Faculty Approves Scholarships For Athletes; Board Of Trustees To Make Final Decision In June

Dr. Benson has announced that the Harding College faculty approved the awarding of athletic scholarships. The Announcement was made Sat., Jan. 23.

Dr. Benson stressed that the final decision still rests with the college's Board of Trustees, who will consider the faculty action in the next regular board meeting, which will be June 1, 1960. If the faculty recommendation is approved, the awarding of athletic scholarships will go into effect next Fall, he

The faculty voted on the recommendation, which came from the Faculty Athletic Committee composed of Dr. Joe Pryor, Dr. Clifton Ganus, Jr. and M. E Berryhill. If approved athletic grants will be made according to Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference rules. Other than these, no other requirements have been made, as yet.

According to Mr. Berryhill, the money to establish the scholarship fund will not be taken out of the general fund but will consist of donations given specifically for this fund.

Harding has not awarded athletic grants for nearly 20 years. The Bisons returned to intercollegiate athletics three years ago, but it was not until last Fall that Harding was given full standing in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference.

Book By Grad Has Harding As Setting

W. K. Moser, a 1957 graduate of Harding, has recently com-pleted his second book entitled "Thorn in the Flesh." Published by the Firm Foundation publishing company, the story has the Harding campus as its setting. Fully fictional as far as characters and events are concerned, these characters and events reveal themselves in real surroundings here and at a few other points.

The story is based around a young man who was born and reared in unforturnate surroundings, but through the kindness of others and the guidance and association found in a Christian college was able to find a richly fruitful life with promises of a great future.

According to a review of the book by Russell Simmons, Moser "shows remarkable skill in dealing with some of the unholy aspects of life in his narrative without seeming to be vulgar at any time. He also shows a degree of skill in dealing with touching emotional scenes without becoming overly maudlin. The story, while entertaining the reader, does teach its basic lesson of the value of Christian

Moser's first book, "Be a Man, Son," was published three years ago, just before his return to the Harding campus to complete his degree. He is presently working with the church in York,

'Northern Lights' Shine On Campus Encouraging Mission Work In North

Out of the dark night the flashing brilliance of the northern lights reflect the beauty of God's world. Humanity pauses to gaze and wonder under the magic of the northern sky. Christians are called lights - can they not be "Northern Lights" to bring the brilliance of Christ to those lost in the lurid night of sin?

In 1958 a group of young In 1958 a group of young Christians at Harding College, gon, Wisconsin, Michigan, and teach all nations." This group, composed either of students from the North or those interested in the northern area, realized the northern United States and Canada were as great and as neglected a mission field as found anywhere in the world. These students felt the need to study, work, and pray together that they might show others the tremendous need to take the teachings of Christ to the host of lost souls in this area.

Becomes Reality

Thus the Northern Lights group became a reality. Membership requirements are brief: "A member must be interested in furthering the cause of Christ in the northern portion of our continent."

The group meets regularly each month to talk over problems encountered while working in the North, listen to reports from members, and talk with visiting northern Christians. Topics of special interest include the opportunities to support oneself in some secular work while helping to strengthen the church of our Lord.

As a result of these meetings members have seen the need to take the gospel into northern areas. Alaska, Wyoming, Minnesota, Nebraska, Canada, New Jersey, Maine, Connecticut, Ore-before February 13.

Lectureship Display

Each year the club displays at the Bible lectureship held here the work for our Lord being done across the North. A bulletin board featuring the work being done in individual areas keeps the students here ever aware of the needs and opportunities to serve Christ throughout the North.

Harding students are busy studying and preparing to go into every area in the world. It is a gratifying development that several of them desire to strengthen the Kingdom of Christ in the North. This desire burns high in their hearts kindling the hearts and souls of others for Christ. Their lives, used in taking the gospel to northern areas, will leave an indelible imprint for the cause of Christ through the coming years.

History Of An Institution

Idea Becomes Reality Harding -- The Result

By Diana Woodie

The history of an institution such as Harding College has many facets. To be a rich and accurate account the story of our school must be observed from various angles. This article is the first in a series dealing with Harding College, past and present.

In 1917 the idea of a school in providing Christian education came to the mind of Home Insurance Life Company woman who lived with her family in Coal Hill, Ark. This woman was Mrs. W. A. Hill. She mentioned the idea to her husband who began a movement in Conway, Ark. to make her dream come true.

Arkansas Christian College

The first board members were chosen in 1919. Among their duties was selecting a site for the proposed school. Morrilton, Ark. was chosen over Conway as the location. The town of Morrilton was generous toward the developing school and construction began there in 1922.

The new school was to be known as Arkansas Christian College. To encourage support for the new college the Gospel Advocate in 1920 published an article containing the following gathered with two thoughts in Ohio are a few of the areas into statements: "This school is no and operated by the brethren homes; others have gone into and they are to give to its supareas for the specific purpose of port as individuals and not as churches. Its purpose is to educate boys and girls, and is to be run just as a business is to be run, the business being to educate our children."

As Arkansas Christian College gradually expanded, Harper College in Harper, Kan., was having financial difficulties due in part to their small town location. It seemed mutually beneficial for the two junior colleges to combine. The possibilities of a senior college from their resources could not be resisted.

Merges With Harper

Arkansas Christian College raised the $25,000 indebtedness of Harper College in 1924 and the two colleges became one in the fall of 1924. The result of the merger, known as Harding College, opened its first school year at Morrilton, Ark. There were 22 faculty members. J. N. Armstrong served as president; A. S. Croom, vice-president; and L. C. Sears, dean. The early days of Harding were busy ones. Financial problems plagued the young institution and the strugmoney through deals with the of Little Rock did not pay off as expected. In addition, the 1929 crash in our country refused to overlook Harding in its effects. A plan to eliminate creditors of the college included forming a new corporation, adopting a new charter and calling the school Harding Christian College. This organization continued until 1934 when another reorganization took place and the school became Harding College again.

Move To Searcy

In the summer of 1934 the Galloway College property at Searcy was purchased and personal property belonging to Harding College at Morrilton was moved to Searcy.

In 1936 George S. Benson returned from missionary work in China to take on the responsibility of President of Harding College. Through his business-like His connections with Harding methods and free-enterprise rep-

Two Staff Members Leave At Semester

Two college staff members, Bob Johnson and Miss Nadine Tyler, resigned at semester.

Johnson, assistant to director of publicity and public relations, Mr. Russell Simmons, since March., '59, moved to Little Rock where he took a position on the UPI wire service office staff. An ACC graduate, Bob edited the Optimist his senior year and worked as a reporter on the Abilene Reporter News before joining the Harding staff.

Miss Tyler was secretary to the Bible department two years following three years of schoolhe was a student at Harding | work here. She has moved to from the sixth grade to his junior Rockford, Illinois where she hopes ear in college.

PENALTY OF LEADERSHIP

In every field of human endeavor, he that is first must perpetually live in the white light of publicity. Whether the leadership be vested in a man, in an institution, or in a product, emulation and envy are ever at work. In art, in literature, in music, in industry, in commerce, the reward and the punishment are always the same.

The reward is widespread recognition; the punishment, fierce denial and slander. When a man's work becomes a standard, it also becomes a target for the shafts of the envious. If his work be mediocre, he will be left alone; if his work be a master-piece, it will set a million tongues a-wagging.

Jealousy does not protrude its forked tongue at the builder whose work is common place. Whatsoever you write, or paint, or play, or sing, or build, no one will try to slander you, unless your work be stamped with the seal of genius. Long after a great work or a good work has been done, those who are disappointed or envious continue to cry out that it cannot be done. The leader is always assailed because he is a leader, and emulation or slander is merely added proof of the leadership.

Failing to equal or to excel, the follower and the slanderer seeks to depreciate and to destroy. There is nothing new in this. It is as old as the world, and as old as the human passions: envy, fear, greed, ambition, and the desire to surpass or to destroy. And it all avails nothing. Master-poet, master-painter, master-builder, master-worker, each in his turn is assailed. That which is good or great eventually makes itself known, no matter how loud the clamor of denial. That which deserves to live, lives.

EDUCATION

If you have ever stopped to notice, you know there is a framed scroll titled "Education" near the left side of the library exit. According to Miss Austin, the manuscript has been on display in the library for five years. Visitors often ask questions about it and some even make a copy for themselves. The scroll was given to Dr. Benson by a friend in New York and he sent it to the library. For the benefit of those who have not already perused it the statement is here reprinted.

Whom, then, do I call educated? First, those who manage well the circumstances which they encounter day by day and who possess a judgement which is accurate in meeting occasions as they arise and rarely misses the expedient course of action; Next, those who are decent and honorable in their intercourse with all men, bearing easily and good naturedly what is unpleasant or offensive in others, and being themselves as agreeable and reasonable to their associates as is humanly possible to be; furthermore, those who hold their pleasures always under control and are not unduly overcome by their misfortunes, bearing up under them bravely and in a manner worthy of our common nature. Finally, and most important of all, those who are not spoiled by their successes and who do not desert their true selves, but hold their grounds steadfastly as wise and sober men, rejoicing no more in the good things which have come to them through chance than in those which through their own nature and intelligence are theirs since birth. Those who have a character which is in accord, not with one of these things, but with all of them, these I maintain educated and whole men, possessed of all the virtues of a man.

BEING CONSCIENTIOUS IS FINE ... BUT - SHEESH!

Examine Yourselves

By Dee Hillin

If men are trying to follow the teachings of the Bible, they will probably find themselves in a dilemma. Citizens of America have always been reassured of their safety by trusting in weapons of defense. Many people today are fooled in thinking that this is the reason for America's freedom. I would presume that there are more people in the world today trusting in machines than in God. This reminds me of the statement found in Psalms 20:7-8, which says, "Some trust in chariots, and some in horses; But we will make mention of the name of Jehovah, our God. They are bowed down and fallen; But we are risen, and stand up-

Hard Sayings

This is the reason that I make mention of men being in a dilemma. The Bible tells us to trust in God and we are told from men that we must produce weapons of defense. To follow both these principles, that of trusting in weapons and also trusting in God, would soon split our personality. More Christians ought to strive to get America to trust in God's word and not in America's military defense. It is very easy to justify in one's own mind the millions spent for defense; because, this keeps enemies from capturing our families and putting us in slavery. This is the natural thought of man, to protect his loved ones. Realizing the easiness of this philosophy I now call your attention to a very hard and trying philosophy. mean the philosophy of the Bible.

Jesus taught many things that are hard for us to follow. His ways are difficult for us because they demand a sacrifice of man. Even though these are hard sayings, we have hope in the fact Jesus was able to prove that they can be used practically. We can find encouraging words in Psalms 37, as to the security of the righteous. "Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be thou envious against them that work unrighteousness. For they shall soon be cut down like grass, and wither as the green herb. Dwell in the land, and feed on his faithfulness Rest in Jehovah and wait patiently for him: Fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, Because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass. Cease from anger, and forsake wrath: Fret not thyself, it tendeth only to evil-doing. For evil-doers shall be cut off. But those that wait for Jehovah, they shall inherit the land." This passage shows the type of trust the righteous should have in Jehovah.

Do You Measure Up? This lesson applies also to us at Harding in our daily lives. Do you really follow the teachings of Christ? Examine yourself on the following verses: Matt. 5:21-22, "Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment: but I say unto you, that every one who is angry with his brother shall be in danger of the judgment . . ." Check yourself on Matt 5:38, "Ye have heard that it was said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: I say unto you, Resist not him that is evil: but whosoever smiteth thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also."

Matt. 5:43-46, "Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy: but I say unto you, Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you; that ye may be sons of your Father who is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just

An Adventure In Art History

By Wallace Rae

Queen Hatshepsut wife of Trajan got cancer of the sarcophagus from smoking too many ziggurats. Praxitiles was called in to do a little carving. Two specialists Iktinos and Kallekrates were also called in. It was decided that they would try to frieze out the cancer. This, however, caused it to spread to her agora and acropolis. She seemed beyond all hope. In desperation Trajan sent to St. Denis for St. Apollinare. He came, bringing with him Hagia Sophia his assistant. Queen Hatshepsut grew weaker and expired. She was entombed in the Pantheon in Paestum.

The family seemed doomed. Trajan was hit in his column by Gitto and his followers. In his haste to escape Echinus splintered his tesserae when he ran into the stonehenge.

Discobolas was hit by a serdad and his mastaba bruised.

Venus dropped her Joshua Roll and as she reached for it both hand and roll were eaten by the guardian of the gate.

Hermes caught cold from too much exposure and with a mighty sneeze "Khufuw" sprained his pendentive and was taken to the cloister at Chartres.

Demeter came home to Hadrian's villa and hung her coat in the cloisonni. Going into the cella she found blind Arcade had fallen over the Iconastasis and had broken his pediment.

Emperor Agustus, while addressing his army, gave Poly-kleitos a Pont du Gard but he rinceau they couldn't catch and the unjust. For if ye love them that love you, what reward have ye?"

In Luke 6:27-36, we find again that we are to love our enemies and to bless them that despitefully use us. Paul had the same ideas impressed in him as were taught by Christ. I Cor. 4:12, 'and we toil, working with our own hands: being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we dure." Peter also taught this principle in I pet. 3:8-9, "Finally, be ye all likeminded, compassionate, loving as brethern, tenderhearted, humbleminded: not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling; but contrariwise blessing; . .

In Matt. 25:34-40, Jesus teaches us to feed, clothe, and take care of our enemies. Jesus not only taught this principle but he practiced it. In I Pet. 2:23, we read, "who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously." Matt. 27 shows that Jesus suffered death and endured it for us. If he can die for us can we not die for him?

Abide In Christ

Can we at Harding abide in the principles of Christ even if the nation we live in does not? We can do all things through Christ. If we revile, we cannot enter into the kingdom og God, I cor. 6:10. No matter what sacrifice we have to make we have got to obey Christ our Lord. In Matt. 7:21-23, we find a verse that is often quoted to show that we must obey the gospel. This verse also applies to us that have obeyed in that we must adhere to Christ's teachings even in they are hard sayings. Do you have the cour-

Finley's Findings

It has long been recognized that freedom of the press is an essential ingredient of a democratic society. Our forefathers, cognizant of this truth, protected this invaluable right through the First Amendment. Some Federalist leaders, however, tried to take away this Constitutional privlege by use of the Sedition Act. The pro-Jefferson newspaper editors were restricted and at least one Republican journalist was sent to prison for expressing his views.

Major Restrictions

Fortunately, the people rebelled against this sort of thing and Jefferson was elected President in 1800. Since that time, with a few isolated exceptions our press has enjoyed nearly complete freedom.

At the present time, there are only four major restrictions on the press. They are as follows: The paper must maintain certain standards of decency. 2. The editor cannot violate the Smith Act by teaching the violent overthrow of the US government. 3. The paper cannot publish scientific or military secrets. 4. The individual citizen is protected against libel and slander and has recourse in the courts.

Some Defects

There are, of course, some defects in this system of press regulation. Personally, I would like to see slightly more stringent laws regarding libel and slander. I think that the government sometimes abuses its privlege to withhold military secrets and suppresses information that the people have a right to know.

All things considered, however, our nation's system of press regulation is certainly better than that found in many countries of the world. In the Soviet Union, for instance, all newspapers are owned by the state. The government acting as publisher exercises complete control over the press, and the newspapers are perverted into propaganda sheets for the ruling class.

In Cuba, we have recently witnessed many examples of press censorship. Newspaper editors who criticize one facit of the revolutionary government are branded anti-Cuban and are arrested. Even foreign correspondents whose disclosures are not to Castro's liking have been sent

Arguments for Censorship

In conclusion, I would like to notice briefly some of the arguments that are used to justify political censorship.

One is that some editors will abuse the privlege by making irresponsible statements. These exceptions, however, can be dealt with through the use of the regulations against libel and slander. Since most publishers are able to secure the services of responsible men to act as editor, the libel laws are needed only as a last re-

Secondly, it is argued that free newspapers often cause useless agitation by raising issues over which the people have no control. These people will argue that all appeals should be directed to the governmental official who has the power of action. This argument is certainly valid for those matters which are of private concern. Nonetheless on general policy questions, those which affect a substantial portion of the citizenry, the people should at least have a right to know the facts and the issues even if they do not have the power to decide.

Wrong Impression

A third and perhaps the most valid criticism of a free press is that it often gives foreigners the wrong impression. This is often true since many people of other lands whose newspapers are governmental mouthpieces fail to understand that our newspaper articles reflect only the views of the private citizens who write it. This situation, however, could be remedied to a great extent by carying a statement on the masthead that the paper was not a government publication. We can conclude that the immense good that results from a press that is free from political censorship far outweighs any disadvantages that are incurred from its exercise. No nation can have a vibrant and progressive society without one.

Winter Musicale Is Theme Of Banquet

Winter Musicale was banquet theme on December 14. Couples enjoyed a setting of white with fir trees and musical notes glistening on the walls. One of the features in the decorations was the red sleigh used for the banquet pictures.

The entertainment carried out the theme. Music filled the air in wintry background as the Oege Girl's Quartet sang. A poem and a spritely violin solo gave pictures of playful leves in the snow. Then the visit of Frosty the Snowman, complete with corn cob pipe, encouraged all to sing songs of winter, such as "Winter Wonderland" and "Jingle Bells."

basketball game is to "shoot a basket." And, as the rule book states: "The purpose of a basketball team is to throw the ball into its own basket and to prevent the other team from gett-ing the ball and scoring." The fact that all players can shoot at the basket is a chief reason for wide participation in the game.

In view of this fact, it is surprising that so little attention has been paid to shooting percentages. Here at Harding we have one of the leading field

Elks Triumph Over Unbeaten Spiders In Minor League Basketball Action

The last team fell from the anks of the unbeaten in minor league basketball as the Elks downed the Spiders in a wellfought contest. Paul Farrar of the Spiders was high point man of the game with a total of 16 points to his credit. J. D. Key and Ken Cottrell teamed up to lead the victors with ten and nine point efforts respectively. Each now has three wins and one

The Bruins displayed a fine team effort in scoring as they nipped the Sharks 31-27. Bob Griffin's 20 points trampled the Longhorns 56-43. Bill Barden also tallied 15 points for the Longhorns. The Hoosiers were never threatened after the first quarter. Calvin Conn and Eugene Pickren kept them in the game, however, with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Frogs vs. Faculty "Aces"

The Frogs were too slick for the Aces as they came out on the bottom end of a 59-45 score. Richard Anderson racked up 12 points and Joel Gardner 10 for the winning team. Jimmy Allen and Rayburn Knight were the top scorers with 16 and 13 points
