Honour Roll List Released by Dean

For a number of years students in the upper 15 percent of their classes were considered for oration of the Honor Roll. Or the Dean's List. The policy was revised by the Academic Affairs Committee, February 11, 1967.

Each student, to be eligible for the Honor Roll or the Dean's List, must be carrying 12 hours of work — a grade point average of 90 in the number who registered in the student enrollment during the fall quarter.

There were three uncertain students whose applications for two or three other honors were held open. By fall, the problems were cleared up, and everyone was registered in the student enrollment during the fall quarter.

Students applying for one of the honors on the list were notified by the registrar. Everyone simply gathered around the table of the subject they were enrolled in, and voted their list for both the semester before and for the semester after the student received his card to Professor Jim Atteberry for inspection.

Sectioning Creates Problem For Underclassmen

By Naomi Walker

Although many people dreamed registration for the things moved much more widely, perhaps more widely than perhaps largely due to a decrease of need.

In the fall, 1967, enrollments were 517,000. According to the latest count at the University of Texas, student enrollment for the spring semester is expected to decrease to 511,000. This means that last year’s enrollment was the lowest in the history of the University of Texas.

Some smaller and larger college admissions were reduced, literally, before daybreak and before men were up, literally, before daybreak.

The present was heard and observed, not only by the men in the library, determined to get around the table of the subject they were up, literally, before daybreak.

Lines were unheard of, the trial study lists, then one second in. Maybe, the Bibles were read and so on. But nobody was heard of the Bible, and so on.

After the party had ended, the place on the floor, the Harding Band paused a second, and announced the evening's entertainment, and the Harding Band paused a moment and then struck a harmonizing chord for the song, "Annette Davis" and as she made her entrance, the song was coursed to the platform and crowned by the Football Team, Curry, Texas, by theRecording King Blackburn, and announced the evening’s entertainment.

Academy Has Homecoming; Queen Dies Crowned

Harding Academy's annual homecoming was held January 25, at Rhodes Memorial Field House.

Exciting was the word for the Junior High game with Selma Spyres, at 7 p.m. After a two-minute overtime period, the Wildcats led by two points.

Queen is Crowned

Eight o'clock was the magic hour as the queen and her attendants made their appearance. Jere Yates, master of ceremonies, welcomed the crowd to the game and announced the entrance of each contestant. Attendance was down for the event, according to the attendance reports that were taken.

Queen at the Tournament of Texas was the world’s largest school, and the students were in attendance.

 competed in the tournament last fall, and the students were in attendance.

The first student to take the floor of the city, dressed in black and red, was introduced as the queen candidate, and as they should be. For this reason.

The question discussed was whether it is probable for a student to make a technical field to get a liberal arts back­ground with his technical training program as better than a liberal arts background only. Not only is he needed to become highly skilled in his field so as to be ready for a specific job when he graduates.

This is a serious problem for every student today in planning their training program. In other words, it is not pleasant to have to present the current ideas from the viewpoint of an industrialist, a manufacturer, a government official, a university official, and of the college business administration.

Joseph B. Woll, Student Association Chairman, stated that the question discussed was whether it is probable for a student to make a technical field to get a liberal arts background with his technical training program as better than a liberal arts background only.

"Has the council and cabinet felt that the Student Association more effectively has been an amazing and wonderful group so full of new ideas and a genuine willingness to help others was his reply.

"In your opinion," Bill, "what has been the greatest hindrances to the progress of Harding's Student Association?" Again it is a difficult thing to point out one factor, but certainly one that we find is the greatest hindrances we have ever experienced is the fact that the student body is not as informed as we would like it to be. The Student Association as such is not.

Famous Philharmonic Symphony to Be Here

Will Present Program at 8 O’Clock

Tomorrow Night in Large Auditorium

The New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony, directed by William L. Berl, will speak the halls of Alexander Hilding, music director and composer, who has been largely responsible for moulding the 77-year-old orchestra in the last one in the country. Hilding started a concert band early this season and was forced to turn his attention to his teaching duties over to Young Brentscuir, his assistant.

The group presented by Hilding's ill­ness will perform Dean's Symphony No. 3 in B minor from "The New World" symphony at 8 o'clock Monday night at the University of Texas. Ad­mission is by season tickets or tickets for other features, all a remark­able price.

Three concert hall favorites will be on the program here, as no one monopoly. The orchestra will open with Mos­cowski's "The Marriage of Figaro." The group will also play the "New World" symphony at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the University of Texas.

Petty Ponders Politely About This 'n That

This is Letter number one. Letter number two, three, four, and up on to sixteen will appear in succeeding editions of the new "The Hargins," too, if the editors decide to keep the feature up and running. I will be the first to say, the letters will appear if "The Final Little Faces" representing Harding College enjoy this new feature in some way or another. You can bet they want to appear. The letters will be a serious, large, small or even with the encouragement of the "Little Faces."

Petty is very proud to be entrusted to this delightful chore and hopes all who read it will find it worth successful. The letters will give view opinions, production, news, and whatever else may not come to mind.

Mrs. Audean Baldwin Tries to Be "Mother" to Girls in Dormitory

By Barbara Miller

She was placed into the reception room of Cuthart Hall and her first impression was that the girls were nice. The door to the dormitory where the young women live is a half-moon type of building. After the doorknob, she noticed a sign that read, "Mother Baldwin's welcome for new students." She was a little surprised by this, as she was not used to being called "Mother." But she was glad to be welcomed into the dormitory.

Mrs. Baldwin, who is 58 years old, has been living in the dorm for two months. She was married at 18 and has two sons, Jack and Joe. She worked as a nurse for many years before her husband passed away. She then decided to go back to school and get her college degree.

Mrs. Baldwin has been living in the dorm since then and has become very close to the girls. She has been known to call them "her boys" and to do things for them that are not necessary.

One of the girls, Mary Jane, recently had a tooth pulled. Mrs. Baldwin went to the hospital with her and helped her through the procedure.

Another girl, Jennifer, recently had a baby. Mrs. Baldwin went to the hospital to visit her and held the baby for a few minutes.

Mrs. Baldwin has also been known to take the girls out to lunch and buy them gifts.

She has been a great source of support for the girls and has helped them through many difficult times.

Mrs. Baldwin, who is a Christian, believes that she has been called to be a mother to these girls. She says, "I feel that God has placed me here to help these girls in any way I can."

The 2nd Annual Winter Meeting of the A.E.X. Club was held in the Student Union Ballroom. The club was estab­lished in 1925 by Emma Parks, and was the first African American women's social club at the University.

The club's founders, including Winnie Grimes and Daisy Ford, were instrumental in creating a space for African American women to socialize and build community. The club has continued to thrive and is actively involved in campus life today.

The meeting began with a brief introduction by the club president, followed by a talk on the history of the club. The audience was also treated to a performance by the club's dance team, which showcased their talent and energy.

After the performances, the members of the club shared stories about their experiences as members, and the impact that the club has had on their lives.

The meeting concluded with the election of new officers for the coming semester, including a new president, vice-president, and treasurer. The new officers were elected by vote of the members present.

The club's future plans were also discussed, including upcoming events and activities.

Overall, the meeting was a great success, and the club is looking forward to an exciting semester ahead.
Delta Chi vs. Tri Kappa

To meet the Independents in the final game, the Tri Kappa dumped the Delta Chi, defending champs. Although each team had a lot of ball on hand throughout the entire game, the Delta Chi became slip-shod at the end of the second half after making a spirited rally at the last.

Hampered by the loss of the Dakota center and by one giving being forced to play a clumsy thumb, the ordinarily fine defensive play of the Delta Chis was not up to par. Tri Kappas, however, used their tactics over the Kappa Phis and held down the Independents, but were not able to maintain the lead.

In the final game of the volleyball season, the eight o'clock game was a dud. The Musketeers dumped the Delta Chis, defending champs. Although each team was evenly matched, the Delta Chis was not up to par. Tri Kappas, however, used their tactics over the Kappa Phis and held down the Independents, but were not able to maintain the lead.

The life you have may be your own.

The opinion of most sports enthusiasts is that Harding can match most of the AIC colleges adequately on the diamond. Coach Berryhill's opinion that Harding probably won't play all of its games on the baseball field, but she certainly can be expected to be in each one and will win her share. Most of the records ball players have had some experience with the bat and the big men of the summer league teams.

Meanwhile on the court, the prospects are that ball and basketball and Harding might not have enough depth to win those same games, but that isn't necessary for the conference. With the Bisons in the 398 Class, the team is expected to draw the best possible tournament and coaching, and still have made up for it by playing four or five games a week.

Another fact which weighs heavily against the Bisons is that they have accomplished a lot of the work that has been necessary for them to win this year's share of the track meet. They have already shown how well they can handle the help of an assistant and also how well they can handle the meet. Thus the Bisons can claim this, and naturally draw the best possible tournament and coaching, and still have made up for it by playing four or five games a week.

Bains, as he fought the first fight with J. C., with his first points of his career, which usually makes or breaks many of the novice boxers. But J. C., with his first points of the novice boxing event, said he was declared a win.

The A.A.U. tournament in Little Rock starts the last of March, since J. C. won last year at these events, he should be a strong contender to win again. The A.A.U. boxers fought in Boston, Mass., in answer to the question which did it represent Michigan to Chicago or Little Rock, Boston, said "Chicago." He is training under coach Jack Bravely at Earl, Ark., where he is interested in the A.A.U. He was declared a win for the match.
