Robert Millikan To Speak Here On March 5

Famed Winner Of Nobel Prize Will Lecture On 'Two Supreme Elements In Human Progress'

Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, renowned scientist and author of California Institute of Technology, will speak at Harding College at 8:00 p.m., March 5. His subject will be "The Two Supreme Elements in Human Progress."

Dr. Millikan is a Nobel Prize winner and recipient of many honors for his contributions to science, particularly in the field of atomic physics. He has done research in the areas of x-rays and cosmic rays.

The application papers, which include numerous reports on all phases of Harding's application, are now being studied. The inspectors will either accept or reject Harding college's application to membership in the Association.

The decision will be reached and communicated to Harding as soon as possible.

Script Writer Joins National Education Staff

Mr. Gene Hurley, a script writer, has joined the Harding college staff to write full time for the college radio program, 'Land of the Free.' Mr. Hurley has written plays for television, radio, and the stage, and has traveled about the country to gather information for the biographical sketches on this program.

Turman Appointed To Supervise Campus

Elbert Turman, former chief engineer of the College for the last four years.
TO STUDENTS AND FACULTY:

In our faculty we find a group of self-sacrificing persons of noble ideals and great visions. In our faculty we find people who have turned down salaries much higher than those they are receiving as instructors in Harding college. In our faculty we find people who are interested in students as individuals, not merely as a mass of humanity into which some learning must be forced. In our faculty we find people who are trying to live as Christians. But in our faculty we find faults—for our faculty members are just human.

Yet we wonder if there is not still another point to be mentioned.

Although Harding faculty members are not required to attend Monday Night meetings, this requirement is stated in the catalog so that all prospective Hardingites know in advance of this requirement. Yet many do not attend. Dr. Mattox, dean of men, stated in chapel last week that we can hardly expect when we come to Harding knowing of these requirements and then do not obey them. And he is correct.

Yet we wonder if there is not still another point to be mentioned.

Monday Night meetings are a part of Harding college. They serve to create the environment for which many of us came.

Lay down your BISON now and ask yourself this question: “Am I living up to the full obligations I have accepted?”

Re-Prints—from days gone by—

October 8, 1847—

He was going to be all that mortal should be, TOMORROW.

But no one would be better than he, TOMORROW.

Each morning he stacked up the letters he’d write, TOMORROW.

It was too bad indeed he was too busy to see BILL.

But he promised to do it, TOMORROW.

The greatest of workers this man would have been TOMORROW.

The world would have known him had he ever seen TOMORROW.

But the fact is that he died and failed from view,

And all that was left when living was through

Was a mountain of things he intended to do, TOMORROW.

November 5, 1947—

Duth, I came to apply for da job ya got advertised, a real typical Frosch, as he stood before the window at the post office in the ad, building. “Why, I didn’t even know we had a job advertised,” exclaimed the postmistress. The freshman looked puzzled and said, “Well, I thought ya did, there’s a sign right here that says ‘WANTED—SWINDLER’.

OF THE WEEK

IN WHAT WAYS CAN MONDAY NIGHT MEETING BE IMPROVED?

LeRoy O’Neal: By letting the students select the subject.

Betty Thompson: By having it in the middle of the week.

Speedy Moore: The subject for the following Monday night should always be announced previous to the coming Monday.

Sue Hogg: Make the speeches shorter.

James Walker: They should choose some Bible subject pertaining to the students.

Norma Keeling: Have more singing.

Nolan Lemmon: More variety in the presentation of the program.

Wilton Pate: Question and answer type program, have the faculty ask questions and have the students answer the questions.

Marilynn McChuggage: More student co-operation.

Dick Foltz: A larger group of people taking part.

Alice Ann Hawkins: Better prepared speeches. Several of the extemporaneous speeches are good, but some of them should have had more preparation.

Clemie Johns: By having everyone want to improve them.

... Your Library Speaks...
—By Evelyn Morris—

One of the fastest growing and most beneficial fields of study which our school offers is the field of psychology. We commend our library in its efforts to help in the study of these interests. Among the many volumes your library has is one in which Robert J. Watson attempts to demonstrate the clinical method of the psychologist, its nature and historical background, its application in various settings, its use in diagnosis and prognosis, and its use in treatment. His book, READINGS IN THE CLINICAL METHOD IN PSYCHOLOGY, is divided into four parts—the clinical method, the functions of the psychologist, diagnostic methods, and methods of treatment. Each of these parts is broken down and discussed. Considerable attention has been paid to the psychologist since one cannot appreciate the significance of the clinical method without knowledge of the setting. Other books in the same field are ANALYTIC PSYCHOLOGY, Foulkes; EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY, Crow and Crow; CHARACTERISTICS OF ADOLESCENCE, Sondell; and CASE HISTORIES IN CLINICAL AND ABNORMAL PSYCHOLOGY, edited by Arthur Burton and Robert E. Harris.

LISTEN! THE WIND, by Anne Morrow Lindbergh, gives a true and accurate account of various flights of Lindbergh. It includes his flight around the North Atlantic Ocean in 1933 and his flight from Africa to South America in which his purpose was to study the air-routes between the Eastern and Western hemispheres across the Atlantic. The book is written in vividly picturesque descriptions and includes maps of the flights.

Your library has recently received HIS FAMILY, first winner of the Pulitzer prize. In this writing Ernest Poole tells a strong and compelling story of Roger Gale and his three daughters. It gives a memorable picture of the growth of the new generation of the old in the changing heart of New York. The theme of this novel is a new one for the writer; it is that of the story of Roger’s dying wife made so clear to him, that whatever life may bring, “we will live on in our children’s lives.”

Think On These Things...
by Victor Broaddus

GOLD WORTH WHILE
One hundred years ago, in 1849, the newly formed little town of El Dorado swelled with the coming of 80,000 new immigrants to find gold in California. The results of this great gold rush were not to bring peace and contentment to many; but to the contrary, it brought lawlessness and bloodshed. During that year, all America could think of nothing else, and all eyes were looking westward.

One hundred years have passed since then, and those old frontiers have passed on and men are looking for new ones. Some seem to think of war as a new frontier, while others still continue to be dissatisfied with each other and continue to stir discord among brethren.

One frontier which is still with us and will never be exhausted has been with us for almost 2000 years now. Yet someone needs to discover the great gold that is contained therein and begin a new ‘49 gold rush to the great truth as found in the word of God. Eyes of all the world need to look upward; and the results will bring a peace and contentment only found “out of this world.”

Moola—I always like to spring this one on everyone, "You should be in our catanatomy class." Everyone gasps as they hear this scientific bit of nonsense. With an amazing look on their face, they always ask, "What in the world is that?" Imagine their consternation when I replied, "Naw, my brother bane got a cattle trench over there and my cousin bane got a sheep trench down there but too cold here for monkey trench."

Cabbage—As we were sitting in Physics class the other day, a little squirrel appeared out of nowhere and jumped down off a cabinet. Everyone looked amazed but I knew why he had come in. He thought that we were nuts.

Green back—a teacher received a letter from a young friend, a pupil, signed, "Your little fiend, Tom."

Do-re-mi—After taking a look at the formula for caffeine in our organic class, Bill Williams said, "No wonder it keeps you awake."

Sugar—Waiting for class to begin at the science annex, Don Horn was talking to Tom Oblivious and said, "What class are you going to, Tom?" Tom replied, "Bro. Pryor's Survey class."

You know, the "survey with the fringe on top."

My lot... a gay one,
Until love came.
And now
My lot... a shy one,
Like gentle rain.
Not torrents of emotion,
But curious and wide-eyed thoughts
That peep into devotion
And touch the realm of bliss.

MOOD OF NIGHT
Lamp light shining on a slick, wet street...
Crystal raindrops add their own gay chime...
Winds provide for shadows dancing feet...

Academy News
Miss Eileen Snure who directs the Academy dramatic club has announced that the senior play “Princess and the Swineherd” will be presented in the near future.

“King Bingo is seldom dignified, but overdoes it,” said Miss Snure in describing the characters. “Queen Caroline is a bit stupid perhaps, but she is really perfectly adorable. Princess Potentielo is just as pretty as she can be, and perhaps she is a trifle spoiled, but of course we love her in spite of it.”

SENIORS UPSET FAVORED FRESHMEN FOR CLASS BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

An unheralded Senior squad came off the ropes with a resounding last-period rally that earned them a 54 to 46 victory over a favored Freshman team Thursday in the finals of the annual Class Cage Tourney, and gave Harding sportsdom its biggest upset of the year.

The new champs racked up 25 points in the fourth period after they had lagged behind by eight points entering the final quarter. Doug Lawyer, Norm Webb added three and Starling gave Harding its sportsdom its biggest upset of the year.

Inability to hit their free throws threatened to thwart the Seniors in their fourth bid for a campus cage title. They connected on just 6 out of 27, tailed 17 points to take scoring honors. Allison garnered 15, and Ron Smith 9 for the Frosh, while Lawyer sunk 14, Charles Bauer 13, and Joe Webb 13 for the Seniors. Webb and Bauer paced the winners in floor play with brilliant defensive work and set up many of the winning offensive drives.

The Seniors took an 8-4 lead after one frame, only to see the Frosh surge out in front with points entering the final quarter. They had lagged behind by eight points entering the final quarter. Allison who sparked a third quarter rally which enabled the Frosh to come back fiercely, but the score failed to adjust itself evenly for the half time score read 30 to 26. From this point on it was the freshman maintaining a slight edge all the way.

The agile and versatile Ken Istre starred in the role of scoring as he accounted for fourteen points in all. "Chick" Allison was a close second as he racked up thirteen markers as otherwise, Gass played a stand-out game under the basket as well as defensively.

Freshmen Take Juniors For First in Class Tourney

After establishing an eight point lead during the first quarter, a well organized and smooth operating quintet went on to hold the lead and eked out a well earned victory over the strong Junior representatives 56 to 50. During the second quarter a revamped Junior team came striking back fiercely, but the score failed to adjust itself evenly for the half time.

Servers Become Volleyball Champs In Exciting Game

A starting Server squad became the season's volleyball champions by taking two consecutive games from the Spikers and the Blockers. Both playoff deadlock between three teams. During the season the Spikers defeated the Blockers, while the Blockers dropped the Servers who in turn whipped the Spikers for each team's only defeat.

The Blockers drew a bye, so the Servers and Spikers fought it out in one of the best games of the season. Both teams saw their opponents many times equalize the score and surge ahead and games were brought about by a this was the case as the Servers came from behind to take the initial set 15 to 13.
