Emma states a crisis when she steals away with her boy-friend to see a movie. Papa learns of this, and in a fury, sets out to avenge himself on his daughter by killing the surveyor.

His method of action is to come to Mama and Mama tells him to look to his records in the Bible. Bales Announces Publication Of Book

Dr. J. D. Bales, professor of Christian doctrine at Harding, has announced the publication of his latest book, "Mirages or Miracles?"

"Miracles," the prophecy of the book, is stated to be necessary for today's world and is stated to be true by God.

Whether or not God has granted men today the power to perform miracles is the question that he raises in his book. He states that such a view takes that each person's job is not granted today.

Dr. Bales shows the importance of his point when he points out in his book that modern groups to live up to their promises have ceased to use faith in God. Great despondency, insanity, and morale are the results. "The Bible shows us how to live a God-centered life and even in all the special successes we accomplish nothing supernatural.

For the past several years residents of Armstrong Hall have been frustrated by television sets in the reception room. That day has now come. This Thursday, the day that television sets for the past few years, but none of the three boy's dorms have it. Certainly the boys have been very patient and waiting for the day when there would be television in the dorms, but when the Thema Devices in the student center have been available, the boys have been there waiting. So when they were finally installed, the boys were very happy. However, when they were finally turned on, the boys were not so happy. The television sets were not working properly, and the boys were very frustrated. They were not able to watch their favorite shows, and they were not able to watch any shows at all. The boys were very disappointed. They had patiently waited for the day when there would be a television set in their dorms, but when it finally happened, it was not what they had hoped for. They were very disappointed and frustrated. The Freedom Forum men will, however, probably give money again to the girls in payment for their inconvenience in moving out of their rooms for a week so that the boys could use the television sets. They were very patient and understanding, and they were very willing to do anything to make the boys happy. They were very kind and understanding, and they were very willing to do anything to make the boys happy.

took them in' to some extent by the clever Communist 'brain washing.' The work began on prisoners immediately after their capture. Well-educated English-speaking Chinese Reds, many of them educated in American universities in recent years, lived among the prisoners. They were called 'instructors.' They conducted daily "educational" lectures in the camps and followed these up with subtle personal persuasion on each prisoner.

Our Weakness

Major Mayer said that the Communists had made an intensive study and analysis of the attitude and character of American prisoners. On the Communist evaluation sheets, the Americans generally were considered: (1) to have weak loyalties — to family, to community and country, to God, and to one another; (2) to have a hazy concept of right and wrong; (3) to have little knowledge or understanding — even among university graduates — of American political history and philosophy and of how the American system works. On this premise, the Red 'instructors' set about to undermine the prisoners' faith in their country and its system.

"Brain washing," Major Mayer said, "is the calculated attempt to distort men's convictions and their principles. 'Brain washing' did not turn a soldier into a Communist. But it often did weaken him as a loyal American. It extracted from him astounding amounts of military information, and a great deal of useful, believable propaganda material. It achieved widespread collaboration. It created substantial loss of confidence, among prisoners, in the American system, raising doubts and confusion in the prisoners' minds about themselves and their country, and it turned the American prisoners into the most docile uniformed men we have ever seen."

Full Shaken

Major Mayer was asked: "Did you get the impression (from his interviews with hundreds of returned prisoners and his studies of reports given by 4,000 prisoners) that these Americans' faith in their own country and its principles was so weak that it could be shaken by these Red Chinese in prison cell interrogations?"

"Absolutely," replied the Major. "Not so much by the interrogations but by the formal education program in which everyone participated to a certain extent. This was done not by Chinese ranting and raving about the evils of Americanism; they don't attack directly. They don't attack religion directly. They merely purport to show you the side of it that you don't know, and they do this not with Communist literature; it is possible to do this with perfectly good American authors, . . ."

Over-Emphasizing Faults

"You mean by picking out the bad side and ignoring the good side about America," he was asked. "Certainly," he replied. By over-emphasizing the bad side and ignoring the good in the American system, the Communist instructors distorted the true picture. "Almost to a man," said Major Mayer, "the returnees lamented their lack of actual information, knowledge, about our democratic system. Many of them, being relatively young men, had never...been made aware of the protections and guarantees this Government affords its people and the fact that these are so advanced over anything in Communist countries."

The Major also mentioned another characteristic in this way: "...to the many people, I might say, that references to patriotism and love of country offended and rebuked them. It's not that they are shallow and superficial and imperfect."

"Certainly," the Major answered. "But it was the great minds who were ready to undermine the good side about Americanism, who were ready to undermine the good side about Americanism.

Yanks Victorious Over Indians

The Yankees sent three pitchers to the mound Thursday, but it paid off in a 6-3 win over the Indians.

Louis scoop tied the starting role for the Yanks and lasted until the fourth inning when he retired, ahead 3-2, in favor of Bill McRae, the regular pitcher. The remaining innings unscathed, allowing one hit. It was the Yank second win, as against one loss, and the Indians' third straight setback.

The Indians' John McLean started his first game and, except for the sports of license, tossed a creditable game. He threw him up for two runs in the first inning, when he hit the right field line and, counting field to bring Ruckman around.
