Superior Students To Be Honored During Awards Assemblies In Chapel

Harding takes a break to recognize its outstanding students during the chapel periods on May 21 and 22. The annual Awards Assemblies will lead the superior accomplishments of both scholar and athlete in two consecutive days of presentation. Many of the awards have been announced earlier in the year by Dr. Joe Prayor, dean of the college, will present certificates to these students nominated by Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. These students were selected last fall. Also, Dr. James Atchley will introduce those students achieving membership in Alpha Chi, national honor scholastic society.

Strictest survey, however, surrounds the names of many of the honor recipients. Ken Perrin, instructor in math, will present the coveted Freshman Math Award, while Dr. Bill Williams will name the winner of the Freshman Chemistry Award, and Maurice Lawson will do the honors in the College Physics division.

Joe Hacker will recognize the outstanding Bible student, who will receive a Baker's Dictionary of Theology. Competition for this award will be keen as the recipient will be selected from senior Bible and Biblical languages majors who have a scholastic average of 95 or better. In addition, various social clubs will recognize the accomplishments of their members. Virgil Laney, dean of students, announced Saturday, May 18, the deadline for all awards to be submitted to his office.

To allow more time for each award, all athletic awards will be held until the chapel period on Wednesday. During this assembly, prominent participants in the men and women's intramural programs will be recognized.

European Mission Club Honors Irene Johnson

Twenty-two members of the European Mission Club met at Kelly's for a smorgasbord supper Tuesday, May 7.

Accompanying the group were Miss Irene Johnson, club sponsor, Mr. Bob Halton, club sponsor for next year, and Mrs. Helen Jim Hyde, club president, presented Miss Johnson with a silver tray and a sterling silver bracelet from the club as tokens of appreciation.

Seniors Inducted At Alumni Dinner By Dr. Evan Urely

The junior and senior classes of Harding were officially admitted to the Alumni Association at dinners given at the Rendezvous on May 8 and 9. In previous years, the seniors have been inducted at the beginning of the school year at the annual alumni assembly. This year, however, the Alumni Association voted to have a dinner in their honor during the spring semester for this purpose.

After this year, students will be inducted during their junior year.

At the banquet, Coach Carl Allison, senior sponsor, presented the newly inducted seniors with their certificates. Dr. Evan Urely accepted the class flag of the alumni association.

Reception To Lead Week of Alumni Dinners

Buckler Tucker, executive secretary, outlined the purpose of the association, Dr. Claiborne on Harding as he knew it when he was a student, and compared it with today.

Dr. Urely, who has been active in the association, told of his work among alumni during the past year. "Greater Harding" campaign and noted the current progress being made.

Alumni certificates were presented to the seniors Tuesday night. The banquet was similar to the May 8 dinner.

Summer Term Questionnaire Shows Enlightening Answers

During the second summer school session last year, questionnaires were submitted to 185 students in an effort to compile more factual information about the program.

The results were informative and might prove enlightening to students who have considered attending this summer school this year.

Findings of the study showed that 15% of the respondents were members of the church of Christ who might be most encouraging is the thought that 56 percent of the students were attending the summer school because of the high academic rating. The remaining students cited the convenient location.

A great many of students attending the summer session were current college students; at least two thirds of the respondents were college students.

The reasons they gave for attending the summer school proves that they could graduate in three years, if their program was completed by summer and fall.

Other Secrets Revealed

Graduation certificates of 1962-63 graduates will be mailed May 18 are classes honor, family, and friends of the students and recipient of the Rees Bryant Spirit Award, a presentation of the Rebsba Bryant social club each year to the senior who best typifies Christian attributes.

Carmen, a member of Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary literary and social American Studies group, is active in the Jo Jo Go Go social club and was a member of the Student Council.

Diploma Announced

In accordance with the quarterly festivities, the year's best-kept secrets will be revealed on Saturday. The announcement of the dedication of the yearbook will come after the coronation.

Each year seniors select an individual they would like to dedicate the yearbook to. One year it was dedicated to the last five seniors who graduated for the dedication booklet to faculty members.

In 1962-63 Petit Jean honor students and recipient of the coveted Freshman Math Award, while Dr. Bill Williams was Homecoming Queen early in the fall. She was recently elected to next year's cheerleading squad and has been active in the Renna social clubs.

New Editor Reflects On Past andonders About Next Year

As I think about being editor of the Bison next year, I cannot help but reflect on the past and what it brings. I have had many well-wishers, some who have offered their congratulations and some who have offered their condolences. One student greeted me by singing: "Happy Birthday to You!"

Headaches Galore
While I realize that there will be headaches galore when no copy comes in or when the lead farmer offers their condolences. I do not know what we can do about the future. We can only pray that it will be better than the past. The future is in the hands of the farmer's Barons.

Farmers' Vote to be a Momentous Decision

By Jim Wilson

Next Tuesday America's one million million farmers will make a decision which will affect even the most disinterested of Harding undergraduate. The wheat farmers are a great deal more likely to go the future of American agriculture. A vote for the reformation of the Census of Agriculture of Farmers' Preference will mean almost immediate changes in the farm's community. The farmer's troubles would only be the beginning. All business is affected. Banks will fail. Many farmers will not be able to pay back the interest on their loans. Perhaps giving farmers more freedom.

Another reason should be the future freedom of the people from the needs of the past. It is after all an American $57 billion in support of a way of life that will be impossible to hold it off. On the federal side, the Department of Agriculture has over 500 employees. The number of farms and farmers is decreasing, but the number of employees in the Department of Agriculture is increasing.

Not too long ago, a hill was introduced to the Department of Agriculture to be sure that "the American way of life" is not just for us, but it is for everyone. What we give to others will arouse such an enthusiasm that we are spending, as presently done, but also the number of children and adults.

People are the future. If this plan is rejected there will be less reason to believe in the immediate future. This is a momentous choice.

If farmers are a very choice indeed.

How does all of this affect us students? First, it affects us as sellers. From Kansas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, grain farmers can make a difference between $82 and $82 for a bushel.

Enacting Bait
This is certainly enticing bait for the majority of people. It is a great deal more involved in the future of America than just the farmers' getting a higher price for his product. The farmer will now be able to price support, meaning more markets for his product. Farmers have traditionally held on to the old-fashioned idea that raising ourselves. This was not written as an obituary, but it was written under the title of the thesis: "People's Society." She was a person in whose property they did not want to put on trial in order to show their strength and desire for equality and liberty.

Deprived of his freedom

Being a member of a "hand's" family, I was notified that the local Justice of the Peace would stop at once. As soon as this title was given to me, I was deprived of my freedom. Our daily need for a house, for a seat in the house, we are no longer his or her "bugg-wuzzies." Let him be warned, however, that them there bugg-wuzzies, or "boggy-woggies" would be nuts to cruck.

Seeking to end a whole reign of summer, we are not at all under the control of the winter. My main concern is that we all be able to travel free of charge on any bus service. We want the people to get out of the government.

It can be done, but also the number of employees in the Department of Agriculture is increasing.

Summer Should Include Parents

As this school year draws to a close plans are being made for the summer and thoughts are turning toward home. Many plans to attend summer school, to work or to go on a mission campaign. Whatever plans are being made, two people should be considered - your parents.

Like the editorial, "labor is doing what it has to do to get into this group."

I was happy! I was proud! I was one of the few students who offered the services of my country.

I was rewarded for my endeavors with a shinier medal. I wore it on my shoulder proudly as a symbol of my being a farmer, a lover, a symbol of my patriotism, and I was proud.

After retrieving the award, I knew that I had not done anything that I should not have done. I did not complain about anything, not even about things that I disliked doing.

Today the Department has nearly a million bushels of stored wheat. This is true economic passing its impending stage.

Bob Fitch Pearce

The farm problem is basically the same. The average farmer produces too few to sell, even though in the last year the average farmer produced barely half that much. It is an open secret that the Supreme Court has forbidden any state to REQUIRE its school children to give thanks for their daily bread. However cruel it may seem to insist that things are not just for us, but it is for everyone.

We must realize that life is too old-fashioned to be stripped of its meaning. We cannot measure life by birthdays. It cannot be measured by the number of shoes lost or the number of farms and farmers. It is our duty to hold on to the old-fashioned idea that raising ourselves.

As this school year draws to a close plans are being made for the summer and thoughts are turning toward home. Many plans to attend summer school, to work or to go on a mission campaign. Whatever plans are being made, two people should be considered - your parents.

Your parents will be interested in knowing all that you have been doing. They will want to know what you have been doing, as presently done, but also the number of employees in the Department of Agriculture is increasing.

Mission Clubs Engaged In Many Worthwhile Activities And Members Make Plans To Go To Various Fields

ed people like Miss Irene Anderson, sponsor of the European Club; and Miss Irene Anderson, who graduated from Harding in 1939 and is now teaching in British Columbia, north of the Okanagan valley. The club will help with a group called Language Class, which is designed to train students of the word of the church among the deaf.

Two classes, one for the beginners and one for advanced, are now held every week in sign language.

Howard Paulin, Weldon Waggoner, Florence Klemm, Carmen Swepcic, Marilyn Keesey, Susan Simons and Lavonne Lemen at Little Rock every Friday to conduct Sunday school classes for 50 colored deaf students who have never had a Bible before. Next year, Mary Ellen Banks and Judy Daniels will join this work.

Tooth Fair

Richard Hawkins, a Harding graduate who now lives in Little Rock, and a deaf man from Little Rock touch the school classes, thus Thurby and Howard Paulin, club president, are now ready to begin the club.

Several students are planning to go to Australia about 1970 to go to work with the church there. They are planning to go to the mission in the rural centers and to encourage students to go to Oceania, the Australian Club, which is designed to become better acquainted with the work of the church in Australia and to encourage students to go to Oceania, the Australian Club, which is designed to become better acquainted with the work of the church in Australia.

The aim of the Australian Club is to help students in the mission groups to become better acquainted with the work of the church in the South Pacific and to encourage students to go to Oceania, the Australian Club, which is designed to become better acquainted with the work of the church in Australia.

At present, members of the group are writing to a group of people in Australia who plans to attend Harding in the future. They are exploring missionary fields in the South Pacific.

In July, 1958 J. D. Merrill, his wife and two children left the United States for the mission in Northern Rhodesia, Africa. They spent one year at Gwelo and then went with Brother Law to set up Kobanga Mission. In 1959, he went to the field, preferably with the church in Africa.

The would-be missionaries should be trustworthy and know how to get along on makeshift things. He should also be able to adapt to strange foods and ways of living. He must make up his mind that he is going to learn the language and let nothing interfere.

Understanding Needed

Merrill said, "You can't know the customs of the people unless you are able to understand and know the way they think." The missionary has to learn to use his hands and tools because he will help or oversee the building of houses, construction of roads and the repair of cars.

It would also be helpful to know agriculture, animal husbandry and first aid. The missionaries' attitude must be one of willingness to learn from anyone and to serve anyone ungrudgingly.

Because of the need for adapting oneself Merrill thinks a missionary should be young when he goes to the field, preferably under thirty. Above all Merrill emphasized that the missionary should not plan to go if he does not feel that he is going to stay. This should be his life's work, not a venture of two or three years.

J. D. Merrill, Missionary On Leave Of Absence, Has Worked With Northern Rhodesians Since 1926

By Wilma Schoenbach

While in Australia two more children were born to the Merrills. Thus in 1940 Mrs. Merrill died. Two years later he married Helen Janet, who had been in Africa since 1927 with her sister. They have three children, Roy, Ross and Georgia who are all living in the States.

When asked how a person should prepare for the mission field Merrill brought out several points. First the person should be willing to learn the Bible but also study sociology, anthropology, psychology and philology. Then he should be prepared to sacrifice socially and live a lonely life.

Both husband and wife must be emotionally able to undertake that sort of life. This would be the missionary's situation and learn how to get along on makeshift things. He should also be able to adapt to strange foods and ways of living. He must make up his mind that he is going to learn the language and let nothing interfere.

Garrisonites Plan Summer at Shiloh

Alton Durham managing director of Camp Shiloh in nearby Shiloh, N.J., has announced that the camp opened in 1963 is on a roll.

The 40 members of the staff come from 21 states and most of them are students or former students of Harding, David Lipscomb and Abilene Christian Colleges. Nineteen are from Harding.

Camp Shiloh is situated in a mission field about 30 miles northeast of Shiloh. Most of the campers come from non-Christian families and would have never heard the gospel had it not been for the camp.

Harding students who will serve or staff the camp include Chuck Woodley, Joe Belew, Ken Nicholison, Dwight Thompson, Roger and Carolyn Hotley, Mike and Kristen Casey, Jamie Miller, Jim Heid and Deia Barrett.

Others are Juan Leyva, Bev Galins, Sharon Berry, Max Thompson, Sandy Field, Teri Holloway, Ann Richardson and Edna Knore Chasen.

Rope Skipping Project Effective; Film Planned

Women in Social Work at Harding’s “Teaching Physical Education in the Elementary School” have undertaken an unusual project: teaching elementary school children to rope in rhythm.

Rope skipping, a very fundamental skill, can be taught by means of a film presented to the children.

The women have experimented this year with girls at the Harddier Elementary School.

The present has been so successful, that plans are being made for an educational film of this nature. The Harding Physical Education Department is investing outside sources for possible grants to finance the film.

Women students who have participated in the program include Sandra Telford, Ethel Mitchell, Linda Stafford, Linda Lee, Anitza Bentley, Sandra Cope, Mary Garner, Sandra Ward, Deanna Brownwood, Barbara Boast, Karen Block and Judy de Witt.

Academy Finishes Second At State Track Meet Here

Harding Academy’s hopes for a State Class B track meet championship fell just one-half point short at the meet held at Harding’s Alumni Field last Saturday, as Hagger’s B Hop Devils nosed out the Wildcats 7-1/2-7.

A good crowd, most of whom were Harding varieties, turned out to see the championship go down to the wire, with the team total winner not being decided until the final race, the mile relay.

Harding’s relay team of Woodward, Ely, Henson and Smith took first in the race, but Hughes placed second to clinch the Wildcats by the half point.

Other winners for the Ac­ men were the 440 relay team, Smith in the 440 dash, Ward­ and Smith, and three of the 120 hurdles, Woodward in the 100, Henson in the 200, Ely in the 440, Berryhill third in the 110, Berryhill third in the 220 low hurdles, and Berryhill fourth in the 400 dash.

Mile runner Kent Smith finished first at the Woodward Academy at the state meet here.

Annual Track and Field Day Highlights Intramural Season

The Annual Track and Field Day yesterday held few surprises for the crowds which turned out to participate and watch, as the winners in all three leagues were repeated from last year. As expected, Sub-T walked away from the meet with its ninth consecutive win in the National League. Out of 25 events, they placed first in 13 and second in the other three.

Sub-T Wins Again

Sub-T tapped its record last year with 70 total points. The nearest competitor, Alpha Phi Kappa, placed second with 44. Third place was taken by Sigma Psi Epsilon, behind with 37 points and Lambda Sigma came in last with 22. In the American League, the contest was a thriller, with the winner not being decided until the last event, the mile relay. With one event to go, Pioneer led Frater Sodalis 38 to 36. With one event to go, Pioneer gave them a narrow win of one point.

In the Women's Champion, MEA Women's Champions were: Fraters, 41; Galaxy, 11; Beta Sigma Phi, 10; Lambda Sigma, 8; Tofebt, 7; LC, 4; Gata, 3; Regina, 2; Kappa Delta, 1; Independent, 1; Bus, 1; Delta Chi, 1; and Louisiana, 1.

Three Records Broken

Ray Phillips of APK broke the record in the discus, pole vault, and the third place in the broad jump, 21' 4". Jim Pratt of AP broke the record in the shot put event, 40' 4". In the 440 yard relay, Hackett, Finley, Johnson and Smith ran a 3:35.2 to grab first place in that event.
