Dining Hall Made In Aquatorium

BY MAC TIMMERMAN

Boats, trucks, and bare feet were the vogue Thursday morning for the freshman class who found the dining hall flooded to an extent that made it necessary for help in draining the flood, so that the girls could still get to the table with the rising tide. Those coming to assist were Guy Goodley, Bill Free, Tom Trammell, Robert Chandler, and Lee Fors.

The oldest industries of the morning cleaning and srubbing after the flood had been drained and after the morning had passed.

The story of the flood is that it had been started during the night when the water had backed into the dining hall, making the hall look like a lake.

LETS TRY TO IMPROVE OUR LIBRARY

By VIRGIL BENTLEY

Probably one of the greatest assets that a college can have is a good, well-equipped library. For if students have access to this kind of library and use it, their possible knowledge is unlimited and unlimited. A library so matter how well equipped however, if it of no benefit at all, unless it is properly used.

The thing that will help most in keeping our library furnished with timely books and litera- ture is encouragement. An interest in the things that we have in the library now. Each year fresh- men come in who are probably not accustomed to libraries and who probably have never read about the things that we recognize as the valuable kinds of infor- mation found there. One can find most of the things that are in the magazines, articles of eloquence, and guides to nearly every type of infor- mation desired.

Unfortunately we have failed to see all of the advantages that we have here. Chances are, the most of our time that is spent in the library is on short articles that take only a few minutes to read, and many of our valuable books lie on the shelf the year unattended, that certain information that we are wanting to find.

Let's recognize this opportunity! The best possible way to improve our library is to use it, and if we do this, we will get the results that we want put into it. By doing this we can add much to our learn- ing, and at the same time improve our library by showing the librarian that we are using it to its advantage. Let's all help in this improvement of the library.

OCCASION FOR FRESHMEN

By VIRGIL BENTLEY

Many freshmen have as opportunity to try their hand at writing articles for their college newspaper each week in the freshman edi- tion of the school paper, The Wichitan. Each week articles can fold some of the fundamental principles of newspaper writing. Also this can help the student think of the type of work become interested in it.

There are two positions that are the practical experience that is derived from this work, it causes freshmen to comprehend and recognize the different parts of the paper, and it leads to the thought of what to write about. This will help the student to write better articles. There is no absolute limit to the actual number of good articles that can be written in the freshman edition of the school paper, and if students would take advantage of this opportunity, they will find that it may be of great benefit to them.

This opportunity, like many others, can be a stepping stone for things that we want if we just take advantage of it. Let it's constantly look for those opportunities as they and take advantage of them.
SANFORD

Dinner By Dr. Benson Murray Honored With

As an excerpt from the text, the article mentions the naming of Miss Elsie Mae Hopper, from the college home economics, and Mary Jane Scott who will read sophomores' choices for supplementary literature for their children. It also highlights the role of Mr. J. L. Dykes, Dean, and Mrs. J. L. Dykes, both from 1940 Harding. In the context of the article, the focus is on the various activities taking place at Harding University, including the vision of Miss Hopper and the naming of Mary Jane Scott to enhance educational offerings.

The recording equipment ordered for college work includes a public address system, an amplifier, and a microphone. These are essential tools for the college's ongoing efforts to improve the educational environment.

In the context of entertainment, the college choir is mentioned, including the members and their roles in various performances. The inclusion of specific dates, such as April 11 and April 19, provides a timeline for the events taking place at the college.

The list of products and services offered by various stores within the university campus, such as Better Foods, Chip's, and Friends, highlights the range of options available to students and faculty. The mention of security services, security gates, and security boxes further underscores the commitment to safety and security on campus.

In conclusion, the text provides a comprehensive overview of the various activities and services offered by Harding University, with a focus on educational enhancements and entertainment. The article is a testament to the college's dedication to providing a rich and diverse environment for its students.
