In these leisurely closing days of this year students with an extra amount of free time might enjoy reading The Harvard Crimson which is published weekly. Articles are written under a variety of pseudonyms. The latest is the title "A History of Colleges Established and Controlled by the Churches of Christ" by Dr. M. Norvel Young, a dissertation in the field of Social Sciences at George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn., in 1945. It comments on the establishment of Central Christian College in 1949.

The treatment begins with Franklin College, established in 1845 on a farm five miles east of Nashville, Tenn., by Tolbert Pannell, and continues through 1949, the year when the last student left for the new college in a favored recommendation. The book is a valuable accomplishment, only eight remain in existence, however, this is not an accurate mortality index because many schools have solidified to form larger and stronger schools. For example, three colleges are listed as predecessors of Harding.

Although the work is primarily a history of institutionalized colleges and not a series of biographical sketches, it is bright. This optimism is based on the way I conduct myself. I enjoy it. I've been looking for sounds and have come up with one all my own. I've been looking for sounds and have come up with one all my own. This week one of the students of Harding College, Ed Higginbotham, Timmy Rhodes, and all the rest acting. David May received this chance and did very well by the part. You people that are interested in higher education under Christian auspices should have it. It is called "A History of Colleges Established and Controlled by the Churches of Christ" by Dr. M. Norvel Young, now President of Harding.

After the meeting they practiced for Track and Field Day. They have been practicing every morning and on alternate afternoons. Gunton Tarbell is their coach.

Another meeting was held Monday night, April 25. Committee reported and election plans moved forward.

In December of 1958 he arrived at Osaka-ken, Osaka, Japan. His first three months were spent in a Japanese language school in Tokyo. He then began teaching Bible and English at Mito once a week for high school and university students.

However, at the end of only six months of teaching, he had to come home because of illness in his family. He has since been teaching at Otsu, Arly and finishing his work for his master's degree. He plans to return to Japan as soon as possible.

Let's Talk

By Lynn Merrick

Let's talk about a different subject altogether this week. In our last column we had a large number of readers write in to get ideas about setting up housekeeping. Don't forget that today is Earth Day, and I think it's appropriate to say, "Thay, why should I read this, I'm not getting married. Maybe you aren't, but what about your seniors who will be on their own next year? You are planning on an apartment, aren't you? What about who you are planning on working for a while? (That park bench gets hard after a couple of nights, and a tent is excellently cold in January.)

This time let's furnish a kitchen, and, believe it or not, you will probably spend most of your time here. If you're not on a budget, you could go wild, but since very few of us are like that, let's keep a budget in mind. First (and most important as far as I'm concerned) is a coffee pot. Electric percolators are nice, but the old-fashioned drip kind are just as good and much less expensive. (Of you, could be pressed for time and use instant.) For all purposes, a ten cup is the most useful but, a six cup size prints reduced from 23c to 19c

Tasting a quick run down on utensils, we have quite a few items that you absolutely must have. As a men's and ladies Wear is pretty, practical and beautiful. You need at least three or three of these varying sizes, a skillet for a smaller one once could be electric, if you are fortunate, a muffin tin, a big loaf pan, two cake pans, a pie pan, a crock loaf pan, at least one one- quart dish, and a set of mixing bowls.

The smaller articles are almost innumerable. For example, measuring cups and spoons, pancake turner, can opener, rolling pin (and girls, this does serve another purpose besides that of throwing), a big stirring spoon, a spatula, sharp knives, a utensil holder and on and on and on. But don't get scared - it won't take long to get this and it won't be too expensive, if you're careful.

Don't forget to include dish towels, dish cloths, hot pads and at least two aprons to this list. And, you will also need such items as spoons, steel wool, hobby, (you don't grum-it's not that bad), wax paper, aluminum foil and such like. One thing, if you know definitely that you will be on your own next year, drop a hint to your grandfather. She probably loves to make aprons.

Of course, staples are a necessity (besides food of course). One hint on those, especially on a budget. Those who know what they are doing and know that it includes housekeeping could start getting things now. Really, I'm serious, a can of soup a week would have you out for next year. And, spending things out this way sure cuts down on Honor organization.

There are many, many things I could mention, and wish I had the space, but I can't get them all in. Next week we will be able to get an idea of what the rest of the apartment requires. Oh! One thing I forgot that I definitely must mention at last for me is a cookbook!"
Petit Jean Legend Adds Excitement To Favorite Location For Outings

By Carolyn Sweet

You can't really appreciate a person until you know him. No other can truly appreciate a piece until you know it.

With so many of us starting out soon after marriage to spend a whole wonderful, fun-filled day for we start to get acquainted with this beautiful and wonderful nature.

One of the most exciting things about the mountain is the romantic legend that dwells in the hearts of Arkansans who love Petit Jean. Hardened by the old French settlers is the version of the Legend of Petit Jean.

Long ago when the new world was being settled, an adventurous young Frenchman left his love in his homeland and came to America to settle down and prepare for her to join him later.

"Little John"

Heartstirring for her sweetheart, the beautiful little French girl could not bear it in France without him. Despatched a a man to come to the new world to find him. She was known as Petit Jean or Little John.

She became suddenly and steadily in her loyalty to his coming known. In the realization that she would live, she requested that she would be sent to the mountain where she had lived so happily after crossing the ocean.

Friendly Indians carried her tenderly up the slope on a crude stretcher, followed by her beloved love in his homeland and came to America to settle down and prepare for her to join him later.

As you approach the top of the fast-napped elevation shaped like a flower, rapped with tenderness, you'll view the Arkansas River Valley from an advantageous point. Appearing familiarly in the west are Mount De Smet and Mount Magazine.

Facilities

But go on to one of the five picnic areas, unload your things, and get ready for a good, long hike. Recreational facilities, such as the Stephen Mother Lodge which was named for the man who suggested Petit Jean as a park site, are some of the main-made contributions to the park.

You've probably been told to be sure and go to the falls. You start down a narrow path, up a tree, to a point where you can see the falls.

Over looking the place, you'll be able to see enough time left to get back to the picnic area in time for lunch and take off your shoes and wade in Cedar stream all about the rocks.

Likewise attractive to hikers are Bear Cave, the Palomino, and Carpet Rock. You'll have fun trying to decipher the unusual pictographs in red ochre left there by people long ago. The caves also contain moments of reservation, reminders of the more modern times of our own day.

This campaign poster advocating Petit Williams for Junior Class Student Council Representative make use of an old and effective (7) campaign device. Whether Petit's baby kiting progresses or not, his illustrated campaign posters was the most effective in determining the outcome for him, we will leave for you to decide.

That's Not All

You still haven't seen nearly as there is to see in such a short time, but its getting late and before you leave, I know you'll want to visit beautiful Winrock Farm. Mr. Rohdeker is glad to have you to visit this modern farm. These magnificent-looking cattle, caring people, modern facilities, and beautiful green hills will whet your experimental area.

You could stay for hours yet, but you've got to be back to the falls before the sun sets, so you better start home now.

The park was originally a layout, presented by seven public spirited citizens of Marshall now the park is made up of 4,000 acres. Men and women from all parts of the United States have visited Petit Jean. Some of them from the West said it was more beautiful than anything in the West, and some from the Blue Ridge even from the White and Green mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire have visited Petit Jean in a more beautiful than anything else they have been to.

Petit Jean is a beautiful place, there's no doubt about that. Let's enjoy it.

We have moved to a new location on WEST MARKET and we wish for all our old annual customers to come to see us.

Dr. Benson Discusses Essentials Of Financing Mission Work To Group

Three essentials in financing mission work were given by Dr. George S. Benson at a joint meeting of all mission groups sponsored by the European Mission Club at the last meeting, Tuesday, April 27.

Starting a good cause, knowing how to present your story, and telling it to people with money were the chief means Dr. Benson gave.

At the next meeting of the European group, elections will be hold. All members are urged to be present this Tuesday night for the meeting.
