By Sandie Smith

The crowning of Carol Bonnell as May Queen highlighted a day packed full of activities for visiting high school students on Harding's Senior Day, Saturday, May 1.

Blessed with beautiful clear skys, the traditional coronation and Maypole winding took place on a campus covered with a host of visitors, tired students and frantic Ju Go Ju's who had been busy preparing for the big event.

The queen was preceded by representatives from each women's social club and their escorts from the men's clubs. Queen Carol was assisted in bearing her royal train by four young attendants who seemed more interested in the crowd than in their royal duties.

Numerous Activities

For the visitors on campus there were numerous activities scheduled the entire day, beginning with a special chapel program at 10 a.m. Following a devotional period directed by Harding students, Dr. George Benson welcomed the guests and David Burks, SA president, spoke on 'Why I Go To Harding.'

Dr. Clifton Ganus, vice-president, then spoke on Harding's achievements. Entertainment for the morning session was provided by the A Cappella Chorus.

Free lunch was served to all juniors and seniors with Dr. R. T. Clark as luncheon speaker.

President Benson To Retire June 3

The school was $70,000 in debt, not counting some overdue current bills. The meager income leader, he explained, does not from 269 students and a few outside gifts failed to cover the conservative academic budget of $60,000 for a year's operation.

Oklahoma Native

Early training in his native area of Dewey County, Okla., and the hardships he faced in the Orient prepared him for the task. Immediately, he put to use a favorite basic formula for overcoming an unbalanced budget the principle of holding outgo below income, except in very limited cases of expediency.

Young Escorts Unnerve Queen

There must have been a slip-up in May Fete coordination last Saturday.

Or perhaps children are just too unpredictable.

At any rate, the slow-walking crown bearers crept deliberately down the royal walkway ahead of Queen Carol Bonnell, while the impatient cherubic train bearers sped relentlessly into the train they were bearing.

It was all great fun, actually, except that Queen Carol must have had some misgivings of whether her next step might catapult into the lily pond a young attendant who was trampling her train.

Reversing the duties of the four youngsters might have made the proceedings go faster. The speedy couple could have almost dragged the reluctant ones along, perhaps setting a new May Fete course record.

But it probably would not have been half as interesting.

twinkle in his eye, without admitting whether the example was real.

It took two years for income to exceed outgo, but the 25 faculty members of that time did not miss a single payday, and on Thanksgiving Day in 1939, Dr. Benson was able to lead the mortgage-burning ceremony that celebrated the end of the school's last indebtedness.

Harding's Growth

Since that time, Harding has grown under his leadership from assets of $200,000 and no endowment to $25 million in total assets, including endowment funds of $13 million and maintaining physical plants in Searcy and Memphis worth $12 million. More than $5 million more now exists in wills and bequests favoring the college.

Current Campaign Leader

The crowning achievement of his successful growth therapy is the current Greater Harding campaign which was conceived two years ago as a $2 million expansion program for construction of two major buildings in Searcy and three smaller ones in Memphis. Since then, two more building have been added to the Searcy expansion plans and the total is near to $3 million.

Van Rheenen Winner In Spirited SA Voting

In one of the most exciting political races in year on Harding's campus, the Student Association offices for the 1965-66 school year were filled by four of the original eleven candidates in elections held April 27-29.

Between 75 and 80% of the student body voted in the general election, and about 70% voted in the subsequent run-offs. These totals represented the best percentage of voting in recent years.

Dwayne Van Rheenen, a junior Bible and speech major from Paragould, defeated Eugene Mc-Murray in a relatively uneventful campaign for the presidency. However, it was interesting to top office - a vital competitive element which has been lacking in recent years.

Things quickly became more lively in a hot race for the vicepresidency which featured a close battle between Bob Rader and Jim Wilson, Rader overcame Wilson's 40 vote lead in the first day's balloting to defeat him by a slim margin of three votes in thrilling run-off election held last Wednesday.

Rader hails from Yorktown, Ind., and is well known for his debating and speaking talents. He is presently serving as president of OCAPA.

Linda Byrd piled up a very impressive margin of votes as she defeated Paula Peacock for the office of secretary. An "old hand" at campaigning, Linda is have a contested race for the SA's presently serving as the sophomore women's S.A. representative. She is a social science major from Little Rock and is a member of the American Studies program

Ganus Wins Post

Cliff Ganus hardly had time to catch his breath as he struggled past three other contenders to gain the office of handling the SA's purse strings.

It took two run-off elections to finally decide the final result as Ganus overcame the wellmanuevered politicking of junior Ron Castleman. Ganus is a music education major from Searcy and is active in several collegiate musical groups and has served on the SA cabinet.

Representative Elections

The elections for class representatives were held yesterday and the run-offs were completed today. Candidates for senior men's representative were Jim Anderson, Jim Ed Gray and Lance Haines. Linda Spears was unopposed for senior women's representative.

Junior men's representative hopefuls were David Smith, Jere

From the Editor's Desk:

Bison Salutes Work of President

Today we have reserved the space on our editorial page to review some of the accomplishments which have been gained for Harding by retiring President George Stuart Benson.

Countless words of praise could be said for the man who has, in a very real sense, made Harding College. It is true that many people have sacrificed and worked hard to build the college, but none can compare their efforts to those of Dr. Benson.

Concerning retirement, Dr. Benson has said that it does not mean that his life will become inactive. His work with the National Education Program will continue to exert a much-needed influence in our nation and world. And we feel sure that his influence will still be felt for Harding. The work that he has done will continue to reap benefits for the college in years to come.

Almost 29 years ago a young Oklahoman, possessed with a zeal and a faith in the power and importance of Christian education, took charge of a college steeped in debt. His product is today a thriving, growing institution whose graduates are examples of the worth of Christian education.

We are all indebted to Dr. Benson, and we salute him with this edition.

Students in Revolt of Censorship Want To Be Own Administrators

Pick up almost any newspaper or news magazine today and you'll be reading about a recent student revolt, political or social movement by college students or a gaudy demonstration for true "freedom" on the part of collegians.

It all makes one sort of wish he weren't chronologically connected to the bands of wild-eyed crusaders. One can ease his emotions somewhat by realizing that although quite vocal, these newsmakers are actually a minority of America's college crowd. Yet massive things have been accomplished by minorities, both good and bad, and the rumblings of discontent from these groups should not be ignored.

Students Resent Censorship

So much of the furor lately has been in connection with revolts against censorship by college administrations. Students have erupted in protest against the denial of their "rights" to speak and write what they wish.

What most of these students refuse to accept is the fact that they are not the administrators of their college. In no institution do students govern and establish official policies of the school. Indeed, conscientious administrations will be attentive to students' requests, but they are in no position to back down to every whim of the studentry. In fact, they have no "right" to let students run the school.

Authority Stabilizes Colleges

It's time for American educators and parents to start exerting the authority which they rightly possess, and in the amounts necessary to keep our colleges stable.

When collegians realize their position in the educational system, when young adults start to act like responsible individuals who are under an authority which they can either accept by complying with or reject by leaving, then administrators will be in a position to hear the sincere and justified requests of students.

We believe Harding is setting an example of the type of relationship which should exist between administration and students. We wish we could say the same for countless other institutions in our country.

Benson's Busy Years Have Boosted Harding

By Don Johnson

Just as he's doing now, in 1925 George S. Benson was hustling to finish his work at Harding College. He hasn't slowed down yet.

George Benson began his hurried approach to life when he was born on an Oklahoma farm in 1898. He received his teaching certificate after finishing the eighth grade at a country school, and later he graduated from high school. He was financially independent then, working on his uncle's farm and delivering the Tulsa World.

Having graduated from Oklahoma A&M, now Oklahoma University, with a B.S. degree, he was attending Harper College, participating in debate, when it moved to Morrilton, Ark., and changed its name to Harding.

Married in 1925

Benson finished his work for the B.A. degree at Harding, helping to pay his way by serving as principal of the Academy and supervising the men's dormitory. He met a young teacher of mathematics and Latin, Sally Hockaday, at the Academy; they married in July, 1925, after he was a member of Harding's first graduating class.

In August of 1925 the couple sailed to China as the first missionaries of the Church of Christ in that country. They were followed by ten others. Mr. Benson experienced anti-foreigner feeling stirred up by the communists, and once he had to take refuge on a boat to escape an angry mob.

Mr. Benson was driven to the Philippines by the Chinese upheaval, and in early 1936 he received a letter from Harding president J. N. Armstrong offering Benson the president's post. Leaving for America, he didn't know that within a year he would have been forced to leave anyway. Missionaries were asked to leave when the bombing of Canton, his center of operations, began in 1937.

College Near Disaster

Dr. Benson found a college in Searcy, where it had moved in 1934, that was tottering on the brink of financial disaster. It had 269 students and a debt of $70 000 that was more than the annual operating budget of $60,000. It also had a large mortgage.

So Dr. Benson went about looking for donations, as he is doing to finance the current $2,000,000 Greater Harding Drive. He "worked like crazy" to get money during the dog days of the Depression, when the gifts were fewer in number and smaller in amount than they are now. He also had to work harder to get them.

Dr. Benson did all of the asking himself, and his largest gifts came from opposite sides of the country: Wilmington, Del., and California. Those sources show the extent of his travels. Mortgage Burned

When Dr. Benson came to Searcy he set a goal to pay the mortgage by 1940. With his hustle he finished ahead of schedule, because the mortgage was burnt on Thanksgiving Day in 1939. And during the period of recovery not one of the 25 teachers missed his payday.

Dr. Benson is famous around the world for his work with the National Education Program. It really began in 1936 with lectures after his return from China. "I never would have seen the value of the American way of life if I hadn't been abroad," he said, referring to the poverty and communism in China. The films, Forums and columns came later.

After the school got back on firm ground, Dr. Benson started it on a phenomenal expansion program. The first new building under his tenure was the current Harding Academy structure, which came in 1948.

Buildings Added

Following it were Rhodes Memorial Field House, Armstrong Hall, Cathcart Hall, Beaumont Memorial Library, Sewell Hall, the Student Center, the American Studies Building and the Administration Auditorium.

The construction is still continuing, and the huge American Heritage and Alumni Building will be dedicated June 2. A new boys' dormitory will be begun in September or earlier.

Science Building Planned

The ideas for both of these buildings came from Dr. Benson, as did the idea for the planned science building. He makes no prediction as to when the construction will start because a federal grant will be used. He said that the grant could be delayed 12 months, but "If we had our way, we'd start in September."

From its meager beginning, in 29 years Harding's enrollment at Searcy and Memphis has increased to 2500; the assets are now worth $25,000,000, and the endowments have increased from none to $13,000,000.

Most of this growth has come because of donations, and Dr. Benson has averaged $3,000 of donations daily. But he's worked hard to get them. "In the last 15 years," he said, "I guess I've traveled enough miles to make two round trips to the moon."

PRESIDENT BENSON and President-elect Clifton Ganus, Jr., accepted for the college in 1957 a bust of Mr. C. L. Ganus, Sr., which is now housed in the Ganus Student Center.

CITIZENSHIP TRAINING, a vital part of Dr. Benson's educational philosophy, has led him to lecture on the subject of the American way of life in many states, as he has done in the Harding Academy.

RAISING MONEY FOR A COLLEGE isn't an easy thing, and Dr. Benson and his pilot Harry Risinger have flown thousands of miles in recent years on money-raising campaigns.

AMONG NEW CONSTRUCTION which has gone up during Dr. Benson's tenure is the Bible Building, seen here under construction when the Board of Trustees visited in 1961.

BY GARY LUCAS, Sports Editor

When is a Record Really a Record?

The race is over and the runners are gasping for breath. They know that the winning time was a good one, but they'll have to wait for the announcement to know just how good. Here it comes — "the time, three seconds under the AIC record, was . . ."

This situation has already happened many times to all the top teams in our conference all over Arkansas. What does it mean to break the AIC record in any track event? The answer to this question depends on two others—"when?" and "where?"

AN AIC RUNNER could kick off a three-minute mile and never be mentioned in the conference record books; Cliff Clark has broken the AIC record in the mile- and the two-mile-run several times this year, but the record books are still unchanged. It seems a little unfair to track-sters who break records that they receive no recognition officially.

The AIC, as do all big conferences, recognizes only those records set in the yearly AIC Track Meet. National track records are taken from the big meets around our country. So, a runner can break as many records as he wants, but his name will never reach the record books until he breaks them in the AIC Track Meet.

THE SITUATION isn't really too hard to understand once many thing are brought to light. Sometimes a lowly substitute gets the opportunity to run in a dual meet and is so elated and determined to make a good showing that he may make a record run; otherwise he may never get so worked up again.

Recognizing only the performances in the AIC meet eliminates these "flash-in-the-pan dandies" from making a shambles of the record books.

Another good reason to recognize only the records of the AIC meet is to eliminate a lot of unnecessary book work. During the year one even might be run in record time in practically every dual meet. As the year progresses each boy will bring his running time down, so why not recognize the last performance of the year when the running times should be the lowest? This eliminates rewriting the record books everytime there is a dual meet.

LET US NOT FORGET that these are AIC records. A team like Murray State can push many boys to records that no AIC team could reach otherwise. Strong competition from outside the AIC

East End Barber Shop

Joe Cunningham
Raymond Hill

1515 E. RACE STREET

would again necessitate a continual rewriting of the books, and the records would not be indicative of AIC performances.

Another reason for recognizing only the AIC Track Meet records is the differences in the tracks around the conference. Harding's track at Alumni Field was measured for the District 2B meet last Saturday and was found to be seven feet too long.

In other words when Cliff Clark ran his record breaking mile and two mile against Murray State, he actually ran 28 feet extra in the mile and 56 feet too far in the two mile!

FOR EVERY AIC MEET there would have to be an official measuring of the track and corrections made so the distances and times would be accurate. This would be time-consuming and quite costly.

The situation really isn't too hard to endure. Although these record breaking times don't make the official AIC books, they're entered as school records and the papers usually give credit where credit is due to a record breaking performance.

The ideal time when competition within the AIC schools is greatest, when the best boys are on the track, when all the specifications for the track and the boys are officially correct, when each boy should be able to run his fastest race comes at the time of the AIC Track Meet. Let's watch Harding bring home the records next Monday and Tuesday.

Bisons Divide Pair with Tech

Harding rallied to win the second game of a doubleheader with Arkansas Tech at Russell-ville Monday after Nick Nicholas pitched the Wonder Boys to a no-hit 5-0 win in the opener.

Nicholas gave up only two walks and the Wonder Boys backed him with some sparkling fielding. Jim Miller walked to open the game but was erased in a double play. Mike Plummer, who relieved loser Larry Harris in the sixth, died on base.

Tech scored one run in the first on a single, error and a single by Mike Bowie. Two runs scored in the second on an error, a single and another single by Ross Wertz.

Two runs scored in the sixth inning, all with two out. Simpson singled, Bowie tripled and Seitz doubled.

Mike Plummer gave up four hits in the nightcap in running his record to 5-2. David Robinson did even better for Tech, surrendering only two hits, but he lost.

Improving Netters Look to AIC Meet ASTC Tops Bisons

By Gary Lucas

Did you ever watch a bunch of boys get together to play a sport they all love, but with little experience, and who end up holding their own with the best teams in the area? Well, if you have, you can imagine the pride Bison tennis coach Hugh Groover feels for the Harding net team.

All but two of the Bison netters have had little more than high school experience in the court sport, and those two, Tony Webb and Ned Boaz, represent the extremes.

Webb a Veteran

Webb has been wielding a racquet since he was nine years Tennis Championship title. Boaz, extent of his experience.

Webb is the Bison's number one racqueteer with Boaz in the number two spot. Both are seniors. The third senior on the squad and number three man on the team is Terry Smith. Smith played high school tennis for Clarksdale, Miss., before joining last year's inaugural squad of Bison netters.

Mel Gambrell from Anchorage, Alaska, has the fourth position iced over. He's a charter member of the Anchorage Racquet Club begun about three years ago. Gambrell joins Webb and Smith as the lettermen from last year's squad.

Soph is Fifth Man

Sophomore Jerry Reaves rounds out the team. Reaves played number one position for his high school in Malden, Mo. He's the youngest member of the team.

The Bison coursters have come a long way from last year's record of around .500 to their present nine wins against two losses. "They're improving every day. I just can't tell you how much they've improved. I'm really pleased with their progress," says Coach Groover.

The Harding track team closed its regular season Monday night with a victory over Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau and is now making final preparation for the AIC meet next Monday and Tuesday at Southern State.

Southeast Missouri jumped ahead Monday by winning all places in the triple jump and the javelin throw. The AIC competes in neither of these events. But Harding rallied by controlling the running events and won the meet, 74-70, by taking the mile

West Wins Shot

Harding did get some points in the other field events. Bob West threw the shot 41' 6" for first place and Carroll Hargrove placed third. Donnie Cox tied for first in the pole vault, and Ken Brown and Kent Smith placed second and third in the broad jump.

Tom Bateman lost the high jump for the first time in several meets. He made the winning height, 6'51/2", but lost because of more misses.

The Bisons won every running event but the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Kent Smith and Phil New were to Hendrix. They've beaten finished one-two in the 440 yard

The Harding 440 relay team of Larry Eoff, Mike Curry, Dwight S Robb and Kent Smith won with a 42.5 clocking. There was no 880 relay or sprint medley, and the last event was the mile relay. Harding had to win it to win the meet, and the team of Curry, New, Baker and Smith did it.

Harding and Southern State will likely be the two favorites at the AIC Meet. Harding beat Southern State by about 20 points in a triangular meet at Hendrix March 17 and tied the Muleriders at Crossett in early

Harding took a few men to the | sixth annual Arkansas AM&N ed in 1:58.5. Bateman Wins Again Invitation Track Meet at Pine Bluff Saturday, and Jerry Baker

Kent Smith placed third in the 440 hurdles with a time of 58.0. Tom Bateman was the only high jumper to clear 6', winning with a leap of 6'4". He was jumping 15 minutes after he arrived in Pine Bluff that morning.

Cliff entered the 880 and finish.

Prairie View A&M of Texas easily won the meet with 761/2 points. AM&N had 42 and Alcorn A&M 381/2. Grambling trailed Harding until winning the mile relay and finished with 26 points compared to Harding's 17. Philander Smith and Bishop College brought up the rear.

Club Bowling Title Captured by BPK

Beta Phi Kappa used the scoring power of three 500 plus series to capture the 1965 intramural club bowling championship from Pioneer. Beta Phi was fall semester champion and Pioneer was spring semester winner.

Ken Worsham supplied victory power with a 211 single game latter recorded his worst time of effort. Along with fine support from teammates Rob Barber, 199 last lap of the mile and finished and Larry Yurcho, 180, the team combined for a 989 game, thus eliminating Pioneer's hopes.
