Summer Sessions '78

*A time of study and fun
for educational growth*

While summertime is usually thought of as a time of rest and relaxation, to an increasing number of students it is a time to get ahead or catch up on college work. In some cases, it is the time to just take a couple of courses for enjoyment.

Harding's campus in the summer is a site of much concentrated effort mixed with entertaining and enjoyable activities. Along with the two regular summer sessions which begin June 5 and July 10, respectively, numerous other programs are offered.

INTERSESSION

Interest in last year's Intersession, first ever held by the college, was such that the number of classes has been expanded by one-third for this summer. Intersession is a two week program of intense work for up to four hours of college credit.

"We had such a fine response from both the students and staff for the initial program that we decided to repeat it. A total of 143 students attended classes last year and a projected 200 will enroll this year," Dr. James Carr, summer session director, said.

Intersession will be May 15-31, with 13 days of intensified study per course. Students may earn up to four hours of credit from the area of art, Bible, biology, economics, English, marketing, math, physical education, physical science, political science, sociology and speech.

For the two regular sessions, according to Carr, the format will remain similar to those in previous years with more than 100 courses of study being offered. Students may take a maximum course load of 13 hours on the undergraduate level or 12 hours on the graduate level. Courses leading to the Master of Education degree will be offered during the entire ten-week program.

One distinct advantage of Intersession, Dr. Carr pointed out, is that a student can earn up to four hours of credit before June 1 and still be available for the summer job market before many other colleges have dismissed for the summer vacation.

SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Special academic programs in the summer sessions include an Advanced Studies Program for high school juniors, a Developmental Program for freshmen and three graduate courses in Bible designed primarily for preachers for graduate credit or audit.

"The summer session can be rewarding for many reasons. It provides an opportunity for recent high school graduates to become adjusted to the college setting," said Carr.

Qualified high school students who display evidence of ability to pursue successfully a college career are eligible to enroll in Harding's Advanced Studies Program. To participate in the program, a student must have at least 12 academic units of high school credit and must have maintained a B average.

Students have the opportunity to enroll in courses not available at the secondary level. Credit may be used toward a degree at Harding or may be accepted at other accredited colleges or universities. Almost a third of one's freshman year may be completed prior to high school graduation.

Advanced Studies participants may take 8 to 12 hours of credit during the 10-week summer sessions. Students who enroll for only one five-week session may earn a maximum of six hours of credit.

For the past several summers Harding has offered a Developmental Program for a limited number of students who were unable to meet the college's admissions standards. The primary purpose of the program is to assist students in strengthening their academic skills and preparing themselves for further college study.

"This is an opportunity for a person who has not performed well in high school to prove himself in a college setting. Every resource of the college will be made available to help such a student realize his full capabilities," Dr. Carr said. "For a student who is just beginning to realize his ability to achieve, this program can be incentive needed to successfully complete a college education."

A maximum of 40 students will be enrolled in courses in English and mathematics. The enrollment in each class will be limited to 20 students. A student may earn a maximum of 10 hours of credit during the 10-week session. Students who successfully complete the program may enroll for regular academic courses in the fall semester.

Teachers in the Developmental Program have been selected because of their special interest in helping students overcome education deficiencies. Each student is assigned to a faculty advisor who will assist him in making a satisfactory adjustment to college. Students will also receive special tutorial help in developing study and reading skills.

Summer activity ranges from academic classes, held outdoors on

GRADUATE BIBLE COURSES

Three Bible courses are being offered this summer for the first time. Designed primarily for preachers, the courses will be offered on a two-week course with classes meeting for extended periods each day. The courses, each to be taught by Avon Malone of the Bible faculty, are Prison Epistles, I and II Thessalonians, Galatians, I and II Timothy and Titus, June 5-16; Selected Letters of Philippians, Ephesians, Colossians and Philemon from June 19-30 and General Epistles, James, I and II Peter, I, II and III John and Jude to be offered July 24-Aug. 4. Each will carry three hours of credit or may be audited.

The classes will meet from 8-11 a.m. with break at 9:30 a.m. and from 1-4 p.m. with a 2:30 p.m. break. "This is an excellent opportunity for students to receive up to nine hours of graduate credit as three hours of credit may be earned in each 12-day course," Carr said.

EARLY ORIENTATION

For new students or transfers an early orientation program is offered. This provides the newcomer an occasion, to special dinners where faculty and staff members wait on tables, to just relaxing on the lawn on a warm afternoon.

opportunity to become acquainted with the campus and prepare for his classes by counseling with faculty members. The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) is also given at this time. Dates for the two sessions are June 8-9 and July 9-11.

RECREATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

Each summer there are recreational and entertainment activities to break the routine. These have come to be a meaningful part of summer school, just as the accelerated academic work is.

North Central Arkansas provides an ideal opportunity to participate in quality summer learning experiences and also to enjoy the great outdoors. Harding, at the foothills of the Ozarks, is only one-half to three hours traveling time from many outstanding recreational areas such as Greer's Ferry Lake, Blanchard Caverns, Ozark Folk Center, Hot Springs National Park, Boston Mountains and Petit Jean State Park. The state parks have developed many camping areas and other places to accommodate tourist travel.

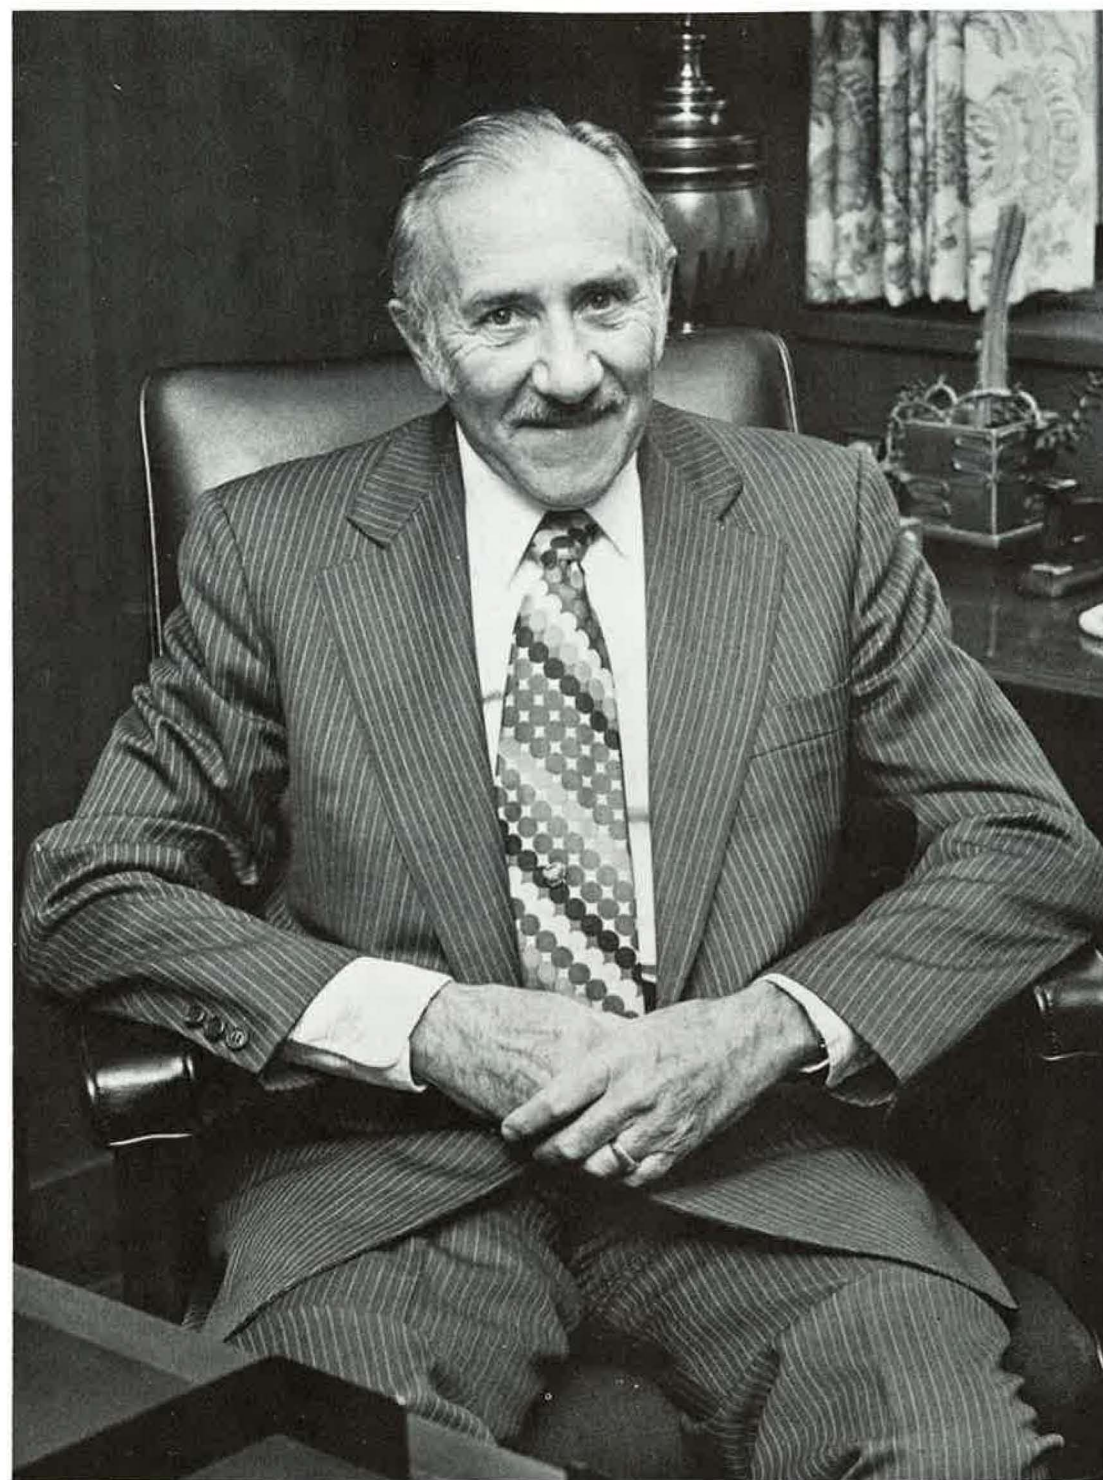

Float trips on the renowned Buffalo River in the Arkansas Ozarks are popular weekend events. This area is one of the last frontiers of wild natural beauty in mid-continent America. Buffalo River country is two hours from the campus.

There are opportunities for trips to Memphis and Little Rock and special candlelight buffet dinners are served by faculty and staff members in the College cafeterias.

Many recreational facilities are available in the Searcy area and on the campus itself. The program includes outdoor activities which families may enjoy, summer sports activities and social and entertainment events. The Athletic-Physical Education Center offers a swimming pool, handball courts, weight room and gymnastics facilities. Also located on campus are tennis courts, bowling lanes and softball fields.

Earnest efforts are made to assist students during the summer session so that the fast pace of academic work will not be the only force of the two sessions.

Summer school at Harding is an enriching experience.

G. Preston Kendall
1977 Trustee Award

Board of Trustees Honors G. Preston Kendall Sr.

Harding has chosen G. Preston Kendall Sr., chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Washington National Insurance Company of Evanston, Illinois, to receive the Trustee Award for 1977. In bestowing the honor, the Trustees have selected a man whose family and companies have long been associated with Harding.

President Clifton L. Ganus and Board Chairman Roy Sawyer of Sardis, Mississippi, made the presentation of the honor to Kendall at his home office in Chicago.

Dr. Ganus said, "I am very glad the Harding Board of Trustees has honored G. Preston Kendall with its 1977 Trustee Award. I have known and appreciated him for many years. He is a good businessman and a fine American who loves his country and supports the basic principles that have made it great. We are grateful for his personal friendship and his longtime support of Harding." The Trustees make the award annually to an outstanding American citizen and friend of the college.

Kendall, a graduate of the University of Illinois, joined Washington National in 1931. He has been a director of many institutions and organizations including the State National Bank of Evanston, the Evanston Hospital, Evanston United Community Services, Institute of Life Insurance and Evanston Chamber of Commerce. Other memberships he holds are in the Mental Health Association of greater Chicago, National College of Education Associate, Optimist Club, Insurance Economics Society and Bankers Club of Chicago.

With Washington National he has held various offices after beginning as a clerk in the Industrial Audit Division. Later he transferred to the Group Department field and industrial field. He became assistant manager of the Ordinary Underwriting Department in 1936 and in 1937 he was promoted to manager of Industrial Policy Issue. Succeeding promotions were to Agency Secretary, Assistant Treasurer, Board of Directors, Second Vice President and Assistant Treasurer, Secretary, Vice President and Secretary, Executive Vice President and Secretary and President, assuming that office in 1963.

Since that time he has been made Chairman of the Finance Committee, President and Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board.

He and his wife, the former Helen Hilliard, have three children and ten grandchildren.

Kendall Hall, a women's residence dormitory erected on the Harding campus in 1961, was named for George R. Kendall, father of Preston Kendall. A loan fund established by the late George R. Kendall is available annually for students. H. R. Kendall, uncle of the Trustee award winner, provided a fund to assist students majoring in Bible and religion.

The men have long been associated with Washington National Insurance Company, a business founded in 1911 by the Kendalls as a small insurance company in Springfield, Illinois, known as Washington Accident Insurance Company. That company, 65 years later, is known now as the Washington National Insurance Company, one of the largest life and health insurance companies in the nation. □

Lipscomb President Awarded Honorary Doctorate

Willard Collins [center], president of David Lipscomb College, receives the honorary doctor of laws degree from Harding president, Clifton Ganus. Mrs. Collins accompanies her husband on stage after the commencement address.

Harding bestowed the honorary Doctor of Laws degree on Willard Collins, president of David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tennessee, during winter commencement exercises Dec. 16 in which Collins was the speaker.

President Clifton L. Ganus Jr., called Collins "the most deserving man we could honor" and said the educator was chosen as "a great servant of the Lord." Mrs. Collins stood with her husband as he received the award from Dr. Ganus.

Collins addressed the 104 graduates on "Challenges for 1978 and Beyond" in which he charged the seniors to keep sacred things sacred. "Almighty God has revealed to us sacred things," he said, "and too many people are changing them to profane and common things." He used Matthew 19 in citing six avenues of Christ-given principles for a nation's strength.

Collins recalled the common roots of Harding and Lipscomb, noting that each was named for great Bible scholars of this century. James A. Harding and David Lipscomb were founders of Nashville Bible School and both were recognized leaders in Christian education.

A native of Lewisburg, Tennessee, Collins attended Lipscomb when it was a two-year college. He holds the bachelor of arts and the master of arts degrees from Vanderbilt University.

He has served as minister of the Old Hickory Church of Christ and Charlotte Avenue Church of Christ and since 1955 has preached in part-time evangelistic work.

For the past 31 years he has served as vice president of Lipscomb, assuming the presidency last September at the resignation of Athens Clay Pullias.

Many parents and friends were on hand for the second winter commencement held by the college. Seven were awarded the master of education degree, 60 received the bachelor of arts and 37 the bachelor of science. The ceremony marked the official closing of the fall semester which saw a record 2,841 enrollment.

CHILDREN HONOR PARENTS WITH PORTER LOAN FUND

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Porter of Magnolia received an early Christmas gift from their three children in what was one of the biggest surprises the offspring have ever pulled on their parents.

Jimmie (Mrs. Bill) England of Searcy, Hilda (Mrs. Roy) Vanderpool of Ft. Smith and Calvin Porter of Magnolia have established a student loan fund at Harding in honor of their parents, and the presentation was made in a carefully executed plot with the Harding student body in attendance.

The trio had collaborated with the college administration to arrange the details of the fund. A method of getting the Porters to Searcy for the announcement involved a bit of strategy.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter were called to Searcy by the college "to consult on a financial matter," a scheme arranged by Floyd Daniel, vice president at Harding. Porter is a Certified Public Accountant. When Daniel invited the Porters to attend chapel, the unsuspecting victims attended as mere guests.

The secret was out when suddenly on stage appeared most of the Porter family, including grandchildren and in-laws. With Jimmie presiding, the Porters were told of the gift.

Daniel explained the fund, which will be available at the beginning of the 1978 fall semester wherein students may make application for the money. Students must have reached the junior or senior level and first preference will be given to married students.

Porter has served since 1965 as a member of the Harding President's Development Council, and the family has been lifetime supporters of the college. Both Jimmie and Hilda are alumni of Harding.

DEC COMPUTER RECOGNIZED IN MAGAZINE ADVERTISEMENT

A full page ad in a recent issue of Time magazine pinpointed Harding College as an example of a computer company's working product.

The Digital Equipment Corporation of

Atlanta, Georgia, suggested Harding as proof that small colleges need not think small "when it comes to educational computers . . ."

The ad noted that Harding, in addition to administrative work, handles academic tasks in business, science, education, psychology and nursing. Plans are being made for the computer's expansion into the Academy.

Harding added the DEC 11/45 computer in the summer of 1975 for use in administrative functions.
