Alpha Chi Initiates Thirty-two Members

On Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 24, the Arkansas Eta chapter of Alpha Chi conducted formal induction ceremony for 32 new members, the largest group ever to be inducted.

Membership requirements for Alpha Chi include one year's residence at Harding, a minimum 3.70 GPA on 90 to 103 hours of credit or a 3.50 average on 104 or more hours, and no character defect as judged by the faculty.

After the candidates had repeated the pledge, Joe McReynolds, president of the Arkansas Eta chapter of Alpha Chi, gave the welcoming address and then dismissed the program with the singing of the fraternity song.

Immediately following the induction ceremony, the members of Alpha Chi assembled for their annual spring banquet which was held in the Heritage Room. Dr. L. C. Sears, Dean Emeritus of Harding was the featured speaker. His topic of discussion dealt with the educational opportunities available to the present generation as opposed to those of his own generation.

Four Harding alumni have been listed in the Outstanding Young Men of America publication for 1970. They are: Neale T. Pryor of Searcy, Dr. Jack Rhodes of Beeville, Tex.; Mike O'Neal of Anitlers, Okla.; and Robley T. Barber of Moberly.

These outstanding young men were nominated by the Alumni Association and are among 5,000 selected for this publication.

Terry Yancey, New York Pioneer Club.

Track Coach Ted Lloyd Nominated For 1972 Olympic Coaching Staff

Harding College coach Ted Lloyd is one of 25 outstanding track coaches nominated for approval of the United States Olympic Committee Board, prior to selecting the coaching staff for the 1972 Olympic Games.

According to Olympic Chairman Robert Giegengack of Yale University, the panel will be considered at a March meeting of the Board of Directors in conjunction with the Biennial Meeting of the USOC.

Lloyd, track and cross country coach at Harding since 1964, is one of 20 coaches recommended for the position of assistant coach. Under his direction, Bison cross country teams won six consecutive Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference titles. In track, his teams won the AIC championship in 1966 and was second in 1967.

The 36-year-old Lloyd has had one year of international coaching experience. In 1969-70 he served as coach of the National team of Panama, which finished fourth in the 23-country Central American-Caribbean Games.

In addition to Lloyd, others recommended for the posts of assistant coaches are: Arm­strong, Deeringfield, Fla.; Al. Buehler, Duke University; Meade Burnett, Ashland College; Lee C. Calhoun, Yale University, a two-time Olympic high hurdles champion; and Jimmy Games, University of Florida.

Also, Seno Castillo, Arizona State; Royal Cherno, C. W. Post, Chuck Cooke, Huntington Beach, Calif.; Fran Credtremeyer, University of Iowa; John Gibson, Seton Hall University; Ted Hay­don, University of Chicago, also an assistant coach of the '68 Olympic team; Stan Huntsman, Ohio University; and Bill Mc­lure, Abilene Christian.

In addition, Jack Moberly, Washington State University; Dave Rankin, Purdue Univer­sity;

Ted Lloyd

College; Howard Wright, Prairie View A&M College; and Joe Yancey, New York Pioneer Club.

Outstanding Young Men Lists Four Harding Alumni

Four Harding alumni have been listed in the Outstanding Young Men of America publication for 1970.

They are: Neale T. Pryor of Searcy, Dr. Jack Rhodes of Beeville, Tex.; Mike O'Neal of Antlers, Okla.; and Robley T. Barber of Moberly.

These outstanding young men were nominated by the Alumni Association and are among 5,000 selected for this publication.

Dr. Pryor, associate professor of Bible at Harding, also re­ceived the Distinguished Teacher Award in 1970 and the Out­standing Young Teacher Award in 1966. Receiving his BA in English from Harding in 1966, he went on to get his MTh de­gree in 1969 from Harding Graduate School and his ThD from Yale University.

Dr. Rhodes received his BA in Harding in 1961 and his PhD from North Texas State University in 1970. After spend­ing a summer in Ecuador working with physical education programs in schools, he wrote a book entitled Basic Basketball, which has been translated into Spanish. He is presently coach­ ing basketball and teaching science at A. C. Jones High School in Beeville, Tex.

O'Neal received his BA from Harding in 1968. He received the Gold Medal Award of the Okla­homa Society of CPA's. He is now associated with Touche, Ross, and Company Accountants in Oklahoma City.

Barber graduated from Har­ding in 1967. He is now vice­ president of International Land Development Corporation ofMal­dive.

He also serves on the President's Development Council at Harding. Barber was a part of the business team which won the national championship for Harding in 1966.

Snow Forces Spring Out of 'Number One' Spot

The October 23 issue of the Bisons carried an editorial regarding the situation of the Race Street crossing. Students were urged to cross only with the light and only within the marked crosswalks.

The same problem is being seen now by the crossing of Center Street from the front campus to the American Heritage Heritage. Students feel that it is one of Center Street, from Grand to Blakeney, is owned by the College as a personal walkway.

However, it is a public facility and must be respected as such. Crosswalks are marked and it should not be asking too much of a student to use them as directed.

Most local drivers have learned to “proceed with caution” in an area or to avoid it completely. However, all traffic cannot be expected to detour the campus in order to avoid hitting an “adult” who has not yet learned the childhood art of crossing the street.

The grade school children of the Academy have boys selected to direct the pupils across the street. The youngsters heed the warnings and cross the streets safely to reach their classes.

Surely it would be a reflection on the intelligence of our college students to have to provide patrol boys to stop cars and escort us across the streets for our own protection. Must the situation come to this?

Bison Features

Campus Life

The Bisons strive to serve every area of life on the Harding campus. We have attempted to present features in recent issues which depict various phases of college life, provide a look into the school’s past and give insight into individuals who are170 interesting or important to the functioning of the school and yet are not always the newsmakers.

In this issue we highlighted the wives of two faculty members who are interesting or important to the functioning of the school and yet are not always the newsmakers.

We hope this is appealing to the readers and worth the time and effort to the staff. If you have any suggestions on who or what to feature in upcoming issues, please inform the Bisons.

We want to cite the ones “who also ran,” as well as those whom we expect to honor for their activities, accomplishments or awards.

Short Skirts

Or Long Pants

The present controversy at Harding concerning the wearing of pants by female students reminds me of an incident that occurred a few years ago at Fort Bragg, N. C., officer’s club.

It seems that the Officer’s Wives’ Club had planned their Christmas party to be attended by invited as their speaker and guest of honor a young and very attractive young woman. On the night of the gala event off the women were arriving decked in the finest of formal wear, officers in their dress uniforms adorned with ribbons and medals and wives in their recherche floor length gowns.

The president of the wives’ club, while waiting for her guest of honor to arrive, was thinking that it would be the finest in her club’s history. She had just begun to imagine the praise she would receive and was even considering the possibility of an unexpected second term when there was a knock on the door and her guest of honor wearing... Oh dear, she can’t be wearing pants.

The noise of troop conversa­tion suddenly ceased at all eyes as the young woman entered. What fright but having learned from her husband, a gung ho paratrooper, that the call of duty must be answered, Madame President stated, “I regret to announce and stated poignantly to her guest, “I’m their wives are not allowed in the officer’s club.”

When Dr. Neale Pryor spoke at the College at his customary mid­day evening, he suggested that the job of critic required the critic to be a true outsider, to be in a different position. And I agree, I think he was right. However, it does not mean that being in the case, perhaps Harding has overlooked a very important aspect of the role of the brotherhood. Like our Bible Seminars and Thanksgiving Lecture, we could host a Criticism Workshop, helping the brethren to sharpen their tongues and improve their ability. Since this is a job for life, maybe it should be more carefully trained.

One segment of the workshop could be developed for those who need training in the use of cutting remarks. It might be called the "critic shop." At first, a brainstorming session would be held for ten minutes, during which time, participants list every single comment they have or might say when in the presence of others. After completing a master list, the group would break into smaller committees, then list each other’s. Practice makes perfect. These sessions would be discussed, such as: laughing after a remark so as to appear humorous, “I’m only joking,” when you know as assuredly that you meant a nasty comment; or before cutting someone, say, “No offense, but...”

At least one period could be provided for the listing of sub­jects to criticize. After all, it is no longer fashionable to ridicule hobbies, but rather the accomplished critic learns to warm his attacks.

The College Church is a good place to start. It can be criti­cized for being too big and impersonal. It is perfect to pounce on the preacher for going off the rails.

If ideas begin to fail in that area, the critic could go crazy for campus. The student center is too small, the teachers are not adequate; weekends are terribly dull; the administration is inconsistent; and people try to railroad the student body into accepting ideas they are basically against.

Another session would be en­ titled “Belittling is Beautiful.” During this presentation, the speaker would try to convey the erroneous concept that stepping on others makes one taller. The listeners were not aware how the words covering their own inadequacies is done by severely criticizing the shortcomings of others. Only by accepting these ideas, the critic is close to perfection.

The final lecture would be titled “Happiness is Causing Discontent.” This idea would be shown that criticism rarely remedies a bad situation. They would be taught to seek fulfillment in life through stirring, exciting constructive criticism to correct the imperfections around them.

From the Editor’s Desk:

The afternoon sun went into dark shade as the sun went down. The campus eased into evening routine. Couples returning from supper went in one way or another. The already growing lines waiting for buses were growing longer. Some of the couple who insured the success of their evening by making reservations for the last bus, were already two hours late. The requests have already been submitted for reservation of the remaining buses but it is indicated that the swings are booked solid for the next thirteen weeks. And rumor has it that co-oped meters may be installed to prevent further congestion caused by having to confirm reservations.

For those who choose to bypass the chaos of the swinging social events of week the sanctuary is a tree to lean against to do—your—self—entertainment. A quick walk by any of those campus mini­strels will reveal vocal and in­strumental melodies ranging from the golden sounds of the flute to the soulful sounds of a gong. The group is called the Buck Owens and Loretta Lynn.

But as in every sphere of activity, a certain amount of dissatisfaction is in­evitable. Without warning you may find that guests who pre­pare a happening crowd, in which case you are bound to be noticed by the president of the society, there is nothing as humilitating as to be whisked out of all things in her ear and then chuckling about it.

Ecology enthusiasts are up-in­arms over the potential long­term effects of the Frisbee. Known frisbees may have on the mating patterns throughout the United States. And now that all the college students seem to be wearing such a thing, there are being ignored to the utmost detriment of the environment.

The athletic department is terror-stricken at the thought of having to field a varsity fris­bee team.

But the most serious incident that has occurred involved a student who had to be hospital­ized after being viciously at­tacked by a rabid frisbee. The health authorities have immedi­ately notified, and preparation has already begun for inoculating the student body to prevent further accidents.

The Society of Casanova should be appraised, and campus activ­i­ty should return to normal by the end of the week. The frolics may have on the mating patterns throughout the United States. And now that all the college students seem to be wearing such a thing, there are being ignored to the utmost detriment of the environment.

Assignment: HARDING

Behind Each Good Pryor Is A Charming Mrs.

By Kaylen Hall

Two women, wives of Harding professors, have more in common than just a name. Mrs. Neale Pryor and Mrs. Joseph Neale have found the ability to be happy within the framework of their roles as wife and mother. One is now going to college, the other, the other professor and mother of two, was saying that by taking six hours every semester, she would receive her degree in 10 years. "I try not to think about the long-range goal and just enjoy it step by step because you could get bogged down.

After an eight-year absence from the classroom, she is taking six hours this semester: American history, typing, tennis and shorthand.

"The students have been so nice. I think they really put the pressure on me being in this position. Here I am, a business wife. You sort of have to humble yourself and say, 'I need to learn some more.'"

Mrs. Pryor never attended college before moving to Harding with her husband eight years ago, but took a job as a secretary after finishing high school. Starting to college was all her own decision; she insists. It was not a matter of competing with her professor-husband who holds a Ph.D.

"It's for my own satisfaction. I like to be in the public and on the campus. I enjoy meeting the students and learning what they think and their hopes and goals. I think it helps to keep me young."

She took 11 hours a week the first year they moved here, "I had a baby eight months old and the reason I didn't continue then was because I didn't think it was wise to leave him. I believe a mother needs to be at home. Now both my children are in school. School is just a hobby with me now. I can't let it interfere too much. I always try to put my husband and children first."

Just add school to a long list of her other hobbies. She sponsors Phi Delta social club, cub scouts, co-sponsors the senior class with her husband, sews and is active in Associated Women for Harding and PTA. She has also helped build and decorate their home.

Sheering her courses toward an elementary education degree, she thinks that one day a degree may enable her to teach children or get a job in the chemistry department, and be content with what we have at home. She has four children and one in school. School is just a hobby with me now. I can't let it interfere too much. I always try to put my husband and children first.

"If I could never go to school again, it wouldn't frustrate me. There are many ways I could be happy other than going to school, like sewing or painting."

Just the fact that a wife has a successful husband and healthy children is fulfilling enough, really. I'm the kind of person that would like to keep on in the world for my children's sake as much as for my own, because it will help me to help them and when they are gone all of a sudden, I won't feel so empty. It can be sort of a gradual thing for me. By keeping, myself happy I can be a better mother. Some people stay home all the time with a martyr complex. The hours I get in school are mine to keep. Ten years from now I'll just be starting my life."

Every object in the Pryors' living room seems to have been placed there with tender, loving care. Seated on her sofa, Mrs. Pryor's soft, gentle voice belies a real strength and purpose her life has.

Mrs. Pryor transferred from David Lipscomb College to Harding, where she was editor of the yearbook and editor-in-chief of the school newspaper. She majored in institutional administration prior to home economics, because she planned to be a nurse in a hospital. Instead she married Dr. Pryor, then head of the chemistry department, a taught home ec for two years. They adopted their first child several years afterward. Now, 35 years and three children later, their home is filled with tributes to her creative energy. She sews, making all her own and the children's clothes, and is in the process of painting and papering parts of the house.

Wedding receptions are a hobby with her: she has four to do this month. Her flower arrangements have won her the sweepstakes prize-winning arrangements, a mobile.

'Becket' Crew Races Time to Opening

Henry II and Thomas Becket (played by Pat Garner and Phil Reagan) tangle verbally in rehearsals of Anouilh's play which will be presented March 18-20.

Steve Smith, stage manager, and Beverly Lunsford work on play sets which consist entirely of moveable arches.

After designing Becket's costumes, Miss Michaels is in charge of making and fitting them to the characters.

Linda Michaels, in charge of Becket's costumes, fits the archbishop's robe on Kerry McClurg.

Students Reflect On Experiences That Made Teaching Memorable

By Kathy Burton

This week's supervising-teaching nine-week period began for almost eighty seniors. Now teaching at Arkansas as "Arrows who survived teaching last semester have been...on to reflect upon the unusual experiences, the clever actions, the touching moments and the joy of teaching children.

Student teaching is receiving lots of recognition on your desk during re- cans, a marriage proposal from a friend and the news that he is going to wait for him until he gets out of school (9th grade). Eat every lunch at Searcy. High consisting of peanut butter and something no one does excepting Linda Clarkson points out, mas presents. After it's over, the clever actions, those who survived practice memorable. For phonetics she used Roebuck catalogue. His remark was that the fr efforts was a real "fit"

Angela didn't come, it was business classes who were also best the three students in her "Peanut Butter and something lunch at Rolls, peanut butter cake and something like Arnold the pig". McRae Elementary, says of a picture of a not exactly presentable Mr. Franklin remembers a teaching happening involving Jamie and Franklin. One day for some reason Tell Jamie had brought a piece of petrifled wood. During recess Franklin, "a clumsier with but with a heart of gold," accidently pushed Jamie down. He fell in a way that the petrifled wood in his pocket broke his leg. Franklin was so miserable with guilt that he hopped on his bike and rode home. While Jamie was in the hospital in Little Rock the class wrote him letters. Jamie's return letter said at the end "Tell Franklin I'm not mad at him." While matching tears rolled Pat's cheek and his, the kids gathered around Franklin and told him that everything was alright.

Another of Pat's third graders was Sharon Washington, a darling little black girl. During a museum field trip, Sharon called Pat over to a painting of George Washington and declared, "Bet you don't know who that is." Pat reassured her that she did several times. Then Sharon said "It's George Washington but he's not white." Another fifth grader introduced himself to his student teacher as "Arnold, but they call me Pig like Arnold the pig on 'Green Acres'." TheHarding student never could bring himself to call Arnold "Pig." Each student-teacher finds that he is the center of class attention. Sitting next to the teacher, clinging to him at re- ceptives, the male teacher of the school tie all the ties for a choral program, asking the business student student to judge the gift-wrapping contest - these are the ways they show they care.

The student teachers love the experience, don't want to return to "high school," but they mark their days - do not ever wish for them - they are the teacher's all-time favorite.

But most of all they learn how beautiful children are. Bob Evridge summarized it: "Kids that aren't learned to hate or hold grudges yet". A child's mother or doe can die and it'll affect him for a while but then he'll pick up the pieces and go on. How about bittersomeness or racism. Angela wasn't black she was just Angela. I think that's what Jesus meant when he said to be like the "little children."

Medical Missions Seminar

To Be in Memphis May 21-22

Hardin will hold its third annual Medical and Missions Conference on May 21-22 at the University of Tennessee Medical Center in Memphis. This conference is the first regionally sponsored medicine and missions seminar to be conducted in the United States.

The conference, which will be held in different regions of the country each year, is expected to have increasing audiences and a greater variety of mission interests.

Pat Weaver remembers a teaching happening involving Jamie and Franklin. One day for some reason Tell Jamie had brought a piece of petrifled wood. During recess Franklin, "a clumsier with but with a heart of gold," accidently pushed Jamie down. He fell in a way that the petrifled wood in his pocket broke his leg. Stapleton House Provides Home Setting for Coeds

By Glenna Jones

Take twelve girls out of a dorm and place them in a house. What have you got? A dorm or a house? Harding's halfway house, Stapleton, is a remnant of dorm life in an almost homey setting.

Eleven seniors and one junior live in the house, which is east of the American Heritage Center on Center Street and is across the street from the Art Building. The house once contained three former cheerleaders must try out for tryouts for the 1971-72 athletic season.

After six months of dorm life, the Stapleton house evokes strong memories of home to a visitor .. a real kitchen (a refrigerator, no intercom, and no long, tuned hall). The bedrooms are carpeted and parts of the house sport wood paneling.

"We have the same rules as the girls in the dorm," says Linda Burney, a senior who lives in a room with her twin sister, Brenda. "We thought we wouldn't like it here away from our friends, but we do. We're like a family."

The girls live in seven bedrooms, three rooms on the ground floor and four on the second floor. Two girls live in a garage apartment. One small room, in the small kitchen, is a, sister, neon-lit Coke machine. It's not exactly what you'd find in the average kitchen.

"How did these girls wind up in the Stapleton house?" says Miss Burney. "Mrs. Eglv (Dean of Women) asked Brenda and I if we wanted to live here and we said yes."

The other house residents are Mary Stites, Jane Young, Sue Meeker, Reva Anderson, Kathy McGuire, and Camille Johnson also live in the house.

Monday night marked the beginning of cheerleader practice for tryouts for the 1971-72 athletic season.

Twenty-four students attended the first two-hour practice session. The group contained three male members. All present and former cheerleaders must try out again to become members of the squad.

Tryouts will be held March 16 at 6 p.m. in the gym at which time the student body will select seven cheerleaders and two alternates.

In the tryouts the student must present two individual cheers, one group cheer, and the Flight Song routine. The entire student body is encouraged to attend the tryouts to vote on next year's squad.

Women's Sportscope

Monday night ended with a semi-final and a final club game. Omega Phi slipped by Theta Phi 13-16 and face the finals next week. Omega Phi's Vinecore went on to top eight points in the game while Wisdom made five for Theta Phi. Both of these were top players. Theta Phi edged Omega in the first quarter 4-2 but Vance came in to raise the score at half with a 5-5 tie. Then Omega Phi took the lead and led all the way throughout the game, third quarter 6-5, and final 13-10.

Delta Chi came back for another win this year defeating Kappa Phi in the last quarter. Delta Chi's Linda Brood led by five before Kappa Phi put a point on the board: McClarrel and Youkam placed four points for a halftime score of 4-6. In the third quarter Kappa Phi's Becky Acker made two points while Sherry Tatum managed another basket for Delta Chi ending this quarter 4-6.

The score tied in the fourth quarter 11-11 when Acker made two minutes to play. Kappa Phi's fouls pulled Delta Chi ahead and Goudade's shot finished the game with a 16-11 victory. High scorer for Kappa Phi was Becky Acker with seven points and Delta Chi's was Linda Brood with six points.

Mrs. Roose.'s Jr. High and the KAT social club of the Academy played before a fine audience. Halftime score was KAT 3-2. The third quarter was KAT 6-2 and they finished up with a 15-3 victory.

Stapleton House, here blanketed by snow, houses feminine occupants for the first time this year.

Summer Study Guide Offered

The Institute of International Education announces publication of the 22nd annual edition of Summer Study Abroad, its popular guide to summer programs overseas based on a survey of American and foreign institutions.

For the first time, the guide includes U. S. college sponsored programs abroad in addition to its listing of programs sponsored by foreign universities and private organizations. Almost 400 different programs in countries around the world are cited, including location, dates, course titles, and, in most cases, tuition, living costs and scholarship assistance available.

A comprehensive bibliography at the back of the booklet lists publications providing additional information about summer courses in specific countries or regions, other types of summer opportunities such as international service projects and summer camps, and educational tours sponsored by U. S. educational and travel organizations.

Summer Study Abroad 1971 is available by subscription from the Publications Division of the Institute of International Education, United Nations Plaza, New York, N. Y. 10017, for $20.00 a copy.

He Ain't Doctor

"I wish Christians would use 'brother' and 'sister' more. It would draw us closer together."

"I'd rather be called brother than Doctor. In my experience there is no greater honor than to be a brother in Christ."

"If Christians are going to call me brother, I want them to call me brother.

What should brother or sister mean to the Christian? One student stressed the equality of Christians and, if so, what reference to brother and sister is equivalent to using first names. It has been suggested that, out of respect for an older Christian who is more mature in the faith, it would be proper to use the title Mister, if that is what person preferred. To imply the existence of a relationship with the person preferred. To imply the existence of a relationship with the person preferred. Experience Favors Keglers
In 1971 NAIA Competition

By Larry Harris

Last spring the Bison bowlers gained national recognition by capturing the NAIA championship, thus becoming the number one college team in the nation. The team has taken the AIC title for the past three years. "The pitching and Coach Ed Burt expects nothing less this season. "The boys have done an exceptional job in the past," Burt commented, "and we're shooting for that NAIA trophy again this year."

If experience means anything the team should have little trouble this year's squad boasts six seniors and five new men.

Facing the action are a pair of four-year veterans, Gary Parsons and Mark Poteat. Parsons was number one last year with a 191 AIC average. Potet and Todd, a senior from Washinton, D.C., was unable to complete AIC action last spring but promises to be a top contender this year. A third veteran member, Denny Reeves, from SIOUX Springs will be counted on heavily for his scoring ability.

Returning for their second year with the squad are, senior H. E. Johnmeyer, junior Ed Black and sophomore Dave Hudson. Johnmeyer compiled a 168 average last year. Back and Hudson had 168 and 179 averages respectively.

A trio of junior college transfer mentors, Mitch Grubb, Gene Moore and Glen Hamner will add depth to the team. All are experienced bowlers and appear to be promising assets.

Rounding out the squad are freshmen Tom Jones and Don Belcher.

With one round completed the keglers journey to Conway tomorrow for the second match with AIC teams.

On April 3 the squad will travel to Little Rock to compete for the AIC championship in the District IT Tournament. The winner of this meet will then vie for the national championship in the NAIA tournament.

''Good Attitude' Terminates Spring Training
As Bison Coaches Indicate Athletic Optimism

By Tim Bruner

The Bison football team rounded out spring training with a final scrimmage Saturday, but the Bison baseball team continues its workouts in an effort to be ready to meet their AIC foes.

Harding football coach John Prock was greatly pleased with the spring practice in general. Above all, Prock was pleased with the attitude and effort of the boys. "Everyone put out good effort," said the Bison mentor.

Positions from 12 graduating seniors were left to be filled. Prock showed confidence in the replacements and believes that squad will win the transfer and freshman corps.

Next year's captains were elected after the traditional spring black and gold scrimmage. They are seniors Terry Brumley, Jerry Cook and Ronnie Pecora.

JuCo Tourney Plans Announced

The Junior College Basketball Tournament will be combined with the Junior College Round-Up to give prospective transfers an opportunity to visit Harding, March 15-17.

The Round-Up is a new program set up to give junior college students a chance to support their basketball team while considering Harding as a prospective school to attend after graduation.

The basketball tournament will allow Harding basketball coach Jex Bucus to view the junior college players with hopes of recruiting prospects for the Bisons.

The teams competing in the tourney will be York, Ohio Valley, Freed-Hardeman and Fort Worth Christian.

Last year's jam-packed crowd saw Fort Worth Christian defeat Freed-Hardeman in the final to capture the championship. Ohio Valley edged York to win the consolation bracket.

The York Panthers will meet the Fort Worth Christian Falcons, and the Ohio Valley Scots will play the Freed-Hardeman Lions in the first round of tournament action, Friday, March 13, in Rhodes Memorial field house, according to Dean Virgil Lawley, director of the tournament.

Harding to Host B'imentos Tourney Tomorrow

By Marilyn McFieer

The fourth annual State Badminton Championship will be held tomorrow in Harding's gymnasium. The events will start at 9 a.m. and will conclude at 6 p.m.

The tournament is sanctioned by the American Badminton Association. Harding and two other schools in Arkansans take turns housing the meet.

Events for the participants include men's and ladies' singles, men's and ladies' doubles and mixed doubles. Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in each category.

Harding will be represented by Coach Bob Knight and Dave Elliott. They will participate in the singles and will team up for the doubles match. Coach Knight will play with Mary Ann O'Grady ladies' state singles champ, for the mixed doubles events.

Bill Stevens, football coach of SCA, will be defending his single- state championship. Other contestants will be college players from Southern State and State University.

The Bruce Anderson Architectural Firm is sponsoring this year's tourney. Contestants must pay $1 entry fee for the first event and $1 for each additional event. The meet is open to all ages.

Coach Knight encourages all who wish to watch the events. He feels that it will be profitable for those interested in the art of badminton and for those who enjoy watching keen competition.
