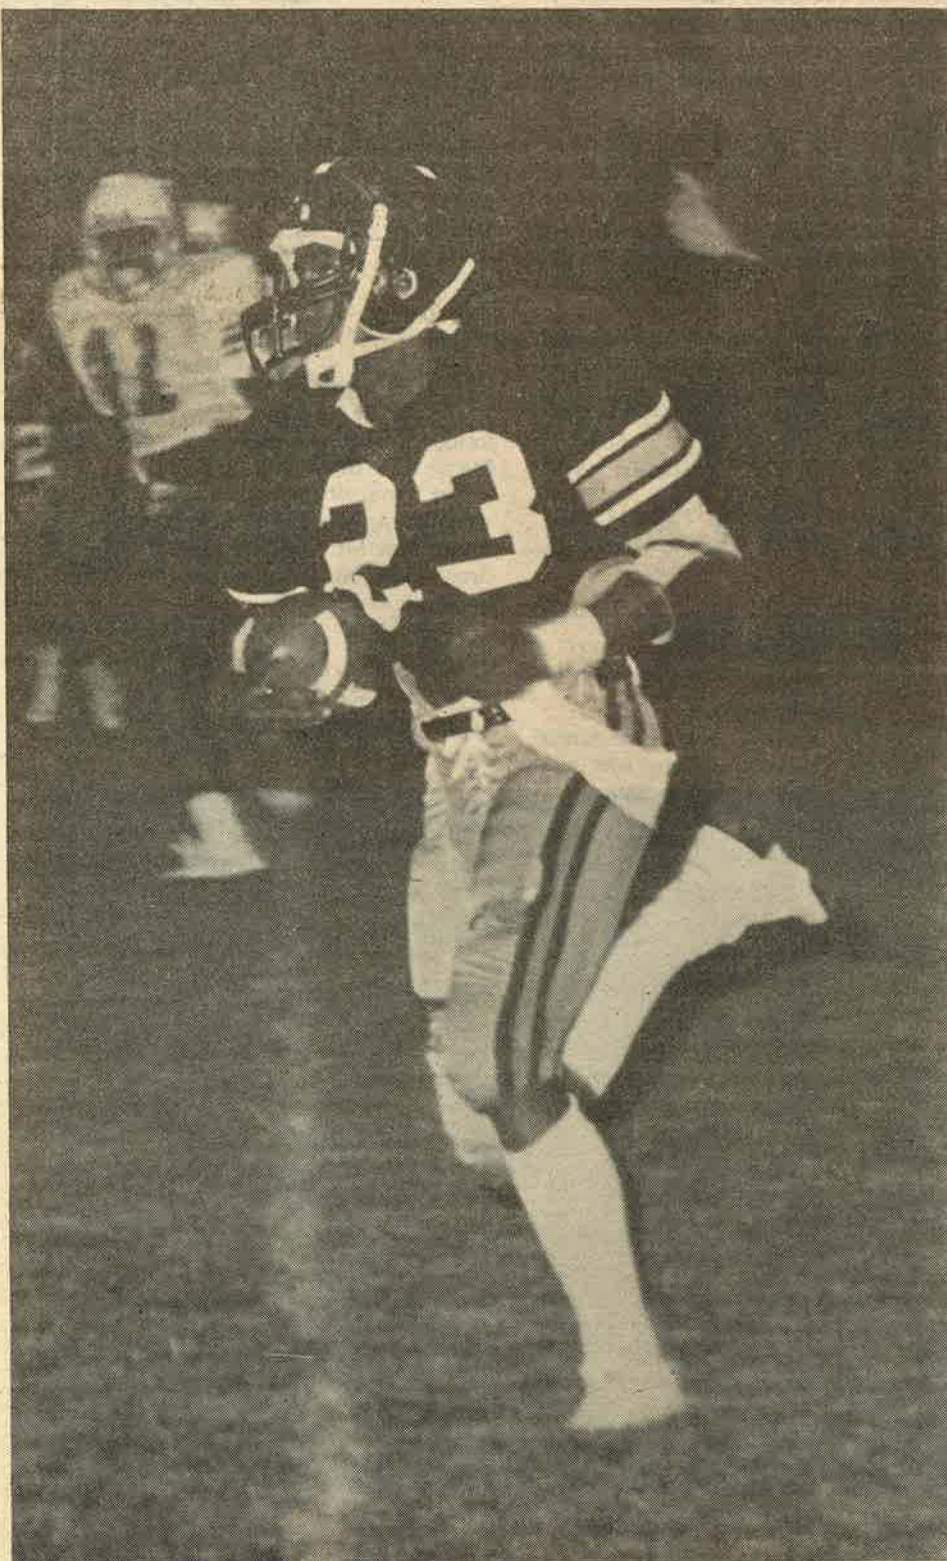

The Harding University Bisons received some welcomed news in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics statistical release from the NAIA's national offices in Kansas City.

The Bisons are currently ranked first in the nation in rushing defense, allowing only 22.0 yards on the ground. With opponents Lane College and Southeastern Oklahoma State combining for 44 yards on 71 carries, the Bisons also had the lowest average yard gain on the ground among the top seven teams, at 0.6 yards per play.

By virtue of their outstanding defensive play and 2-0 record thus far in the season, the Bisons edged in the weekly NAIA top twenty poll. Harding received 14 points in votes for the poll, tying Newberry College (S.C.) and Salem College (W.Va.) for the number 20 spot.

In individual statistics, Bison punter Paul Golden is ranked first in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference statistical rankings from the AIC offices in North Little Rock. Golden, a sophomore from Caddo Gap, AR, has punted eight times for 323 yards, good enough for a 40.4 yard average.

Bobby Jones gains yardage for the Bisons in their season-opening win over Lane College.

Darryl Halbert and Al Bates prepare to overtake a runner from the School of the Ozarks at the Bison Invitational Sept. 22.

Harriers Capture Bison Invitational Crown

The Harding University cross-country teams, under the direction of coach Ted Lloyd, started off their 1984 season on the right foot in the Bison Booster Invitational, Sept. 23, with a first place finish in the men's competition and third place in the women's division.

The men's team, looking for their 14th consecutive Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference championship, finished well ahead of the field with 30 team points. Following Harding were Arkansas Tech University with 58 points, Arkansas College with 87, School of the Ozarks with 90, Arkansas State University with 130, College of the Ozarks with 137 and the University of Central Arkansas, who did not place.

Junior Al Bates, who finished second in the AIC last year, was the top runner for Harding with a third place finish of 26:26 as the Bisons took five of the top ten places in the five-mile race. First place went to freshman Tim Martin of Arkansas College with a 25:25 pace, while Larry Wayne of Harding took fourth with a 26:30 finish.

Sixth and seventh positions went to Harding as sophomores Darryl Halbert and Eddie Neal finished the course in 26:45 and 26:47, respectively. Harding freshmen John Partlow and Kevin Cantrell showed potential as they finished 10th and 12th with respective times of 27:09 and 27:32.

Lloyd, who enters his 15th year as head of the Harding program, says he is pleased with where his men's team is at this point.

"I've been very happy with our progress so far," Lloyd said. "This is a good team with a good working attitude, so now we'll just take one meet at a time and emphasize getting better."

The women's team for Harding finished the 5,000 meter (3.1 miles) course with a third place total of 60 points, behind Arkansas College with 26 points and the University of Arkansas-Monticello with 44 points.

Harding freshman Linda Pryor was the first runner from her team to cross the finish line as she placed fourth overall with a time of 21:14. Lois Hudson of Arkansas College won the race in 18:58.

Sophomore Ruth Meecham took 11th place for the Lady Bisons with a 22:11 time, followed by senior teammate Amy Clayton in 12th place with a time of 22:17. Senior Stacie Jester and freshman Renee Stearns placed 16th and 17th for Harding with respective times of 23:17 and 23:31.

The women's team, which returns only two letter winners from last season, is essentially in a rebuilding stage.

"We knew this year's women's team would be a question mark for us," Lloyd said. "But I would say that they will definitely get better as the season wears on."
