CAMPUS PLAYERS STAGE A DOUBLE FEATURE FRIDAY

"Below Par" And "Cabbages"
Are Presented By Dramatic Department Friday Evening.

In accordance with the modern trend, a double feature program of two one act plays was offered to Harding students Friday night for the price of a single admission.

"Below Par," the play which was taken to this year's state Speech Festival at Arkadelphia, was number one on the program.

The story of this production centered around actions of Frankie, an inmate of an insane asylum who thought he was a famous surgeon, as played by Foy O'Neal. Suspense was provided by his attempts to operate upon a young interne, Dr. Weldon, who was played by Houstin Itin.

Dr. Mathews, played by L. D. Frashier, proved to be the typical absent minded scientist, and his lack of concentration aggravated his wife, Virginia O'Neal, no end.

Fayetta Coleman as Holly, the niece, and Louis Green as the Bishop added comic touches to the play in their attempts to assist Frankie in his operation.

"Cabbages" the well-known number which won three out of a possible four firsts in the state play tournament of 1938, was again presented with all the original cast except one.

The story centered about a family of German farmers who had struck oil on their farm. Mrs. Grossmeir, Virginia O'Neal, wanted the family to act like somebody, but her husband, August, played by Jim Thompson, wanted to remain just a common old farmer.

Mary Jane Scott played the part of Matilda, the daughter who had thrown off all her accent and had become a truly modern girl.

The reading of the genealogy of the Grossmeir family by Mr. Markle, played by Jack Wood Sears, did not prove to be all Mrs. Grossmeir expected.

Consequently Bill Stokes, who played the part of a newspaper reporter, Mr. Jenks, Lena Fisher, who is Eva Thompson in real life, and the maid, Geneva Osborn, all have to be bribed in order that the family tree may be kept a secret.

Primary Department Presents Program Monday Evening

Under the direction of Mrs. L. C. Sears and Mrs. Florence Cathcart the primary training school presented "Rhythm and Drama," Monday night.

"The Password," a one act play directed by Mrs. Sears, was given. The scene was in Professor Peters' study at almost nine o'clock on a school morning.

Assisting in the play were Marilyn Thornton, Bonnie Sue Chandler, Harding Paine, and Kern Sears. Characters, other than those assisting, were Betty Snow, Maryella Neal, Billy H. Sherrill, James Hickman, Joan Hawk, Billy Summitt, Billy Rand Sanford, Joann Woodson, Peggy Sue Angel, Geraldine Norris, Billy Earl Williams, Donald Brown, Jerry Erwin, Junior Hall, Mike Hartje, Beverly Mitchell, Charlotte Neal, and Porter Rodgers.

The rhythm band, directed by Mrs. Cathcart, and pianist Constance Ford, played "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," "Listen To The Bells," "Through the Americas," "Onward Christian Soldiers," and Faust's "Waltz."

Photography Is Coming To The Front In Journalism

By J. P. THORNTON

A picture is worth a thousand words, as Hearst taught his newsmen, and today we have some newspapers and news magazines almost entirely made up of pictures.

Most newspapers now consider picture coverage necessary, and many are using wirephoto and telephoto. Pictures are even sent from the European scene by wireless. Color is coming into use.

But a century ago films and plates were very crude and were not manufactured in wholesale quantities, but in the laboratory for experimental purposes. There were no cameras available for people in general to use; it was wholly an experimental and commercial art until more progress was made the manufacture of films, cameras, and mastery of better techniques.

With the recent perfection of films and cameras it is possible to photograph numerous kinds of objects and under the most adverse lighting conditions. Moving object as well as still one can be recorded with a camera on sensitive film. Pictures of bullets being shot from the muzzle of a gun have successfully been photographed as well as other accomplishments equally amazing.

Photography in colors was suggested in 1859 by Ducis du Haaron, a Frenchman. With other experimenters, he shared the idea that if the eye can see only three colors and forms other colors of the spectrum by admixture, the camera lens must likewise take in these three colors. If these could be photographed one at a time, on three separate plates, and the images superimposed upon each other in printing, he believed he could get a reproduction of the colors of nature.

This is now accomplished by the use of specially sensitized plate, or films and color filters. In 1929 the first all-color talking moving pictures in technicolor.

Color films and plates are manufactured and are available for practically all sizes and makes of cameras and the amateur can successfully take color pictures with the proper use of his camera and a necessary filter.

Newspaper technique has kept pace with photography, and last year "The Chicago Tribune" published the first color photo to be printed simultaneously with the news story, a half-page shot of the costly Chicago grain elevator fire.

Alstone Tabor Is Senior Speaker Tuesday

"Gideon's Victory" was the title of Alstone Tabor's talk when he spoke in chapel Tuesday morning.

Bill Stokes Speaks In Chapel Saturday

Bill Stokes, senior from Searcy, spoke in chapel Saturday morning, discussing "Converting Obstacles Into Assets."

SUMMER TERMS WILL COMMENCE JUNE 3, JULY 8

Regular Faculty Will Remain
For Summer Sessions;
Courses Offered For Teaching Certificates.

First term of summer school opens June 3. The work of the summer quarter is organized upon the basis of two terms. Courses are arranged so that students may enter for the second term if necessary without having attended the first term. The second term opens July 8.

Summer sessions meets the needs of two classes of students. In-service teachers who may need additional work to renew certificates, and prospective teachers who are completing the requirements for certificates will find those courses in the summer quarter that will meet their needs.

The second class includes those teachers or other students who are pursuing work toward their degrees. Many students complete the four-year college course in three years and three summers and save the cost of an entire year.

The faculty consists of the regular teachers and heads of departments, and the courses given are held on the same standards as courses offered during the winter quarters. Classes are for the most part arranged for the mornings in order to leave the afternoons as free as possible for intensive study and for recreation.

Since the summer term is two weeks shorter than the winter, the board and room is cheaper. One can attend at much less expense in the summer than the winter.

Courses are being offered in Bible, physical education, mathematics, music, physical sciences, social sciences, biological sciences, English, French, and high school courses. Additional courses may be offered if there is sufficient interest.

At last a dream is realized. The shining Harding College sign over the main gateway makes the entrance a more attractive place than ever. Many have dreamed of such a sign, but it took the Sub-T's, '40, to carry it out. Thanks, Sub-T's. What a beautiful pictures the gateway will make for next year's annual.

I have a habit of looking forward to things, but I find myself even now anticipating an eventful senior year. True, there is no mortgage to burn next year, but something just as exciting is sure to happen.

Listening to President Roosevelt's speech to both houses of congress, I felt the force behind each word spoken, and as conditions are, the ease with which the nation could be swayed toward becoming involved in war. With such elaborate preparations for war, it will be much more difficult to stay out of the conflict. If nations could only behave!

The roses bloomed at last. Perhaps their delay made them more beautiful, or made us appreciate their beauty more. From now until fall one bloom will replace another. Take a second look, too, at the climbing bush by the administration building. They are of such a delicate pink, it seems that they might crumble if touched.

Work on the new tennis court can be observed day by day from various classroom windows. It has been interesting watching it take shape—I wonder who will play the first game on it.

Soon alumni will be returning for that all important event, graduation. Two visits a year helps keep old students acquainted with the new student body.

Homecoming at Thanksgiving and at graduation are both ideal times.

I was glad to read the editorial last week on the importance of athletics activities. There should, of course, be a balance between athletic and literary activities.

I wonder when people around here mean for us to study, or do they mean for us to? If there isn't some form of entertainment every night until the last, I've miscounted my days. There is not even a let-up on test week. I suppose we can sleep when we get home.

One more Bison and Buck will turn his duties to some one else. Let me say now, lest I forget in the rush of the last week, he has done an excellent job and we of the Bison staff hate to see him leave.

Backstage

BY EARL STOVER

With the last few weeks of school crowded full of activities, and everyone finishing up the year's work, Harding is certainly a busy place. There is, at best, little enough spare time in which to attend the many activities, and the bustle of finishing work leaves even less. Even under these conditions, however, the recitals, concerts, plays and other activities are being well performed and well attended.

It is hardly possible, with so much taking place, to mention all the activities in this brief space, much less reveal all of them. I can only say that most of the work is, despite the rush, up to the usual Harding standard.

The club projects are steadily adding more to the beauty of the campus. Latest addition of course is the Sub T arch at the entrance to the driveway. Neat and attractive in its simplicity, it fills a long-felt need.

Eventually our campus will be equipped with all the little conveniences and attractive features that can so easily transform a mediocre campus into an outstanding one. Possibilities still open in this line include new swings, drinking fountains, flower beds, more trees, and a number of others.

Harding continues to gain recognition in its fine arts work. Most recent is the formation of the Harding Chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatics society.

WARS OF YESTERDAY AND TODAY

As German forces advance toward Paris in the great European crisis, we can't help but recall how differently the United States considers this now and in the last war. Today we hear up-to-the-minute reports and communique telling us some truth of the matter, while in 1917 news came days later with a touch of propaganda added to each message. Thus, the United States was drawn into the conflict with somewhat warped viewpoints.

Today we are a different nation. Today we are not so naive as to be caught up by the surging torrent of biased reports and lifted over into the trenches, but we sit quietly and silently by our radios weighing each report carefully. Today we are a THINKING NATION in search of peace, and unless our very homes are in danger, we are determined to remain at peace.

Thank God for such a country and a president that is not power hungry and does not resort to such slaughter to acquire it!

STUDENT ACCOMPLISHMENT

The materials are all here for Harding to go ahead to its rightful destiny of a steadily rising standard. It is up to all of us, not to the faculty. The lash of authority alone will not get things done. The driving force in any institution has always been supplied by the spirit of cooperation.

Most of us seem to think that the world's advancement has been due to men and women of heroic mettle, or men and women who have given or withstood a little more than the average of their co-workers. It never occurs to us that we have latent within our own souls the same gallant stuff. Emerson said: "A hero is no braver than the ordinary man, but he is brave five minutes longer."

One sometimes wonders if the good grades made by some students are due to brilliance or to extra "staying power"—the will to study an extra hour.

It is recalled that in various respects the Master made the giving of that extra measure of oneself a final requirement. One instance related in the ninth chapter of Luke, has this conclusion—"and Jesus said unto him, no man having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

I have a habit of looking forward to things, but I find myself even now anticipating an eventful senior year. True, there is no mortgage to burn next year, but something just as exciting is sure to happen.

Listening to President Roosevelt's speech to both houses of congress, I felt the force behind each word spoken, and as conditions are, the ease with which the nation could be swayed toward becoming involved in war. With such elaborate preparations for war, it will be much more difficult to stay out of the conflict. If nations could only behave!

The roses bloomed at last. Perhaps their delay made them more beautiful, or made us appreciate their beauty more. From now until fall one bloom will replace another. Take a second look, too, at the climbing bush by the administration building. They are of such a delicate pink, it seems that they might crumble if touched.

Work on the new tennis court can be observed day by day from various classroom windows. It has been interesting watching it take shape—I wonder who will play the first game on it.

Soon alumni will be returning for that all important event, graduation. Two visits a year helps keep old students acquainted with the new student body.

Homecoming at Thanksgiving and at graduation are both ideal times.

I was glad to read the editorial last week on the importance of athletics activities. There should, of course, be a balance between athletic and literary activities.

I wonder when people around here mean for us to study, or do they mean for us to? If there isn't some form of entertainment every night until the last, I've miscounted my days. There is not even a let-up on test week. I suppose we can sleep when we get home.

One more Bison and Buck will turn his duties to some one else. Let me say now, lest I forget in the rush of the last week, he has done an excellent job and we of the Bison staff hate to see him leave.

Backstage

BY EARL STOVER

With the last few weeks of school crowded full of activities, and everyone finishing up the year's work, Harding is certainly a busy place. There is, at best, little enough spare time in which to attend the many activities, and the bustle of finishing work leaves even less. Even under these conditions, however, the recitals, concerts, plays and other activities are being well performed and well attended.

It is hardly possible, with so much taking place, to mention all the activities in this brief space, much less reveal all of them. I can only say that most of the work is, despite the rush, up to the usual Harding standard.

The club projects are steadily adding more to the beauty of the campus. Latest addition of course is the Sub T arch at the entrance to the driveway. Neat and attractive in its simplicity, it fills a long-felt need.

Eventually our campus will be equipped with all the little conveniences and attractive features that can so easily transform a mediocre campus into an outstanding one. Possibilities still open in this line include new swings, drinking fountains, flower beds, more trees, and a number of others.

Harding continues to gain recognition in its fine arts work. Most recent is the formation of the Harding Chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatics society.

Members of the Mu Eta Adelpian Club honored Miss Helen Hughes, bride-elect, with a miscellaneous shower last Monday evening at 8:30. A table loaded with gifts and a chair placed for the honoree was in the center of the room. After guests and honoree had arrived, Miss Wanda Hartsell sang "Forever", Jimmie Earl Erwin sang "Playmates," and Mrs. J. N. Armstrong read "Home."

Girls Entertained After Concert

After the girls sang in concert Thursday night they were entertained by the men's glee club in the latter's reception room.

Emerson Flannery, with the help of Claude Guthrie, acted as master of ceremonies in conducting a game called "Wheel of Fortune."

When the wheel was spun to a certain point, it revealed who was to appear on the program. Some of the main features of this were: Mrs. Florence M. Cathcart, Mrs. Florence Fletcher Jewell, and Mr. Guthrie in a trio; Lola Harp and Wailana Floyd as the corn-fed duet; Jewell Blackburn in solo; and a piano sextet by Mrs. Cathcart, Miss Jewell, Mr. Guthrie, Maxine Paxson, Mary Agnes Evans, and Wanda Hartsell.

A box of soda was given to the corn-fed girls who were at their best in "Disappointed in Love."

Ice cream and cookies were served to the group, who, after singing to each other, joined to sing the Alma Mater.

BISON SPORTS

By EXCELL BERRYHILL

What I Think Of Sportsmanship

Good sportsmanship should be shown by every athlete whether it be on the field or in the dressing room. The men who shows good sportsmanship in all his dealings with fellow players and opponents will be the person who will get to the top and stay up there, whereas the person who shows very little consideration for the other players may get to the top quickly, but he will come down as quick as he went up.

A player who is forever grumbling will upset his teammates, make all of those around him feel like taking a punch at him. The crowd is always able to pick the person out who is always causing the trouble, and they will not have very much respect for that person even though he may be the best player on the field. They know a good sportsman when they see him, and if he has some hard luck they will be quicker to cheer him on as if he had done the right thing.

All in all what does a person get out of always grumbling at the way the referee made a call, or the way some of the other players are playing? I don't care how good a player is he will always have his off day, so be considerate of the other fellow because this may be his off day. You may think that you are doing well, but you forget the bad plays you make and in turn you notice all the bad plays by the other fellow. What do think those on the sideline will think when you are grumbling at the other person, and they know that he is doing a better job than you are?

There is nothing that will take the place of good sportsmanship, and the other players will always show their appreciation for the consideration you have shown them. They will know that you are their friend, and they will stand behind you. Let's see if we can show more respect for the other fellow from now on. It won't hurt you and will do you a lot of good.

New Croquet Court Constructed

Several of the boys got together and leveled one of the croquet courts off this past week, and they have it in fairly good condition now, although they are not done with it. They intent to cover the court with sand and place boards around it so as to keep the rains from washing the court out in gulches.

Leveling of this court is something that has been needed for a long time, so be careful and not play on it until those who started it have time to finish what they started out to do.

The American Game Of Softball

For the past three weeks teams have been battling it out on the field trying to get to the top, and also trying to stay there. The Vols have shown their power at the bat, and in their fielding they have shown some good playing that surpassed plays made by their opponents. They have lost only one game, and then they had two of their best players out of the lineup.

The Chicks are in second place, and they are the only team who have defeated the Vols. The Chicks have played some good ball at times and at other times they seem to go to pieces. The Travelers are bringing up the rear, although they are apt to upset the other team when they are least expecting it.

This week will see the end of the spring softball. At the end there will be an all-star team selected to play the Alumni on May 29. Some will have to work hard if they expect to make the team, while others have just about made a berth on the team already.

Chubb Leading Softball Batters With .476 Average

Batting averages for the current softball season is far below the average of any past softball season. Floyd Chubb holds the home run title with four.

Chubb also holds the batting lead with 10 for 21. Following close on his heels is Coleman with 6 for 13.

Fielding for all three teams has been far below par.

Those batting above .300 are listed below.

MIXED CHORUS SINGS AT NEWPORT SUNDAY

Last Sunday afternoon at Newport finished a series of trips made by the mixed group, under the direction of Lenard Kirk.

By making these trips over the state, the group endeavored to create more interest in congregational singing, as well as singing for the beauty of the song and for their own pleasure.

"Consider the Lilies," "The Spacious Firmament on High," "O Zion, Haste," "The Spacious Firmament on High," "Christ We Do All Adore Thee," and "O Lord, Our Lord," were some of the hymns used
