Some people complain of having too much suga in their blood, but Dr. Cyril E. Abbott, professor of Biology, has the opposite complaint. He H. D. Abbott is giving various kinds of sugar to flies, observing the results. Some kinds of sugar have the fly, as well as being more beneficial to the fly.

The time was on experiment is inflexible. It must be done exactly as described. Aside from his experimental lab work with various plants, herbs and chemicals, Professor Abbott carries on an active work through the year.

He works on projects which he calls his hobbies, such as writing popular articles for science magazines. Among these, he contributes regularly to Nature Magazine.

The most outstanding work contem- plated, however, is a biological monograph which may be ready for publica- tion in the spring or sum- mer of this year. The book, the text used in beginners’ Biology courses, was now, written by Dr. Abbott.

Dr. Abbott also spends time on poetry, writing, and journalism.

Scrap Shot Contest

Extended By Petit Jean Staff

The deadline on its report contest until February 15, the Petit Jean staff is requesting a large number of entries, according to Mrs. Enid Coleman, editor. Each contestant must receive a copy of an undated before submitting a contest. This is the only requirement made by the yearbook staff. The snapshots should be taken in the town. Those who want to enter should mail their entries to the Petit Jean staff, attention: Lee E. Pfeiffer, Student Union, Harding University, to be included in the upper 401 issues of the yearbook.

Some snapshots were turned in, showing the beauty of the town and its surroundings.

Paine Elected President

Of Flagala Club

Harding Public, sophomore from Arkansas, was elected pres- ident of the Flagala State Club, Friday afternoon, in the student union. Students from Florida, Georgia, Alabama, and Louisiana compose the group.

Two Alabama students were elected to the standing office, Charles Geer, vice president, and Margaret Snow, junior from Claiborne, Alaba- ma, was elected on the second ballot.

Besides shooting, the members will compete in other winter activities, and for their yearbook page.

Benson\n
Advocates Method

Of Living Within Income

By Virgil Bentley

"One can live anywhere." President George B. Benson be- lieved that Mrs. Benson as hearty, for he was living in such a manner that he was eating in whatever state he was, he could eat.

Charles was an outstanding schol- aress and who is in charge of the Di- gital Limbs, where he graduated just last year. Letting in football and baseball, sort of a member of the baseball team.

He is working out a triple major in biology, chemistry, and sociology, which will help him in his work in Harding College should take advantage of all his opportunities.

In a recent class meeting several students in the college auditorium, entitled, "Lessons from the life of Paul, a man who was far from being a perfect human, but he was a man who knew the benefits of one's living within income.

"We would all be glad," said the speaker, "to have you all know what we mean and to come to Harding and live within the bounds of any state, and have a chance to be in the heart of the撕bursements at the age of 15-

An example was then given of the apostle Paul, proving that he had financial limitations as well as we Philemonians, 3:19 is quoted, showing that Paul's secret of living within the limits of one's income and living in one's own state, was to be content.

Benson states that he was not because the money was so small in comparison with what he was living on, but because he had already learned to do what he was doing.

In the case of many of the students, the speaker declared, "What determines whether or not the student can live within the limits of his income and ability to contain himself so that he can be content in whatever state he is in, when he is in whatever state he is?"

Benson advocates the method of living within income, for it is the only way to be content."
How are you old boy? I suppose you are wanting to know the outside of my work. I'm sorry to say we can't give you much. We, don't get, his work here. We try hard, but even if his commissioned book has added the he can do some work with his picture made it was a greater joy than getting the whole student body to respond. This year when I thought we'd be catch more the book was still more disillusioned than ever. Such life is-
Hair Ribbons Are All
The Rage With The Girls
By Juanita Selmers

Whether they be light or dark, striped or checkered, flowered or plain, they all go together to make the great main and colored array of hair-ribbons and bows in the ex-sists on the campus. At an assembly in the college auditorium recently, a fashion editor sat in her seat and without turning her head, counted the hair bows that were visible. The number rose to twenty-five and then said she, "I sold.

From then on we see that it is absolutely the style "to stick a bow in your hair"! Well, apparently it is. Bows may be found at almost any All in all, the hair bows are popular, or they would not be worn so consistently and so continually by the young ladies of the campus. It may be said also that they lend charm and are very becoming to the smiling and sociable young ladies who daintily and very carefully slip a brightly colored and perfectly little bow into her hair just before she goes out.

Academy News
By Eugenia Stover

Planes were discussed for attending the Beta Club's annual state convention at the Martin Hotel in Little Rock. April 25-26. in the Beta Club meeting Thursday night.

As the semester ends February 21, the members will be here February 20 in order to commence their duties as principal of the academy.

The academy is glad to have as tutors of the teachers, Mr. Hanks and Mr. Kelsoe, back again after their short illness.

The Willoody chapel program was given by the junior class. The program consisted of a poem recited by Eugenia Stover, also singing by Marie Landrum and Robert Heflin, accompanied by Mrs. Jewell, directed by Joseph Cotton. Then you thought perhaps she would fall in love with one of the reporters, probably Oliver, especially after taking a swim with him about two in the morning. Though it resolved in nothing more than two kisses, that kiss was like a match in powder keg. (The part of Mr. Cother was played by Vass Heflin, who was one of the best developed characters in the entire play.)

The next morning things were happening at state. Tracy realized the folly of her previous adventure. She had been drunk at the time and did not consider how far it had gone, but she feared the worst. She broke with her fiancé, rejected the proposal of the reporter, opened the door to the parlor and tried to tell the guests that the wedding was off. When words failed her Dea Heflin prompted her, she rejected his views, hastily realizing what she had said until she had told them. She and Vass were going to be married. The curtain came as the march was being played.

Backstage

The play seemed to have been written for Tracy. The part of Tracy was being played by the reporter, opened the door to the parlor and tried to tell the guests that the wedding was off. When words failed her Dea Heflin prompted her, she rejected his views, hastily realizing what she had said until she had told them. She and Vass were going to be married. The curtain came as the march was being played.

Taffy Pull Is Given By
"M" Clubbers

An old-fashioned taffy pull was engaged in by the "M" Club and their dates during Saturday evening Games, directed by Wayne Hendry-way and Cary Porter, were first played in the boys' reading room.

Then the group retired to the high school home economics laboratory, where the boys and girls enjoyed a delicious taffy pull and refurnished themselves with cookies and punch.

The members and their dates were Raylene Treadwell and Artho Parker, LaVonne Thornton and Edith Butler, Mary Maples, Cary Porter, Annette Trapp and Waverick Hendry, and Mary Allen, Ellis and Bob Cronix, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Boyd, Margaret Lanier and Arthur Moody, Mary Bluomsbadie and Harold Keifer.

Robert Walden and Larry Slesser, Darli Heady and Kern Beas, Ruby Patterson and Jane Wilson, Martha Bitter and E. G. Wimres, Ann French and Maurice Heflin, Erle Merritt, Olive Fogg, Frances Williamson, and Wendell Ellis, and Mary Elliott sponsored the group.

Freshmen Girls Strong Contenders For Crown

Launching 13 points into the basket, Veda McCormick, freshman forward, led her team to a victory over the sophomores, 25-13. Betty Jo Roads of the same team was runner-up for high point honors with 8 points to her credit.

Starting off fast, the freshmen forwarded jumped to a good lead during the first 7 points, which they held at the end of the first quarter. At that point the score was 13-1. In favor of the freshmen, however, was the presence of two out-of-town forwards, hand-balancing and deadly shots.

Throughout the game the score was close, and both teams fought hard to keep the others from scoring. At the close of the first quarter, the seniors had the lead 16-12, but the freshmen tied it 20-16. After the second quarter, they were tied again at 29-28.

In the first four minutes of the game the scores were tied at 29-18. The seniors took over a five-point lead in the run-up to the final score and held it all the way to the final whistle. At that point the score was 29-18. The seniors won.

At the end of the first round of the boys' basketball game, the seniors had scored 30 points in a 6-3 victory over the freshmen. The seniors were on top throughout the game, with 13 to their credit. No other sophomore forward, however, turned in a good game.

The seniors were in the lead, with 18 points, but the frosh made up for their 7 fouls by scoring more than 7 points during the game. The seniors had the advantage of their height, but the freshmen outweighed their advantages with sheer fighting spirit.

As class of the same team was runner-up for high point honors with 8 points to her credit.
