1989 Fund-Raising Efforts Approach $5 Million Mark

Fund-raising efforts by Harding almost reached the $5 million mark during 1989. The total given during the year was $4,987,682 by 4,930 donors.

The 1989 total is the third highest in the school's history. Only 1988's total of $6,048,463 and 1985's total of $5,238,133 rank higher.

Gifts in 1989 came in the second year of the five-year Beyond Excellence campaign. During the first two years of the campaign, more than $11 million has been given.

The Beyond Excellence campaign has a $25 million goal for current and capital projects. Forty million dollars in endowment needs were also identified through strategic planning in 1987.

Harding received $3,836,210 in cash gifts and $1,151,472 in non-cash gifts. During the year Harding received gifts from 858 individuals, corporations or foundations who were making their first donations to the school.

The fund-raising year was characterized as "very good" by Floyd Daniel, vice president for university relations. Daniel directs the university's fund-raising efforts.

"We consider 1989 to be a very successful year for the school," said Daniel. "In 1988 we set a record with $6 million in gifts, but we had two gifts of more than $1 million which helped set the record.

"In 1989 we didn't have that size of gift to boost our totals. Last year was an excellent example of total support with gifts from $1 to $775,000 and only 10 gifts were $100,000 or more."

Daniel pointed out that more than 80 percent of the donors during 1989 were alumni. Alumni contributed $1,248 million, which was the third highest in the history of the Alumni Association. During 1989 more than 25 percent of all Harding graduates contributed.

Major increases in the number of donors were experienced in the $100 to $500 categories. Approximately 300 new donors gave at these levels during 1989.

Daniel attributed much of the increase in these levels of giving to a concerted effort by members of the staff to increase giving at the Century Club level ($100 and higher).

"Harding continues to exhibit strong grass roots support," said Daniel. "Our success in annual fund solicitations, including phon-a-thons and direct mail appeals, is indicated in the fact that 3,485 of our 1989 donors gave between $1 and $200.

"We need the large gifts in our fund-raising program. Gifts of $100,000, $500,000, and even $1 million are necessary for Harding to meet her goals and provide more services. Equally essential, however, are the gifts from these 3,485 individuals who gave $200 or less. There is no such thing as an insignificant gift."

"To have a successful year in fund-raising takes the combined efforts of all donors. That is the beauty in Harding's development program. Everyone is having a part in the success we experienced at Harding."

A summary review of the highlights of 1989 plus a listing of donors is included in a special section of this issue.

Four talented students have been selected as hosts and hostesses for the annual Spring Sing musical April 13-14. Leading the student musical production will be (l-r) Conrad Ekkens, Julie Svymbersky, India Medders and Kendall Hewitt. Approximately 700 students will be involved in the two-hour production.

New College Dean Announces His Goals

Dr. Carl Mitchell, in a report to the Board of Trustees during their fall meeting on campus, presented his goals for the College of Bible and Religion. Mitchell joined the staff during the summer as Dean of the college.

"Harding has an excellent record of service to the Church and to the home," he said in introduction. "The world is populated with Christian leaders trained at Harding. We have accumulated an outstanding faculty of men who are not only fine scholars, but also are seasoned and effective workers in the Church."

Mitchell listed the plans for strengthening and improving the program in Bible as follows:

1) Creating an office of Church Relations with a director who will be the eyes and ears for service to the local Church. The new director will coordinate the annual lectureship and a series of mini-workshops on subjects of interest to the Church. He will travel extensively, visiting elder and preacher meetings, and seeking information as to how to better serve the Church. The director will share information as to what Harding has to offer and oversee the development of a videotape loan library where the faculty will offer short sequences for class use. He will

Spring Enrollment Tops 3,100

A record spring semester enrollment of 3,143 has filled Harding's residence halls and classrooms. The total is 113 more than the number enrolled for the spring semester in 1989, which was also a record.

The 1989 fall enrollment was a record 3,284. In December 125 students received their degrees in commencement ceremonies. "The spring semester enrollment is really amazing because we're just 144 students short of the fall's record enrollment," said Ron Finley, registrar.

Finley pointed out enrollment numbers appear to be excellent for the 1990 fall semester, still more than eight months away. According to records in the Admissions Services Office, 716 applications have already been received and 378 applicants in that total have been accepted for enrollment.

At this same time last year 619 applications had been received and 203 applicants admitted. The 1990 total of applications received is 15 percent ahead of last year.

Jim White, director of admissions services, is encouraging prospective students to make application as quickly as possible. "We do have a limited amount of residence hall space for housing. Students are being placed according to their acceptance date, the date when all their admissions requirements are met," said White.

White indicated applications from women are running slightly ahead of those from men. "This is not unusual; however, it does cause our women's residence halls to fill quickly," he said.

Carter Family Establishes Scholarship Fund

An endowed scholarship funded by the Paul Carter family of Bentonville, Ark., to assist students in Harding University's College of Bible and Religion and the School of Business has been announced by President David B. Burks.

Paul and his wife, June, are former members of the President's Council. Carter currently serves as a member of the Board of Trustees. Their children, Stephen, a Little Rock attorney, and Stephanie, who is a buyer with Dillard's in Little Rock, are graduates of Harding. They also have another son, 12-year-old Sam.

The family established the fund to provide grants to students in the College of Bible and Religion who plan a full time vocation in Christian work, or those in the School of Business who plan to be active in Christian services.

"We are delighted to accept this significant gift to establish an endowed scholarship fund," said Burks. "The gift is a very tangible expression of the Carters' commitment to the goals and purposes of Harding University.

"Through their generosity, hundreds and even thousands of students at Harding will be able to have the same educational experiences that Steve and Stephanie had. I know that is the goal of Paul and June as they established this fund."

C. Alvin Fowler, assistant vice president for university relations, said that even though the initial fund was provided by the Carters, gifts could be accepted from other persons who wish to further the purposes of the endowment. Only the interest income from the fund will be used for scholarships, Fowler said. The initial scholarships will become available in the fall of 1990.

"Endowed scholarship funds are very important to private schools such as Harding," Fowler said. "These scholarships will allow students to share in the Harding experience, and through the establishment of this fund the Carter family has demonstrated its commitment not only to Harding but also to the concept of Christian stewardship."

Potential recipients are urged to make application through the Office of Financial Services by March 15 each year. Students must be in good standing academically and socially and will be required to demonstrate financial need. Decisions will be made by the Financial Services committee and an advisory committee.

Paul, executive vice president and chief financial officer of Wal-Mart in Benton-ville, and June, his wife of 30 years, are natives of Monticello. Neither attended Harding, but they have been supporters of the school for many years. The current scholarship came about through joint planning between the Carter family, their personal financial planner and Harding's planned giving team.

Don Shackelford Selected As Church Relations Director

Dr. Don Shackelford, a member of the Bible faculty and Director of International Campaigns, has been named to fill the newly created position of Church Relations Director of the College of Bible and Religion. Dr. Carl Mitchell, Dean of the College of Bible and Religion, announced the appointment, which is effective immediately.

Don Shackelford

A former missionary to Italy, Shackelford is a native of Oklahoma and a graduate of David Lipscomb College. He received the doctorate in theology at New Orleans Baptist Seminary. He worked in Florence from 1957-60 and 1966-70. A professor of Bible, he will continue to teach one course each semester and will continue as director of the HUF program of a semester of study in Florence, Italy, based at the University's villa.

In the role, Shackelford will serve as director of the annual Bible Lectureship in the fall and will organize and direct special seminars throughout the year. Also, he will serve as liaison between the College of Bible and Religion and Churches of Christ in developing areas of service.

"Don will work with church leaders to report plans Harding is making in finding ways to serve," Mitchell said, "and we will be responsive to suggestions on how we can help in preparing young people to best serve in spreading the Gospel of Christ." Shackelford will meet with elders and ministers of congregations on a regular basis.

The new director will develop individual seminars to be conducted on campus throughout the year. The seminars will be held in lieu of the former "13-in-1" workshops held bi-annually.

Plans Made to Strengthen Program

develop an internship program enabling Bible majors to spend summers in "hands-on" congregational work.

2) Plans are being made to develop a more rigorous Bible major's program by creating a separate track for majors to separate them from the general education students to teach at a more demanding and rewarding level. Also being planned are internship experiences for majors, thus merging the practical with the theoretical.

Mitchell also plans to market what has been a dormant major in vocational missions.

"For a number of years, this major has been available as a 'second / major' with very few takers. Since all students take a Bible course each semester, relatively little additional effort is required for the majority of the students to complete this second major," Mitchell explained. "I am planning extensive advertising aimed at incoming students. Already about 30 students have come to my office to express a desire to add this second major. I believe that by raising the level of awareness, a strong percentage will add this second major."

The dean pledged the continuance of working toward making the College of Bible and Religion the spiritual center of the Harding campus by upgrading and improving the physical environment and joining with all faculty and staff in demonstrating that students are number one. He also wants to begin working to establish a team spirit and a spirit of camaraderie among the Bible majors.

Mitchell has declared his leadership style as a 'collective' kind of approach rather than autocratic, proposing that everyone work together in a common cause to continue the accomplishments achieved throughout the history of the school. "This does not mean I will abdicate making final decisions, but I had rather decisions be reached through group discussion and agreement," he said.

"By planning, praying and working closely together, we will exceed what has been done in the past. Harding's purpose has always been to serve the Church, and I hope that we can give a great deal of attention to continuing that mission. However, there are changes, technological and otherwise, about us and we need to be in step with those changes."

Within the College of Bible and Religion, the number of stated majors is 123, including 77 in Bible and religion, 19 in youth ministry, six in Biblical languages, six in missions, three in religious education and 12 in ministry.

Campus Notes

Dr. Fred Jewell, professor of history, has been elected to the National Council of Phi Alpha Theta, history honor society. Jewell is one of seven serving as national council members.

A sponsor of Harding's Eta Phi chapter since 1974, Jewell has served the national organization on the committees of National Awards for students and National Book Awards for faculty publications.

Suzanne Spurrier, circulation and technical services librarian, has been named Harding University library director effective at the retirement of the current head librarian, Winnie Bell, in July.

Spurrier, a 1971 graduate of the university, has been a member of the library staff since 1975. She holds the M.A. from West Virginia University and the M.L.S. from Indiana University.

A native of Zanesville, Ohio, Spurrier attended Ohio Valley College in Parkersburg, W. Va., before transferring to Harding. From 1971 to 1975, she taught in the Wood County West Virginia public schools.

With the appointment, Miss Spurrier will assume the responsibility of moving the entire library into a new facility on the Harding campus. The $1.6 million project was started last May at Beaumont Memorial Library when some of the 330,000 volumes were moved to the administration auditorium and the remainder were stored in a warehouse. The new building is expected to be completed in August.

Tina Godwin, Dorothea McDowell and Dr. Cathleen Shultz, members of the School of Nursing faculty, attended the biennial convention of Sigma Theta Tau in Indianapolis. Sigma Theta Tau is the international honor society of nursing.

At the meeting Dr. Shultz was one of five members elected to the national nominating committee.

Librarians Winnie Bell, Henry Terrill, and Shirley Williams attended the November semiannual meeting of the AMIGOS

Bibliographic Council in Dallas. The three librarians attended workshops on automation and resource sharing.

David M. Johnson, an assistant professor of business who completed the Ph.D. in business administration at the University of Cincinnati in August, was among 40 doctoral students invited to participate at the Financial Management Association annual meeting in Boston last October.

Johnson, a CPA, presented his dissertation, entitled "Insider Ownership and Signals: A Study of Stock and Bond Issue Announcement Effects," providing a conceptual and empirical investigation of the influence of insider ownership on the firm's decision to issue securities and on the signal represented by the issue announcement. He also participated in a research session on "Leases."

Johnson has had three recent publications, including "Helping with Petroleum Futures Options: An Introduction" in the Journal of Petroleum Accounting, Summer, 1988; Lease Analysis and Opportunities for CPAs, a seminar manual co-authored with Glenn V. Henderson, Jr.; and Events Study Handbook, a technical manual written under a grant for the University of Cincinnati.

A 1977 graduate of Harding, Johnson received the M.B.A. at Memphis State. He joined the Harding faculty in 1982. Currently he serves as Director of the Accounting Program in the School of Business.

Harding University will host the Big Three Bible Bowl April 28.

The subject of this year's match is the book of II Samuel. As in previous years, the competition is not bells and buzzers but in the form of a written test. The competition is open to junior high students, senior high students and adults.

The Bible Bowl will be held in the Ganus Athletic Center. Activities will begin with registration at 7 a.m. and should conclude by 4 p.m. All participants are invited to enjoy the catered noon meal together.

Harding is giving scholarships of $500, $300 and $100 to the first, second and third place individual winners in grades 10-12. These scholarships are to be used during a student's freshman year at Harding.

For enrollment forms or information concerning the Bowl, write: Big Three Bible Bowl, P. O. Box 38372, Dallas, Texas 75238, or write: Glenn Dillard, Assistant Director of Admissions, Box 762, Harding University, Searcy, Arkansas 72143.

Denise Miller, a 1974 graduate, has been named director of cooperative education. She will coordinate the program which provides a combination of classroom learning and practical work skills for students while they are pursuing a degree.

The program allows students to acquire skills in a supervised work experience, primarily away from the Harding campus, with employment related to the student's major field of study. The assignment may also be on the campus, Miller said.

Miller, the former Denise Tippis, is the widow of Harry Miller, a Harding graduate who was killed in 1981. She has been active in the Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) program for several years.

The fall meeting of the Arkansas Council for Women was held in November on the campus in the renovated American Heritage Center facilities. Representing Harding at the meeting were Sharon Crockett (home economics), Betty Ulrey (English) and Betty Watson Education.

Computer Teams Ranked Nationally

Two teams of students finished second and fifth, respectively, in the Association of Computing Machinery South Regional Scholastic Programming contest, Division 2, held in Tulsa in November.

A team composed of Ron Pacheco of Flippin, Ark.; Jeremy Green of Richardson, Texas; Tyler Cutshall of Houston, Texas; and Ram Tackett of Blairsville, Ga., finished second in the contest among schools with undergraduate programs. The team solved two problems in six hours and 16 minutes. The other team of Myca Hagood of Cleveland, Tenn.; Philip DeYoung of Manson, Manitoba, Canada;

Scott Burgan of Liverpool, N.Y.; and Steve Mullins of Lavergne, Tenn., completed one problem in three hours and two minutes to take fifth.

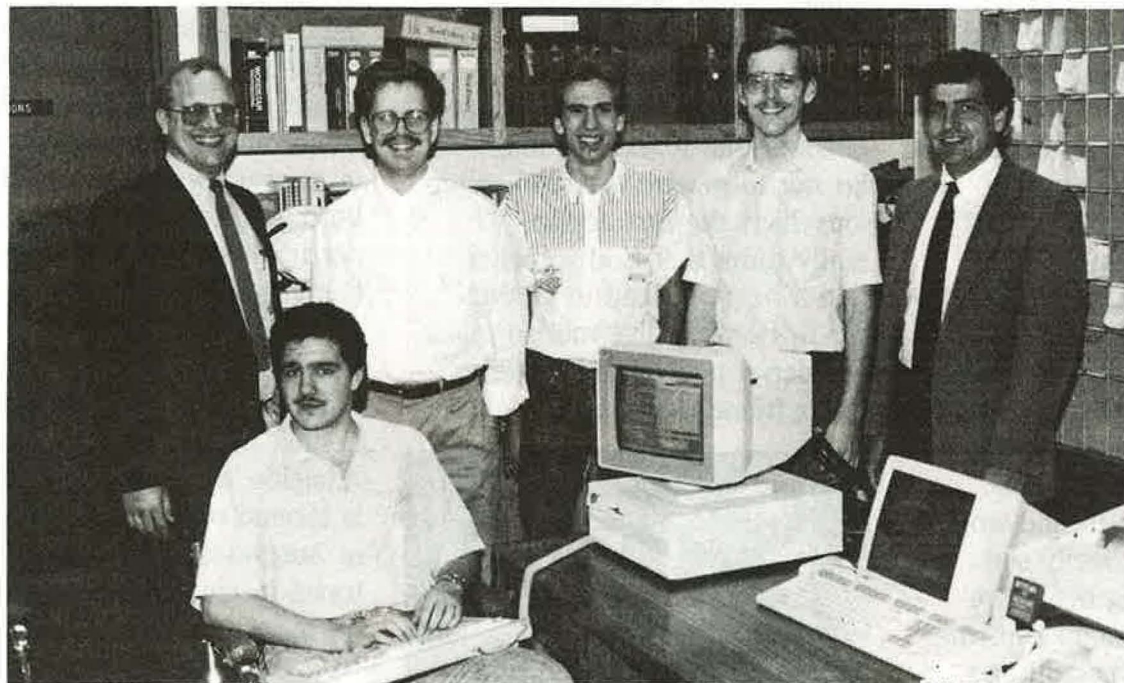

Overall, ranked among the 29 teams that included graduate as well as undergraduate students, Harding finished eighth and 18th, respectively.

"We were extremely proud of our students and the way they performed," said Dr. Dean Priest, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. "Our teams have done collectively better each year that they have participated with the exception of 1987 when they finished in first place." Priest commended the sponsors, Dr. Steve Baber, Dr. Tim Baird and Dr. Travis Thompson, who coached the teams and assisted with the preparation for the contest.

A team from Oral Roberts University won Division 2, solving three problems in 9:43. Other schools ranked were Angelo State University, Trinity, LSU-Shreveport, Northeast Louisiana University and Lamar State.

In the overall standings, teams from Texas Tech finished first and second. USL took third and fourth; Texas A&M fifth; Oral Roberts sixth and Oklahoma State University seventh with Harding ranking eighth. The other Harding team placed 18th.

Ingrid Cho, a senior from Panama City, Panama, is fulfilling a dream she thought would never come true. Since she first started high school, Cho has dreamed of attending an American university for her college education. With the help of Wal-Mart founder Sam Walton, her wish is coming true as she completes her final two years of college at Harding.

Cho had just about given up on her dream. Her first financial aid application, which would have restricted her enrollment to a large state university, was denied. Disappointed that her application was not selected, Cho attended college in Panama for two years. She learned of the Walton Scholarship Program through a high school friend who had been accepted into the program and was attending at the University of the Ozarks. Cho, unhappy with her studies in Panama, quickly applied for the program and was soon accepted.

Knowing very little about the Walton Scholarship Program or the schools involved, Cho went to a library in Panama City to gain more information about them. "In the book I read, Harding really stood out as a good school, and I hoped that I would attend here," she said. Receiving no response from the University of the Ozarks or John Brown University, she received an affirmative response from Harding and shortly joined more than 60 other students currently in the program.

Cho is enjoying her educational preparation at Harding much more than she did in Panama. She said the educational system in Panama has suffered because of the political problems that have plagued the country. "We weren't able to use textbooks because students couldn't afford them. Those few who could buy them couldn't use theirs either because the teacher wouldn't follow the book

Worldwide Paths Lead to Harding

Coming from 27 foreign countries ranging from the Bahamas to Zambia, there are currently 137 international students attending Harding University.

Three of these students — Matt Reynolds, Ingrid Cho and Wade Gillespie — share their stories on the paths that led them to Harding and the experiences they have had since arriving.

since most students didn't have one," she said.

Cho has found the pursuit of her marketing degree to be very challenging. "I've learned a lot in just two years here. I've really had some good teachers. They all want their students to understand the subject and I think a large part of their concern is the fact that they are Christians. I just feel so lucky to be selected to attend Harding," she said.

Cho hopes the recent developments in Panama will help stabilize the country and its economy. As news reports have indicated, Panamanians were more than ready for General Manuel Noriega to be banished from the country. "The only supporters he had were those who were in his government but he had to buy their support," she said.

According to Cho, Noriega tried to represent the United States as an enemy to Panama. "Panamanians didn't believe that," she continued, "because we all knew that Noriega was the cause of our problems. People didn't like him. It didn't matter if they were low, middle or high class. It was not a social class war because everybody wanted him out. But since he had the power, the money and the military, there was not much that we could do," she said.

Cho has learned a lot about the people of America during her two years at Harding. Her view of America was one that she had perceived through movies, newscasts and newspapers. It quickly dissipated after her arrival to the states. "I've noticed how people help each other in a time of crisis. People always pitch in and work together, and I can really see their concern. Being over here has been a great example for me of how important freedom and liberty are," she said.

Cho learned to speak English at a bilingual high school she attended in Panama, and she felt no apprehension about communicating with American people. That changed, though, after she dropped anchor in America. "I had to learn all the slang expressions, different pronunciations and accents. I didn't realize that someone from the north would speak so differently than someone from the south. The (regional) differences are so prominent, even in their clothes and the type of music they listen to," she said. It took Cho about five months to overcome her language barrier and to feel comfortable in her conversations with people.

Cho considers meeting one of the world's richest men as one of the highlights of her two years at Harding. Sam Walton hosted Cho and other Walton Scholars when they visited Bentonville, Ark., the headquarters of the Wal-Mart stores. "We went there for a weekend and toured the town. We also went to a stockholders' meeting and had breakfast with Mr. Walton," she said. Cho remembers applying for the Walton scholarship with a feeling that she would not be accepted. "I was still disappointed in being turned down once before, and I thought I had just totally missed out on ever getting to come to school in America," Cho said.

In retrospect, though, Cho now believes that it was not intended for her to receive the scholarship for which she first applied. "I really think that God somehow had a helping hand in getting me to Harding. I've met so many wonderful people and made so many friends," she said.

Matt Reynolds

The popularity of the hit "Crocodile Dundee" movie series has led to a lot of speaking requests for Harding junior Matt Reynolds. The requests are not for formal speaking engagements or lectures, but merely his friends and fellow students asking the native Australian to quote the movie's popular phrase "G' day, mate." "I think people have this fascination with Australia and those movies have only increased it," Reynolds said.

Reynolds' fascination, though, is with the United States. He has taken on the hobby of traveling to as many places as possible during times when classes are not in session. To date, Reynolds has visited 20 states and has also been to Canada. "I've enjoyed Florida the most because it reminds me of the beaches back home," he said. Reynolds is from Adelaide, South Australia which is located on the western coast of Australia. He still plans to travel to more American cities on the west coast and also to New York City.

Reynolds quickly discovered that the pace of life in America is much more rushed than in Australia. Putting it in his words,

Wade Gillespie

Imagine living in a climate where the temperature has never been below 60 degrees. Imagine believing American people are like the stereotyped Texan. What would you think, then, if on your first visit to America, you arrived in New York City on a day the temperature was below freezing? Wade Gillespie was beginning to question his decision of coming to America for his college education.

"I had on so many layers of clothes that my suitcase was almost empty," he said. His doubts soon subsided, though, when warmer temperatures greeted him as he traveled south toward Harding.

Gillespie heard about Harding while attending the South African Bible School in his hometown of Durban, South Africa. Some of the instructors at the school had Harding roots, and they persuaded Gillespie to finish his Bible degree in America. He had narrowed his choice of schools to either Abilene Christian University or Harding. When Harding offered the better scholarship, he accepted and soon found himself living in Searcy. Gillespie, who has been at Harding four years, began work on a psychology degree after completing work on his Bible degree.

At age 24, Gillespie is completing his college career with two different majors. If he were still in South Africa, he would just now be allowed to start college work due to stricter rules and age requirements in that country. "Nobody can start college there until they're 24. South Africa tries to be more selective with their students, but it still has a first year drop out rate of 50 percent in colleges there," Gillespie said. He also mentioned that South Africa has no liberal arts colleges which allows a person to only take classes in his chosen field of study. "I'm really excited to be finishing up my degrees because if I were home I would have barely started on them," he said.

Gillespie has learned a lot about the United States during his time here. One of his misconceptions about America were its people. "The United States is so much larger than South Africa, and I didn't realize that people were different depending on which region of the country they lived in. That just isn't prominent in South Africa," he said. Gillespie has traveled to Detroit, Florida and New York City. He has found the people in each place to be quite different. He also has noticed the regional differences in the Harding student body, which represents 47 states.

His travels have also disclosed another difference between South Africa and America. "If you're traveling between cities in South Africa there is nothing but the road and uninhabited land to drive through, but over here there is always a gas station, a grocery store, homes or something. It took a little time to adjust to that," he said.

Although Gillespie is from a city of over two million people, he experienced no culture shock in adjusting to American life in Arkansas. He had no language barrier as a hinderance either. "My main fear in coming to America was that I would be so far from home, and I wouldn't be able to just pick up the phone and call home very often," he said. A good friend made the trip with Gillespie and is also attending Harding. "I didn't have any fears that we wouldn't be accepted because my association with the Americans who visited South Africa had made me feel that Americans would be friendly toward strangers," he said.

The scene that American people have received of South Africa, though, has seemed less friendly. Newscasts appear to always be airing footage of riots and demonstrations in the country. Gillespie feels that the media exaggerates the events and makes them seem worse than they actually are. "There have been several times that I have called home in a panic after watching the news only to find out that my parents knew nothing about it and reported everything was calm," he said. Gillespie himself has never seen riots or violence occur during his years there or during the summers when he returns home to Durban.

Gillespie does realize that a change needs to be made in the South African government's stand on civil rights. "To be frank," he said, "the older government officials hold these biased beliefs, but the younger generation realizes the need for a sharing of power and for civil rights," Gillespie said. He stated that events are beginning to change for the better and he feels the situation will be resolved before long.

Gillespie's future does not include a move back to South Africa anytime soon. After graduating he plans to work as a youth minister in the United States. He also plans to return to school to work toward a master's degree in psychology. "Harding has a great program in psychology compared to other schools in Arkansas. The teachers have gone out of their way to help me at anytime and they always keep us up-to-date with job openings and psychology related events. All of these things have given me a great interest in the subject and I want to keep pursuing it," he said.

Gillespie joked that he might stay in America forever if he could just get people at the drive-thru windows at fast food restaurants to understand his accent. "I always have to repeat my order over and over," he said. Solving that technicality for Gillespie and providing him with plenty of warm weather would keep him content in America for years to come.

he had to "speed up his walk." Even though Americans live life in the fast lane, Reynolds has found them to be amiable. "I didn't expect people to be as friendly because of all the violence we see on the American television shows that are aired in Australia," he said. Another media based misconception that Reynolds held was that America consisted of one huge city after another. "I've found out that it's a lot like Australia in that it's very diverse. I think Americans have an opposite view of Australia. They think it's mainly a vast, bare continent but we do have large cities," he said in explaining that 90 percent of Australians live in cities.

Reynolds first came to the United States at the age of 14 when his family visited their former preacher who had moved back to Nashville, Ark. The Reynolds family visited Harding during their stay and it made such an impression on Matt that he had always wanted to return. He kept in contact with a family in Searcy he had met during his visit. The correspondence between them further helped his decision to come to Harding.

The school system in Australia is much different than in America and Reynolds found the educational process in America more appealing. "It is a lot fairer over here," he explained, "because at home your entire college career depends on one exam." Australian high school students have no homework or quizzes in their classes but they do have a final exam. The combined exam scores from the five classes in which students are enrolled determine if one is eligible for college. Reynolds passed the exam, but could not get the courses he needed to major in political science. "If you do bad on a test over here, you have a chance to redeem yourself by studying harder for the next test. You don't get that chance in Australia," he said.

Reynolds also found Harding appealing because it was a Christian institution. "There is nothing like Harding in Australia. They have private universities there but they are all Lutheran," he explained. Reynolds wanted to attend where there was a strong program in economics and political science and he had heard of Harding's outstanding business department. "I've found my studies here to be very rewarding. I'm getting a good mix of law, global relations and international relations which will really benefit me in Australia," he said.

If the chance existed for Reynolds to make any changes in the school he close to attend, he says he would definitely still come to Harding. "If I ever have children, I'm going to send them here too. It's really something to look forward to," he said.

In the meantime, though, Reynolds plans to return to Australia to begin his career. He hopes to receive an entry level administration job which he hopes will lead to a policy advising position. He eventually desires to have a career in politics. Reynolds, whose fiancée is from Canada, plans to live in that country after he has worked in Australia for several years. He's lucky he enjoys traveling because a political career will be full of campaign trips. He'll also have a two-day journey to his in-laws house.

Leadership: Feminine Variety

By Angie Mote

Harding University's junior class officers have shattered the myth of "the weaker sex." Four women occupy the leadership position of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer for their class.

All of the candidates in the elections were female with the exception of one male who ran for president. He was defeated by Sara Smith of Searcy.

Sara is following in the footsteps of her father, Terry, who was junior class president at Harding 1963-64.

Julie Crosswhite of Tupelo, Miss., is vice-president. Kristin Ford of Ponca City, Okla., serves as secretary. Myca Hagood of Cleveland, Tenn., is treasurer.

All of the coeds feel very positive about being a force for women in representing their class. But Julie admitted that she hadn't thought about it in that way. Sara pointed out that servicing was the number one priority, not making a statement for women. Kristin said there was an immediate connection between the offices of the other girls in the class. But they don't exclude the male members of the class when seeking input, Myca added.

They unanimously agree that the men in the junior class don't feel threatened by being led by the four women officers.

"The situation wasn't planned. It just worked out that each position is held by a woman, which may or may not be a statement within itself," Sara said.

"In this case women are as capable as men in leadership roles. But in other cases, men might have an advantage. Each role is different, and each gender would have its own advantages," Kristin said.

"Leadership capabilities are individual to each person," Myca added. "Some women are more capable than some men and vice versa. Leadership abilities come through training, not on the basis of being male or female."

tion, said this is the first time he can remember that all the junior class officers are female. However, this class was also represented by four females last year as sophomores. But none of the officers this year held offices last year; four new women took the reins.

Apparently there is more than enough feminine leadership in the junior class.

Home Economics Department Awarded Student Literacy Grant

Harding has been awarded a $48,794 grant from the United States Department of Education for a two-year Student Literacy Corps Program. The announcement was made through correspondence from U. S. Senators David Pryor and Edward M. Kennedy and Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton.

The program, which was developed by the university, will involve enrollment and tutoring of unwed pregnant teenagers in G. E. D. Studies. Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, chairman of Harding's home economics department, is administrator of the grant. Sharen Crockett, a professor of home economics who has been recognized for her work in child development, will serve as project director.

The goal of the project will be to improve literacy and also to encourage volunteer service. The project will involve enrolling a minimum of 20 unwed pregnant teens per semester. The participants will have a mandatory minimum of three hours of tutoring per week.

Tutors will be Harding students who will receive academic credit, but no pay for their services. Tutoring will be conducted at Foothills Vo-Tech School in Searcy. "This will be one-on-one teaching and training in basic skills," Mrs. Wilson, "with our students offering instruction in parenting and child care. We will be using life skills management materials including supplemental reading on nutrition, consumer buying, etc., for the training."

University volunteers will be under the direction of Linda Thompson, director of the Learning Assistance Program at Harding. Tutors will be required to spend six hours per week with the project.

Sen. Kennedy, in his announcement to Mrs. Wilson, commended Harding as being among the first institutions of higher education to embark on this program.

"We have seen this program work successfully in Massachusetts already, supported by private funding," he said, "and I am looking forward to being able to expand these efforts nationally through this federal Literacy Corps."

Goals developed by Harding for the grant request include providing an environment in which students develop leadership skills through increased meaningful participation in social, services, work and cultural activities; providing effective academic and counseling support to facilitate greater understanding among students of diverse socio-economic and ethnic backgrounds, and to make the services of the university available to all students who can benefit from them and others.

Alaskan Tour Planned

A tour of Alaska and Canada's Yukon has been scheduled for May 21-June 2 for the university's friends and alumni with Dr. Jimmy Carr as tour host. The 13-day trip will originate in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Carr, a veteran Harding tour guide, said spaces remain for the May tour. A $200 deposit is required for a space reservation and the balance must be completed by April 1. Rates from Vancouver range from $2,279 to $2,639 plus port charge. The fare includes all meals aboard ship and those served by the airline from Anchorage. Prices are determined by cabin accommodations on board the ms Noordam.

Meals during motorcoach travel are not included, Carr said.

A brochure and further information are available by writing Dr. Carr at Sta. A, Box 1224 or by phoning (501) 279-4462 for details.

Harding University and World Travel, Inc. of Searcy have joined in arranging tours in recent years. Dr. Carr has accompanied groups to Europe, Alaska and the Northeast.

Hall of Fame Will Induct New Members

Ten former athletes, coaches and supporters will be inducted April 7 into the Harding University Intercollegiate Athletic Hall of Fame. The announcement of the second induction class was made by Donnie Miller, president of the Downtown Bison Booster Club, which sponsors the Hall of Fame.

"We're pleased to honor these 10 men, who have represented Harding's athletic teams either as an athlete, coach or supporter," said Miller. "They truly deserve the recognition for their accomplishments, and we look forward to honoring them by inducting them into the Hall."

The 10 inductees include nine former athletes, one of whom will actually be inducted in the coach category, and an avid supporter of the athletic program who will be inducted under the category of meritorious service.

The inductees include athletes Charles Burt, Jerry Cook, Jim Citty, Barney Crawford, Alan Dixon, Luther Honey, David Redding and Mark Trotter. Current Bison tennis coach David Elliott will also be inducted, as will former Downtown Bison Booster Club President Bill Harris in meritorious service.

Miller said the Booster Club initially had planned to select no more than five honorees after last year's charter group of 15, but the 10 were named to strengthen the base of the Hall. Future induction groups should number no more than five or six, he said.

Selection for athletes is based on three basic criteria: the complexion of eligibility at least five years ago, good character and citizenship both during and after their playing days, and the receiving of All-Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference, All-NAIA District 17 or All-American honors. Coaches must have demonstrated good character.

Miller said induction ceremonies will be held April 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the American Heritage Dining Hall on campus.

Charles Burt

A two-time NAIA national bowling singles champion, Burt led the Bison keglers to four straight top five finishes in the NAIA championships, including the national title in 1970. He was the first bowler in NAIA history to win two individual championships, in 1967 and 1970.

The Batesville, Ark., native won his first championship as a freshman and set an NAIA record with an average of 200.8 pins in 15 games. The Bisons captured the AIC title all four years Burt participated. He was elected to the NAIA Hall of Fame in 1977.

Jerry Cook

A two-time NAIA All-American offensive guard, Cook was the first Bison football player to be named to the prestigious squad's first team, in 1971. He was a second-team honoree in 1970.

A three-time All-NAIA District 17 selection, Cook was regarded in the 1970s as one of the best linemen to ever play in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference. A 6-2, 225-pound native of Clarksville, Ark., he co-captained the 1971 Bison squad and was the recipient of the school's Outstanding Senior Athlete Award in 1972.

Alan Dixon

The most prolific running back in Bison football history, Dixon ranks as the second leading rusher of all time in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference with 4,082 yards on the ground.

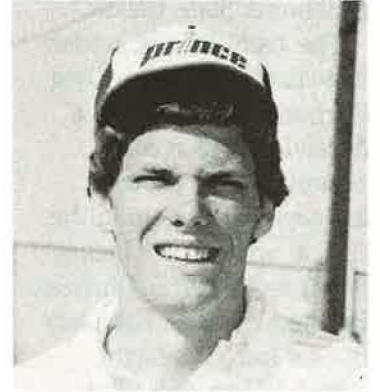

A solidly built 6-0, 200 pounds, Dixon topped the 1,000 yard mark twice, including 1972 when he gained 1,480 yards and scored 17 touchdowns to help lead the Bisons to a The Fitzgerald, Ga., native earned either All-AIC or NAIA District 17 honors all four years, and NAIA All-American Honorable Mention recognition in 1972 and 1973.

Bill Harris

One of the most loyal supporters of Bison athletics, Harris served for many years as President of the Downtown Bison Booster Club. While under his direction, the club donated thousands of dollars to the athletic program to upgrade facilities and purchase uniforms and equipment for the various teams.

Harris was one of the avid backers of the Harding Hall of Fame. He served as master of ceremonies of the first Hall of Fame awards banquet last spring.

David Redding

A native of Nevada, Mo., Redding was the first Bison tennis player to win 100 matches in his career. He compiled a record of 100-35 from 1980-83, and was four-time All-AIC and All-NAIA District 17 and a second-team GTE Academic All-American honoree.

Currently a tennis pro in Dallas, Redding was one of four collegiate players to receive the prestigious Arthur Ashe Award, an annual award given based on athletic accomplishments, sportsmanship and character and academic achievement.

Jim Citty

A family practitioner in Searcy, Citty has served as team doctor to the Bison football squad since 1975, but his connection with Harding sports dates back to the late 1950s. Citty was a member of the 1957 Bison basketball team that resumed intercollegiate play, and he captained the 1959 and 1960 football squads. Add to that his participation in track, and the Idabel, Okla., native earned 10 letters in three sports.

A devoted supporter of Harding athletes, Citty serves on the board of the Downtown Bison Booster Club.

Barney Crawford

One of the largest Bison football players, Crawford was named to the 1974 Kodak Division II All-American team, the only Bison ever to be named to the small college honor squad. Also a second-team NAIA All-American, he was a two-time All-AIC and NAIA District 17 selection.

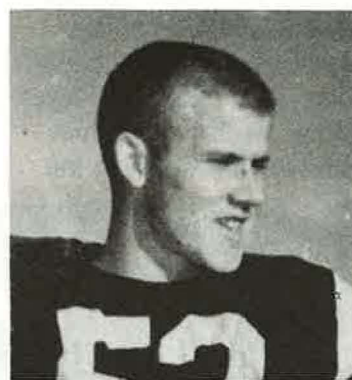

A 6-5, 250-pounder from Mountain Home, Ark., Crawford earned NAIA National Lineman of the Week honors as a senior against Arkansas Tech. He signed a free-agent NFL contract with the Miami Dolphins and currently is a successful coach.

David Elliott

A five-time AIC/District 17 Coach of the Year honoree, Elliott has led the Bison tennis team to five league titles and numerous appearances in the NAIA national tournament. In his 15-year career, Elliott-coached teams have finished no lower than fourth in the conference race, with all but three ranking either first or second.

The Newport, Ark., native was the 1969 AIC individual champion himself, helping lead the Bisons to three straight league crowns. An outstanding student, he was named the 1969 AIC Scholar-Athlete.

Luther Honey

A smallish nose guard, Honey became the first player in conference history to earn All-AIC distinction all four years of eligibility. He is only one of two players to earn that honor.

In addition to All-AIC recognition, Honey was named to the Arkansas Democrat and Arkansas Gazette all-star teams in 1962 and 1963. His career spanned from 1960-63, during a time when Harding football was in the construction stages. He was recognized for his quickness and strength in the line.

Mark Trotter

Perhaps the best diver in Water Buffalo history, Trotter captured the AIC one-meter diving championship all four years he competed, 1972-76. No one since has won four straight diving titles.

A native of Raytown, Mo., where he is currently a dentist, Trotter set the AIC record in the event in 1975 with a score of 405.2. The standard held until 1985, when Hendrix College's John Thomas eclipsed it.

Harding won its only AIC swimming title in 1976, Trotter's senior season. He was never defeated by a fellow AIC diver.

Bisons, Lady Bisons Enter AIC Competition

Facing strong competition, both the Bison and Lady Bison basketball teams have entered the thick of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference race.

The Bisons are 9-6 overall, 3-3 in league play after tipping off the season with a 5-1 mark. Included in the early season success was a 3-1 record in the Pittsburg State (Kan.) Classic and the Northeastern Oklahoma State Classic.

The Lady Bisons, under first-year head coach Greg Harnden, have earned a deceiving 3-12 record overall, 1-4 in the conference. After opening the season with a convincing 66-49 victory over Christian Brothers College, the Lady Bisons lost 10 straight games before defeating Southern Arkansas University 65-62 for their first league win. Seven of the 11 losses were by an average of seven points, including three by five points or less.

For the Bisons, the motto this season could read "Win One for the Coach," as head coach Jess Bucy bows out at the end of the season after 21 years at the helm. Bucy's troupes have completed hard, but have struggled with depth problems, especially at the point guard position. Those problems seemed to diminish as Harding won three straight games prior to press time.

"We've worked hard to find the right chemistry, but it's taken some time," Bucy said. "The fact that we've had our difficulties proves that two or three players don't make a team."

Three players stand out immediately on the statistical sheet. Senior guards Corey Camper and David James have consistently led the team in scoring, with junior postman Rolando Garcia also making himself known in the scoring column.

Camper, the AIC's leading scorer last year, is averaging 21.4 points a game and also paces the team in assists, steals and blocked shots. Earlier in the season he became the second all-time leading scorer for the Bisons and trails only Butch Gardner in total points scored.

James ranks second with an 18.1-point average after scoring better than 20 points a game last year. Garcia, who appears to be fully recovered from last winter's knee injury, is averaging 14.9 points a game and a team-leading 8.2 rebounds a contest.

After opening the season with a 73-60 home win over School of the Ozarks, the Bisons routed Philander Smith College 110-95 in Little Rock. NCAA Division II Missouri Southern edged Harding 82-78 on the first night of the Pittsburg State (Kan.) Thanksgiving Classic. Host Pittsburg State fell in the second night of competition, 82-68.

The Bisons continued their roadstand immediately following Thanksgiving break at the Northeastern Oklahoma State Classic. NE Oklahoma presented few problems as the Bisons prevailed 93-85, and John Brown University found the Bisons at peak form in an 80-66 victory.

sweet revenge in a Bison home game, downing Harding 78-77 on a controversial, game-ending bucket.

Early AIC competition proved costly for the Bisons as they dropped their first three conference tilts to strong teams. The University of Central Arkansas capitalized on its depth to handle Harding 74-53. University of the Ozarks, regarded as one of the three best teams in the league, edged the Bisons 66-62 in Ganus Athletic Center, and Southern Arkansas University, the preseason favorite in the AIC, knocked the Bisons off 67-56.

Consecutive wins over the Ouachita Baptist University Tigers, Hendrix College Warriors and UA-Monticello Boll Weevils put the Bisons back in the AIC race. The Tigers fought until the end before falling 64-55. In a near-record setting performance, the Bisons outlasted the run-and-gun Warriors, ranked ninth nationally at the time, 111-99. Against UAM, the Bisons prevailed 94-80.

The 111 points is the third highest total ever by a Bison team, and the 210 points for both teams ranks second on the all-time list.

It didn't take Harnden long to capture his first victory at the collegiate level, but finding that second required a long wait.

Freshman center Nancee Wilson of Searcy made her presence known immediately in the decision over Christian Brothers when she scored 18 points and pulled down a team-record 20 rebounds.

Senior post player Syrena Burch has consistently led the Lady Bisons in scoring, but she receives help from White and Wilson. Burch averages 12.9 points and 6.5 rebounds a game. White ranks second with 11.6 points, and leads the team in assists, steals and free throw percentage.

Wilson, a 6-2 post player, is averaging 9.9 points, but her strength has been in the rebound category, where she ranks as one of the conference's premier players with a 10.4 average. Senior guards Gina Hudson and Lisa Kirk are also playing a big role for the Lady Bisons, averaging 8.6 and 5.6 points, respectively.

"I know this is a familiar line, but our record doesn't do our team justice," said Harnden. "When you look at the competition we've faced and the scores of the games, it's easy to see we aren't a 3-12 team. We'll get better, and we'll win some of those close games

Linebacker Named All-American

Bison sophomore linebacker Patrick Gill, who set team tackling records last season, was named to the 1989 NAIA Division I Football All-American first team. The announcement was made by Mary Beth Brutton of the NAIA national office in Kansas City, Mo.

A 5-9, 225-pound native of Hallsville, Texas, Gill was regarded as the top player in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference by the AIC coaches and received first team All-AIC and NAIA District 17 honors as well. He was named the conference's Outstanding Defensive Player by the league's coaches.

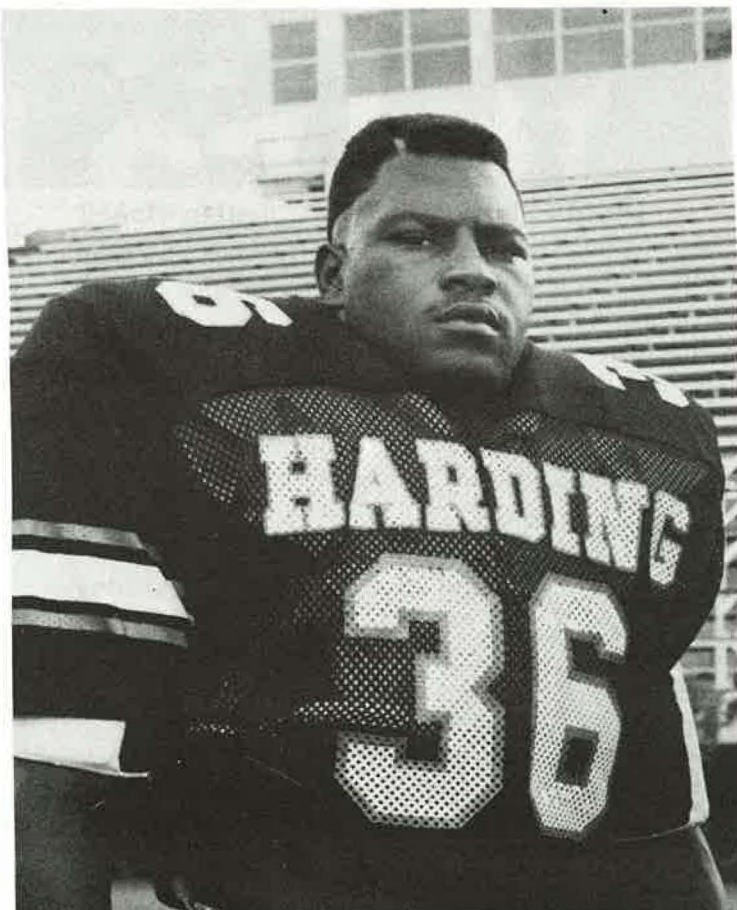

"This is certainly a big honor for Pat, who had an outstanding season," said Bison head coach Larry Richmond. "He was our leading tackler in every game, and he was a team leader as well. It's especially an honor for him because he's only a sophomore. We're looking forward to having him in the future."

Gill shattered the Bison tackle record with 102 solos and 96 assists for a total of 198 takedowns. He also recorded 11 tackles for -23 yards, six sacks for another -35 yards, two fumble recoveries, one interception and two passes broken up. Against Evangel College in week two, he recorded a total of 25 tackles and was named the NAIA Division I Defensive Player of the Week. He also earned NAIA District 17 Defensive Player of the Week honors three different times during the season. He was one of only two sophomores named to the prestigious squad.

As a team, the Bisons finished 7-4 and eighth in the final NAIA Division I poll. They tied Central Arkansas for the AIC title and represented the conference in the Division I playoffs. Harding lost to Emporia State in the first round of the playoffs.

Thanks For Your Involvement

With your strong support and that of our powerful God, 1989 was a good year for Harding as many goals were met successfully. For our board, faculty, staff and students, I want to express thanks to each of you for your wonderful help in so many different ways in 1989.

Please know that every contribution, monetary or otherwise, toward the accomplishment of these goals was an important aspect of our journey. Many contributions went unheralded; some were recognized; all were appreciated.

With this publication, we list some highlights from 1989. The listing is not the total picture of what Harding is or of the entirety of what has taken place in 1989. But for your part in it, we are grateful.

The real value of Harding is very hard to put into words. It involves changed lives, strengthened ministries, and new and renewed commitments to service in God's kingdom. I am so impressed with our students. They are worth our very best efforts.

Please continue to pray for Harding and the work being done in this place. Please visit when you can, and let us have your suggestions. And please tell others about Harding as we continue to integrate faith and learning and living for all students, staff, alumni and friends.

In the fall, Dr. Carl G. Mitchell rejoined the faculty to serve as Dean of the College of Bible and Religion. A former missionary to Italy and longtime teacher, he had previously served four years as a member of the Bible faculty.

ANNUAL BIBLE LECTURESHIP

Approximately 700 visitors from outside Searcy joined local guests, students, faculty and staff for the 66th annual Bible Lectureship in early October for in-depth studies on the Book of Acts.

"The quality of the classes and lectures was excellent," said Carl Mitchell, "and reflected much thought and study on the part of the presenters." A faculty of more than 50 speakers appeared in the three-day series, entitled 'Acts, the Spreading Flame.'

"The format of an in-depth look at a particular book is very popular and leaves room for some long-term benefit," Mitchell said in announcing that the policy will be continued. The 1990 lectures, set for Sept. 30-Oct. 3, will explore the book of 1 Corinthians with a theme, "The Church of God in a Pagan World."

The 1989 addition of a large tent in front of Hammon Student Center proved valuable for displays of vendors, and Mitchell said a larger tent would be used next fall.

Eddie C. Cloer, an associate professor of Bible who had served as director of the series for the past seven years, resigned as director effective at the close of the '89 series. He and his wife Susan were presented a certificate in recognition of their hard and productive work through the years.

1989 SUMMER CAMPAIGNS

Twenty Harding faculty members lead campaigns in 13 countries. Others assisted in the Northwest, Northeast and Southeast United States.

Australia - Tom Eddins, Dwight Smith, Nicky Boyd, Scott Stovall
Italy - Bob Corbin
England - Bobby Parks, James Mackey,

Twenty-two students did a pilot missions internship in Nairobi. Three groups spent six weeks campaigning in Nairobi, observing missionaries in Eldoret and surveying people in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda. Seven-year veteran missionary Monte Cox, along with Mark Berryman and Lloyd Deal, arranged the travel and work. Berryman is coordinating next summer's campaign to Nairobi.

COLLEGE OF BIBLE AND RELIGION MAJORS

Within the College of Bible and Religion, the number of stated majors is as follows:

Bible and Religion	77
Youth Ministry	19
Biblical Languages	6
Missions	6
Religious Education	3
Ministry	12

The large tent for vendors and visitors was an excellent addition to the Lectureship in 1989.

Academics

For the 1989-90 academic year, the instructional faculty numbered 145 and 18 part-time or adjunct instructors. A total of 57 percent, or 83 faculty members, hold doctorates or a terminal degree.

NEW FACULTY

A group of 24 new faculty members were added to the teaching schedule for the fall semester. Eight others had returned from doctoral study. In addition, nine had received administrative appointments since the end of the spring semester.

Four added to the College of Bible and Religion division are Parker Henderson, missionary in residence; Carl Mitchell, Dean of the College; Bill Searcy, visiting missionary; and James Woodroof, adjunct professor of Bible.

In the College of Arts and Sciences, seven are full-time teachers and eight serve as adjunct professors. They are David Cole, physical science; Steven Frye, communication; Kenneth Hammes, English; Greg Harnden and Mike Pruitt, physical education; Ken Hobby, psychology; and Deborah Mueller, biology. Serving adjunct are Tommy Jackson, Andrew Kronenwetter and Sharon Pitt, communication; Heber Taylor, English; Lis Jones and Laura White, music; Lisa Ritchie, home economics; and Cheryl Simmons, physical education.

Curtis Clements was added in the School of Business; Maribeth Downing in the School of Education; and Rosemary McLaughlin, Jo Ann Smith and Richard Smith in the School of Nursing.

Eight returning from doctoral study included Louis Butterfield,

John Akers, president and chief executive officer of IBM, was a participant in the fall lecture series sponsored by the American Studies Institute.

Texas A&M; Jeff Hopper, Rutgers; and William Lambert, University of Arkansas, in the College of Arts and Sciences; James Walters, Boston University, College of Bible and Religion; David Johnson, University of Cincinnati, School of Business; Jeanine Peck and Richard Peck, University of Mississippi, School of Education; and Helen Lambert, University of Arkansas, School of Nursing.

Johnson completed the Ph.D. in business administration at the University of Cincinnati. Butterfield completed the Ed.D. in instructional technology from Texas Tech University.

HONORS PROGRAM

An Honors Program was formed with 19 freshmen selected to participate for the initial semester in the fall. The program was not designed for students to be accelerated or for classes to be more difficult, but rather the courses are taught differently. Instead of being lecture-based, the courses are centered on course participation. The program is designed to offer opportunities and benefits for academically talented students. The program is associated with the Southern Regional and National Collegiate Honors Council, which allows participants to interact with honor students from other colleges and universities.

AMERICAN STUDIES INSTITUTE

The American Studies Program was upgraded within the university to become the American Studies Institute. The organizational change coincided with plans to renovate the American Heritage Center to a Conference Center for Continuing Education. The mission of the new ASI was broadened beyond the traditional lecture series and tour programs for honor students. Participants hear key opinion leaders throughout the world on topics relevant to freedom, liberty, democracy, God, family, values and heritage.

Students

Jerome Barnes, vice president for student affairs, announced several changes in his office, which moved to new quarters in Hammon Student Center. Butch Gardner was promoted to Dean of Students; Kay Gowen was named Dean of Women and Foy O'Neal was named Dean of Men and International Student Advisor. Steve Beliech was named Assistant Dean of Students and Director of Student Activities.

IMPACT

With a capacity enrollment of 3,284 students, the opening days of a semester are critical to the focus of the school year. A student welcoming-orientation program, Student Impact, set a positive tone for the fall with 275 upperclassmen volunteers leading the events. By allowing the use of the third floor of the American Heritage building as housing for women, students were accommodated with only four rooms having three to a room.

STUDENTS VOLUNTEER

Following the challenge of seniors John Ogren and Louise Tucker, who addressed the annual pre-session conference at the opening of the fall semester, students have shown a positive response to "Reaching Out."

A collection of $4,000 was made for Mark Berryman, who was hospitalized in Africa while conducting a campaign during the summer.

Social clubs served in various ways. The Sub T-16 club held a softball marathon with proceeds used as a donation to the Sunshine School in Searcy. Ju Go Ju and Galaxy social clubs sponsored a volleyball tournament for Children's Hospital in Little Rock. The dietetics club collected food during World Food Day for His House. Students donated money, clothing and goods for victims of Hurricane Hugo in South Carolina. The Student Association sponsored a Halloween party for local children and athletic teams and other special interest groups planned parties and gifts during the holidays.

A volunteer group of about 300 students made up The Crew to assist Searcy residents in yard work, home repair, grocery shopping for the elderly and many other projects. The Crew was a segment of the campus ministry office.

STUDENT LECTURESHIP

During the spring, student leaders requested opportunity to present an all-student Bible lectureship. The three-day series proved so popular with both the student body and the community that a request was made to make the series an annual event. The lectureship included daily classes on campus as well as keynote addresses during the evening. About 20 students participated in the classes and in the theme addresses.

Facilities

NEW RESIDENCE HALL

A new residence hall for men was completed at the start of the fall semester, with 180 students occupying the three-story structure that completed a quadrangle with Harbin Hall. Both residence halls are located across from the Ganus Athletic Center. The $2.5 million structure is wired for computer use for each student.

AMERICAN HERITAGE CENTER

A large portion of the American Heritage Center was renovated, beginning in May. The 25 rooms on the fourth floor were decorated and furnished as guest rooms for alumni, parents, friends, and participants in conferences being held at the Center.

Although the additional 25 rooms on the third floor were prepared as guest rooms, above-capacity enrollment dictated these rooms be used as dormitory rooms for 45 women during the fall semester. The rooms will be used as guest accommodations beginning in the spring.

The Heritage lobby was completely renovated, with new carpeting, furniture and light fixtures. The Heritage Inn registration area continues to form the focal point of the lobby, and the addition of eight stars and a replica of the Harding University official seal in the forest green carpeting enhances the entrance. Airlocks on the front and side doors make the building more comfortable and temperature efficient.

Offices for the American Studies Institute were completed, as well as a large conference room, the Liberty room.

The 500-seat auditorium was refurbished with new carpet and curtains, improved lighting, recovered seats and acoustical tile on the walls.

COMPUTER OFFICES

With the installation of the new telecommunication system, office space in the computer center became extremely critical. With the removal of public relations offices, computer center personnel moved to the second floor of the administration building. The second floor offices also became headquarters for services of the telecommunications system.

LIBRARY

In May the 345,000+ volumes in Beaumont Memorial Library were moved to two sites, the refurbished Administration auditorium and a nearby warehouse, for the library to undergo a $1.6 million expansion and renovation that will be completed next fall.

ALUMNI FIELD:

A new electronic scoreboard was installed at Alumni Field to enhance the information available during games. Sponsored by Coca-Cola

Dedication of an all-new all-weather track at Alumni Field was held in November. Named the James Key track honoring the former Bison who funded the new facility, the eight-lane track will be used for the first time in the spring track season.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

A Northern Telecom telecommunications system was installed during 1989 to serve both the administrative staff and dormitory students. The new system is processing an average of more than 14,000 calls a day, excluding calls made from extension to extension on campus.

Every dormitory room has telephone service with several options for additional services such as long distance and voice mail. The new system allows direct dialing to individual offices.

Athletics

The four Arkansas Inter-collegiate Conference championships completed during the fall semester were won or shared by Harding in an unprecedented accomplishment by the athletes.

Both the women's and men's cross country teams captured the all-conference championships in early November at the race at Southern Arkansas University in Magnolia. In addition, Bisons captured first place in each event with Melinda Davis Cordry taking the women's crown and Jon Murray winning the men's division.

The Lady Bison volleyball squad shared the AIC title with Southern Arkansas University with an 11-1 conference record and 43-8 overall listing. The title was the first for the volleyball team which is only in its fourth year of conference competition.

In late November the Bisons added a fourth share of a title as the team beat UCA 16-11, clinching a bid to the NAIA Division I playoffs.

Last spring, the tennis team and the women's track team won AIC championships, and the baseball team finished second in conference action.

Individually, Te Howard was named the Scholar Athlete of the AIC; he, Olester Bernard and Jon Murray received All-American awards and Corey Camper received honorable mention All-American.

Howard and Murray joined Melinda Cordry, Margaret Eoff, Gregg Barden and Arturo Martinez as Scholar Athletes of the NAIA, formerly referred to as Academic All-America teams.

University Relations

GIVING:

During 1989, a total of $4,987,682 was contributed to Harding University. The gifts came from 4,930 donors. Of the donors, 858 individuals, corporations or foundations were making their first donations to the school.

The figure is the third highest dollar total in the school's history with 1988's and 1985's totals being slightly higher.

Among the donors, 80 percent were alumni and their gifts totaled $1,248 million. In the year more than 25 percent of all Harding graduates contributed.

Major increases in the number of donors were experienced in the $100 to $500 categories, with approximately 300 new donors giving at these levels. The list includes 3,485 donors who gave between $1 and $200.

SEARCY CAMPAIGN:

The university launched a $1 million Searcy-White County Fund Drive, the largest single fund raising project ever attempted by Harding in its home community.

More than 100 business and civic leaders met for a kickoff breakfast to launch the drive. President David Burks announced that $600,000 of the $1 million goal was pledged at the start of the drive. The remainder is expected to be raised by March, 1990.

During the fund, 125 volunteers solicited approximately 650 donors in the city and county. Lott Tucker, coordinator, said the five-year pledges represent one phase of Harding's Beyond Excellence campaign to raise $25 million in gifts for current capital and operational projects.

GRADUATE SCHOOL CAMPAIGN:

A $4 million campaign to strengthen the financial base of Harding Graduate School of Religion in Memphis was begun during 1989. "Meeting the Challenge of Ministry" is the theme of the campaign.

Dean Philip Slate termed the effort "the most significant financial campaign ever undertaken by the Graduate School.

The five-year drive will seek to raise funds for scholarships, library acquisitions, expansion of the library, renovation of existing facilities and other operational needs.

The campaign received nearly $200,000 in initial pledges, including $50,000 from the Graduate School faculty and staff.

JONES FOUNDATION GIFT:

The Harvey and Bernice Jones Foundation of Springdale, Ark., contributed $100,000 to the School of Nursing. The gift will be used to purchase new equipment in the Learning Resource Center in the purchase of computer hardware and software, patient simulators and audiovisual materials.

The LRC encompasses all learning materials pertaining to the curriculum. Included are three laboratories for audiovisuals, skills and computer learning needs. Modernization of the lab involves obtaining microcomputers and other equipment for the students.

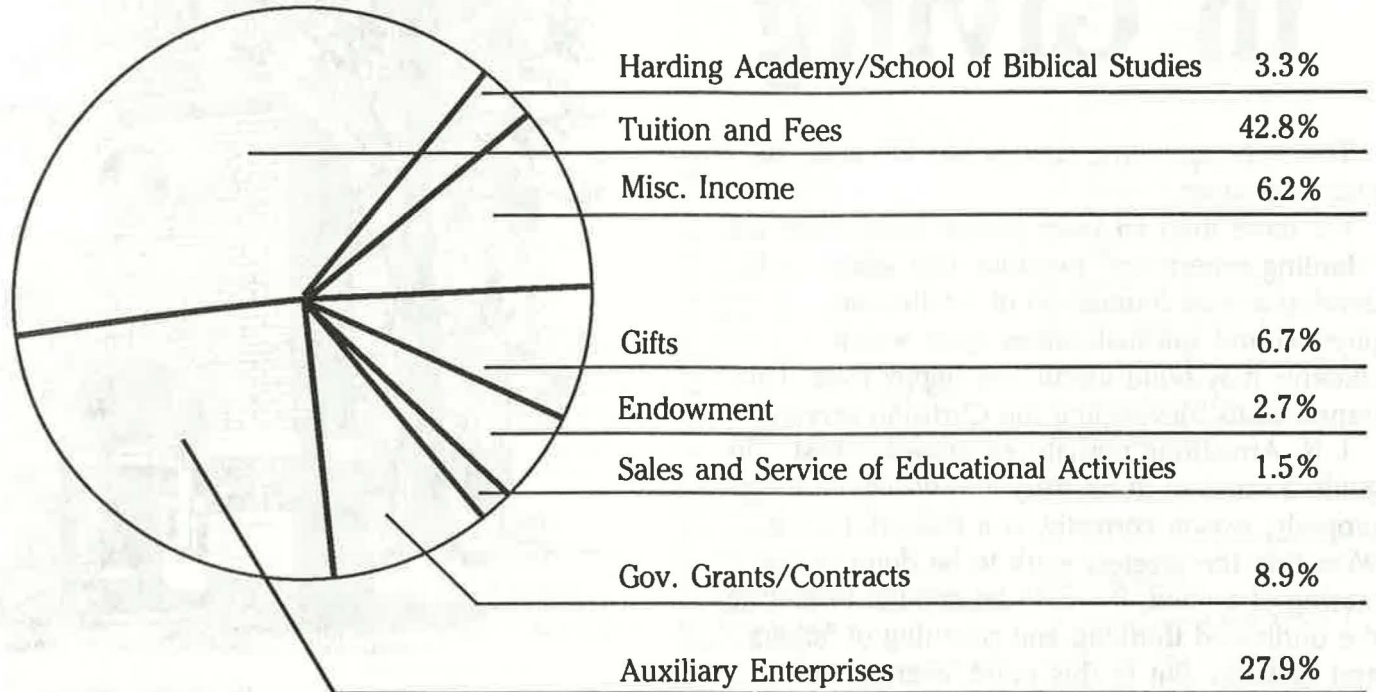

The center is used extensively by students and faculty to prepare for clinical experiences.

The Year in Giving

The faces sometime change but the goals remain the same.

For more than 65 years people have made the "Harding experience" possible. Our goals are to develop a solid foundation of intellectual, physical and spiritual values upon which students may build useful and happy lives. This translates to "developing the Christian servant."

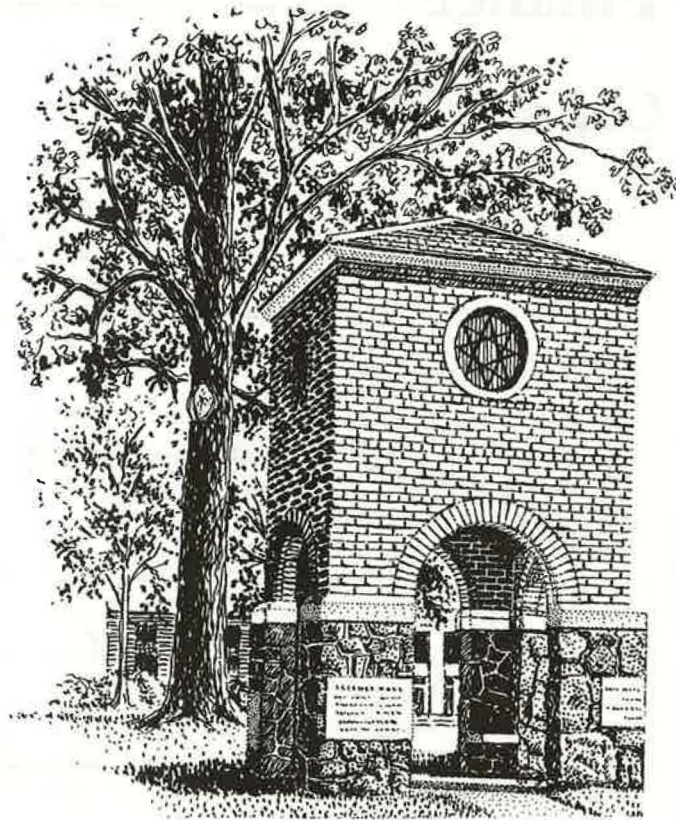

J. N. Armstrong perhaps expressed it best: "To guide a mind to think truly and wisely, to judge properly, reason correctly, is a masterful work. Were this the greatest work to be done in the rearing of a child, it would be enough to engage the undivided thinking and planning of fathers and mothers. But in this mind, even in the lowest type of man, there is something still more beautiful and wonderful. By some it is called conscience and by others the moral sense."

The Harding experience extends further than anything that might be devised, but through it we are sharing the happiness and benefits that Harding has directly and indirectly brought to our lives.

Contributions to the Annual Fund can make a difference for thousands of Harding students. By investing in the Annual Fund, we support the heart and soul of Harding University — nearly 3,300 young men and women who comprise Harding's living endowment.

Unrestricted gifts to the Annual Fund, the lifeblood of the University, enhance the quality of campus life and add a measure of academic and Christian excellence that tuition dollars alone cannot provide.

The Century Club is designed to reflect the support of those dedicated friends who contribute $100 or more during a calendar year and to encourage others to join with them and be recognized as members. The Century Club incorporates a multitude of individuals, caring concerned Christians who through their support tell the story of Harding.

Each member will receive a handsome walnut plaque with an engraved nameplate and a colored year bar representative of their continual unrestricted gifts. The levels of support are Patron ($100), bronze; University ($250), silver; Heritage ($500), maroon and Presidential ($1,000), black.

"I encourage all of our friends to choose an appropriate Century Club level. Whatever the amount of contribution, the gift is appreciated and needed, and the generosity of our friends will have an impact on the students at Harding University." Dr. David B. Burks, president, said, "Harding is able to offer a rare education, not only for this world but for an eternity. All of our friends share in this ministry."

Join us as we salute Harding University donors for 1989 in this supplement. Donors listed with an asterisk by their names were members of the Century Club during 1989 and gave more than $100 to the University.
