Thanksgiving Lecture Series Summarized

GATEWOOD TALKS OF NEW THINKING
In speaking of the need in new fields of work for graduate students, Dr. Gatewood raised a question: "Why haven't we gone? We've lost too long constructing shoes and trying to fit them on a foot." One of our excuses has been that there are too many people. Gatewood said, "but we are told to go teach, which means more than merely giving preaching with pupiled influences around every word.

GREAT COMMISSION STRESSED BY S. D. McNEAL
Mr. McNeal delivered his address on a Wednesday night, beginning with the Great Commission. He then asked questions: "Has the church made an impossible job?" He promised to be well. "If we are not ready in our actions, we haven't been before Him." He pointed out specific fields in this country.

THOMPSON TALKS ON DIVINE URGE
Dr. Thompson, who devoted Tuesday night to the subject, began by quoting from our actions we haven't believed. Thanksgiving Lecture - Prof. Visits Class; Tells Of His Work

J. B. Copernicus came into journalism class recently to pay a visit, and listened to what the coming journalists of today were learning. Dr. Copernicus was the professor of journalism and associate professor of history who have been out at Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, considering the problems of the M. B. degree in journalism.

Prof. Thompson went on to say that he had received a call from the office that he had missed breakfast on the floor. Then he determined to set up the kitchen, as he said, "to get all its elements falling from them. But to his dismay, it foretold he was late to the meal. The calls for a series of adventures similar to the one we had lived in the past years was the promise of the position. Its time.

"It's all quite "confusing," but to the victim, it's "easier." (Continued on Page Five)
Let Your Zeal Burn

The thing that really made the leader for above the storage was the sharing. It's round the world. It's always easier to criticize than to make concrete recommendations. Our speakers this year had for every speech a suggestion. Now, if this were the end of school, and we had a definite job to give every one interested in the theater, would there be. I believe, almost half of the students who would be ready to get the job. The job is to support this interest.

The classes in school can follow up this program by taking up the projects of the classes in which they are. Each doesn't mean that the classes per se will support missionary efforts, but that each will give through the church.

We can plan a concentrated effort. We can preach mission work to the congregations with which they are connected. We will long motivate us to be blessings. Often surprising, because the custom of the great season of a Harding College Thanksgiving basket is Skinner and his circle. She had to dress inconspicuously, because the custom of the December Book of the Month Club is entitled "Who's Who in America." Somebody recently remarked, "It is nothing more than what is justly coming to the boys who have been bidden his name."

It is just about the grandest season of a Harding year. At no other time can one find so much good food and so many good story salvation scenes as are characteristic of those given in the Thanksgiving celebrations. It is one time when everybody takes to the limit, and leaves a great surplus of good things.

This year has been an exception. In fact, I am persuaded that our prayers for this year have been more highly magnified, and I am confident that this period of stimulus will take its proper place in the history of this institution. It will go down in the books as a period of splendid achievements.

One very important feature of this year's program is the additional Harding Thanksgiving basket dinner, "People just sat and out until they just can't eat any more, and yet the tables are left well filled with the things that they have ordered. Of course, the realization that you just can't eat more really hurts a fellow, but enough of anything is enough, that's true even of good food, and before long your stomach will probably serve you notice that enough is enough."

All in all, this is just so delightful that we feel thankful. We wish it could be done more often. By EDWARD SHAPIRO

College and university enrollment during the years immediately following this war will be double that of pre-war days, according to some Washington educators.

If the wisdom of last week's letters could be put into effect it is quite certain that a world-wide evangelism would be the result. It would be difficult to say just what the outcome of this program will be, but a fairly good answer could be summed up with the following disclaimer:

"What will be the final analysis when all the emotionalism has died? What will teachers do? What will students do? How much longer can it take to disentangle the whole group?"

Someone recently remarked, "In about two weeks all of the missionary intentions will disappear from the majority of us." The worst part about a statement like this is that it is so nearly true. The emotions are carried by thousands of missionary, or a missionary helper. Many are losing sight of their eyes from one place to another, studying the possibility of going into a new field of work.

It seems that preachers should be coaxed into doing any duty for what else is there for a preacher to do but fill a crowded pulpit at home. We have enough pulpit fillers, religious talkers, glib tongues and easy-goers; what we need now is men who are zealous for the Lord. It will be interesting to note the result of the stirring interest in world-wide evangelism, and we should be willing to pay it along with other war debts.

The second, which will be considered in final selection of outstanding scholars who may receive scholarships, is the National Merit, which is given to those students who are judged to have made the best scholastic achievement of those applied for it. Others include qualifications that of leadership, military ability and athletic ability.

According to the Survey of College Entrance, Democrat, of the Arkansas army will enroll more men from college than it actually needs for its own purposes. These extra men would be assigned to industries.

Sparkman points out that the army plus calls for training periods of varying length, from 8 to 19 months. Principal courses would be medical and pre-medical courses, engineering and science. These colleges men whose ability to inte­rest lies in the arts, fine and other other--are going to be at a disadvantage.

Although there is some disagreement in Washington that it appears that all of the young scholars will have completed their basic training before they may re­turn to college.

His financial status will have nothing whatever to do with whether a man is selected to enter college, he says. That is decided by the entrance tests of the National Merit which is given to those students who are judged to have made the best scholastic achievement of those applied for it.

College Team Noses Out Alumni Five 31 to 29

Seeking revenge for the sore foot of last year, the college team narrowly missed the alumni five 24 to 23. The Alumni had the men back that they had last year, but the college team was in full force and ready for a fight.

Substitutions were made frequently in the last half of the game, in fact two new teams were on the field at one time. The co-educational fourteen of the second quarter, with the college boys' five.

The game was exceptionally dull, with each team trying to score, but neither team was able to get to the next line. The college boys were behind at half time, but came back in the second half with a strong show.

College Team

Smacks Carlise 40-0

The Stafords scored a touchdown in the first quarter of the game, and the second half was played without a score.

The game was marked by the skill and ability of the college team. The Alumni were unable to score, and the college team scored a field goal in the third quarter.
