'Cyrano' Selected For Regional Festival

The Speech Department production of Edmond Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac has been selected to represent Arkansas in the Regional College Theatre Festival at Scott Theatre, 3505 W. Lancaster, Ft. Worth. The presentation by Harding, one of seven Southern colleges participating in the Festival, will be at 2:15 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 24. Chuq Parker, a senior speech major from Broken Arrow, Okla., will play the title role.

Harding's entry, first presented on the campus in December, is under the direction of Larry Menefee, instructor in speech.

The event is a part of the American College Theatre Festival sponsored by the John F. Kennedy Center for Performing Arts, Smithsonian Institution, American Education Theatre Association, American National Theatre Academy and American Airlines. Regional winners will be considered for the American Festival in Washington, D. C. in April or May.

Other schools and their productions are Grambling College, Grambling, La., Raisin in the Sun; Texas A & I University, Kingsville, Tex., Playboy of the Western World; Central State College, Edmond, Okla., World Rhinoceros; Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Electra; University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, The Entertainer; and University of Texas at El Paso, The Killing of Sister George.

Dr. Jack B. Wright, chairman of the Festival's Region V, which includes Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas, said, "The Regional College Theatre Festival is really an exciting event. We have seven of the finest theatre productions coming to the festival from the five states in my region." All performances will be open to the public.

Three of the seven will be recommended to the Central Committee of the American Festival for further consideration to the National Festival. In addition to the production selected in Ft. Worth, the National committee will review nominations of twelve other regions and ten colleges will be selected to perform in Washington at the historic Ford's Theatre.

"Cyrano", a seldom-produced drama, was played three times on the campus Dec. 12, 13 and 15. To comply with festival regulations which limit cast members to 25, most of the performers played three or four roles. The mobile set was constructed to meet festival requirements also. Elaborate and colorful costuming, including capes, breeches and hats, was designed and stitched by the students.

Cyrano, seated right, relates to his friends some of his adventures from the previous night in a scene from Edmond Rostand's romantic tragedy produced by the Speech Department. The colorful and seldom produced drama will be Harding and Arkansas' representative in the Region V College Theatre Festival in Ft. Worth Jan. 24. Directed by Larry Menefee, the performance by 22 Harding students will be at 2:15 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 24 at Scott Theatre in Ft. Worth.

Others playing major roles are Teresa Rushton of Searcy as Roxanne, Mike Wise of Pangburn as Christian, Jim Frazer also of Searcy as De Guiche, and Phil Reagan of Memphis as Le Bret.

Also included in the cast are John Wilson of Nashville, Tenn., Mike Shannon of Hot Springs, Stanley Sanderson and Steve Sanderson of Missoula, Mont., Lynn Calhoun of Pasadena, Tex., John Gingerich of Volpo, Ind., Bill Brant from Cardwell, Mo., Gregg Coates of Ellisville, Mo., and Kenneth Fatula of Emmaus, Pa.

Tenth In A Row

Petit Jean Receives All-American

The 1969 Petit Jean, edited by Diane Hoagland, was named an All-American publication by the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota and, in a separate category, in the Arkansas Colleges Yearbook Contest sponsored by the Arkansas College Publications Association. Dr. B. Allnutt, a recognized authority on yearbook productions and the author of resource books on yearbook production, judged the Arkansas contest and said, "A book of solid achievement—interesting and carefully planned. Shows mastery of the techniques of yearbook production and a willingness to work to produce a well-rounded publication."

Jerry Bailey of Birmingham, Ala., is editor of the 1970 book with Larry Smith of Vernon, Tex., as business manager.

New leaders have been named for next year's publication. Elected as editor was Layton McCown of Ambler, Pa., and as business manager was Robert C. Dockery of Fayetteville. They will serve as assistants in their respective areas this year.

McCown, a junior political science major, is president of Frater Sodalitas and a member of the A Cappella chorus. He has been active in campaigns for Christ in the Northeast.

Dockery is a junior Bible and history major who recorded the highest grade average among sophomores in the School of Business at the University of Arkansas where he attended last year. During the summer he worked at Shakespeare of Arkansas where he was in charge of materials inventory.

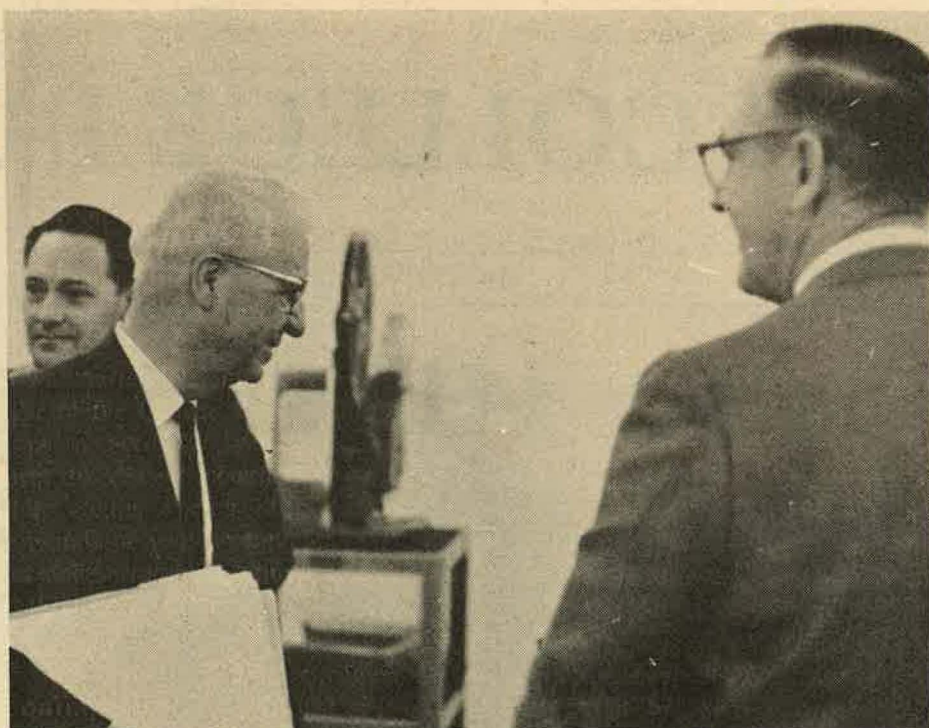

Mrs. Gail McKinney Clements was business manager for last year's book and Pat Lyon served as photographer.

Benson Reviews Service; Looks To Growth

On November 25, 1969, speaking at a President's Development Council luncheon on campus, president emeritus Dr. George Benson stated, "This is a great time to be thinking and planning for one of America's great institutions, Harding College." These are remarkable words when coming from the lips of a young, energetic leader; but they are underscored when spoken by one who spent 29 years driving, riding trains and flying millions of miles for the advancement of Christian education. "As I look back over these 29 years I recall the many good friends and fond memories from all the traveling," he said. "In fact, I traveled the equivalent of three round trips to the moon."

While serving as a missionary in Canton, China, Dr. Benson was elected president of Harding College. After due consideration of the opportunities involved in assisting future missionaries to be better prepared, he accepted, returned to the United States in 1936 and assumed the presidency of Harding College.

Dr. Benson was soon in demand as a public speaker. He traveled extensively and spoke in nearly every major city of the United States. He became acquainted with many of the most prominent industrialists of the nation. Because of his dynamic Christian character and his eminent knowledge of communism, the business executives began to look favorably upon and give financially to Harding College. During the time he was president of Harding College, its assets increased on an average of one million dollars per year.

At the request of President Ganus and the chairman of the Board of Trustees, Dr. Benson has committed himself to another round trip to the moon for Harding. He has accepted the position as chairman of the Committee of Industrial Gifts. Pursuant to the carrying out of this assignment, he has established a National Sponsoring Committee composed of nationally recognized industrialists.

Harding is no longer merely an Arkansas school. It is national and international in its influence. The members of this newly organized committee will serve as leaders in their own communities. They will sponsor luncheons and provide other valuable assistance in Harding's continued quest for moral, spiritual and academic excellence.

The importance of friends in industry who help Harding achieve its purpose and objectives cannot be over emphasized. Every contribution, from whatever source it may come, helps provide intellectual, physical and spiritual values from which students may build useful and happy lives consistent with Christian and American ideals.

George S. Benson is still one of the most dynamic, energetic, vibrant, Christian men among the Churches of Christ today. He has given the best years of his energetic life to the advancement of Christian education, and has encouraged others to make significant contributions to Christian education — the answer to leadership in the church and America.

Visiting Professor Comments

'Internship' Training Key To Mission Growth, Success

By Gene Ellmore

Internship is a vital key to effective missionary work, according to Keith Robinson, visiting professor of missions from Rome, Italy. "I am happy to be associated with Harding's Mission/Prepare Program," he remarked. "It has such depth of vision," he added, "and such a willingness to launch out upon new horizons."

Harding's Mission/Prepare program, directed by Dr. Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible Department, is predicated on the concept of world evangelism. It pounds the pavements of its own precincts, and, with its dynamic outreach, spans the oceans to jog the jungles for Christ. Its leaders do not tramp blindly down a road that angels fear to tread, but enter a new field prayerfully prepared to plant the Seed, meet the challenges, and reap whatever harvest God gives them.

Robinson has been on the mission field. Into the framework of his students' thinking he is building the intense desire to be the most effective missionary possible. He encourages them to spend an entire summer under the guidance of an experienced missionary on the field. "This is the best type of training," he said, "because the emphasis is upon the experience that you gain which is different from the work done in a campaign group which generally concentrates on the immediate good that can be accomplished in the field."

"The language and culture of a foreign country may be quite different than in America," said Robinson. "And an effective missionary must be personally acquainted with these differences before entering a country to live among its people," he added.

Students who study abroad under an experienced missionary may receive college credit for it. Each person in the Internship Program must raise his own support for the first summer's study but will be eligible for a scholarship from Harding the following year. "Eight students are now committed to this internship," said Robinson, "and they are some of the top students in the school."

During his year's teaching at Harding, Robinson is preaching regularly for the church in Beedeville, Ark. He is a dedicated Christian and an energetic worker for the Lord. Harding College is as happy to have him as an integral part of the Mission/Prepare Program as he is to be associated with it.

During his year at Harding, he is teaching three Bible classes and one Mission class five days per week, participating in the Mission/Prepare program, raising funds for the work in Italy and preaching regularly.

His manner is mild but stern. He begins his classes by singing hymns while he takes the roll. One who is a student in or visits his class is impressed with his lesson. He speaks with such authority that he leaves little doubt in the minds of his students but that he knows what he is talking about.

school year. He and his wife, Mary, and their two children, Peter, eleven years, and Patty, eight years, both of whom attend the Academy, still speak Italian around the home. They hope that several students in the internship program will work with them in Italy during the summer, but realize that each student may work in any country of his choosing, providing the program he presents is approved and coordinated by the director of the Internship Program.

Any high school student who plans to enroll at Harding College may qualify and become eligible to participate in this unique Internship Program. Anyone interested in the program should contact the Bible Department for further information.

Campus Notes

SA Fund Progresses

The Student Association, with Rod Brewer of Memphis as president, has pledged $25,000 toward erection of a new student center on the campus as part of the Decade of Development program. More than $3,000 has been accumulated toward the goal.

"We felt that while our watermelon parties, pep rallies and toy drives were fine, we wanted to do something really worthwhile and lasting for Harding," Brewer said in making the announcement. Several groups have initiated drives for the project. First a "pass the hat" campaign was held. An auction of the bell tower with students vs. faculty resulted in a student win and an hour extension of curfew for the girls for one night. A Student Loyalty Fund was started for students to pledge to the drive. Letters to parents asking for support have resulted in several hundred dollars for the drive.

A number of other programs will be added during the year.

Class Officers Elected

Raymond Kelly, a physical education major from Glencoe, Ala., was elected president of the senior class in elections earlier in the semester. Other senior officers are Jack Gardner, accounting major from Glenwood, vice president and Glen Blue, senior premed major from Searcy, secretary.

Junior officers are Gary Martin, Gainesville, Fla., president; Joe McReynolds, Carthage, Mo., English major, vice president and Claudia Murphy, English major from Durant, Miss., secretary. Kay Smith, social science major from Benton, was elected Student Association Representative, replacing Peggy Tarpley who did not return this year.

Sophomore officers are David Dubois, psychology major from Texarkana, president; Gerald Burrow, Shreveport, vice president and Kathy Parks, an education major from Coldwater, Miss., secretary.

Greg Elliott of Nashville heads the freshmen class with Ron Nicola of Winterville, Ohio, as vice president and David Ransom, North Little Rock, secretary.

Tucker Elected To Civic Presidency

Business Manager Lott Tucker has been elected president of the Searcy Chamber of Commerce for 1970. The announcement was made at the annual Chamber dinner attended by 620 Searcians in the American Heritage Cafeteria on the campus with Wilbur D. Mills, congressman from Arkansas, as the featured speaker.

A native of Bradford, Tucker is a 1951 graduate of Harding and has been associated with the school since that time. He was named business manager in 1957. He is a past president of the Searcy Kiwanis Club and a member of the board of Searcy Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Mrs. Tucker is the former Mae Anne Songer (BA'53) and their two sons, Stephen, 16, and David, 14, attend Harding Academy.

AHEA Meeting Held

Miss Becky Ross, president of the college division of the Arkansas Home Economics Association, was director of a workshop for home economics students in all Arkansas colleges on the campus Nov. 7-8. "Professionalism Through AHEA Leadership" was the theme of the meet.

Speakers for the event were Al Jolly, minister of the College Church of Christ; Dr. Mildred Bell, chairman of Harding's home ec department, and Mrs. Janive Blanchard, AHEA women's chairman.

Other Harding delegates for the meet were Doris Ann Tilghman, state degree's chairman, and Mrs. Phyllis Blacksten, student advisor.

Professor Attends Meeting

Mrs. Ermal H. Tucker, assistant professor of business education, attended the Southern Business Education Association convention in Richmond, Va., Nov. 26-29, as Liaison Officer for the Department of Colleges and Universities.

A past president of the Arkansas Business Education Association, she serves as the state's representative to the Southern Association.

The convention will meet in Hot Springs in 1971.

Morrilton Chorus Visits

The A Cappella Chorus from Southern Christian Home in Morrilton spent two days on the campus recently recording an album entitled, "For the Beauty of the Earth" to be pressed by Austin Custom Records of Austin, Tex.

Using the Harding Recording Studio, home of "Hymns from Harding" radio program, the group sang sacred songs for one side of the record. The other side features songs from musicals and other popular sources.

The cover will feature a color shot of the moon from the Apollo 11 flight and was designed by Director Lindell Housley.

The album will be to sell on choral trips and other occasions to raise funds for the home.

Ex-Students Present Art Exhibit

Art works by former Harding College students, many of them now college faculty members in schools in several states, were shown as the feature exhibit of the Art Center for November. The exhibit included oils, water colors, sculptures and ceramics.

Twelve former students sent works for the exhibit. Artists included were Meredith Thom, instructor of art at Southwestern Christian College in Dallas; Bob Privitt, chairman of the art department at Lubbock (Tex.) Christian College; Wesley Parker, Henryetta, Okla., Junior High; Dan Coston, Faye Doran and Tom Watson, Harding faculty members; Paul Pitt, art instructor at Harding Academy of Memphis; Don Stevens, minister from Paris, Tenn.; Francine Goss, North Little Rock Junior High; Doris Bush

Clark, Baton Rouge housewife; Annette Pate, Art Instructor at Oklahoma Christian College; Andy Saunders, former faculty member at Memphis State University who is now in the Army; and David Fields, Michigan Christian College.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mason, chairman of the department, has scheduled an exhibit for the center's Gallery for each month of the school year. The September show was by Mrs. Juanita Pollard, faculty member at Texas Tech. An exhibit of watercolors of California scenes by Crandall Norton and a ceramics display by Rosemary Fisher of North Little Rock were featured in October. The December feature was by senior art major Bruce Bennett of Bartlesville, Okla.

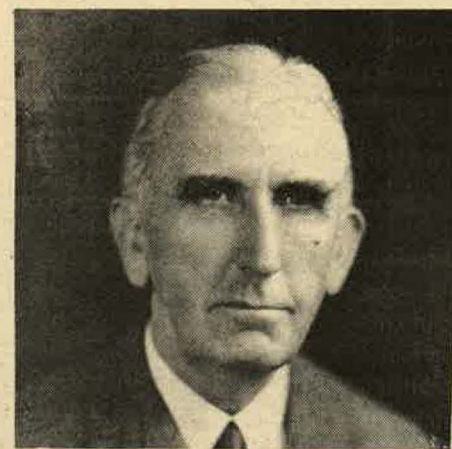

Armstrong Biography Published

The story of one of the most influential men in the growth of Harding College has just been completed by Harding's own Dr. L. C. Sears, Dean Emeritus of the college.

"J. N. Armstrong began as an associate of James A. Harding, for whom this school is named," Dr. Sears explained, "and it was he who became the president of the four colleges which grew into the present Harding College. He was the president of this college from its chartering in 1924 to his turning the presidency to Dr. Benson in 1936, and remained head of the Bible Department until his death in 1944."

In this biography, "For Freedom," Dr. Sears tells more of the intimate story of J. N. Armstrong who had impressed him as a man of great courage and transcendent faith.

Virgil Bentley of the Garland Road Church of Christ in Dallas, Tex. writes, "L. C. Sears has done a masterful job in making J. N. Armstrong come alive in this thorough and superbly written book. The lively narrative is laced with excerpts from Armstrong's letters and articles, bringing together ideas and convictions which are summarized in the book's title, For Freedom, The Biography of John Nelson Armstrong.

J. N. Armstrong

"Having been a student and associate, both of J. N. Armstrong and Lloyd Cline Sears, the reading of this treatise has been interesting, penetrating and enlightening," L. O. Sanderson, Music Editor and Staff Writer for the Gospel Advocate in Nashville, Tenn., said as he wrote his views on the new book.

Johnson Honored For Distinguished Service

On November 27, 1969 at the conclusion of the 46th annual Harding Bible Lectureship, Mr. and Mrs. Leman Johnson received the Distinguished Christian Service Award. In presenting this award, President Ganus said: "Brother and sister Johnson have contributed directly to the financial needs of the college, to the furnishing of rooms in the Heritage Center, to the library, to the chorus and to individual students. They have done so quietly but not without our appreciation and love. Because of their dedicated Christian service we express our thanks and do honor to them this day."

In receiving the award, Johnson expressed his appreciation for it, and how he enjoyed coming to Harding, then quipped, "I didn't know I had done all this for Harding."

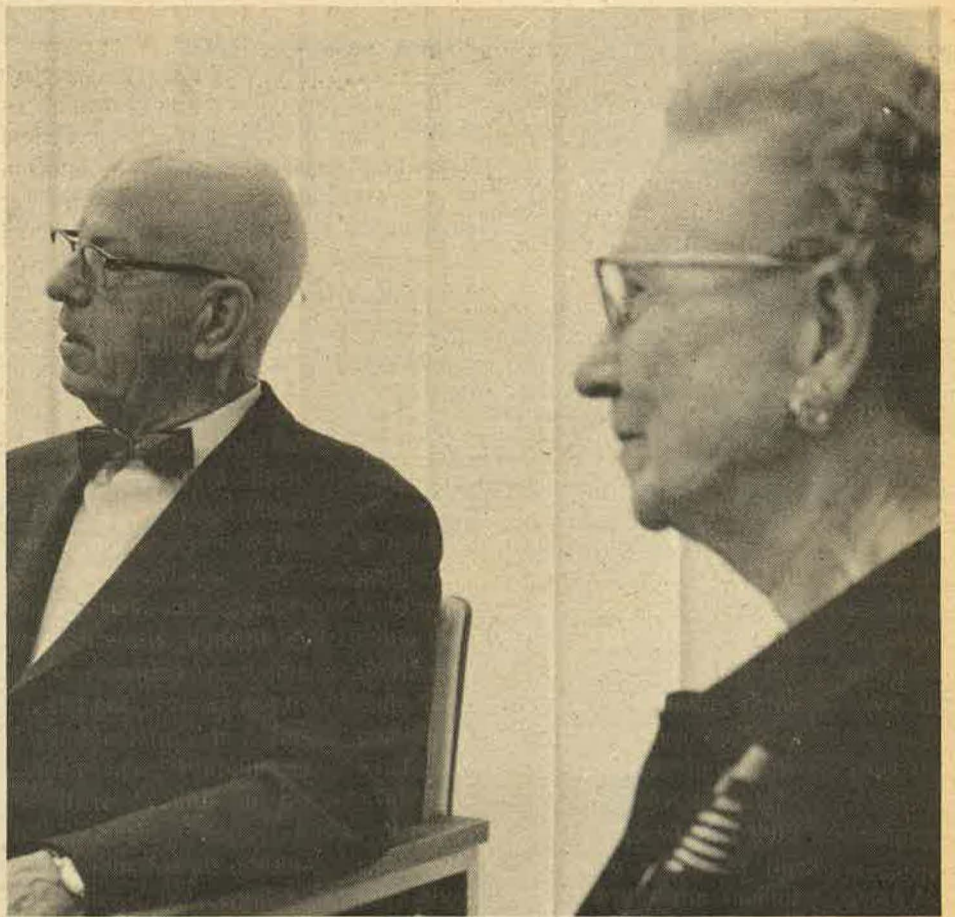

Born, reared and educated in the state of Kansas, Johnson, at the age of 21 years, made a trip to Wenatchee, Washington. He loved the country so well that he contracted to buy an apple orchard. After working his orchard for one year, in 1911 he went back to Courtland, Kansas, sold his farming equipment, married his sweetheart, Ruth Charlotte Thomas, and returned to Wenatchee.

He purchased a packing house and became a pioneer in the development of the fruit industry in Washington. From this growing business he developed a loan company. Being very civic minded, he served as Justice of the Peace, as a member of the board of the Wenatchee Kiwanis Club and the Chamber of Commerce, as president of the Wenatchee Valley Traffic Association, as president of the Central Washington Museum Board, as vice president of the Chelan County Parks Board and in other civic and professional organizations.

While an executive member of the Parks and Museum Boards, he secured an engine from the Great Northern Railroad for the park as a tourist attraction. "This engine is 180 feet long and weighs 178 tons," he said, "and had done duty in and around Wenatchee for 16 years." He also obtained a 1907 Oldsmobile from a local dealer. "My wife and I told the City Commission that we would put a base down, a cover over it and fence around it," he said, and they did.

Johnson recalls seeing Pangborn and Herndon, the first Japanese pilots to fly a single-engine plane across the Pacific Ocean, land Oct. 5, 1931 in Wenatchee. "Pangborn's brother owned a jewelry store in Wenatchee," he commented. "Then in 1968," he stated, "a Japanese man called our Chamber of Commerce and wanted to visit the monument that we had erected upon the site of their landing, as the Japanese had erected one years ago in Tokyo. We knew where the spot was, but we hadn't done anything about it. Our faces turned pretty red when he came to our city. So we got busy right away and searched the mountainside for a column, and found one which was almost perfectly round, three feet in diameter and 14½ feet long. The Alcoa Aluminum company made us some wings to put on top of the monument. It now stands as near the actual site as we could get it, overlooking the city of Wenatchee, the Columbia River and the Cascade mountains.

"In May of 1969 at the Apple Blossom Festival," he noted, "there were twenty-one Japanese representatives from Tokyo to attend the dedication. They gave us $300 to put a light in the monument so it would shine day and night." And then with a serious look he said, "It was as great a goodwill offer as two nations could have."

Mr. and Mrs. Leman Johnson were honored during Lectureship week.

Both Leman and his wife Ruth are faithful Christians who give of themselves liberally in the service of the church and their fellowman. He was baptized at the age of 15 years in the Republican River near Surdahl, Kansas by Joseph E. Main, a minister of the Church of Christ from Missouri. He now attends and serves the Okonagan congregation in Wenatchee. They are good citizens of the Kingdom of Heaven and of the country they love. They love and are loved by many. On February 23, 1962, the Johnsons celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. "There were 1122 people who came to greet us," he stated. Then with a chuckle he commented, "The last people to be served received smaller pieces of cake." Then came the couple-de-grace: "It's nice to be with one lady that long," he declared. Then she, with some embarrassment yet a great deal of glee, retorted, "I could say the same thing about him."

Together, they have traveled all over the United States and in Canada, Mexico and Europe. They also have made a trip to Hawaii. Their main interest now, other than the church and Harding College, is their buying and selling of antiques. Both are experts in antique art glass.

Dr. Clifton L. Ganus, President of Harding, says of the Johnsons: "We appreciate brother and sister Johnson for what they are and what they mean to us at Harding. Since 1953 he has served faithfully and well on the Board of Trustees. Although living some 2,500 miles from Searcy, he has been present twice a year for the meetings. It is estimated that he has traveled over 160,000 miles to attend these meetings. Currently, he serves as Vice Chairman of the Committee on Finance and Investments. Sister Johnson is a lifetime member of the Searcy Chapter of the Associated Women for Harding and accompanies her husband on every trip to the campus."

Andy Ritchie Authors Book About 'Worship'

A new book by Andy T. Ritchie Jr., a member of the Bible faculty since 1946, has been released. Entitled "Thou Shalt Worship the Lord Thy God," the book contains discussion by the author of many aspects of worship with a prayer and suggested hymns and scripture readings at the conclusion of each chapter. Poems and other quotations are included with supplementary articles by the sons and daughters of the author, the late Leonard Kirk and five missionaries.

"I feel that there is a great need to intensify and otherwise improve our worship, whether corporate or private," the author said, "and I hope that the distribution and study of this book will assist many toward a more meaningful devotional life."

The three divisions of the book are The Meaning of Worship, The Media of Worship and Vitalizing Worship. The appendices are entitled Worship Insights, Experiences and Admonitions and Worship and the Mission Field.

Ritchie, a native of Madison, Tenn., holds the B.A. in music from George Peabody College and the M.A. in Bible from Scarritt College. He is a former director of the Harding College A Cappella Chorus and, a bass, he has recorded an album of songs released several years ago.

Mrs. Ritchie is a member of the faculty at Harding Academy. They have four children, Andy T. Ritchie III, Edward Ritchie, Mrs. Gerald Casey and Miss Joan Ritchie.

The publication is $4.95 and is available from Ritchie.

Placement Office Aids Students, Employers

By Gene Ellmore

What to do after graduation often can be a perplexing situation to students working toward that goal and concerned parents aiding in the quest. Harding's Placement Service, working quietly and frequently without acclaim, has solved the problem for numerous graduates and, through constant re-evaluation and examination, has gained recognition and attention of some of the nation's leading employers.

"We have one of the finest placement services anywhere," commented director David Burks, who also is an instructor in business administration.

The service began in the infancy of the school with little more than functional concern. Through the years it has evolved into a full grown department and during the 1968-69 school year more than 600 interviews were conducted between prospective employers and students.

The placement office is a coordinating body. Superintendents of schools and business representatives can have available a set of credentials on the students. "We make these available on request and send them all over the country. For example we sent 1,100 sets to 46 states last year," Burks said.

The credentials are reputed to be among the finest prepared by any school. "Harding College has one of the most organized offices of placement I have seen anywhere, especially in regards to appointments and credentials," wrote Omar D. Candy, assistant manager of Aetna Insurance Company in Little Rock. "Your program was the best organized of those I have participated in this year. The information you provided on students was outstanding," John A. Shoemaker, personnel officer of the regional office of the Veteran's Administration in Little Rock, said of Harding's Federal Career Information Day. The information includes for employers the personal data, scholarships, work activities and personal evaluations from teachers of each student.

The information is sent to the employer prior to his visit to the campus. "When an employer comes to the campus," Burks remarked, "he has this information at hand. As a result, the interview becomes very meaningful." Sixty-four employers visited the campus last year for interviews.

Facilities for the pre-scheduled interviews have been carefully planned. A reception room is provided where the employer and prospect can talk privately. "The administration has emphasized placement here. Without its encouragement there would be no placement office," he said.

The service functions for all departments. Most interviews, however, are for education majors since 50 per cent of Harding's graduates prepare to teach. "We hear from hundreds of major and minor school systems regularly regarding their openings," Burks stated, "and this helps us to provide an excellent service for the students." School systems from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., to Beamsville, Ontario; from West Babylon, N. Y., to Dallas list their openings with Harding.

The next largest area served is business, particularly in the area of accounting. The accounting firms of Ernst & Ernst, Arthur Andersen &

Company and the U. S. Accounting Office come to Harding annually to interview students. Other regular visitors include Southwestern Bell, Sears Roebuck & Company and International Business Machines. Complimentary letters from these firms are evidence of satisfied employers. C. W. Reed, partner in the Ernst & Ernst St. Louis office wrote of Mike O'Neal, a 1968 graduate currently on active duty in Vietnam, "We are proud to have Mr. O'Neal as a member of our firm."

The college's academic reputation has caused all types of prospective employers to seek its graduates. "There are no accurate statistics available to compare with larger colleges and universities in this area," said Burks, "but from personal association with this service I know we have seven of the eight largest national accounting firms coming to Harding for interviews. Why would they do this when we have only 13 or 14 public accounting potentials?"

What an interesting question! Could it be because Harding is one of the few schools in the nation and one of the smallest schools at that that sponsors two teams in National Business Games each year? Billy Ray Cox is the faculty advisor for the Executive Marketing team which competes in the games sponsored by Michigan State University. Burks is the faculty advisor for the team which competes in the contest sponsored by Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia. Each contest involves 40-50 schools from across the nation. Could Harding's attraction emanate from the fact that it has won the contest twice and placed second twice at Michigan State, and won the contest at Emory last year? No other school can boast of this accomplishment. Three national firms come to Harding that do not visit any other Arkansas school. Last year, Arthur Andersen & Company employed six accounting major graduates. This fall the firm sponsored the Phi Gamma Psi accounting club banquet. All of these facts are testimony to the excellent academic reputation of Harding College. They serve as an answer to Burks' interesting question.

In most of the other departments, math, chemistry, biology, speech, psychology, sociology, etc., the demand for graduates exceeds the supply, because majors in these fields generally go on to graduate school. In this case the students will apply on their own and go through departmental chairmen. "We do not normally handle these cases through the placement office," Burks commented, "but we do offer assistance when requested to do so."

Harding is a member of the Southwestern College Placement Council. As a member, it receives the College Placement Annual which contains a number of articles to help students in their career choice. It also contains a complete list of all the firms that are seeking employees to register with them. An annual is given to each graduate of Harding. Burks feels that it is particularly helpful in the areas where the school does not have many majors. "We can give those that come from these areas a great deal of personal attention in order to help them even though we don't have recruiters coming to the campus," he remarked.

Every student who enrolls at Harding College is required to register with the Placement Office. Every graduate has a set of credentials on file in the office. Students who complain that it is a waste of time may decide a year or ten years from now that they want to use this information. "If we obtain that information now," declared Burks, "any student who has ever graduated from Harding may obtain valid personal recommendations because they were made at a time when the teacher knew the student."

The Placement Office is composed of three full-time staff workers besides Burks.

Burks graduated from Harding in 1965 and completed his graduate degree at the University of Texas the following year. He worked for the Humble Oil & Refining Co. in Houston for over a year before returning to Harding to teach business administration. He has conducted more than 25 business seminars throughout Arkansas in connection with the Industrial Research and Extension Center, Little Rock, a division of the University of Arkansas School of Business. He is a member of the National Institute of Internal Auditors, College and Southwest Placement Council, Arkansas College Teachers of Economics and Business, Beta Alpha Psi, Alpha Psi Gamma and Civitans in Searcy. He is co-sponsor of the Phi Gamma Psi accounting club, a member of the Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and serves on many faculty committees.

The Belles and Beaux, with an all new two-part show, will make a tour to the Southeastern states Jan. 24-31. "Songs for All Seasons" and "The Impossible Dream" will be presented Jan. 24 at Madison Academy in Huntsville, Ala.; Jan. 26 at the Art Center in Atlanta; Jan. 27 in Valdosta, Ga.; Jan. 28 at Alabama Christian College in Montgomery; Jan. 29 at Mars Hill Bible School in Florence; Jan. 30 at Columbus, Miss., and Jan. 31 at Harding Academy of Memphis. The group will sing at the Art Center in Pine Bluff Feb. 5 and at Freed-Hardeman College in Henderson, Tenn. Feb. 6.

Youth Forum Scheduled For March 13, 14

Several hundred people from Arkansas will gather on the campus March 13 and 14 for the sixth annual Youth Forum sponsored by the Student Association. Eddie R. Campbell, assistant director of missions and coordinator of the forum, said that a theme had not been named for the two-day event but college students will make the addresses and attendants will be encouraged to participate in discussions.

The Forum was started by John Lee Dykes, manager of the College Bookstore, who saw a need for young people to meet to discuss common problems while getting better acquainted. Thousands of young people from Arkansas and surrounding states have attended through the years.

Duncan Named All-American

Harding College's defensive tackle Jim Duncan capped an illustrious senior year by being named to the 1969 All-American second team by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics national office in Kansas City.

A native of Earle, Duncan had already been named to the All-Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference and NAIA District 17 defensive football teams.

A 6-3, 245 pound standout for the Bison team, Duncan was also selected to the All-AIC team chosen by the Arkansas Gazette. Extremely mobile and quick for his size, Duncan keyed the defensive forward wall, whose performances contributed immeasurably to the Bisons' 7-2-1 season mark.

"Jim had a tremendous year," Bison coach John Prock said. "After spring training he knew how much we counted on him and he responded to the challenge."

"His quickness enabled him to react faster than most down linemen," he said. "He has worked hard, paid the price, and is very deserving of the honor. The coaching staff couldn't be happier."

Perhaps his greatest individual performances were in the A&M and Henderson State games. He was a constant thorn in the side of A&M's Gary Tate, throwing him for losses three times, causing a fumble, and personally battling down three passes.

A two-sport letterman, the Harding senior was runner-up in the shot put in the 1969 AIC Meet. He went on to place 16th in the National NAIA track meet in Billings, Montana with a distance of 53-5½. In his first indoor meet this winter he recorded a 50-2½ throw.

A 1964 All-State honorable-mention selection at Earle High School, Duncan is a physical education major with plans to coach. He is Harding's second footballer to merit first or second team All-American honors. Defensive guard Don Sinuefield was named to the 1968 second team.

Ratliff, Geary Compete In National Meet

Tim Geary and John Ratliff represented Harding in the NAIA Cross Country Meet, November 29 in Oklahoma City. Competing for the first time in the national meet, Ratliff finished 70th and Geary placed 76th.

Coach Virgil Lawyer stated both runners did very well for their first year of competition as their times placed them in the top one third of the 328 runners competing.

Bisons Set 28 Records, Post 7-2-1 Season Mark

Twenty-eight school records were set in 1969 as Harding recorded its greatest football season in the school's history, 7-2-1.

Foremost among the new marks were the season accomplishments of quarterback Jerry Copeland and split end Ronnie Peacock. Copeland established a conference single season completion mark, hitting 133 of 258 passes for 1428 yards and ten touchdowns. A senior from Pensacola, Fla., Copeland completed his collegiate career by rewriting 13 records.

A 5-11, 170 pound sophomore from McGehee, the sure-handed Peacock led the AIC with 52 receptions for 552 yards.

John Manning, tight end from Memphis, now leads in career touchdown passes caught with five. Fullback Charles Caffey of Seminole, Tex., is the single season scoring record holder with 70 points. Freshman David Lumpkin of Alma established a new punting record with a 60-yard kick against Northwood Institute. Speedster Bill Watts' 96-yard kickoff return for a touchdown against Arkansas Tech is a new record as well. (See complete list of records below).

Cagers Face Uphill Climb In AIC Race

Off to a slow start, Harding basketballers took a 3-7 season record into the holiday break but new coach Jess Bucy is confident the second half will be a different story.

In a December meeting of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference faculty representatives, two divisions were established for conference play. The Bisons were assigned to Division B and hold a 2-4 record.

Early season action has produced some outstanding performances but inconsistency has hurt the Bisons' record.

Senior Larry Olsen is setting the offensive pace with an 18.3 average. The 6-7 Olsen is currently averaging 10.7 rebounds per game as well. Other Bisons in double figures are senior Danny Russell of North Little Rock, 15.6, and sophomore Bill Chism of Gideon, Mo., 14.4.

Easily the high point of the young season was the 62-60 victory over Southern State College. After knotting the score 60-all, Harding controlled the ball the final minute and a half, setting the stage for a game-winning basket by Chism.

Crawford 6th In AAU National Meet

In freezing weather and four inches of snow, All-American Jim Crawford placed sixth in the 10,000 meter National AAU Cross Country Meet in Detroit, Mich., Saturday, November 29.

Former All-American Cliff Clark, now a lieutenant in the Air Force at Merced, Calif., was 19th. Joe Boyle, the 1968 Arkansas AAU champion, was 55th.

Running against 215 of the nation's top athletes, including last year's Olympic representatives, Crawford recorded a 31:32 in perhaps his greatest career performance.

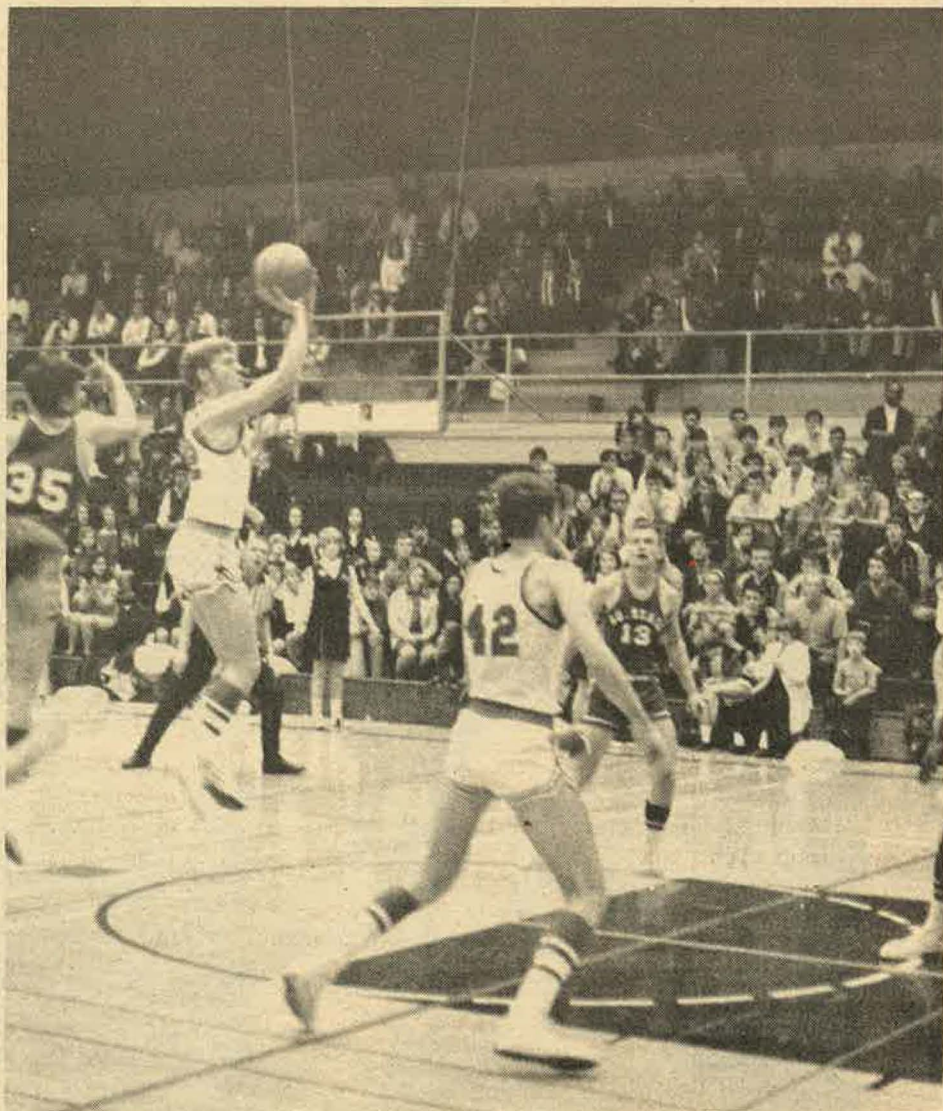

Now a graduate assistant at Harding College, Crawford said, "All things considered, the course, the conditions and the competition, I feel like this is the best cross country run I have ever made."

Swimming Team 1-1 In Early Meets

Harding College's Water Buffaloes defeated Southern State 53-40 but lost to State College of Arkansas 59-56 in interleague action.

Against State College, Krape also won the 1000-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle. Gillenwaters again won the 60-yard freestyle.

Against Southern State, Harding recorded seven first places. Individual winners were Randy Krape 500, 1000-yd. freestyle; Glen Davis, 100, 200-yd. freestyle; Richard Gillenwaters, 60-yd. freestyle; Dave Mellor, 200-yd. breaststroke; and Roger Shuffield, diving.

Sharpshooting sophomore Bill Chism shows the form that has built a 14.4 scoring average. The 6-2 guard from Gideon, Mo., has been an offensive leader throughout the 1969-70 season. Senior Larry Olsen (42), who leads the Bisons in rebounding, moves goalward for a possible carom.
