MODERN SARAH

They stood in the warmth of their faith and their love
And gazed at the mountain trail winding above.
He asked her there with a tender smile,
"Will you go with me dear, for the next half-mile?"

She looked in his eyes as they pled for her love,
She looked at the path as it wound on above,
She said, as she gazed past the spring to the wood,
"I'll go with you, dear, to the end of the road."

They stood in the woods in the fall of the year,
And the rustling of leaves was sweet to the ear.
He shifted the weight from an increasing load
And asked her again, as they looked down the road --

"Will you go with me, dear, to the wind-swept hill?"
She looked down the valley, her heart stood still,
With a catch in her voice at the threat of the vale,
"I'll go with you dear, to the end of the trail."

When they stopped at the crest of the hill to rest,
The sun's last glow strained the darkening west.
And deep was their valley and dark was their vale
Through which they had come in their lengthening trail.

How far was that spring and how far was that fall
And how far was their youth since its ringing call?
He looked at her hair with its white streaks of snow
Painted on there in the valley below --

And he could not find words for his bursting heart --
But he knew that she knew -- had known from the start --
So, only his eyes asked the question again.
She answered so softly ... "to the end of the lane."

We don't like to admit that Christian men and women can be tempted. But that's who Paul is writing to in the above passage. "Resist the Devil and he will flee from you." (James 4:7) But we can't resist him if we don't realize he's there.

Dr. David Reuben in a Woman's Day article, "What Tempts a Man to Be Unfaithful", April 1972 states that "the wife who refuses to give her husband reasonable sexual satisfaction is literally asking him to go elsewhere...The woman who does her best to meet his sexual needs goes a long way toward making him immune to the allure of other women."

Although it's not always true, a general rule is that "most men need sex more often than women." (Charlie Shedd, Letters to Karen, p. 103) (Notice the word is "need", not merely "want.") "You are a prudent wife," says Dr. Shedd, "when you look on sex, in part, as your opportunity to be a blessing to your husband. The tender women train themselves to receive a large measure of contentment just from contenting their men." (Shedd, p. 103) Dr. Reuben puts it more succinctly: "Satisfying a man sexually is ten per cent ability and ninety per cent accessibility."

Starving him sexually exposes him to the "obvious temptation of the devil." And be assured the devil provides
