I Could Write A Sonnet About An Easter Bonnet

By TOM NELSON

What in the world is that racket behind the screen.
Just what is going on in that room?

That thing on your head. Are you sure it's safe?

Suddenly it quickens pace

"That's my hat new."

She took a last look in the big mirror.

Just in time, I thought.

I opened the door.

"Do you like my hat?"

That thing on your head. Are you sure it's safe?

Suddenly it quickens pace

"That's my hat new."

In the office of the International Relations Committee, the phone rang and the receptionist answered. "The Harding delegation is on the phone."

What do you think should be the functions of a college newspaper?

By WARREN BRYANT

To the editor,

The student body of the college is working on the project of establishing a college newspaper. We are in the process of formulating a proposal to present to the administration for the establishment of a college newspaper.

John S. Moore

One of the main goals of the newspaper is to inform the students of the activities of the college.

David Porter

"To let the students know what is going on next week."

Beverly Butler

"To give the students an opportunity to vote on their opinions."

Ann Dunn

"I think a newspaper should be so used that the students will look forward to its publication."

There are several possible functions that would be to the students' thinking on local and national events.

Joe Matzen

"To supply the students with a place to gripe."

Joe Ricks "Ditto."

Barbara Johnson

"I think there should be a stage to Wally (DATING WHO?

Jerry Berry

"To bring the kids up to date on everything that is happening on campus."

Ken Childs

"To let the students know what happened last week and to keep them informed on the next week's events."

Victor Rhodes

"To help us become better acquainted with the different majors and schools of the children.""~ Harold Saunders

"A college newspaper should be enlightening, educational and something to keep the interest of all."

--- P.M. 11:30

In the preceding two verses (11-12) we learn that God is the parent of all children, and we should be happy for the chastening that he brings to bear upon us, for he who has found a treasure—possibly when he least expected it—under the chastening of the Lord. David and his sons were given the privilege of being God’s house of correction to be a school of instruction.

The man who finds Wisdom is the man who found the "hidden treasures." But there is a definite difference in the approach, for one stumbles upon it, while the other is the result of an earnest desire. It is like partaking with all who have or possess to purchase the "pearl of great price," or with the fishermen who are paid to gain it, who have counted hundreds of times, but only once in a million does it rise as the great "pearl" to be purchased by counting these as loss: "For of how much is the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord?"

We say heavenly Wisdom when we refer to the Bible, which is the experience of all Jewish, outlook, all wealth, and for it is certainly the only true riches.

In conclusion, we can say that with the availability of material wealth is temporary, that which the Bible is, which is more...
