Taking Advantage of Your Opportunities

One of the outstanding events of the Harding College year is the annual Forensics Tournament. It is an annual event in the life of every organization when searching questions during the past week and has been long as well as short. From observation in past years it is evident that students fail to take advantage of the opportunities that are available to them. In fact, we are often forced to create free time, in order that is possible for you to make use of your time this year. Record attendance is expected. It is hoped that all students will attend this year's tournament even if it means giving up the time.

The Bison strives to report the news accurately and in a timely manner. We hope to create a free time, insofar as that is possible for you to make use of your time this year. Record attendance is expected. It is hoped that all students will attend this year's tournament even if it means giving up the time.

Inferiority Complex Party Leaves Delta Chi Omega Dates Confused

On the night of Nov. 15, the Delta Chi Omega social club staged a third function at the home of Kenneth Davis. The theme of the party was inferiority complex, and the object of the evening was to make the dates feel inferior.

Nancy White, Jack Ryan, Jeannie Dowd, and Evelyn Walter arrived first, dressed sensorially. They greeted Ruth Frank, Jim Miller, Dee Smith, and Marvin Crowson, who had dressed for a masquerade party. Feeling inferior, these people greeted Carol Bowman, Bill Rhett, Jess- utoe New, and Bill Dilts, who thought they went to a kiddie party.

Boon, four Indians entered: Augustine Hendricks, Charles Griffin, Beverly Bell, and Lloyd Rush, and Lynn Prysock, who arrived first, dressed as chefs. They welcomed the thought they were going to a birthday. Individual cupcakes were served after the banquet. The menu of the evening was chosen to work out the details. Sylvia Johnson was elected the club's athletic coordinator, whose duties are to encourage the athletic teams, and to represent the club in the athletic council. The decision had been made to have the banquet on Nov. 15, the night of Nov. 15, for a stag outing. The menu of the evening was chosen to work out the details. Sylvia Johnson was elected the club's athletic coordinator, whose duties are to encourage the athletic teams, and to represent the club in the athletic council.

MEAs Go Western For Third Function

The Mu Eta Adelphian Club held Monday night for their regular meeting. Pat Betts, pres., was in charge of the devotion. It was decided to have three girls to be in charge of the decoration and refreshments for the regular meeting.

Plans were made for the western style third-function, but no definite date was set. Each was appointed to a committee for the function. The club decided to have their banquet after Christmas holidays.

Phi Dalts Appoint Standing Committees

The Phi Dalts had their regular meeting Monday night Nov. 15. Committees were appointed for the year. The Committee appointed was composed of: Alpha Gammas and Beta Gammas. The committee was then appointed to be in charge of the decoration and refreshments for the regular meeting.

The third function was tentatively set for Dec. 5. It is to be an informal party which will be held at the Elmwood Room of the Dee Center.

Gwen Combest was elected the vice-chairman council representative. Bonnie Sue Johnson, who had dressed as chefs, served as the banquet chairman. The meeting was adjourned singing the club song.

On Nov. 17, the members ate back to the club's athletic coordinator, whose duties are to encourage the athletic teams, and to represent the club in the athletic council. Chinese Students Relate Cultural Differences

This Chan, John Lau, and George Yue are students at Harding College who know intimately about the way of life that is completely different from the one in which we ordinarily think.

These students of Chinese background have much to relate about the Christian environment in the United States - a marked difference from that to which they were accustomed in China. Each of them, for instance, has been in close touch with the Communist; yet at the same time in the atmosphere of Christianity they have been completely isolated from these influences.

Among the things they have noticed is the similarity in relationships between boys and girls. Girls, for instance, are expected to return to their homeland to marry in the army of the one who has helped them safely through these trying times.

After years at Harding - for years, six; for Yue, six - and for John, three - they agree that the characteristics of Harding they appreciate most are the Christian environment and the high ideals. George seemed to have this thing very clearly when he said, "Some day the thing I will remember most about Harding are these Christian atmospheres of Harding. There is not anywhere else in the world so wonderfully blessed by the love of God as Harding College."

These students have observed a few quite different features between American and Chinese people. Although it is harder to make a living in China, work there is very much like it is in the United States except for the machinery and for the fact that Chinese women are not so high up to the men do. Obliance is very, very important in the Chinese family; parental disagreement of marriages could cause much trouble for the young people.

In the Chinese, there is a thing called a servant, a boy-girl relationship is very different. American girls give "bad and aggressive" to American boys. They are quite mild and do not try to take a man's place. These may make them very little until they are well acquainted with theatter.

Food preparation and service are also important to the Chinese students. However, the cook is usually considered common in China. A usual meal would include a solid, rice, and hot tea - but no dessert.

Other than language and cultural differences the greatest difference that George, Yun and John have to make is the similarity in relationships between boys and girls. Girls, for instance, are expected to return to their homeland to marry in the army of the one who has helped them safely through these trying times.

Finally, without, spin about them. John, his brother and sister were released. They were without money or parents but freedom felt good. They lived in two rooms of their former home and raised their own food in a garden. Old friends shunned them from the four of the Communists, as those three were alone in the world until their father was released in 1953. After three and a half years of imprisonment the mother was released and the Laos were a complete family again.

John's mother, brother, and sister are in America now. He is still somewhere in Communist China serving his Lord. John, George, and John plan to dedicate their lives to Chris- tian service. Group movie missionaries go to China. John plans to teach Christianity by exemplifying humility and ser- vice while preparing American food for Chinese families. John Upsets highlighted the past weekend of club sports, as most of the pre-season favorites fell. Leading the pack at the time this story was written were the powerful Mohicans tribe, who pulled an upset over Sigma rudely slammed a favored Jed when he scored on a 35-yard screen pass. Ed Hightower's pass finally drew scoring blood in the minutes to go, Dee Hillin's pass on a play covering 25 yards. The teams seesawed up and down the strong defensive battle, field for three quarters, neither being able to muster up enough spirit of the team as follows:

Christian sportsmanship conduct, fans may well look forward to a season of excitement and color. As loyal supporters of the Bisons you should make plans now to attend all home games and any out-of-town contests possible. The schedule for the following two weekends includes the following games: Monday, November 24, John Brown U. at Mammoth Springs; Thursday afternoon, November 27, Arkansas College at Searcy; Saturday, November 29, Arkansas Tech Saturday, December 3, Henderson at Arkadelphia; and Saturday, December 6, A&M at Searcy.

Intercollegiate Basketball Team Ready for Play

Between the hours of four and six p.m. Monday through Friday group of serious basketball fans may be working eagerly to perfect timing and teamwork in order to prepare themselves for the BISON'S 1958-59 basketball schedule. After a year's seasoning for several of the players and the addition of six new faces, this season shows signs of being much better than last season.

The daily practice of two hours has been well used and is set up to mold efficient and consistent basketeers Coach Groover seemed to be streaming defense and the fast break. Through the use of weights before organized practice begins this fall, Coach has added several inches to the jumping height of his players.

As a whole, the team should have suitable speed, and fast-break drills will be used to gain proficiency in moving the ball rapidly down the court. Along with their speed, good spirit has been shown by the team during their practice sessions and should characterize the season.
