"We
The men and women who make the programs spread our joy with cheerful and helpful people. They also help people with a need for getting through the day and for getting through the rest of their life.

To the people who have won for democracy and for religion, and for better life in the future, I cannot express this too much. They offer very definite inspirations and fill the void for the individual. Hobbies are also educational things for the young people who want to get away from the monotonous routines of daily living.

At least one rather scholarly doctor is Iowa who has turned the hobby of preservation into a rather profitable venture. I correspond with many of these people and ask them about the world they really think of being able to do something in the field of science and philosophy.

One radio dramatist of my acquaintance sends his dramatizations through the mail to his school friends. Many of these friends in Miami spend their space time listening to the radio.
