Reichel To Be Next Year's Mission Prof
Thespians and Debaters Honored at Banquet

By Tim Bruener
Pat Garner, a senior speech and debate major, and Danette Key, a fall graduate, were named Best Actor and Best Actress of the year for their roles of Henry II in "Becket" and Eve in "The Apple Tree" at the annual Speech Awards Banquet, April 24, held at the Holiday Inn.

About 73 students and faculty members of the speech department were present to view the presentations. Garner's 50 awards to outstanding drama and debate students.

Phil Reagan and Susan Murray were named Best Supporting Actor and Actress for their roles of the Snake in "The Apple Tree" and Queen Mother in "Becket".

Steve Smith and Beverly Lunford were honored as the Best Backstage Workers with marvelous mention going to Chuck Blankenheim, Mike Smith and Paul McCartney.

Phil Reagan also won the award for Thespian of the Year, and Linda Mclitchfield and Constance Briggs won the Costumes award and the Speech Correc­ tion award. Lunford was named as this year's Bensky Scholarship winner.

Drama letters were awarded Reagan, Miss Michaels, Miss Key, Miss Murray, Steve Smith, Miss Lunsford, McCartney, Blankenheim, Mike Smith, Char­ lene Dietrich, Teresa Rushton, Rick Moore, and Tim Bixler.

Michael Murrie was named Radomian of the Year, with radio letters going to Murrie, Gary Martin, Carolin Francis, Gordon Moon, John Hooper, Scott Fowler, Art Corum, Jim Brock, Mrs. Rick Mooney, 159.8 average, and Glen Olney.

Bobby Dockley received the Debater of the Year award, and Pat Garner was named Fore­ sermon Man of the Year. Debate letters went to Garner, Dock­ ley, Jimmy Simmond, Alice Landrum, Roger Castle, Tom Estes, Debbie Decker, Jana Smith, Eugene Goudeau and Tim Matheny.

Gottfried Reichel
The visiting professor of mis­ sions for Harding's 1971-72 school year is Gottfried Reichel, a minister from Munich, Ger­ many.

Reichel has been a full-time radio evangelist in 1968. Reichel will continue his radio assignments on German broadcasts while serving as profes­ sor.

Reichel graduated from Har­ ding in 1953. He returned to Germany and began his work as a local minister in Munich­Laim. He has been sponsored by the Johnson Street Church of Christ in San Angelo, Tex.

As the fourth visiting mis­ sionary to teach in Harding's mission program, Reichel will succeed Everett Huddard. The announcement of Reichel's selec­tion is made by Dr. Joe Hackett, chairman of the Bible department.

Two Teachers
Plan to Retire
Two members of the Harding faculty, Mrs. Maude Mont­gomery and Miss Pearl Latham, have announced their plans to retire at the end of this school year.

Mrs. Montgomery, an assist­ant professor of education, joined the faculty in 1939. She has taught in the graduate edu­cation program and also superv¬ised undergraduate stu­dents.

Miss Latham, and assistant professor of Speech and Theatre, attended Harding when the school was at Morrillot. She received her de­gree in 1938 and later earned a Master's degree from the Uni­versity of Oklahoma.

After 17 years of teaching in Oklahoma public schools, she re­turned to Harding to teach in 1947.

The announcement of the re­tirements was made at the an­nual faculty and staff dinner held last week.

202 North Blakeney Isn't for Nurse Cox

By Kathy Burton
The middle main three building at 202 North Blakeney has the unofficial title around campus of the "new clinic." It is officially the site of the Planned Learning and Family Service Center and the Counseling Ser­vice of the Psychology and Sociology Department.

The "new clinic" is not, as this reporter thought, a spa­cious, new building constructed to house Nurse Cox and her entourage of Chiropractic bat­tles, allergy shots and class excuses. The Health Center is staying in the vintage 1941 Clinic.

Instead professors Brotherton, Osborne and Moore have moved into the newly constructed "new clinic," the former medical office of Dr. Draper Hous­ton. Pat Osborne conducts a counseling service solely concerned with Harding students and their problems. Lou Moore who teaches sociol­ogy and general psychology also keeps his books and papers there.

Ron Brotherton, chairman of the Department of Psychology and Sociology, directs the Planned Learning and Family Service Center. Before the move, he worked in counseling during his spare time. Now Mr. Brotherton has expanded this into a complete Family Service which provides counseling not only for students but also for child-parent problems and mar­riage troubles. Next year he hopes to have a lab for social work majors which will be closely inter­Twined with the Family Service.

The Planned Learning Center opened its doors this Monday, May 3, to second grade through junior high school students who need remedial help in their studies and to those who want to excel by building up speed and learning new techniques.

Mrs. Loretta Royse, wife of Dr. Nyal Royse, expressed the key word of the Learning Center as "new." She said they'll be using "new concepts, new methods and new equipment." This center has worked previously with remed­ial children, smiled youthful­ly and added, "I like the new material much better than the old.

The Learning Center teachers are Mrs. Royse who will work with the elementary school children and Dale Brewer who will be coaching the junior high learning team. Brewer's wife, Pat, serves as the Center's re­ceptionist and chief appoint­ment-maker.

Students from all over the White County area will attend one hour sessions every Mon­day, Wednesday and Friday afternoon. These children are former students of Little Rock learning centers and area stu­dents who have been referred by their teachers or parents.

During his hour each child will be exposed to an in­dividualized learning session in a carrel and an experience in group learning with two or three others around a cassette re­corder.

The little boys and girls will learn phonics through the Planed Programmed V o c a b u l a r y Builder, Linguistic Readers and the Readers' Digest series of Reading Skill Builders. Learning games like The Popper, Words (flash cards), the phono­word wheel and crossword puzzles will enrich the normal­drag of studying with a little bit of fun.

"Be a Better Reader" is the theme of the Science Research Associates' scheme to make junior high pupils learn. The SRA plan includes an interest­ ing selection of books to browse through and read aloud. "Fragments in Action, "Dyn­Fron­tier Goes to Congress, Smash­ up, Whole Hangout and Race Car Divers" are several of the titles on the Learning Center's shelves.

Mrs. Royse concluded, "Everything is so new it will be a challenge for the teachers as well as the students."
The protonic ethic is alive and thriving on the Harding campus.

More than three hundred years after the Puritans brought it to these shores, perfected it and elaborated on it, people are still laboring to appear successful. In America, success is a god. That is why, therefore, a prosperous neighbor was thought to be favored by God — because he was rich he must be good. There are instances of merchants who went bankrupt being disfellowshipped by the Puritans because it was thought they had in some way displeased God.

At Harding, the criteria for success is grades and achievement. This can best be illustrated by a frustrated member of the Alpha Chi who said, "I'm only studying for irrelevant questions to be asked on a test, not for what is worthwhile or helpful to me." A Harding professor was heard to ask, "Are you here to make a grade and are you happy to learn something?" For a Harding student, the answer had better be to make a grade, because his happiness and acceptance in groups here depends upon it. Besides, he has no hard job as he has been admitted, a grade C here would probably have earned him a B at any other school.

Closely related to grades is achievement of trophies and cups. This means theon and concrete proof of success. These two, grades and achievement, are responsible for the care and feeding of two more little grinnels, recognition and perpetuation.

In order for Harding to achieve recognition from other academic circles and the public, it is true that it must go the extra mile. Take the business team, for example. His members have to work twice as hard every year as, say, a well-financed school with a big name, just to convince the jury. A certain sport, for instance, is truly a genuine competitor worthy of reward. The debate team faces the same problem and probably every other group that goes out from Harding. These students are the backbone, theourmet for this time and effort. Going the extra mile is fine and dandy, but for whom and for what? For the accolades society for so many trophies?

It is felt that grades, achievement and recognition contribute to the perpetuation of this school. Recognition by the rest of the world encourages donations. Moreover, students are anxious to achieve the best grade in their major. The longest list of achievements enjoy the favor of the school because thereby, they are going to college and most will probably have the highest income and the most influence to help inure the perpetuation of this institution.

Recognition is all well and good to some extent, necessary, and in some cases desirable. But Harding must meet certain standards in order to be accredited and win the confidence and respect of other schools, prospective students, banks and merchants. The onus of this extra work is truly a genuine competitor worthy of reward. The debate team faces the same problem and probably every other group that goes out from Harding. These students are the backbone, theourmet for this time and effort. Going the extra mile is fine and dandy, but for whom and for what? For the accolades society for so many trophies?

Happiness May Be Superficial; Practice Befriending Others

Who is happy?

"Well," you say, "it's the person with the big name, the jolly laugh." "It's the poor," you say, "the rich who are happy," someone else remarks. "It's the president with his home and power," still another remarks.

... when the king heard the report he sent his clothes and the people looked, and, beholding him, they were all glad with him in — -- II Kings 1:30.

So it is with many people who appear to be happy. Underneath they carry a burden we may never feel.

Neale Pryor gives an example of Dale Evans and Roy Rogers. These stars once appeared on stage with joyful singing and happy smiles. Though happily they felt heavy hearts. In the hospital their baby lay dying.

"That person looks so happy," we say. We hope he is happy, we could not bear it if he was not another person on campus who needs friends. We should not think less of that person, he may be the person who is aggressive, apparently unsatisfactory, shy, introverted, or even extroverted. Who needs you now? You never know, do you? Will you be a friend to today?

"It's simply a confession of belief. If one professes to believe in a supreme being and that He is loving and watchful, it seems only natural that one might place Him at the top of the list of "People to Please." But the thing is, God doesn't give trophies or grades, scholarships or endowment funds. Come to think of it, none of the most nobles performed by men for mankind have probably gone unrewarded and unseen except by God. A man may sow a seed but a thousand years will pass before its fruit will come to the earth.

"It's the person with the big name, the jolly laugh." "It's the poor," you say, "the rich who are happy," someone else remarks. "It's the president with his home and power," still another remarks.

May Day Ceremonies Have Ancient Origins

By Glennia Jones

In English legendry, the Little People of Maypole have emerged from the woods on the first of May, either wrecking havoc or causing joy. In American tradition, Big People and Little People (hundreds of them) descend on the campus to witness a ceremony which has been performed in the same spot for 45 years; the winding, unwinding, and winding again (halfway at least) of the May pole. Just like their ancestral counterparts, some are havoc-wrackers, some joy-bringers.

Factions occur during Pole season (in all other political issues): there is derision and controversy. A scene develops between the factions: The Big People (Leaplo) and The Little People (Burnie).

Scene: Front lawn, May 1.

The crowds gather.

Leaplo: (wearing his new suit). Wow! Look at the people! Must be hundreds of 'em!

Burnie: (in green woolly socks) What? They're doing?

Leaplo: Hub! What a s%#$ mean? Is the May pole winding? Happens every year—been going on for 45 years in this spot.

Burnie: (amazed, looking at his feet) This very spot! But, Leaplo, why are they doing all this? Look... they've built a bridge, put up a huge pole and are... What for?

Leaplo: Wait and see, Burnie. It's a great tradition. (Trumpets, fanfare. Strains of Strauss, Rainbow of colors... girls. Beautiful gowns float by)

Burnie: Actually, it's to celebrate the arrival of spring, come. Bunt, A sort of official wel- come.

Leaplo: But Leo, spring don't need no welcome. It just pops out by itself. Ain't you seen the roses growing by the dorm? They get there all by them- selves.

Leo: Look, Burn, May Day is a tradition thousands of years old. The Romans did it. The Druids did it. The English did it for centuries. We do it. (The winding begins)

Burn: O.K. We do it. Why are they unwinding the pole, Leo. They just got through winding it.

Leo: That's why it's done. Burnie: Oh! Wound only be unwound. (A slight pause) Look at that girl! Poor kid—she looks so tired. Her tongue's hanging out. Is she on the track team?

Leo: No, that's Dog Debbit. She coordinated the whole regalia... up at six drilling the winders, beating marauders off the pole, filling all the pieces together. What a woman!

Burn: All that—for a pole—for some pastel ribbons floating in the breeze?

Leo: What dedication! (Another pause) You know what makes this thing so amazing? The cooperation between peo- ple. You know one club stayed out all night just to protect the pole and the pond?

Burn: From whom? You mean someone nigh wreathens?

Leo: Yeah, or dye the pond or put pinatas in it.

Burn: Leo? Leo: Yeah, Burn. But it's okay. You'll go watch the roses grow.

Winding practice was made quite difficult when representatives arrived at the front campus on the morning of April 20 to find the Maypole had been burned. Unwinding the streamers for the Maypole proves to be a painstaking task. Mohawks again come to the aid of their sister club by constructing the Maypole.

Final decorating includes filling the Lily Pool with floating fresh blossoms. The ceremony begins with a procession of women selected to wind the Maypole.

Members of the Mohican social club aided the Ju Go Ju club members in building the gazebo to house the May Queen and her court.

The Harding University Art Department, in cooperation with the Student Government, recently held its annual Arts Festival. The event featured a variety of artistic competitions, and the winners were as follows:

Art Department Reaps Honors At LR Showings

Harding art students won five out of seven places in the Arkansas State Arts Festival, Religious Art competition, and Harding artists won other awards in the Festival at Little Rock recently. Stacy Sikes won first place with a woodcut, "Exodus," placed fifth. Honorable mentions were won by Terry Williams and J. C. Holland.

In Craft Art competition, Tom Watson won first place with a ceramic piece called "Open All Day Christmas." Gene Rothe won second place in Watercolor competition. Lecore Baker placed third in the Sculpture contest and Don Robinson won fourth in the same contest. Tom Watson won second place in Drawing and Graphics and second place in the Arkansas Artist Division with a painting entitled, "Boy."

Class representatives to the 1971-72 Student Association were elected in voting recently.

Senior class representatives will be Gerald Burrow, a social science major from Shreveport, and Ellen Kramar, whose parents live in Lima, Peru. She is a general science major.

Representatives for the juniors will be James B. Trotter of Grandiv, Mo., a pre-dentistry major, and Patricia Johnson, a mathematics-English major from Imperial Beach, Cal.

Representatives for the sophomores will be James R. Truxter of Raytown, Mo., a pre-dentistry major, and Patricia Johnson, a mathematics-English major from Imperial Beach, Cal.

Representatives for the freshmen will be James R. Truxter of Raytown, Mo., a pre-dentistry major, and Patricia Johnson, a mathematics-English major from Imperial Beach, Cal.

Senior class representatives will be elected shortly after the fall semester begins.

Youth Seminar Incorporated In Missions Meet

The Ninth Annual World Evangelism Seminar, to be held June 7-11 on Harding's campus, is focusing its lectures on "mentally and spiritually preparing people for the mission field," according to Joe Hacker, chairman of the Bible department.

The Seminar will include preachers and teachers from many areas but is centered on Harding's missionary interns and campaign group members. Included in the seminar is a two day "Seminar for American Youth," June 3-5. This seminar is planned to stimulate youth interest in evangelism.

Dr. Hacker says, "Missionaries with no preparations go into a country deaf, dumb, and blind, literally. We're trying to make the going easier with the orientation at this seminar."

Miss Baggett To Be Married On August 14

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Baggett of Searcy announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Rosemary Ruth Baggett, to Mr. Larry Gene Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. George Wilson, also of Searcy.

Both Miss Baggett and Mr. Wilson will be juniors this fall. Miss Baggett is a business education major and a member of Kappa Phi. Mr. Wilson, a business administration major, is in Sub-T social club.

The vows will be exchanged on August 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Westside Church of Christ.

A. S. Students Return From St. Louis Tour

Thirty-eight members of Harding's American Studies Program boarded the bus April 23 for a five-day spring tour to St. Louis.

With sponsors Billy Ray Cox, the group visited several points of interest in the St. Louis area. Among them were the Ralston Purina Research Farm, Mc-Donnell Douglas Aircraft, Sigma Chemical Works, and the International Shoe Company. The group were also guests of the St. Louis Police Department, Labor Council, and Baseball Club.

Among the highlights of the trip was a trip to Bush Memorial Stadium to see the Mets defeat the Cardinals in major league baseball.

Upon returning to Harding on Thursday, the general consensus was, "We had a simply grand trip."

The American Studies Program is composed of a selected group of students who are majoring in business or history. Earlier this year the group took a fall tour to New Orleans.

Mohawks Dominate Events Of Track and Field Day

By Don Blake

Mohicans outdued Sub-T in the mile, the final event, to win the large club title in the Track and Field Day meet Tuesday. Beta Phi won small club and Gata won the girls' competition. The standouts of the meet were Roger Sutherland of Beta Phi and Matt Comotto of Sub-T. Sutherland led small club competition with four firsts: 23.8 in the low hurdles, a 20 ft. 8 in. long jump, a 10.9 second 100, and 55.8 in the 440. He also placed second in the pole vault and scored over half of Beta Phi's points.

Comotto paced the large clubs by winning three events and making a terrific run at the Mohicans in his anchor leg of the mile relay. Comotto established a new mile record of 4:38.2. He also won the 880 in 2:19.7 and assisted David Byrd on an exciting 440 in 51.6.

Double winners in large club competition were Mohicans' Lester Busby, 16.4 in the high hurdles and 5 ft. 8 in. in the high jump, and David Lumpkin, an independent, 10.4 in the 100 and the 220 in 23.5. Independent Eric Weygandt set a new record in the shot put with 44 ft. 3 in. Other large club winners were Alpha Phi and HI.

Low Hurdles - Jack Barber, Kappa Sigma 20.8
Long Jump - Ken Lawyer, Chi Sigma 20 ft. 2 in.
220 Yard Dash - Steve Cox, Independent 23.2 ft.
Javelin - Larry Franklin, Mohican 156 ft. 8 in.
Pole Vault - Keith Gant, Sub-T, 11 ft. 4 in.
440 Relay - Oliver, Stroope, Ruth
