Assignment Harding Intellectual Giant Yields Philosophy: Food-Women-Song

By JIMMY LYONS

Most articles are written Ritchie announced. by adults, about adults, for adolescents, for adults. It concerns nothing, reveals nothing, and goes absolutely nowhere. Nevertheless, it is a most profound work. Go on. Something has got to be done for Don Underwood. That boy is positively wasting away to nothing. Don't know what's the mat ter. At first I felt like he wasn't getting enough to eat . . . but that's rediculous . . . isn't it? Well? Anyway, knowing that he does have an uncommon capacity for eating, Mrs. Hart and I discussed the possibility of serving Don larger helpings. Yes we did . . . we just discussed and discussed. It looked hopeless for awhile but we finally came up with a solution. We spent all one afternoon in the kitchen grinding down the plates so the meals would look bigger. Underwood hasn't complained since . . or if he has, he's ungratful. Personally, I think all this complaining about the food is out of place. If you don't get enough you can always run out for a bite Butler, Virginia Dykes, Juanita Dr. John P. Frank

An Open Letter George Chung Expresses Opinion On Scholarship Of Foreign Students

> (An article appeared in the Bison a few weeks ago regarding the native educational background, feeling of personal responsibility and the scholarship of foreign students at Harding. As a sequence to this article, the following letter was received from George Chung, one of Harding's "foreign students" who graduated in January).

'I have read with interest the views of some foreign students Ford Foundation's Fund for t Harding about the reasons why they can obtain a high scholarship the Advancement of Educarecord. Since you have mentioned my name and said that my tion, it was announced this opinion was not available, I would like to volunteer and give my thoughts regarding studies and scholarship to my Harding friends as supplement to your article.

"First, I do not claim that the foreign educational method is far superior to the one used in America. I think each country has her own problems, and her educational method or system is to meet and help to solve these problems. I am not an education major, but I think at least this is one of the functions that education plays. do agree that my early training in the schools I have atended in my country and particularly at home helps in a way that I can think properly and can concentrate better in my daily studies.

"Secondly, I agree to what you have said about determination to a certain extent, that not only we foreign students are conscious of the fact that we are the ambassadors of good will representing our respective mother countries, but we have the determination to leave our homes and folks to come to America to study. The will power plays an important role in attaining good scholarship records.

"Thirdly, I want to say it jokingly, perhaps the competition is not very keen at Harding. The average Harding student does not come to school to study for grades.

'The above thre points are given according to my own experience. They are open to criticism and I welcome anyone to discuss this topic further. I am sure this will enable us to find the truth. "Hoping that all of you are enjoying your school work at dear old Harding, though to some not the grades. Closing my letter with my last thought, it is not what we learn and what good grades we can get from school that are important, but what we have learned and can put into practice is important."

We Present The Frosh Bison To You

Another year, another freshman Bison. Here it is, upperclassmen. We present it to you as a representative of what the frosh class is capable.

Does it show that we still have the green showing around our ears, or that we have "fallen in the grove" of college life without much difficulty? Does it show that we can shoulder responsibility, or that we have no initiative? Does it show that we will conquer the rough, steep road of life, or that we will fall by the wayside and watch the world go by without doing our part?

Your decision will not make us, for we will make ourselves; however, you have gone before us on that hard road of life and made the way easier for us. You have knowingly or unknowingly given us an inspiration and challenge not to be among those by the wayside, but always on that road striving for a goal.

This issue of the paper is a test of the freshman class as a wholeare we industrious or could we be classified as "indifferent?" We hope this issue has proven the interest of the freshmen in Harding and shown that being a member of our class has meant something to us.

Upperclassmen, you have given us a start. It is ours to make the best of it. It is up to us whether we will reach the top or knock the bottom out of our bucket. We are still in the "low and humble" ranks of the freshmen, but we have the chance to do for others what you have done for us-those many things that may not have seemed much at the time. but they were a big helping hand all the way. Perhaps we will gain a little of the foresight that comes with experience.

Thank you, upperclassmen, for a helping hand. Thank you for that start.

Library Contributes To Betterment of Harding

In chapel last week, the student body was made to realize more clearly the outstanding service which the library renders to Harding College. The hearty applause Librarian Annie May Alston received when she was presented the $100 by Dr. Benson was only a small means of showing how the library and Miss Alston, along with her staff, rank in the estimation of the students and faculty. It was no surprise when Dr. Benson named the library as a unit "which has and is doing outstanding work in going beyond the call of duty in service to Harding." This is apparent when we notice how many services the library offers to Harding students and faculty.

In a recent report which was compiled for North Central, it was shown that the Harding College Library spends more for library facilities per capita than any other library in the state. This fact is outstanding in itself.

These facilities which the library has to offer Harding students are numerous and varied. One feature is the library's record collection which is not for music majors only, but all students who enjoy good music. Also, the Life exhibits are made possible by the library. These exhibits are not only educational, but afford an insight into subjects which are interesting and enjoyable.

The library's collection of books is in itself an asset to Harding. The some-odd 34,000 volumes cover adequately every major field and provide extensive research as well as reading enjoyment. In the Seminar Room, ther are books reserved for faculty use which range in title in the varied fields of interest. The open stack system of books gives the students an opportunity to browse among the books and find definitely what they want.

Another big service of the library is found in the numerous periodicals

By Marion Rawlings

"Variety is the spice of life." Pardon an old cliche but this one sems so true of the series of one-act plays the Dramatic Club has presented this year. They have ranged from the deeply religious plays to fantasy of an "oldfashioned melodramer."

"Undertow," a physicological play, is true to form of variety because it not only is a different type of play, but it has an all-girl cast.

The scene takes place in the parlor of the Blackwell's home. Abby Blackwell (Marian Rawlings), at 38, is a type well known to everyone-a noble and selfsacrificing exterior masking a vicious and calculating mind. She is filled with bitterness and hate toward her sister Rosalie (Jeanne Bankston), a warm, light-hearted person because Rosalie married the man Abby loved.

This hate is so overwhelming that it is easy and natural for Abby to build a wall of misunderstanding between Rosalie and her daughter; to refuse to let anyone see Rosalie; to hint haltingly to the Ladies' History Club that Rosalie has not recovered from her illness and that she fears for her sister's mental health. The ladies, typical small town gossips immediately imagine the worst. When Rosalie comes to the meeting and learns of what Abby is hinting, her actions only seem to convince the ladies that she really is insane. The ladies of the club are: Mrs. Grant, Peggy Baker; Miss Susan Jordan, Martha Burns; Miss Mary Ann Jordan, Andee King; Mrs. Kitzmuller, Jennie Schoolfield; Mrs. Sorenson, Nancy Vanwinkle; Mrs. Wood, Louise White; and Mrs. Stickner, Margaret Willis.

what we are talking about yet, but it is all about his maniacal wave of beards that has been sweeping the campus for the past few days.

get in the House of David, or they have the jungle fever, or maybe they are trying to prove to the ladies that they are men (most women we have talked to think it makes them more like ape men), or maybe they are just a little odd. At any rate, we think they should pay a visit to their family physician.

A little conversation overheard on the campus:

A-"Oh, look a red beard."

B—"Oh, is that what it is? I thought the poor guy's face was breaking out with something."

Visitor—"What has gone wrong with some of these bearded guys around here?"

C—"Is this some kind of an initiation or something?"

Student — "Naw, some of these guys have just gone off their rocker."

Down town barber — "Say, those boys out at Harding are really going ape all the way with those beards."

Now we do not give a care what these guys look like as long as they stay in their place (in this case we think they belong in a cave), but when people take these few as an example and start generalizing from there, it hurts everyone.

Now we would like to suggest a plan

THINK ON THESE THINGS

By DON WILLINGHAM

How to Contend

"It was needful (and he would not have written if it had not been needful) for me to . . . exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered to the saints."

Jude tells how we are to contend as well as for what we are to contend. We are to contend earnestly; not roughly, not harshly, not bitterly, not unkindly, not in a haughty, over-bearing demeanor — but earnestly. Men and women are no less earnest in their pleadings because they are not rough in them.

For What to Contend

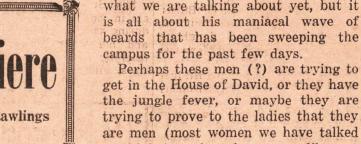

We are not to contend for Cambellism or Mormonism because they are too late. Not for Judaism because that is too early. Not for personal preferences, our opinions, our hobbies, our whims, our systems, our fancies, or our fads, because that will not save. We are to contend "for the faith which was once delivered to the saints." That for which Jude admonishes us to contend is nothing any more modern than God's revelation to man.

For What Are You Contending?

Now that we understand how we are to contend as well as for what we are to contend it is important that we examine ourselves by the standard which we have set before us and see exactly for what we are contending. For what am I contending? I must answer the question honestly because if I do not tell the truth there will be two individuals who will know whether or not I have told the truth. I will know it and God will know it. Am I contending for my own way or am I contending for God's way. Am I bringing my will and disposition into complete and perfect harmony with God's? Am I laying up my treasure here or am I laying up my treasure in heaven? Is my main aim in life to serve Him or see how much the world's goods I can get for myself?

Leon Tolstoy, the Russian novelist, has among his many legends one entitled, "How Much Land Does A Man Need?

Pakom was a Russian peasant who was not rich, but had enough. One day rumors came to him of a land down along the Volga-free for the asking. He became dissatisfied—sold his house and lands, and went to the Volga region to settle there. He tilled his soil and prospered. He thought he knew how much land a man needed. Once again glorious tales reached of a land in the territory of the Wandering Bashkins-thousands of acres of which could be had for a song. He took up his possessions and headed for the land of the Bashkins. He was well received and told that he could have all of the land he wanted. All of the land he could walk around in one day was his for one thousand rubles. The only stipulation was that if he failed to return within the day his money would be forfeited. The man was delighted for he knew that with his strong, sturdy legs he could cover a large area of land in one day — in fact all the land a man needed. Early at dawn Pakhom arose and with the Bashkins watching him he set out upon the plain. Mile after mile he walked in a straight line. The farther he went, the better the land became. He wanted to continue but the sun was now high up in the heavens. He made a marking on the turf-turned sharply to the left and again walked a long disstance in a straight line and turned the second time. The sun was now far down in the west. He wanted to rest but he dared not-his money was at stake. Pokhom threw away his coat, flask and blouse and hurried on staggering. He was getting nearer. He could see the starting point now. Pakhom extended all his energies and fell face forward at the starting point. One of the Bashkins hurried overturned him over, a small stream of blood was running out of the corner of his mouth and he lay there . . . DEAD. How much land does a man need? The Bashkins took a hoe, dug a grave-dug it just big enough, seven feet by three and this was all the land a man really needed.

The Seminar room in the library is one of the most used places on the campus. Meetings of the faculty and student organizations keep the room in constant use. Book reviews are made possible through the cooperation of the library. Each month outstanding books are reviewed by faculty members, and the sessions are open to all students.

All these services of the library, which are only to name a few, show the progress which the library has made since its beginning. With its new air-conditioned building, with constant additions of books and research material, the library is going over the top in the service it can offer

Abby sent the ladies home with the assurance that "rest is all she needs and I will see that she gets it." Then the full extent of Abby's hate becomes evident.

This suspenseful play, under the direction of Shirley Harkey will be presented in the first wek of April.

Dear Editor,

Is our modern little Harding College returning to the times of the Barbarians, when they pushed out of the hill wearing their long beards and captured the city Jesusalem?

The established theory that college men look distinguished certainly seems to have been shot to the dogs during the last few weeks. The writers of this letter agree that none of us look any too good when we do the best with what we have to work with, but we at least try to present ourselves in a way that is not repulsive.

Perhaps you have not caught on to by which we would all be profited; just wash your face, apply a hot towel for a couple of minutes, then apply a good shaving cream, put a blade in your razor (Gillettes are good), start raking it across your face and you will soon catch on to how it works.

After all this has been done, this place will begin to look like a college again and not an ape colony. If this keeps up, the faith we had in man not coming from apes will certainly be shaken to pieces.

> Sincerely and tearfully yours, A few guys who yield the stroke of the razor often . . .

Many people have expressed the desire for a joke column in the Bison. While it is not intended to be hilarious by any means, I hope that students and faculty will get a smile and a thought from this edition this week.

After all - some people grin and bear it — others smile and change it.

Science majors (and others) will be interested in the story told by Prof. Watts about his friend Louis who insisted upon shaking containers holding acids and other chemicals using his fingers as stoppers. That was the way he won the nickname of "One Finger Louis." Of course, this handicap forced Louis to seek other employment other than that of a chemist. Unfortunately he turned into a pickpocket, but all he could steal were lifesavers.

It may not be reverence that causes a person to sit in chapel with bowed head-he may be asleep.

Worry is like a rocking chair-it will give you something to do, but it won't get you anywhere.

K. A. T. Banquet At Rendezvous Has 'Terrace Garden' As Theme Members of the KAT social club and their dates spent an evening in a "Terrace Garden" at the Rendezvous Saturday evening, March 21.

The couples strolled under a little rose arbor that led into an informal spring garden. The banquet tables were also decorat ed with spring flowers.

The proceedings were started by the invocation given by Chuck Van Eaton. Ruth Merritt, president of KAT, gave the welcome and Ken Noland gave the response.

The "Terrace Garden" dinner included: Spring garden salad, chicken fried steak, stuffed potatoes, brussell sprouts, rolls, milk, coffee and cherry pie a la mode.

Perry Mason was the featured after-dinner speaker. Mrs. Green and her daughter, Suzy, gave a duet of "Only a Rose." A quartet sang "Waltz of the Flowers. Members of the quartet were: Joy Ganus, Betty Warfel, Martha King and Ruth Merritt. Freddy Massey gave the benediction

Time: 4:30 p.m. Place: Benson Field. Occasion: Opening day of the Major League contestants: The Indians and Red Sox. Weather: Cold and windy.

That was the scene as Jimmy Allen's Indians outlasted Bob Camp's Red Sox, 6-4 on Wednesday afternoon.

The Indian's hill ace, J. C. Roe, suffering from a touch of the flu, had little difficulty in performing his duties as he struck out 14 men and doled out seven Dykes. base knocks. He came out of the first inning unscathed by retiring the side on strikes after allowing singles to Ralph Moore and Don Johnston and a free pass to Camp.

Veteran Joe Betts went down on strikes and Zelnick hit Mc-Auley in the ribs, forcing in Harness. Glenn Wallace walked and Zelnick thumped Wayland Wilkerson on the leg. That was all for the coal miner from Penna. At this point Lehman Hall took over and walked Black, then retired the side after four damaging runs had crossed.

In the top half of the second frame Roe struck out the side. The bottom of the second promlsed to be a repeat performance. Roe grounded out to Hall and Berryhill dumped a double down the right hand stripe, followed by Allen's walk. As Betts went down swinging for the second time, the two men on board engineered a double theft. McAuley then drew a pass and Wallace capped the stanza by whiffing.
