By Judy Evans

After landing in Frankfurt, Germany, on May 16, they spent two weeks in Germany. They saw the sights of Europe and visited friends in Germany.

The Belles reporter, Mary Ethel Smith, has been keeping the Belles up to date on their activities. She says the Belles are so very friendly, I don't think that many girls are going to miss the opportunity of working with them.

The group has been well received by the service men. At the Kosmos Night Service, the Belles performed a song for the service men. In Defense of Smaller Groups

Students, especially those from larger cities, often feel hemmed in and confined on this campus and therewith to be content. More college students need to appreciate the value of different environments. A benefit from the experience. Harding's environment is a rarity at the larger state-supported institutions. There are too few schools with a faculty and staff who come to this campus and contribute to a student's moral breakdown and immune to it.

Write Discusses Misuses of Propaganda

By Pat Conaway

The dictator defining whatever or not propaganda is evil in it in making the minds of people toward the only way to think that propaganda is often evil it is well because it appeals to the emotions of people and not to the intellect.

What is wrong with appealing to emotions rather than intellect? For an answer to that question, let us look at Ivan Pavlov's experiments with conditioned reflexes. Before trying to define a dog. Shooking its tail. This experiment is often cited as an example of how fear was produced. Pavlov fed a dog, a fish, a rabbit, a rat, a chicken, a dog. The association with the light was not made all the time. The dogs expected the food whenever they saw the light. Even though there was no food present.

Rede Expressive With Men

In 1928 the Communists made and distributed a leaflet called, "Rede Expressive With Men". This film showed the strength of the emotional appeal which could be made to young, patriotic college students. The film contained nopolemic against the conditions of life in the Soviet Union. It depicted a socialist paradise where men and women lived happily together. The students saw the film and later they were asked to support Communism.

Leslie Burke Ignored Conf orm
In Pursuit of Higher Education

By Phil Sturm

Leslie Burke could learn a lesson in promotion and deterrmination firsthand from Leslie Burke, Biblical languages instruc­tor, who lived in a barn his freshman year at Harding rather than give up the opportunity of a college education.

Burke, now chairman of the department of foreign languages and literature, was born July 24, 1929, at Jacksonville, Ill. As a young man he moved with his family to Memphis, Tenn., where he received his early education.

Started as a Machinist

In high school, he was trained in the vocational machine shop. He could not afford to finish school and had to quit and get a job as an apprentice machinist.

Busy still with this job for seven years, attending school at night. He never earned his high school diploma but was admitted to Harding in 1931 after passing an entrance exam.

Burke's first year at Harding was extremely difficult. Unable to afford to stay in college housing, he spent his nights in a barn.

"In the barn, he had no light, no heat, no water, and a dirt floor," he said. "I had to wrap myself in blankets to keep warm while I was studying."

Student Problems

To become a large part of his college career, Burke had a burning desire to study Biblical languages. He states, "I came to col­lege with one thought in mind-to learn the Greek in which the New Testament is written."

In addition to working in the cafeteria, he was a monitor in the men's dormitory. His dormitory life provides some humorous experiences. Men students were the same then as now, with the usual amount of shaving cream and toothpaste smearing and short-sheeting of beds.

On the occasion, he recalls two students putting a billy-goat in another student's bed. Another time, one student went to bed to discover a dead cat under his covers.

Burke also preaches occasionally, rhetorically when he is in front of an audience. Burke's first year at Harding was extremely difficult. Unable to afford to stay in college housing, he spent his nights in a barn.

Beware of The Lady With A Bottle In Her Hand

By Linda Risinger

HAVE YOU EVER wondered just what it is that goes into that tiny glass bottle of perfume with the high price tag attached? There is more to it than meets the eye, or the nose. Today perfume companies are urging women to buy their products if they want to turn their man’s head. According to recent scientific findings, the odor bypasses the reasoning areas of the brain, stimulating motor impulses and directly on the center that controls breathing, heart and release of hormones.

Both Mild, whose columns are printed in the Journal in West, Mich., has advise that might prove profitable to Hard- working women.

Give a man a little subtle, but not too subtle admiration, and it will spread out until he is pleased with what he has accomplished and pleased with you for having the good sense to recognize how smart he is.

Students Return From St. Louis Excursion Wiser in the Art Of Successful Bus Driving

By Phil Sturm

TWENTY-ONE American Stu- dents returned recently from a five-day tour of St. Louis industries wiser not only in busi- ness operations but also in the "art" of successful business travel.

The lesson in good driving came on the way to their first scheduled tour. The students witnessed Gray (Greyhound)'s 1/2 "bus under a ten foot underpass. According to student reports, the incident tanned the nerves of everyone.

In the afternoon, the students toured the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, which serves a sev- en-state area including Arkan- sas. The tour ended with a question period conducted by an economist employed by the bank.

The group wound up the tours for the day with a trip to the Monsanto Chemical Co., third police offices of the company and lunch after being booked before they returned to their hotel.

In the morning, the group was exhibited at Parke, Davis and Company where they viewed the process of product development and production of Winchester sporting ammunition and Red-Bond aluminum sheeting.

The concluding tour was of the building where prisoners are held. The tour was conducted by an intern of the International Relations Department. Here they viewed the process of selection and social habits become more un- certain. The natural strength and the du- al motivation of the process is never more by everybody when its regular- ly practiced is once again re- sembled. Bisons Bow to Reds

The Henderson Reddies capitalized on a 26 yard pass to set up the winning touchdown in a 6-0 clash at Arkadelphia Saturday night.

The first period saw the Reddies drive to the Bisons five yard line. The long 40 yard pass was stopped when the Bisons defense forced a fumble on the fourth down. Taking over, the Bisons only two plays and then quick kicked to the Henderson 44 yard line.

The Reddies took the air at the Harding 35 with a pass from quarterback Buddy Harp to John Robb Mudd and moved to the Harding nine. Harp, on a well-executed pass, threw to fullback James Gibbs for the score. Gibbs then ran the ball for a yard drive.

APK Downs Sub T-16

The Bisons started their long drive, picking up a first down, on the kickoff to their 25 yard line and moved the ball to the 44, but a fumble was stopped by pass interceptions.

Henderson averaged two and three downs per drive to hold the Bisons and run the clock out.
