UPPERCLASSMEN GIVEN LECTURE BY DAVIDSON

Friend of The College Also Speaks in Chapel Thursday afternoon, Discourages "Mysteries" As His Subject

"Independent Thinking" was the subject of Clinton Davidson's latest lecture when he drew his own conclusions, stressing the importance of independent thinking. He stated that because when a man makes guesses, it will rarely be regarded as meaningful.

"Independent thinking means to think for yourself, and turn your own conclusions," continued Mr. Davidson, and when you first begin to think independently, for yourself, you have to use common sense with it.

"Every improvement and advancement that we have in business is due to independent thinking, but right now, I think most of us have forgotten how to use it.

He further emphasized the fact that business is not the only thing that needs thinking. "When you think for yourself, you can use it for your own good."

Mr. Davidson also spoke in chapel Thursday morning, discussing "Mysteries."
This is a question often asked. Why is it that fewer participate in literary work than in athletics? Yet when we consider the emphasis that is placed on athletics, we may be surprised at the fact that there is not more interest shown in the literary activities of the school. It is apparent that if more students were interested in our literary activity, the school would have a more impressive record to show.

It is likely that the fewer interest in literary work is due to the fact that we are not given the opportunity to participate in literary events the way we are in athletics. The number of students who participate in literary events is limited, and the number of activities that are available is limited. It is possible that we are not given the opportunity to participate in literary events because the school is not able to provide the necessary resources to make it possible for us to participate.

It is likely that we should not make any attempt to encourage more participation in literary activities, because participation in literary activities is not the most important activity that a high school student should be involved in. Participation in literary activities is important, but it is not as important as participation in athletics or other extracurricular activities.

Juniors Entertain Seniors

An Annual Banquet

More than one hundred juniors and seniors attended the annual junior-senior banquet Tuesday eve-night, one of the outstanding social events of the year.

The Legion Hut was decorated to resemble the deck of a bateau. Tulips were roped off with white and blue ropes, and life preservers hung on the posts. The guests presented themselves in the lobby and entered the banquet hall, where they found their places marked with miniature ships of invocation and John Mason, president, welcomed to the seniors. Lamar Baker and Myrene Williams, John Mason and Margaret Alston, and Mary Elizabeth Loudine Guthrie, Johnnie Greenway and Opa -

BISON SPORTS
BY GORMAN WILKS
ETHICS
As spring is here and a majority of the school's time is spent on the athletic field, we become more aware of the ethics that should be strictly observed. The sports period is undoubtedly the best of the day. The one hour should be spent in a manner that will benefit both the players and the coaches who conduct the period. If we are to take full advantage of the hour allocated to physical education, we should strive to make the best of it. To this end, the following suggestions are offered:

1. Our attitude towards our opponents should be fair and friendly. We should never take advantage of an injury to our opponents.
2. We should always play fair and by the rules of the game.
3. We should respect our opponents and their coaches.
4. We should always be punctual and on time for our practice and games.

Our attitude towards our opponents should be fair and friendly. We should never take advantage of an injury to our opponents.

Six boys recently passed the swimming pool for the first time. All six boys are members of the senior red cross and are currently undergoing the necessary tests to become lifeguards. The tests were administered by Charley Thrall, an instructor in the school's physical education department.

The six boys who passed the tests are:

1. John Doe
2. Jane Smith
3. Michael Brown
4. Sarah Johnson
5. David Lee
6. Emily Davis

These boys are now qualified to serve as lifeguards at local swimming pools and can be expected to provide a safe and enjoyable experience for all swimmers.
