Ryan, Pectol Honored At Yearbook Ceremony

Honors were shared May 1 at the Harding College "1978 Petit Jean" yearbook dedication ceremonies by Dr. John H. Ryan, professor of speech, and Miss Sylvia Pectol, a senior from Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

The volume was dedicated to Ryan who was voted by the senior class to receive the recognition.

Ryan graduated from Harding in 1959. He did postgraduate work at the Universities of Illinois and Missouri and Ohio State University. He also taught at the University of Illinois and the University of Missouri. For the past five years, he has given many extra hours in serving as coordinator of Spring Sing. His area of special interest is in ensemble interpretation and he has most recently directed Harding's productions of "Animal Farm," "The World of Carl Sandburg" and "Getting Even." Ryan and his wife, the former Marjorie Hayes, have two children, Julie, 8, and Kevin, 5.

In his dedicatory remarks, editor Tom Buterbaugh said, "Some people stand just a little taller than the rest. They serve others and give of themselves with no apparent thought of physical reward. Thus, it seems fitting for the senior class to honor one such man with this dedication as a symbol of gratitude, friendship, respect and love."

Miss Pectol, an English major, was crowned "1978 Petit Jean" Queen by Dr. Joseph Pryor, yearbook advisor. She represented Knights social club and was chosen by the student body to reign over the festivities. Miss Pectol has served as president of her social club, Tofebt; was a member of the 1977 May Fete Court; and was in the Student National Education Association. She has been a member of the International Campaigns group and plans to return to Ireland with a mission team after graduating.

Serving as attendants in the queen's court were Teri Alexander, a senior physical education major from San Jose, California, and Christi Turner, a junior elementary education major from Tupelo, Mississippi.

Honor students were Tim Baird, a Bible and mathematics major from Vida, Missouri, and Carla Tomlinson, an elementary education major from Judsonia. Baird carried 121 hours with a 3.93 grade point average and Miss Tomlinson holds a 3.90 cumulative average on 105 hours.

Julia Miller, a senior Bible major from Pasadena, Texas, was voted by the senior class to receive the Regina Spirit Award, presented by the Regina Social Club. The annual award was established to recognize the senior whose life best exemplifies the ideals for which Harding College exists.

The Harding Academy section of the book, edited by Susan Pryor of Searcy, was dedicated to Patti Sanders, Academy speech teacher.

The cover of the 54th "Petit Jean" is black leather-like grain with a gold foil design. The theme, "A lot can happen in just one year," is carried out in the 416 pages of the book.

Buterbaugh, an art major from Indiana, Pennsylvania, and business manager Richard Roberts, an accounting and finance major from Searcy, headed a staff of 25 members. Assistant editor Kay Williams of Birmingham, Alabama and assistant business manager Steve Heimburger of Chantilly, Virginia will fill the top positions next year. Pryor, dean of the college, completed his 35th year as sponsor for the yearbook staff.

Economics Team Wins Regional Contest

The Harding College Economics Team defeated teams from 12 other colleges and universities from five states to win the Southwest Regional "Students for Free Enterprise" championship in Dallas April 22. The team won a trophy and $2,500 for the College.

Entitled "Free Enterprise: Let's Keep it in Business," the Harding entry included a report with an annotated supplement and an appendix elaborating the 80 programs presented before civic, professional and educational groups in the Mid-South.

Team members are Doug Sanders of Antioch, Tennessee; Miss Marsha Bender of Alamogordo, New Mexico; Daniel Holt of Effingham, Illinois; Ted Thompson of Norfolk, Virginia; and Jake Jensen of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Faculty sponsor is Dr. Don Diffine, associate professor of economics and director of the student-staffed Center for Private Enterprise Education.

Co-sponsored by National Leadership Methods, an Austin, Texas-based management training organization, and Southwestern Life Insurance Company of Dallas, the competition began at a fall orientation meeting in Dallas. The program theme was "Creative Capitalism."

Project goals were to offer solutions to problems confronting the American economic system. The participating institutions were challenged through formal intercollegiate competition to design and implement free enterprise programs suited for their particular campuses and communities.

On April 21-22, each of the competing institutions made formal presentations before community business leaders who served as judges.

Winning the second-place prize of $1,000 was Texas Tech University of Lubbock, Texas. The University of Texas at El Paso took third-place honors and a $500 check.

Last year, Harding's economics team competed in the Mid-South Regional Private Enterprise Education Competition and swept a field of 13 colleges and institutions to win the championship and $2,500 cash prize.

Two years ago, the Harding Economics Team entry titled "Free Enterprise — The Greatest Story Never Told" also won the top honors and a $1,500 cash prize.

Attorney Suggests Methods To Halt Pornography Growth

"The present level of proliferation of obscene materials in our society can be solved — we don't have to have it this way," stated Larry Parrish, former assistant United States attorney, when he spoke for the final Harding American Studies Lecture of the season on April 20.

He suggested that the first way to halt pornography is to pass legislation on the state level. Parrish illustrated the present laws against obscenity and the need for good legislation by saying, "The prosecutors now are really given a switch to kill a giant, and you can kill a giant with a switch, but, boy, you do have to beat him."

Pornographic material circulates, Parrish explained, because the people who are distributing it are superb marketeers and psychologists who know exactly what they are doing.

Parrish, who drafted the anti-obscenity law as a model for the Tennessee legislature, charged that the general public does not really have a grasp of the real problem. "You think about the horror of the annihilation of the Jews and that doesn't begin to touch the horror that you see," he said referring to the child pornography, group orgies and different types of perverse films in the United States today.

Parrish gained national fame when he prosecuted the controversial movie, "Deep Throat." He is now engaged in private law practice in Memphis. He appeared for the Memphis American

Business Team Places Second At Reno, Nevada Competition

The Harding College business team, composed of a senior and three juniors, placed second to Cal State University at Stanislaus in the collegiate executive games at the University of Nevada at Reno over the weekend. Dr. David Burks, advisor, accompanied the team members Mark Miller, Jeff Earnhart, Bruce Nunnally and Claire Nobles to the finals of the business operation competition.

Other industry winners were Portland State University from Oregon, Cal State at Bakersfield and, in the graduate division, Cal State at Sacramento.

Burks counted the experience a meaningful learning effort, noting that the team had not been in the Nevada games in two years. "I was pleased with the overall performance of the students, and the experience gained will be valuable in next year's competition," Burks said.

The competition ended weeks of preparation in which the team operated as a business firm, feeding decisions by computer to the game headquarters.

Christian Schools Seminar Scheduled For June 25-27

Harding will sponsor its first national conference for Christian elementary and secondary schools June 25-27.

Dr. Clifton Ganus Jr., president of Harding, will open the seminar with a speech on "The Future of Christian Education," followed by Dr. Harold Bowie, superintendent of Harding Academy at Memphis, speaking on "Developing the Christian School."

The seminar will cover fundamental aspects of development, deferred giving, public relations, use of church facilities and recruitment of students. Time has also been scheduled for administrators and representatives to discuss ideas and information.

The conference will be conducted in the American Heritage Center on the college campus. The conference fee will be $15 per person or $25 for more than one representative from a school.

Congressman Tucker Lectures At Nurse Practitioner Seminar

"I believe in the nurse practitioner programs and I know federal support for those programs is essential," Congressman Jim Guy Tucker told an audience of nurses and students at Harding April 27.

Tucker, a candidate for the U.S. Senate, was at the nurse practitioner seminar to discuss four areas of current health care legislation including: rural health clinics, the president's hospital cost containment proposal, the president's upcoming proposal for a national health care plan and the social security bill.

"Nurses now have the opportunity to treat poor and elderly patients in rural areas who otherwise might not have received treatment," Tucker said. He explained that there was still controversy, which should quickly be worked out, because of a potential conflict between the state and federal law.

Concerning the hospital cost containment bill, Tucker said, "The bill is very much a compromise bill which establishes a voluntary rather than a mandatory cost containment program with a mandatory feature in reserve that would be triggered if the voluntary controls do not work." He indicated that there were still problems with the bill that would have to be solved.

Tucker gave an outline of what he believes Carter's national health care plan will contain. Major points were: Those on welfare or jobless will be in a different category than those able to pay for coverage, the plan will mainly use existing health insurance companies, and people able to pay something but find it financially impossible because of unusual circumstances will be provided for.

Without passing the social security bill last fall which provides funding for medicare and medicaid, Tucker said that the disability trust fund would have gone broke this November. In connection with that topic, the congressman said there is still debate on whether or not to use general income tax revenues to fund portions of health and disability rather than only payroll taxes.

Tucker urged each person to help change or pass health care legislation by contacting his state and national legislators and relate personal problems encountered in his work experiences.

Lois Malkemes, patient care administrator for the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in Little Rock, was keynote speaker for the one-day program.

Sponsors for the program included the Harding Department of Nursing, the Kellogg Foundation, the University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences College of Nursing and the Nursing Practitioner Conference Group of the Arkansas State Nurses Association.

Harding is currently incorporating the nurse practitioner program into the nursing curriculum.

Dr. Erle Moore, chairman of Harding's music department, conducts several of the college's music groups in the National Anthem during the annual Musicales, which was presented May 7. Participating groups were the Academy Chorus, A Cappella Chorus, Chorale, Campus Singers, Band and Orchestra.

More than 600 entries were submitted by colleges and universities in Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and New Mexico. Judging for the competition was conducted by professionals in the area of journalism, radio and television, graphic arts and photography.

Evangelistic Campaigns Conducted at Home and Abroad

Sharing, growing, fulfilling, living, giving — all of these are word associations made by Harding students when they were asked about "campaigns."

Approximately one fifth of the Harding student body, more than 500 persons, participate in organized evangelistic campaign work during the summer and at special times throughout the year.

The requirements for being a campaigner are few, but demanding: prepare for the work, devote time and energy, and in some cases, raise support. One way of preparation available to any person with a mission interest is the World Evangelism Forum. The Forum sponsors monthly meetings, open to all campaign groups, where missionaries from all over the world tell of their experiences.

While campaigners come from all majors and have diverse interests, they find a common denominator in their desire to share Christianity. "Any student," stressed L. V. Pfeifer, faculty advisor for International Campaigns, "can be involved in evangelistic efforts."

Over the years, five main areas of campaign work have developed: Spring Break Campaigns, May Campaigns, Northeast Campaigns, Northwest Campaigns and International Campaigns. Also, several independent groups will campaign this summer.

The type of schedule on each of the missions varies with location and situation but is basically the same for all. During the day, the workers distribute literature and knock doors. From these endeavors, Bible studies are often arranged and contacts are made. At night, a gospel meeting is usually held. Campaigns, in many cases, serve to encourage and strengthen the local congregation by drawing the members into the work.

SPRING BREAK CAMPAIGNS: Begun by Northeast Campaigns, the spring break campaigns are now also organized by some social clubs or groups of interested students. The break time gives students who cannot devote a summer an opportunity to do campaign work. In addition, many who do summer work also go on a spring campaign. This year, 215 students used the spring vacation, March 10-19, to work in Virginia, Arkansas, Iowa, Indiana, Texas, Kansas, Washington D.C., West Virginia, Tennessee and Missouri.

MAY CAMPAIGNS: Under the leadership of the College Church of Christ Mission Committee, the week-long May Campaign effort will focus on the Memphis area this year. The congregations, which will simultaneously conduct meetings with the evangelistic work, are Carpenter South, East Frayser, Holmes Road, Highland, Quince Road, Southaven and Sycamore View Road. The workers have spent time during the summer months in study and fellowship to ready themselves for the work. Meetings are held each week in the homes of host families from the College Church. Jim Woodroof, minister of the College Church, will coordinate the group of 160 students which will leave May 15.

NORTHEAST CAMPAIGNS: Twenty-five Harding students will join campaigners from Texas A & M, Oklahoma Christian College, Northeastern Christian Junior College and Freed-Hardeman College to conduct sessions in the Northeast United States. Three-week campaigns will be held May 21-June 9 in East Syracuse, New York; Danbury, Connecticut; Baltimore, Maryland; Zanesville, Ohio; and Utica, New York — June 11-30 in Willimboro, New Jersey; Augusta, Maine; and Levittown, Pennsylvania — July 2-21 in Warrenton, Virginia; North Attleboro, Massachusetts; Baltimore, Maryland and Lebanon, Pennsylvania — July 23-August 10 in Front Royal and Manassas, Virginia. Nine week campaigns will be conducted June 11-August 10 in Steubenville, Ohio; McMurray, Pennsylvania; Toledo, Ohio; Liverpool, New York and Willimboro, New Jersey. The Sylvan Hills congregation in North Little Rock oversees the campaign and Owen Olbricht is director. Jeff Jackson, a graduate student, is campus director. Before departing for their summer mission, the group will meet for a Bible encampment May 15-19 in Mitchell, Indiana.

NORTHWEST CAMPAIGNS: Those planning to spend 10 weeks in the Northwestern United States prepare for their summer work by meeting on Wednesday nights during the school year to study the Bible and review procedures for the campaign. Under the auspices of the Downtown Church of Christ in Searcy, 40 students will spend the summer with the Washington State congregations of Longview, Colville, Yakima, Olympia and Cheney. The program, now in its fourth year, is directed by Dr. Obert Henderson. He plans to move to the Northwest to work with a congregation and he will continue to work with the campaign program. Campus coordinator is Ron McCleary. The team will leave May 15 and spend the first week in Camp Yamhill, Oregon before beginning the first campaign.

INTERNATIONAL CAMPAIGNS: Students choosing to campaign abroad have the opportunity to travel to Australia, England, Scotland, Holland, Germany, Switzerland or Brazil. According to Don Shackelford, campus coordinator of the foreign missions, 68 people will campaign in Europe, eight in Brazil and 16 in Australia. While the European sites and Brazil have been visited before, this summer will be the first time a campaign from Harding has been located in Australia. The A Cappella Chorus takes part in the campaign on the European tour. The College Church of Christ oversees the program and advisors are Shackelford, Jack McKinney and L. V. Pfeifer. Other faculty members planning to accompany the group include Paul Pollard, Dr. Clifton Ganus III, Dr. Kenneth Davis, Craig Jones and Priscilla Hardin. International campaigns will be held May 17-July 4.

Operating separately from the International Campaigns, the Christian Communications Program is sponsoring a group to London, England this year. The campaign is part of the required curriculum for all CCP students. Campaigners must raise support for the two-week mission which will begin May 16. According to Ed Sanders, director of the CCP, 47 students and some of their wives will be making the trip. Eddie Cloer will also serve as faculty advisor. The group will be working with a newly formed church located in Streatham.

Another independent campaign, led by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Conley, will work in Caracas, Venezuela. The students are required to know the Spanish language and may obtain five hours of college credit. The 12 workers will depart May 15 for a seven week stay. They are under the advisorship of the College Church of Christ.

Jan Cox of Zionsville, Illinois and Nita Allen of Starkville, Mississippi encourage Kandy Muncy of Searcy as she prepares to donate blood at the spring blood drive. The annual drive collected 599 units of blood bringing the total donated from Harding for the year to more than 1,200 units.

Alumni Close-up

Television is Work for '47 Grad

His face may not be familiar to very many viewers, but Herb Lawrence is definitely a television personality. And his influence is felt daily in the programs he presents.

Lawrence (BA '47) is Instructional Administrator of the Arkansas Educational Television Network. As such, he is responsible for all in-school daytime broadcasting throughout the school year.

The former classroom instructor and administrator explained from his office at the station, located on the campus of University of Central Arkansas in Conway, that 80 percent of the schools in Arkansas use the educational network, a number considerably above the national average. Arkansas' stations cover the entire state and programming is available from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Lawrence started with the station in 1966 when 10 programs were being aired. In 1977, 50 series with each series having from four to 32 programs were used. Even with the increase, Lawrence feels that instructional television has just started its impact in Arkansas.

The station operates a film library and currently only about 40 percent of film requests can be serviced. A loan library is also being started.

The station has also acquired a mobile unit which can be taken to the field for more in-depth programming. Overall, Lawrence is excited about what can develop. "The things we can do in the television area make you want to see just what will develop," he notes.

More and more the station is producing programs and series. Others are leased from all parts of the nation.

The native Arkansan, whose hometown is McRae near Searcy, holds degrees from Peabody and the University of Arkansas. He also has done graduate work at the University of Colorado and Ball State University.

Mrs. Lawrence is the former Thelda Healy, who also graduated from Harding in 1947. She is a teacher in the Conway Middle School, but she plans to retire after one more year in the classroom.

They have two children. Herb Jr. is a lieutenant in the Army Signal Corps stationed in Germany. He is married and has a young son. The Lawrences are planning a visit to Germany this summer.

Daughter Lanette received a B.A. in English in spring commencement and her husband, Marshall Grate, received a B.S. in American Studies, both honor graduates at Harding.

This year, Ed Sewell returned, on a full time basis, to teaching the people he likes to teach best — teachers.

Sewell was chairman of the department of education for 12 years but decided that it was time for a change this school year, for the department and for himself.

He passed the chairmanship to Dr. Bobby Coker and directed his energies to the classroom. In addition to the courses he teaches, he supervises student teachers in eight weeks of required field work. This involves visiting the area schools as well as preparing the students for the task.

Sewell came to Harding in 1947 as principal of the Academy. He started teaching on the college level in 1952, left Harding to work on his doctorate at the University of Texas in 1953-54, and returned to stay at Harding except for a one-year term at Abilene Christian from 1960-61.

When asked what changes he has seen at Harding, Sewell donned a smile and reminiscent twinkle in his eye. "When I came, we had classes in the old science building, now the remodeled Olen Hendrix Building, and in Godden Hall. I feel like I know fewer students now. But some things are constant," said Sewell. "Human nature does not change and Harding students are taught eternal values. They (students in education) learn to love their students — probably the most important value of all."

During Sewell's tenure as department head, the area of education experienced growth and improvement. In the area of personnel, the teaching staff increased from seven to eleven, and the students increased with college growth, although the 37 percent of the student body now entering the teaching profession is less than when Sewell came. "This is good," commented Sewell, "because the demand for teachers is not what it was."

In the first year of his chairmanship, the combined education and psychology department was split. Speciality fields in kindergarten and elementary administration were developed. Two additional majors in educational media and special education with emphasis in mental retardation or specific learning disabilities are also now available.

During his chairmanship, Sewell encouraged students to become involved in the national education honor society, Kappa Delta Pi. In 1975 he was responsible for organizing the Nu Lambda chapter of the group. He and two Harding students attended the national convention of Kappa Delta Pi held in Chicago last April.

Harding had the largest chapter of the Student National Education Association for many years after the state organized the group and furnished more presidents and other officers for the organization on the state level than any other school in Arkansas. The scores of Harding students are consistently above the national average in most areas of the National Teacher's Examination.

Besides his ability in the classroom — Sewell was named Distinguished Teacher in 1967 and again in 1977 — the educator has interests in other areas.

Sundays are spent at the Pleasant Plains Church of Christ where he preaches two services. He has, in the past, preached at Brinkley, Enola and Surrounded Hill and has filled in summers for more than a dozen congregations in the area. Sewell is also a deacon at the College Church of Christ.

Among the professional groups he holds memberships in are the American Association for Higher Education, Alpha Chi, Arkansas Education Association, and Phi Delta Kappa professional education fraternity. He is a past president of both White County Schoolmasters and the Arkansas Department of Higher Education, and is in Who's Who in American Education. Sewell feels that one of his greatest professional honors was being asked to serve on the national Council for Accreditation of Teachers which works with some of the large colleges and universities in the country.

Ann, his wife and mother of their three children, is an assistant professor with the music department. His daughter Mary Ann teaches English in Irvine, California. Son Granville is an engineer in the Oakridge plant near Knoxville, Tennessee, and Kirk is a photographer in Springfield, Illinois, and the father of the Sewell's granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth.

The avid fisherman and pretty fair tennis player may have a little more time now to pursue his hobbies, which will include working in his garden and sponsoring the Beta Phi men's club on campus. "He's always been sort of a behind-the-scenes guy," said Doug Henneman, president of Beta Phi. "In our club issues he offers sound advice. He is eager to make friends and develop close student-teacher relationships."

Whether in or out of class, the teacher, Ed Sewell, educates by his example. He cares.

Bison Keglers Place Fifth in Two National Meets

In the space of two weeks, Harding College bowlers placed fifth in two separate national tournaments to culminate one of the team's most successful seasons.

On April 14-15, Coach Ed Burt's squad rolled to a fifth place finish in the 1978 NAIA national championships in Kansas City, Missouri and came back to record another fifth ranking in the National Collegiate Bowling Championships in Milwaukee, Wisconsin April 29-30.

"We were a little disappointed by our finish in the NAIA competition," Burt said, "but the Milwaukee tournament included the very best from all areas, colleges, universities and junior colleges from across the nation. I couldn't be prouder of a group of boys."

In the NAIA tourney, Harding was appearing for a record 14th time in the competition. Two Bisons, Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference champion Kevin Fisher of Florissant, Missouri and Bryan Davis of Tulsa, finished in the top ten in the individual finals. Fisher placed fifth with a 192 average on a 2,891 pinfall through the 15 games of the tournament. Davis averaged 187 with a 2,805 pinfall for ninth position.

Kevin Fisher

Teamwise, the Bisons were 7-8 in the team match play and rolled a 15,141 pinfall. St. Vincent College of Latrobe, Pennsylvania, a pre-tournament darkhorse, was the NAIA winner.

In addition to Fisher and Davis, those competing in Kansas City were Mike Bedwell of Sikeston, Missouri, Ron Wheeler of Ashtabula, Ohio and Danny Gerlach of Dallas.

At Milwaukee, Burt's keggers encountered a new competitive arrangement but Harding none the less rolled champion form.

Bryan Davis

The National Bowling Tournament used 12 games to qualify the top six teams for the finals on the basis of total pinfall. At the end of those 12 games, Harding was fourth with a 10,879 pinfall. The University of Minnesota was the tournament winner.

"The second section of the tournament was bowled in single line fashion," Burt explained. "In that format, each team member bowls alternate frames with the anchorman rolling the fifth and tenth frame of each game. Total pins determine the winner, but it generally results in lower scoring."

In the single line rolloff, Harding recorded a 2,083 scratch pinfall while Minnesota was rolling a 2,300 total.

Making up the five man team in Milwaukee were Fisher, Davis, Wheeler, David Mitchell of Garland, Texas and Mark Cramer of Jacksonville.

Coach Burt and his squad earned their position in the National Collegiate Bowling Championships by winning the regional section of the American Collegiate Unions International (ACUI) competition in Memphis, April 1.

Add all that together plus the 1978 Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference title and it was a very good year!

Sports Notes

Baseball coach Dick Johnson served as director of the NAIA District 17 Baseball Tournament in Conway May 12-14. . . Six Bison tracksters qualified for the NAIA National Track Meet in Abilene May 18-20. They are sprinter Daryl Bassett of Sylvan Hills, pole vaulter Perry Fraley of Phoenix, Ariz., triple jumper Bruce Baldwin of Jacksonville, Ill., and the mile relay unit of John Reece of Exton, Pa., Leon White of Little Rock, Cliff Parker of Dumas, Tex. and Bassett. . . Freshman Brent Taylor of Bartlesville, Okla. gained All-AIC honors with a second place finish in the conference and NAIA District 17 golf tournament. By vote of his teammates, freshman catcher Phil Rogers of Pine Bluff was named Most Valuable on this year's baseball team. MVP honors in basketball went to All-AIC guard Stan Eckwood of Brinkley. Coach Ph. Watkins' golfers set a new school record with an all-time low team total of 295 in a four team match April 17.

Coaches Name Moody, Ulrich To All-AIC Baseball Teams

Harding catcher-outfielder Mike Moody has been named to the All-Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference first team, according to Leroy Nix, league commissioner.

Sophomore shortstop Steve Ulrich was selected to the All-AIC second team by the conference coaches.

Moody, a 19-year-old freshman from Wake Village, Texas, leads the Bison team in hitting with a solid .389 average. Moody began the season at the catching position but was shifted to the outfield when injuries depleted the Bison outfielders.

"It's pretty unusual for a first year player to make the All-AIC team,"

Bison head coach Dick Johnson said, "but Mike has been a strong hitter for us, and people around the league know he's a fine hitter and a good all-around competitor."

Moody, in fact, was the only first year player to be included on the honor unit. The husky youngster has 21 hits in only 54 at bats. He has scored 11 runs and batted in six more.

Ulrich, a second year man at the shortstop position from Hanford, California, proved a year ago that he was all-star caliber with a fine freshman year when he was named All-AIC honorable mention.
