VOLUME XXXI, NO. 25

SEARCY, ARKANSAS

MAY 8, 1957

Paul Flowers, feature writer for the Memphis Commercial Appeal, spoke last Friday to a group of college newspaper people at the annual Arkansas College Press Association banquet conducted in the Emerald Room at Harding. The banquet ended with the presentation of awards.

Bison Writers Recognized At Annual Press Meeting

At the annual Arkansas College Press Association awards banquet last Friday night, the Harding Bison won second place in the General Excellence contest and third place in the Sweepstakes. Nine college newspapers were represented in the contest.

The Bison, host for the convention, raised the Sweepstakes award by two points. This award is given to the paper amassing most points in the individual and general awards.

The Lion's Roar of Fort Smith Junior College, competing in the contest for the first time, took top honors in both the General Excellence and Sweepstakes. The Lion's Roar, a bi-monthly publication, received the General Excellence plaque from the Arkansas Press Association.

In other general contests, the Bison won third place in both headline writing, and advertising display.

In the individual award division, Walter Gilfillen took first place in photography, Lucia DuBois took first place for her Question of the Week, and Dewey Brown ranked first for his sports column, One Man's Opinion.

Brown also placed second in the sports story division, and the interview division.

Louis Eckstein won second in the news story division, and Gil Truitt placed third in cartoons.

The awards were presented by Paul Faris, state sponsor of the ACPA from Hendrix College, and Willard Lawson, secretary of the association and editor of the Weevil Outlet, Arkansas A. and M.

Paul Flowers, feature columnist from the Memphis Commercial Appeal, spoke at the awards banquet. He spoke on the many derivations of the words now used in the English language, and how they are used and misused.

Russell Simmons, director of Publicity and Publications, acted as master of ceremonies at the banquet.

At the two-day meeting of the association, a motion was passed that yearbooks be admitted to the association on the same basis as the newspapers, and that the name of the association be changed to the Arkansas College Publications Association.

Seminars conducted in conjunction with the meeting included two discussions led by Simmons, along with classes directed by Perrin Jones, Editor Searcy Daily Citizen; Thomas A. Loney, instructor in journalism, Harding; Mrs. Ruby Stapleton, associate professor of English, Harding; Herman West, manager Harding College Press and Dale Woodiel, Editor Arka Tech, Russellville.

Editor Alexander Marks Last —30— On Bison Copy

By Wallace Alexander

One year ago a skeptical, frightened, but willing junior stepped into the shoes of the editorship of the Harding Bison. Now, another volume of the Bison will soon have gone down in history. With next week's issue, under the supervision of next year's editor, another year of publication will have slipped by.

This final bit of copy is being written with mixed emotions. There were times when I wondered if it might not be best to just quit; there were times when nothing went right.

On the other hand, there were times that were very encouraging, and now, I must confess, the times of encouragement outnumbered the problems of the work.

I would be the last one to say the Bison did not have its shortcomings and faults. The staff would realize this even if we were not told about them.

It is our hope, however, that you did enjoy the paper and that it served you, the students, as you desired it.

Many of the imperfections of the Bison could have been eliminated had it been possible to devote more time to the job. However, the Bison comprised only a part of the staff's work and many times it was impossible to devote as much time to the paper as it should have had.

The college campus situation is very different from a situation in which a newspaper can perform all its functions. It seems that the college newspaper must sometimes function as both a newspaper for the students and an external "house organ" for the college under which it operates. For this reason it is impossible to be the "watch-dog of the community" as newspapers are usually expected to be. The staff always had to keep in mind that the Bison was not for the students only. This is regrettable, though seemingly inevitable.

Publishing the Bison each week has been a great experience. All

Pippen, MacDougall To Head '57-'58 Bison

Tony Pippen has been selected editor and David M. MacDougall business manager of the 1957-'58 Bison. The announcement was made final today by the approval of the Student Affairs committee.

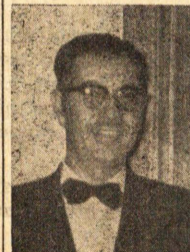

Pippen, a junior from Newport, Ark., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Pippen. He was graduated from Newport High School in 1954. Pippen is a member of the Tri Sigma Delta social club.

Majoring in journalism, Pippen plans newspaper work after graduation. He has been assistant editor of the Bison for the past two years, and was on the staff his freshman year.

MacDougall, now a freshman, is from Euclid, Ohio, and is majoring in business education. He was business manager for the freshman edition of the Bison this year and was on the business staff all year.

MacDougall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert N. MacDougall, Euclid, Ohio.

Dr. Mattox To Speak At Baccalaureate

Dr. F. W. Mattox

Dr. Mattox resigned from his duties at Harding last year to become the president of Lubbock Christian College, a Christian school just starting in Lubbock, Tex. For several years, he was Dean of Students at Harding. He attended Harding 1929-32.

The baccalaureate address will be Sunday, May 26 in the college church building.

the work that has gone into the Bison has been well repaid, however. This payment has come throughout the year when someone says they liked a particular column or a particular thing about the paper. Partial payment came with the experience gained through the work and the many close acquaintances made because of the Bison.

It has been fun. But now we bid farewell to an eventful year. The Bison will now be a part of me as well as Harding. Experiences with the paper have been the highlight of my college career, and I would probably do it again if it were all to do over.

Spring Talent Show Comes To Harding Next Saturday Night

Campus Players present an hour and half of entertainment this Saturday night, May 11, in the large auditorium at 8.

The program, under the direction of Darrel Alexander, is entitled "Campus Players Present" and is composed of a variety of musical numbers, comedy acts and a one act play.

Alexander said, "if present plans materialize it promises to be one of the best variety shows ever performed on the Harding stage." Alexander and his assistants, Helen Hendrix, Dortha Putnam and Peachy Hightower have been working for two months arranging the show.

Providing the entertainment will be Calvin Downs and Peachy Hightower doing a comedy skit. Judy Rhodes will do a piano solo, "Singing Fountain."

Mary Redwine is looking for a male companion but she has discovered that "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun." However, Mike Sinapiades, Ron Carter, Bill Gentry and Tony Pippen have formed a foursome, using the piano, accordion, guitar and string bass to assure her that they are "In The Mood."

Yvonne Fagan has a "Song For A Summer Night," but all Patsy Parker and Jerry Martin have is the "Maggie Blues."

Linda Crews and Frank Underwood wait for the "Ebb Tide" while Ruth Simmons is content with "Stardust."

Juanita Lawrence, Peachy Hightower, Lester Parmenter and Will Parker perform the one act play,

"Two Slatterns and a King," for which they received excellent rating in a recent speech festival.

The Moods, campus band, will do selections from their popular repertoire while featuring Jake Engels as vocalist.

Bill Floyd and Duane McCampbell are sure to be there to provide rare ham for the occasion.

Beverly Thayer sings "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice" a selection from the opera, "Sampson and Delila." A trio composed of Johnnie Gaddis, Nancy Stovall and Shirley Wade will sing "Wind In The Willows." Helen Hendrix just wants to "cry."

The program is subject to last minute changes.

The Variety Show, an annual production of the Campus Players, was originated in the spring of 1957 in order to present the Harding talent in a more unified way and to provide good entertainment to those who attend the program.

As much new talent is selected each year as possible. Each year the audiences have been well pleased with the evening of entertainment and this year promises good results also.

New Council Constitution Seeks Students' Approval In Coming Special Election

The Executive Council of the Student Association hereby makes announcement to the Student Association of the proposed Constitution of the Student Association of Harding College for ratification.

Further, in accordance with Art. VII of the existing constitution, the proposed new constitution is now submitted to the Student Association for ratification requiring a two-thirds affirmative vote of the Student Association.

A general rewording of the existing constitution has been undertaken with the clarification of several points. Several changes have been implemented to make the operation of student government more effective.

A general analysis of the proposed changes follows:

The Preamble has been reworded to make it more definite and powerful in statement. The general idea is unchanged.

The president of the Association is required by Art. III, Sec. 2, to publish in the Bison a nine-weeks' report of Student Association activities as a general progress report to students and faculty.

The secretary-treasurer is required by Art. III, Sec. 4, subheading 3, to display the minutes of each meeting for student information. This is not contrary to any action of the council, for no meeting is secret in any respect; nor does this prohibit the attendance of any member of the Student Association at a council meeting.

The hour qualifications of officers of the council has been revised from the quarter system to the semester system by Art. IV, Sec. 1 and 2. A nominating petition must contain 50 signatures instead of 20 as stated by Art. V, Sec. 1.

The regular election date has been advanced to the last Wednesday in April by Art. V, Sec. 4, so that the elected officers may work with the retiring officers in planning for the coming year. The elected officers, however, do not take office until the first day of the summer term as stated by Art. III, Sec. 1. This is unchanged.

The division of power is implemented by Art. VI, Sec. 1, in providing that the president of the class and the class representative be separate individuals. This is to allow each to give a more concentrated effort to his respective duty and thereby provide better leadership in both areas.

A general rewording has been done in Art. VI, Sec. 3 through Sec. 9, for clarity and form. No basic idea is changed.

The election of class representatives must be preceded by nominating petitions as stated by Art. VII, Sec. 1. The election of representatives will take place in the spring by Art. VII, Sec. 3, so that the council can communicate during the summer and have definite plans prepared for the opening of school.

A referendum is provided for by Art. IX, Sec. 2, in the process of amending the constitution.

The proposed constitution is published in this issue for your consideration.

Vote For The Constitution

In this issue of the Bison you will find the newly-written constitution for the Student Association of Harding. The old constitution, which is outdated and obsolete, will be nullified upon the passing of this constitution by the approval of the president of the college, the faculty, and the vote of the entire student body.

The Executive Council of the Association at the beginning of the year, realized the shortcomings of the old constitution and as a result Lyman Turley was selected to head a committee to study the situation and make the necessary revisions. A complete revision was deemed necessary.

Now it is up to the student body to pass the constitution before it will be in effect. Article X, Section 1 of the new constitution says "A two-thirds majority vote of the entire student body will be required for final approval."

It is easy to see, then, that the constitution cannot be adopted unless each student gets behind it. The Bison urges all students to vote "FOR" the new constitution in the election next week.

It is your obligation; don't neglect it!

The Mark Of A Champion

Recently the editor was given a copy of an address delivered by Olympic star Bobby Morrow to a joint session of the Texas State Legislature.

After this particular address to the legislature, members of the senate and house said that his visit "has been the most inspiring appearance . . . we have had in the State Capitol. His presence attracted "the largest crowd that has ever assembled for a guest speaker."

After his speech this Abilene Christian College junior was given a standing ovation. We quote a portion of his address:

" . . . I feel deeply honored by your invitation to speak briefly to you who provide the leadership for our great State.

"I am sure that the Texas smiles and the Texas handshakes which Eddie Southern and I took with us to Melbourne, Australia, created more news stories than all of our running efforts combined.

" . . . I cannot describe the feeling, but I do remember that chills ran up and down my spine when I heard the 'Star Spangled Banner' and saw Old Glory rise to the uppermost spot of the ceremonial stand.

"At that moment I thought of all the individuals who had helped me through the years to accomplish the victory which had just occurred.

" . . . But uppermost in my mind was the deep sense of gratitude which I owe my Maker who gave me whatever natural ability I possess, along with a strong, healthy body.

"Realizing that my body is the temple of God, I have always tried to keep it swept clean for Him.

"For this belief and determined conviction, I pay tribute to my mother and father, who from my childhood have guided my feet in the Way.

"To my lovely wife, Jo Ann, who has inspired my every effort, and who is building a Christian home with me, I owe my all.

"My decision to receive a Christian education came after I realized that I wanted more from college than book learning and track success.

"Practically every member of our U.S. team came by my room at the Olympic Village to see the seven-and-a-half-foot-long telegram signed by some 1,079 fellow students from Abilene Christian College.

"After reading the sincere wishes of my fellow students — who supported me even when I was losing — many members of our team remarked, 'I wish I could go to a school like that.'

"I am proud to be a member of the church, a student at Abilene Christian College, and a citizen of the great state of Texas.

"I sincerely believe that my greatest race, the Christian race, is the most important of them all and is yet to be won."

Those were the words of a true champion!

We Bid Farewell

With this issue of the Bison, the present editor bows out of the picture in favor of next year's editor. The last issue of the Bison will be edited by the recently selected editor who will handle the job next year.

However, before we yield the editorship to our successor, it is altogether appropriate that we express appreciation to the many people who have helped us this year in a special way. It could be considered a token of ingratitude if we did not offer our special thanks.

First, to all the members of the Bison staff who worked so hard each week, we say 'thanks.' To Tony Phippen who worked many hours as assistant editor, to Walt Gilfilen who worked late at night many weeks getting the pictures ready for the engravers, and to all the rest of the staff who diligently labored that a Bison could be published each week, we express our gratitude.

To Professors Neil B. Cope and Thomas Loney, faculty advisors, go our appreciation. They were on hand when advice was needed, but never made their presence a nuisance; to them we say 'thanks' for your help and cooperation.

To Herman West and all the rest of the print shop crew who worked to meet the Wednesday afternoon deadline each week, we express our appreciation.

To Russell Simmons and Mary Ann Whittaker of the Publicity and Publications office, we say 'thanks' for your cooperation and helpful advice.

And to everyone else who had a part in the publishing of the Bison, we express our gratitude. It took the cooperation of all concerned and usually this necessary cooperation was graciously extended. For this we are grateful.

FROM WHERE I STAND

By Wallace Alexander

The column "From Where I Stand" appears in the Bison for the last time this week. Although having been published only a few times, it has been one of the most interesting and enlightening experiments of the Bison this year.

Not long after the beginning of the school year several students noticed that the author of the column, "Ed Wynn" could not be found on the campus. One student even went so far as to see if "Ed" was registered as a student in the personal office. He wasn't.

A few columns appeared in which the author took positions that several students violently opposed. Several got very emotional about it—which seemed to be the only argument that opponents could use.

We were glad to notice, however, that many students agreed with the positions the author took though others considered them "radical," "narrow-minded," or "fanatical." The editor received letters to this effect.

Now is the time to bring everything to light. Most students know already who the author has been but to fulfill a promise, a complete "confession" must be made. The same author wrote all the columns that wrote the one you are now reading—the Bison editor.

Now, why was it done in this manner. The reasons are many.

First, it was an experiment—and proved to be a very interesting one indeed. It was possible to determine the real acceptance of the column and the real reactions first-hand. Had the "true" name been given to the column, very few would have expressed truthful opinions directly to the author. I feel sure I was told many things I would not have been told had my name been attached to the column.

Second, the column caused many students to think a little—we believe. Had a pen-name not been used, readers might have "considered the author and forgot what he said." I will emphatically state that I did not write anything that I did not believe though some of the positions may have been a little shocking to some. The wisdom of the method of presentation (it was rather blunt, maybe shocking) I will not affirm as the best way. What I said, I will still uphold as truth!

Third, (and you may call it false modesty, if you please) I did not want people to think that I was writing a column and putting my name before the readers just because I was in the position to do so.

Fourth, I felt that there was something that needed saying, and for that reason someone should say it—but again, I say, the wisdom of the blunt, straightforward manner of presentation, I will not necessarily uphold. Some things should be presented a little more mildly.

Some will think the things were said because the author did not have the "back-bone" to put his true name to the column. I hope this was not true. True motives cannot always be judged.

All in all, the column was very entertaining. It added a little spice to a big job.

One student (we heard) said the author must be a freshman and he would change his ideas after being around a while (I am a senior; have been here four years).

Another said she would not be caught drinking a coke with the writer of the column of his views—she had done it just a few days before.

Another told me it was a very sloppy job of writing (maybe it was); I agreed with a smile, or a snicker.

All this and more was offset when remarks were made just contrary to this kind. One student said he was disappointed in the Bison one particular week because the column was not there. Others were happy about the column because they, too, felt that something should be said about some things.

Now it is all over—and I have one apology.

My sincerest apologies go to my roommate, Don Humphrey, other "preacher-boys" and one particular Bible professor, because it seemed that it was one of the three who got the blame for the column each time an "extreme" view was presented.

Add To YOUR FAITH . . .

By HERMAN ALEXANDER

The Apostle Paul had but one goal in life.

That goal was to glorify God. In describing it in Phil. 3:13-14, he wrote, "Brethren, I count not myself yet to have laid hold: but one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

In the first place, Paul said his purpose was that of doing. The Bible puts emphasis upon doing the will of heaven. Such passages as Matt. 7:21; Jas. 4:17; and Rev. 22:18 indicate that a person cannot be saved who does not do the will of God. It is not enough to know what is right that will make a person's life to be right. Knowing is for the sake of doing. "Blessed are they that do his will."

Paul further stated that his purpose was that of doing one thing. His life was directed by one overall purpose, and regardless of where he went or what he did his chief interest was that of bring glory to God his father, and Christ his Savior. Our goal should be the same as his, for we should all seek the kingdom and righteousness of God above everything else in life. We may use whatever occupation we choose as a means by which we will serve God and humanity effectively.

In accomplishing his overall purpose, Paul listed three simple rules which he kept in mind: 1. Forget the things of the past; 2. stretch forward; 3. and press on toward the goal.

Forgetting the past is quite often a hard task, but it is necessary if the prize of life is won. Paul teaches us in this verse that we should forget our accomplishments, because that may hinder our usefulness both now and in the future. He also implies that we should forget our mistakes so that we might rise above them.

Paul said that his purpose not only led him to forget the past, but to stretch forward to the things that lie before. The runner looks ahead and stretches forward with all his might in running to win the prize. Paul said that the Christian must do the same if he won the prize of life.

In forgetting the past and stretching forward to the future, Paul said that he pressed on toward the goal—the prize of the high calling of God. He did not give up because of stumblings and an occasional fall, but rather he kept pressing on daily. This is what it takes to win the prize of life, for Jesus said, "The one who is faithful unto the end, the same shall be saved."

Make your overall purpose to be that of serving God. Forget the past, stretch forward to the things that are before, and press on toward the goal that your may do this one thing well.

and then . . . By PAT TEAGUE

It's that time of year when we are reserving rooms and doing hosts of other things, all in an effort to get week was the last chance for the things ready for next year. Last down immediately and reserved a men to reserve rooms. That week room he had his eye on for 8 brought out some of the characters.

There's the fellow who rushed months. There was one catch — he had on one in mind for a roommate, and that was the suite that had been picked out by four anxious fellows. What was the outcome? Who knows.

Of course there was the average guy who went by Bill's apartment about the middle of the week and casually reserved a room.

How about this one? This character reserved his room at the beginning of the week. About the middle of the week he went back and had it changed. Then late Saturday night he once more had it changed. But when Monday morning came — you guessed it — he changed it again.

The deadline is past now, but there are still plenty who really don't know where they want to live. But time will take care of that situation.

Next year the new men's dorm will be opened to underclassmen as well as juniors and seniors. Seems like that should be a lot better — will tend to get rid of a distinction between the two groups of men.

There seems to have been a "mad rush" to reserve rooms in the new dorm, especially on the part of the freshmen and sophomores who have never lived there. But there are a few who are going back to Armstrong Hall after a year in the new dorm.

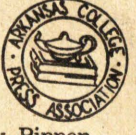

During Freedom Forum the first and second floors of the new dorm were evacuated for the Forum men. Some of the guys were put temporarily in Armstrong. During that week one of the fellows became so attached to his temporary room that he asked if he might stay there the rest of the year and next. But it's all a matter of taste.

The Student Association elections have generated a lot of energy this week, but the major part of it is all over now. It was a very colorful campaign, and a clean one. At least there were some things to be enjoyed from it. Here's hoping next year's association can keep up the record of this year's association.

Take a look around you and see all the sunburned faces and arms. That's a result of the 11 or 12 outings which were held last Monday. There are, no doubt, a lot of sore limbs around here now, too. You know, when you take about 300 people off the campus on one day for outing, it seems a little bare.

The end of the year draws ever all that outside reading and those nearer — so does the deadline for term papers. Guess it would be best to stop and go do them.

Outing Season Is Good Time To Hunt Caves

By JACKIE ANGUISH

At last the season for outings has arrived. Outings do wonders for the nice curly hair, nice clean complexion and nicely starched clothes.

Let me explain how outings come about. Your day begins at 6 a.m. After splashing cold water on your face for 15 minutes and beating your head against the wall, you're awake, unless you knocked yourself out while beating the wall with your head.

Now turn on every light in the room. This will adjust the eyes to sunlight. Although this gesture might turn out to be useless since it rains all the time, it will provide those bright eyes everyone compliments.

Next, fall down the steps (that'll teach you to keep those eyes opened.) pick yourself up with all the dignity you can muster and glide into the reception room giving your date a great big six o'clock smile. All this is useless too, since he's standing against the wall, dead to the world — especially you.

Well, finally the group starts. A flat tire, six rolls and two hours later, your destination is spotted. Ah — the great outdoors. At this exhilarating moment rain begins falling, so everyone heads for the shelter house then stands around staring at each other. Oh, oh, your date's asleep again.

This will never do, so play the great outdoor type and drag sleepy-head out in the cool spring rain. This, being quite a shock to his system, not only wakes him but makes him definitely alive. He starts telling you of a cave — he knows there's a cave nearby. Well, anything is better than sitting in the shelterhouse all day, so after

Miss Claudette Harris Honored With Shower

Claudette Harris, bride-elect of Fred Alexander, Abilene, Tex., was honoree at a tea-shower Friday evening held in the apartment of Mary Ann Whitaker, Sewell Hall. Miss Whitaker and Nadine Pate were co-hostesses.

Miss Harris' mother, Mrs. W. C. Harris of Walnut Ridge, received with her. About 35 guests attended. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Harris and Mary Beth Howe, cousin of the bride-elect, of Walnut Ridge.

Patsy Parker and Betty Ann Floyd served at the punch bowl. Mary Eta Grady assisted.

recruiting four other "suckers" you're off.

Over hillside, over dale always pressing onward. It seems like hours have gone by but still our eagle scout hasn't located the cave. Two have turned back but there are four who will never give up.

"What's that?" you shout. "It looks like a cave."

No such luck, it's only a cow. This might discourage you, but not your date. He's in pursuit of a cave and is determined to find one.

Oh, oh, there's a stream. Now, do you wait a couple of years while the men of the group build a raft to cross on? Of course not, don't be silly. You've got two legs. Wade across.

What's this? There's excitement among the conquering heroes. On top of that hill (it looks like a mountain to you) is the cave. Up you climb, through branches, weeds, spider webs, woodticks and lizards,

Fogarty Sisters To Wed In Summer

Mr. and Mrs. John Patrick Fogarty announce the approaching marriages of their daughters, Patricia Joan and Elizabeth Jo.

Miss Pat Fogarty will be married June 30, 1957, in Urbana, Ill., to Mr. Alfred Jurek of Port Lavaca, Tex. She was a member of the GATA social club, and dramatics club when she was in Harding. She was graduated from Harding in 1954.

Miss Elizabeth Fogarty will be married May 31, 1957, to Mr. James Marion Stone of McNab, Arkansas. Miss Fogarty is a member of the GATA social club. Mr. Stone is a member of the Sigma Tau Sigma social club. The wedding will be in the Harding College small auditorium at 2:00 p.m.

The ceremony will be conducted by Mr. John Patrick Fogarty.

At last, three more feet and you'll be in the cave. It's a good thing, too, because rain is falling and hard. Run! A few more yards and shelter will be provided by the cave. Wait — that's not a cave, it's just the road back to the shelter house. Our eagle scout stands in the rain, scratching his head. Obviously he made a wrong turn.

Does he give up? No — next year he's coming back to find the cave. So back you stomp to the shelter house. By this time, your nice curly hair is a pitiful, wet mess, your nice clean complexion is encased in spider webs and scratches and your nicely starched clothes resemble something a rummage sale would turn down.

One Man's Opinion

By DEWEY BROWN

A Sweet Song Of Sad Thoughts . . .

They say the life of a drowning man passes in review before his mind's eye just before he crosses over the bar. I wouldn't want to argue the point, and I hope I'm never in a position to do so, but one thing I do know. It seems a million words flood your mind when you've just a few left on the collegiate typewriter.

So cluttered are the thoughts, and so quickly do they come, that before you realize it, five pages of nothing have been conceived in blind wonderings.

There are lots of thoughts . . . sad thoughts that string together into one final sweet song.

Take for instance the ones centered around a great guy, Harding's intramural director Cecil Beck. Cecil is the easy-going, shadow-walking sort of fella who takes something little and molds big things out of it. Now there's a law that says you can't get something out of nothing, and Cecil is in perfect agreement with it . . . he puts a lot of heart into his inventions.

Crowded Years of Athletes

The word "taciturn" has been our favorite tag for another unobtrusive sportster on the campus. Like Beck, he, too, molds big doings from sorted material. It seems that Hugh Groover could take a 145-pound average football team, show his men what a football looks like, run them through lung-bursting wind sprints for a day or so and then take them and puncture an opposing football team's inflated ego in one quarter flat. (This generalization excludes, of course, the Augusta Red Devils but maybe Marsh Goodson, next year's Academy coach, will have an answer to them.)

I've watched Harding through four years of intramural sports and within those four crowded years it has been my pleasure to record the actions of many fine athletes . . . Charlie Weeks, Bob Fletcher, Jim Borden, Bill Moore, Goodson, Jesse Fleming, Ray Morris, Jim Shurbet, the Vanderpool clan and others in football.

Harold Norwood, Freddy Massey, Dale Flaxbeard, Dave Richards, Ted Lloyd, Calvin Downs, Owen Olbricht, Boyd Garner, Kenny Perrin, Pete Stone, Keith Boler, Ken Vanderpool, Vernon Massey, Bill Cloud, Glenn Moore, Doyle Ward, Wallace Alexander among others in basketball.

And Garrett Timmerman, Bill Stafford, Benny Sanders, Dick Johnson, Don Johnston, Edsel Hughes, Glenn Organ, Joe Hightower, the Futrell brothers, Norwood, Flaxbeard, Jerry Martin, Dudley Spears, and a host of others in baseball.

Many years lie ahead in the field of intercollegiate sports but we've a strange hunch that the failure or success of that branch of competition will depend not upon the athletes so much as upon the fans.

Here on the campus our athletes played amongst themselves and disgruntled fans on the losing side felt little more than a slight sting of dissatisfaction. But on the road, where our boys may lose to "alien," teams, the sting of defeat becomes more bitter . . . and so do our words if left unchecked.

We predict a lot of good seasons for the Bisons in the coming years under the tutelage of Groover but thus far we have no measuring rod with which to gauge the fan's success in good sportsmanship. The Bisons have begun practice already . . . why not the fans?

The Road's Narrow

Next season Garrett Timmerman and Don Rusk will carry you through a season of intercollegiate sports via the sports desk . . . we hope you will give them the same

Cards Clip Giants With 3-2 Victory

Joe Hightower, much respected despite two straight losses, finally found the winning groove as the Cards edged the Giants 3 to 2, Thursday afternoon.

Hightower pitched shut out ball on two hits for five innings. A wild streak in the sixth ruined his shut-out when three bases on balls and two singles scored the Giants two runs.

Larry Peebles, who relieved Giant starter, Bobby Glover, finally found a situation from which his slow slow fast ball and almost stationary curve could not remove him. He gave up the final two Card runs in the fifth on three straight walks, a single, and loosing walk. He was tagged with the loss.

Don Johnston, a long time fixture of intramural play, wielded the big Card stick, collecting two singles and a walk in four trips to the plate. His RBI single in the first inning started Card prosperity.

Don Ruckman, the Giant slugger, went two for two and scored one of the two Giant runs.

sort of support you've so kindly lent us.

Braves Topple Phils In Last Inning, 2-1

Miracles still happen. Sims Dailey, a second baseman recently turned pitcher, mastered the mighty Garrett Timmerman as the Braves toppled the Phils from first place, 2 to 1, Saturday afternoon.

Sore armed catcher Doug Cloud, the Brave chucker's best friend, stifled three Phil rallies by throwing out overly daring runners attempting to steal an extra base. Cloud also singled to drive in the winning Brave run in the last of the seventh.

Timmerman was in finest form for the first five innings. He allowed no hits, struck out ten, and in general made opposing Brave batsmen look and feel like chastened children.

The spell wore off, however, and Charles Thacker poked a double down the third base line in the sixth, which drove in the tying run. Cloud finished it with his blow in the seventh.

Dailey had his troubles but always managed to find the right pitch when necessary. The Phils stranded nine men on the base paths.

Marsh Goodson, the downfall of many pitchers, fell completely at the mercy of Dailey. He was the third out in three promising Phil innings in which a hit would have netted one or more runs. However, Goodson drove in the lone Phil run on a long fly ball caught in the first inning.

Timmerman struck out 13 and allowed only two hits while losing.

Travelers Wallop Chicks, 21-3

The Travelers whalloped the Chicks, 21-3, in what turned out to be a free scoring game for the slugging Traveler nine.

Bob Fletcher, who was the starting pitcher for the Chicks, was clipped for nine runs before being relieved. In the two innings he pitched, he gave up eight base hits and four walks. John Vanderpool came on in the third frame and did no better against the powerful Traveler bats as they continued to lay the wood to the Chick pitching.

Doyle Wood, with his three successive drag bunts down the third base line. James Phillips and Homer Wright carried big sticks for the Travelers. "Lightin'" Selvidge connected for the longest hit of the day when he tripled to left field but was thrown out trying to stretch it into a four-bagger.

Wood was the winning pitcher. He allowed only three hits with one earned run which came in the second frame when Sam Kitching singled in Gerald Gwin.

Both teams now hold records of one win against two losses.

Dodgers Defeat Braves, 5-4

Art Voyles and the Dodgers survived a disastrous first inning to eventually salvage a 5 to 4 victory over the Braves in intramural play, Tuesday afternoon. The Dodgers gained first place as a reward for their effort. They have yet to taste defeat after two outings.

Gloom shrouded the Dodger bench after three walks and a single by Paul Huff booked three runs for the Braves in the first inning, which also saw Phil Futrell audaciously steal home while Voyles busily wound up for his pitch.

However, Voyles recovered to pitch effectively for the remainder of the game, while his opponent, Jerry Martin, grew more erratic as the game progressed. The nemesis of most intramural pitchers, bases on balls, ultimately conquered Martin. Ken Harrison for example coaxed his way on base four times and scored two runs without touching the ball.

Martin holds the dubious distinction of committing the first balk of the season. That also cost him a run.

The predictable end came when Martin walked the bases full and walked the winning run across.

The past few days the weather has permitted baseball to again get into full swing. For game scores and stories see the sports pages of the Bison.
