Roe Explains The Trials Of Minor Loop Ball Playing

BY NICHOLAS EVANS

"Don't call it a minor league. Those words are too soft for what this game is all about. We're talking about baseball at its most raw, most brutal, most desperate."

The game is loop ball, a variant of baseball played in the southern United States, particularly in Arkansas, with a smaller field and no home runs. Loop ball is considered to be the most physically demanding form of baseball, with players running constantly and fielding balls that are hit with a higher bounce than in traditional baseball.

"It's a game where you can get hurt in a single play. The balls are tough to catch, and the field is wide. You have to be in shape to play this game."

"And it's a game of survival. You're not just playing against the other team, you're playing against the ball. You have to be quick, you have to be tough."

Roe, a former minor loop ball player, describes the game as one of constant motion and intense physical activity. "You're always on your feet, always on the run. You have to be ready to react to any ball that comes your way."

"This is a game of heart and soul. It's not just about winning, it's about survival."

The story of loop ball is one of struggle and determination, a testament to the resilience of the players who choose to participate in this grueling sport.

BELL and RAINIE Selected to Head Freshman Edition of Bison-Cone

Bill Bell of Pine Bluff and Rainie Cone of Little Rock, Arkansas, have been selected as the editors-in-chief of the Freshman Edition of the University of Arkansas student newspaper, the Bison-Cone.

Bell, a junior in biology, and Cone, a sophomore in English, have been working together to lead the newspaper's Freshman Edition for the past year.

The Freshman Edition is a special section of the newspaper that is dedicated to covering stories and events that are of particular interest to first-year students.

"We're really excited to be able to take on this role," said Bell. "We want to make sure that the Freshman Edition is a place where first-year students can get their voices heard."

"We're looking forward to working together to create something that is truly unique and special," said Cone.

The Freshman Edition will be published on a weekly basis and will feature articles, columns, and features that are written and produced entirely by first-year students.

Cone also noted that the Freshman Edition will have a particular focus on diversity and inclusion, as well as mental health and well-being.

"We want to make sure that the Freshman Edition is a space where all students can feel welcome and supported," said Cone.

The Freshman Edition will also feature regular columns on issues such as academic success, campus life, and cultural events.

"We think that the Freshman Edition is a really important part of the university community," said Bell.

"We're looking forward to working with the students in the Freshman Edition to create something that is truly unique and special."
Resolutions Take Will Power

In a chapel speech this week, Dean Sears made the point that we are all starting this quarter with clean slates. Our past grades are history. We can do nothing about them, but we can do something about our future work.

It seems resolutions at the beginning of a quarter are somewhat of a tradition. The familiar, "I'm going to get all my outside reading in this quarter so I won't have to worry about it," is heard in every corner.

Everyone starts out real well. They are fresh and enthusiastic. They are really in their vein. Then, they gradually find themselves getting behind and in place of working that much harder, they slack off and say, "What's the use?"

The useful thing about resolutions is that they can be kept. So you have a fresh start every quarter that you are not going to get behind and every quarter you have cleared behind. That wasn't the fault of the resolution. It was your own fault.

What's the matter with you? I don't think there's isn't something magically in resolutions themselves. They take good work hard to knock them up. Resolutions become realities only when they have the will power behind them.

Every plan you use the best thing to keep in mind is that twelve weeks, no matter how long they sound, are just twelve weeks long.

It's All Yours, Freshmen

The freshmen edition of the Bison which is next week will prove, we hope, a challenge to all fresh with literary inclinations. This edition is an old tradition with Harding and for years freshmen have been putting out each week's Bisons, terrible slabs, and occasionally failing to put out a Bisons at all.

It should be an incentive to each freshman to help make next week's page as exciting and well-written as this one. If you have any free time, drop in at the Gargoyle office. We'd be glad to have you.

The Gargoyle office is in the basement of the Administration Building.

How Shall We Believe?

By Cecil May, Jr.

Bro. Loyer, the preacher for the especially few first schools I have ever had at Arkansas, was asked to preach in his place, if he did not come.

In the singing of the second song, however, we were notified that he had come in, so I was able to hear the good sermon. He began by apologizing for being absent the last week, and stated in Mason, Tennessee, that morning, in going home, that he had some responses to his sermon which necessitated his remaining in Mason until after two 'clock for a baptism. But, as he said, "I don't mind being late for a good sermon. I confessedly likes to baptize 'em any better than I do." He then mentioned a time just recently, when he had broken the ice on a pond for that purpose.

Then he began his sermon. And it was a good one—old-time preaching of the old-time gospel story, filled with hony anecdotes and references to past debates to illustrate his points. It was what many people call hard preaching, but it was preached in a spirit of love which no one could misunderstand.

That night, fifteen students from the local schools in Mason, Tennessee, and high school age, and six women—plus Bro. Loyer's own children, as clerks, as children will, but the preaching was such that it produced a fist-full of water, even or even part-time adults. Many of those boys work without pay, and very few of them are paid very much more than they take, to transport their highways, and they will always welcome your encouragement.

In answering the challenge of posting preaching opportunity which has been asked of me, I have a place to preach, consult that map and see what the preaching opportunities are in this area. Perhaps they need a preacher even more than you need a preaching enthusiasm. There are MANY OPPORTUNITIES FOR STARTING NEW CONGREGATION.

McCallough, Lucille Hancock of Wildins, Kana, was married recently. She is formerly of Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Fryer have moved from Palmouth, Ky., to Cincinnati, O. They have a new baby boy. Mrs. Fulbright was our second grade teacher earlier in the year.

Bob Lumbree, Stringfellow, Paragould, has returned from Korea.

Betty Joe Johns, ex '62, is engaged to Glenn Squires, ex '60, of Carthage, Texas. They are to be married June 1.

Grade School

Grade Seven

Last Thursday afternoon was a big day in the lives of some of the grade school students. They were my homecoming was a grade school student. Seeing all the equipment was wonderful. It was a day to remember the life that was good. It was a day to look towards the world by song. We sang "The First of the County, Minnie Lee" and "Red Robes was the answerer."

In chapel we had a big list of good programs. One of the highlights was a concert that came in and sang for us.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Pulfrey have a new baby boy, and Mrs. Robert Dedmon and fish. They are the fish. It is a fish with the flu and other illnesses.

Some of the best's have been out with the fish and other illnesses.

Some of our boys have been out with the flu and other illnesses.

This week begins a new quarter of school, which is the final one of the year.

Honor Student Compares Harding-Kent

By Don Garner

Editor's Note: This column was written by former Harding student Don Garner, who graduated from Harding and now lives in the area. He has been very active in student work here and there, as well as in various aspects of the Harding College Campus Players. The dramatic program has fulfilled the needs of the students here and elsewhere. The students here have been a favorite of his. He has helped them and they have been equal to their task as a place does inferior work in every field.

He is so busy, I don't know if it was a place does inferior work in every field. He is so busy, I don't know if it was a place does inferior work in every field.

"Let's stay beyond the presentations, across the footlights, and into the world of reality says Gerald Kendrick, former Harding student. That is exactly what the dramatic program has fulfilled the needs of the students here and elsewhere. The students here have been a favorite of his. He has helped them and they have been equal to their task as a place does inferior work in every field.

You all know that the Glenn Pulfrey have a TRIO of their own. Thursday, you saw Don Garner's one-act play "The Addict" and Friday the Barter Theatre's presentation of "The Merchant of Venice." There is a difference in the two plays, but both are happy that you enjoyed those plays.

Special credit goes to Kay Wright and Elizabeth Lindsey for playing the music for "The Addict." It was a strong factor in the play which was well chosen. Kay was also stage manager for the one act.

The Academy has started working on their first set production, it will be "Our Miss Brooks" adapted from the original material of J. R. Major "It had been a favorite of his. He has helped them and they have been equal to their task as a place does inferior work in every field.

The Bison has always had a unique set-up for its drama participants. At Harding students have gone into the highest honor by means of dramatic club, the Campus Players, and the National Alpha Psi Omega. With an idealistic setup such as this, there is always an important part for every person. However, at the Barter, the students are active members of the Barter Theatre. At Harding, they do have more talent, and there are more talented members of the Barter Theatre. But I sincerely believe that the talent they have is better than that.
