International Studies Will Be Included In Summer Schedule

Harding will begin an International Studies Program during the summer of 1972, according to an announcement made by Dr. Joseph E. Pryor, dean of the college.

The four-week academic program has been scheduled for June 10-July 8. Students will study in seven major European countries. Harding associate professor, Dr. W. Joe Hacker, will coordinate the program.

Courses to be offered during the initial phase of the program are art and music appreciation, European history and church history. A new course, Western Culture, has been added to the curriculum especially for the International Studies Program. The new course will stress the history, art, government, religion and economy of Europe and may be taken for either four or six hours of college credit.

A student may take a maximum of six hours of credit during the four-week session. The cost of the program includes a round-trip flight from Memphis.

"The program has been designed to allow students to fulfill general education requirements while studying on the location where many of the events occurred," commented Hacker.

He also noted that the four-week schedule allows students to return in time for additional summer school courses or to work if necessary.

The weekly schedule includes twenty classroom hours with more than twelve hours of instruction in museums and art galleries in Paris, Amsterdam, Rome, Geneva, Florence, Venice, Vienna, Munich, Cologne, Frankfurt, Bonn and Brussels.

Summer Enrollment Hits 445 For First Five-Week Session

The first session enrollment for Harding's summer school program reached 445 as 215 men and 230 women enrolled for the five-week session.

Classes began June 7 and concluded July 10. Included in the summer enrollment were 91 freshmen, 44 sophomores, 110 juniors, 95 seniors, 73 graduate students and 32 special and post-graduate students.

Thirty-five students have enrolled in special programs being offered by the college during the summer term.

Distinguished Teacher Awards Presented At Commencement

Dr. Raymond Muncy

Dr. Winfred Wright

Mrs. Ermal Tucker

Three assistant professors were named Harding's Distinguished Teachers for 1970-71 during the spring commencement exercises June 3. Each recipient was presented $1,000 by President Clifton L. Ganus, Jr.

The designees were Dr. Raymond Muncy, chairman of the department of history and social science; Mrs. Ermal Tucker, assistant professor of business education; and Dr. Winfred Wright, chairman of the department of foreign languages.

The selections are made annually and are based on evaluations from both students and faculty members.

Muncy is a native of Charleston, W. Va., and attended Indiana University where he received both the B.A. and M.A.T. degrees. He was a minister in Indiana for 16 years before joining the Harding faculty in 1964.

Mrs. Tucker joined the Harding business faculty in 1957 after having worked as a teacher and director of the secretarial division at Kansas City College of Commerce for 24 years. Her husband serves as executive secretary of the Harding Alumni Association.

Wright graduated from Harding in 1957 where he was Student Association president. He received the M.A. and M.R.E. degrees from Harding's Graduate School of Religion in Memphis.

He was awarded the Doctor de L'Universite de Toulouse in France in 1966. He and his wife served as missionaries in Belgium and France for eight years before joining the Harding faculty in the fall of 1966.

Alpha Chi Selects Officers For 1971-72

Gary Woodward, a senior mathematics major from Fort Worth, has been elected president of Harding's Arkansas Eta chapter of Alpha Chi for 1971-72.

The national scholarship honor society has 94 chapters in 25 states. The Harding chapter has 70 members.

Other officers selected were Calvin Crim of Raytown, Mo., vice president; Nancy McCluggage of Tulsa, secretary; Alexandria Zink of Shady-side, Ohio, treasurer; and Carisse Mickey of Dallas, regional representative.

Sponsors of the chapter are Dean Joseph E. Pryor, Dr. Neale Pryor and Dr. Don England. Dean Pryor also serves as national Secretary Treasurer of the organization.

Burt Challenges President's Council

I am sold on Harding College and I am convinced of the great influence she can have. I am convinced because of some rather deep motivations. If we will just let ourselves live our deeper motivations, I am sure that you will continually talk to your friends about Harding and solicit to help build Harding College.

For a long time I thought "solicit" was a bad word. I think differently now. I do not solicit someone just to get them to contribute to Harding. I solicit to give them the opportunity to be as happy as I am and to be able to participate in something rewarding. Everyone is searching for something deeper than themselves...

My experience and my exposure has led me to believe that there are some really good things happening on this campus. There is a locomotion here that is much stronger than I can ever generate. There is a leverage here that far amplifies any small individual effort that I might accomplish and I want to get on the end of that leverage. I want to be a part of it.

How do I feel about Christian education? Christian education is a great thing not only from an individual point of view, but also in respect to our society and culture. As we build people, we build cultures. We enhance the best out of all men through Christian education.

If you consider the history of mankind, you will see that man advances as his education advances. He declines if his education declines. We build into ourselves a proper perspective. We learn to see things as they are and to evaluate them. This is what perspective is — a base from which we can view life with confidence. A man who is educated learns judgment — a basis for his rationale.

An educated man is an honor to God. I cannot think of one other thing that God said He created in His image. If you enhance a man, you are enhancing the image of God.

If you build your society out of this kind of men, what kind of a time are we going to live in? The kind of time that we want to live in. Cultures are formed and societies are molded from the arts, sciences, philosophies and the things that men believe in...

Harding College is a practical institution. I have been to other institutions on financial campaigns and saw executives only sitting and planning. There was a shortage of workers. I am thrilled today to be in this group. I do not see any executives sitting and planning. All I see are workers who are not afraid to solicit.

There are so many people who are denied the opportunity to help Christian education because nobody asked them to support it. Be alert to every opportunity to talk about Christian education and Harding College.

I send my contribution to Harding on a weekly basis and I recommend this method to you. You feel like you have had a successful week if you contribute weekly.

Life at Harding is sharing. Take this light and hold it out so everybody can see it. We can mold a philosophy, a science, an art that will produce a society and culture that we can be proud of. Our society will take the form that we make it.

When we are called upon to assist Harding we are usually asked, "Will you help?" This is not the question that should be posed. We should be asking the question, "What can I do to assist Harding College?"

Two Receive Doctorates During Spring Exercises

Two Harding teachers received doctorate degrees during spring commencement exercises at the University of Mississippi and North Texas State University.

Jerome M. Barnes, assistant professor of education and director of the educational media center, received the Ed.D. degree from NTSU. Raymond L. Muncy, chairman of the department of history and social science, was awarded the Ph.D. degree from the University of Mississippi.

Barnes was one of 15 candidates for doctorate degrees. His dissertation, entitled "An Analysis of the Education of the Children of Migrant Agricultural Workers in Arkansas," was an examination of the educational capabilities of children of migrant farm workers.

He studied 500 children in 45 school districts in Arkansas gathering research for his dissertation. This study was the first of its type done in Arkansas.

Barnes' research revealed that migrant children enter school after it starts and move on before mastering the subject matter. Eighty-five per cent of the 500 children were found to be more than a year behind in their grade placement.

His work has received national and state-wide attention in educational journals. The study received favorable editorial comments from the Arkansas DEMOCRAT, the state's second largest newspaper.

Muncy entitled his dissertation "Sex and Marriage in Nineteenth Century Utopian Communities in America." His study dealt with the question posed by John Humphrey Noyes, "Has any attempt at communal living ever succeeded which took marriage into it substantially as it is in ordinary society?"

The question remained unanswered until Muncy's research which included examination of 500 communities which were known to have existed in the 19th century. He found that some communities attempted to avoid marriage and adopted celibacy.

Others attempted free love or attempted to effect a balance between familism and communism. The latter lasted for a shorter duration and tended to bear our Muncy's thesis that communism and monogamous familism are incompatible.

The work is being reviewed for publication by the University of Indiana Press. The University of Tennessee Press and Prentice-Hall have expressed interest in the manuscript and have asked to review it for publication.

Mission Techniques Receive Emphasis At Summer Seminar

The ninth annual Harding College World Evangelism Seminar was attended by 150 preachers, elders and missionaries during the week-long program June 7-11.

Classes met for eight hours each day and missionaries with experience on six continents in more than twenty foreign countries participated in the program. Harding's visiting professor of missions, Evertt Huffard, directed the seminar.

A group of missionaries preparing to leave for Pakistan in July were present at the seminar. The group was directed by Jim Waldron of Knoxville, Tenn.

Dr. Henry Farrar, noted medical missionary to Nigeria, achieved a first in speaking to the seminar participants about health problems they would encounter in their work in foreign countries. Farrar will return to Nigeria in the fall.

The 1971 seminar emphasized the work of the elders in guiding the congregation in more effective mission work. Special emphasis was also given to the anthropology of foreign missions and the work of women as missionaries.

Fall Registration Announced By Dean

Orientation and registration for the fall semester has been scheduled for August 23-26, according to announcement made by Dr. Joseph E. Pryor, dean of the college.

A busy week of assemblies, counseling and registration will begin August 23 with an assembly for all student workers. The meeting will be held in the Main Auditorium at 7:15 a.m. Upperclassmen will be counseled beginning 9:30 and continuing through noon on August 24.

Counseling of freshmen will begin at 1 p.m. August 24 and will continue until noon on the following day. Registration will be held August 25 and 26.

The first class meetings of the fall semester will be held on Friday, August 27.

Volunteer Speaks . . .

"While I was at Harding I learned direction. I found out why I was here on this earth and I learned to give to others."

So says Dean Bond (BA'67) who is now controller of the Servomation-Williams Corporation in Louisville, Kentucky. He has pledged himself to the Harding College annual giving program in such a way as to be an example to others.

Bond has begun a budgeting system encompassing all his family's income. He determined how much he would need to save each month in order to make a gift annually to the college for the next five years. He intends to increase the amount each year in relation to his income.

"As long as Harding strives to maintain the high Christian ideals and standards both academically and spiritually, I have no alternative but to support such a wonderful work in God's household," he said.

Harding vice-president Bill R. Cox stated, "This spirit of including Harding in one's future and in sharing with Harding will allow Harding to be preserved. I wish every alumnus would assume this type of responsibility for Harding by including her in his monthly plans."

Bond is married to the former Judy Limburg of Tonawanda, N. Y. and the couple has a daughter, Shawn Raeann.

'Unknowns' Face Pigskin Team

Summer football forecasts usually tell very little and at Harding College the Bisons face some "unknowns" as the 1971 campaign draws near.

Twelve lettermen starters were lost via graduation, and coach John Prock will be filling holes from the ranks of 25 returning numeral winners, including NAIA second team All-American guard Jerry Cook and All-American split end candidate, Ronnie Peacock. Alan Dixon, All-AIC running back as a freshman, heads up the Bison running game. A year ago he gained 822 yards on an even 200 carries.

Cook, a leather-popping 6-2, 220 pounder from Clarksville, will key an offensive line that returns two other starters, left tackle Edd Eason of Ft. Worth, and left guard Rick Brown of Ocilla, Ga.

Peacock established a conference record last year by catching 62 passes for 851 yards. A native of McGehee, Peacock enters his senior season with 142 career receptions, only seven short of the conference career mark.

"We've got some real big spots to fill not only on offense, but defensively as well," Prock said. "In the defensive line only one starter, nose-guard Clarence Hick, is back."

Offensively, new faces will be likely at quarterback, fullback, right tackle center and tight end. Top quarterback candidates include junior Terry Welch of McGehee, Tom Ed Gooden of Carlisle and Roger Collins of Columbus, Miss.

Co-captains for the 1971 squad are Peacock, Cook and three-year letterman linebacker Terry Brumley of Columbus, Miss.

The Bisons open the 1971 campaign with a new foe, Austin College of Sherman, Tex. The 2:00 p.m. game is set for Sept. 11 in Sherman, Tex.
