By Becky Underwood
Nostalgia for the past. Excitement over the present. Anticipation of the future. All this was Homecoming '73, with its theme "Traces and Faces." The week-end was highlighted by the crowning of Miss Brenda Hassler as Homecoming Queen.

The Bison Band presented a patriotic pre-game show, and for the first time, students from 45 states represented at Harding marched bearing their flags.

William Culp served as announcer during half-time activities. A "Rogers and Hammerstein Showcase" was presented by the band. As it played "Climb Every Mountain," the nominees for Queen and her court were escorted on to the field.

Belinda Dixon from Fitzgerald, Ga., was escorted by Mike Justus, Student Association president. Brenda Hassler from Indianapolis, Ind., was escorted by David House, S.A. treasurer; and Beth Richmond from Irvine, Calif., was escorted by Phil Herrington, S.A. vice-president.

Seniors selected for '73 Who's Who

By Susan Bradley
Thirty-two Harding seniors have been selected for recognition in Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. The representatives were chosen by the faculty from a list of candidates named by the Student Association and faculty members.

They were judged on scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the college and expectation of future success.

Ron Allison, a physical education major from Corning, participates in all sports, has been a student assistant coach, wing counsellor, S.A. representative and treasurer of Mohicans.

John Brunner, of Manchester, Ma., whose major is management, is a member of Alpha Tau social club. He has served as S.A. movie chairman and vice-president of his freshman class, and has participated in American studies, swimming and Bison staff.

Carol Bucy is a home economics major from Searcy. A cheerleader and a member of Oege, she was Homecoming Queen for 1972-73. She is a Bison Booster, and is active in A.H.E.A.

Steve Clary, an accounting major, is from Carbondale, Ill. He is a member of Kappa Sigma Kappa and has received all AIC honorable mention and All NAIA District 17 honorable mention in football. He has also been WHC club beau.

Becky Cochran, from Hobbs, New Mexico, has held the offices of president, vice-president, secretary, and historian in Phi Delta social club. A home economics major, she has served as sophomore class secretary and has worked in the Children's Bible Hour. She is senior women's representative to the S.A. and is a member of Les Bonnes de Christe.

Dan Daniel is an accounting major from Searcy. A member of the business team, he has been an officer of Kappa Sigs, Tri Kappa club beau, wing counsellor. He is this year's S.A. senior men's representative and is active in the American studies program.

Allan "Snake" Dixon, a physical education major from Fitzgerald, Ga., made All AIC first team and Honorable Mention and All American honorable mention. He had three letters in football and two in track, and is listed as an Outstanding College Athlete of America.

A member of Kappa Phi social club, Beth Evans is an English major from Glenside, Penn. She has participated in European campaigns and Campaigns Northeast.

Also listed as an Outstanding College Athlete of America is Tom Ed Gooden of Carlisle, Ark. A physical education major, he has received All NAIA District 17 honorable mention, All Arkansas intercollegiate Conference honorable mention, All American honorable mention and Pre-Season AIC all-star. He is a member of Kappa Sigma Kappa social club.

Eugene Goudeau is a Bible and speech major from Rangle, Colo. He has been a member of Phi Kappa Kelta and Omicron Delta, and has served as Knights president and vice-president. He was National Champion in competitive discussion in debate competition, Theta Psi club beau, student director of Campaigns Northeast and a member of the S.A. lectureship committee.

A French major from Oklahoma City, Okla., Lynda Hayes has served as Tri Kappa secretary and vice-president, Bison band secretary, president of Le Cercle Francais, and secretary of Alpha Chi. She has also been a member of the Pep Band and the A Cappella Chorus.

S.A. vice-president Phil Herrington is a member of the American Studies program, the Emory business team, Omicron Delta, Young Democrats, and Pi Gamma Psi. An accounting major from Arkadelphia, he is president of Galaxy social club.

Cancer research provides healthy editorial

The time has come for a truly healthy editorial to appear within the leaves of The Bison!

In a recently printed article appearing in the Sunday edition of the Tulsa World, mention was made about major gains seen in the fight against cancer.

We were impressed to discover that a noted authority, Dr. R. Lee Clark, president of the University of Texas System Cancer Center, has predicted that "within five years medicine will be capable of saving one-half of all cancer victims."

This prediction is a marked improvement over previous years', as the article stated: "In 1930, only one-fifth of all cancer patients were cured; today it is up to one-third, with good chances of topping one-half."

Estimations concerning cancer, coined as one of man's "most frightening diseases," claim that "cancer will strike one person in every four at some time in a lifetime, an estimated 645,000 new cases appear annually and about 350,000 are expected to die this year from malignancy."

While these figures may seem staggering and it is true that cancer is on the increase, it is also true that gains against this battle are on the increase.

Dr. Clark also said that "the pessimistic attitude that cancer is incurable is being shattered with fast-moving conquests against specific forms of the disease, which include Hodgkins disease, a cancer of infection-fighting lymph nodes, and acute lymphocytic leukemia, which kills more children than any other disease."

You as Harding students, who can very easily become isolated from the other-than-political-progress of the outside world, have now been exposed to the optimistic aspects of possible breakthroughs in cancer.

Why? Mainly because we want you to be in the know, to be aware that cancer can strike the unexpected, to have annual or semi-annual medical check-ups, to stay healthy and to encourage others to do so also.

Harding students in the past have helped in the fight against disease by donating blood for cancer victims, collecting for various drives and supporting cancer foundations.

We encourage you to take up a cause against some facet of this dreaded disease by writing the American Cancer Society, 219 E. 42nd St., New York, NY 10017; c/o William M. McLin, Director of Programs for Youths, to find out what you as an individual can do.

'Concerned' students respond to dirtiness

Dear Editor:

In response to J.A.B., S.R.B., and C.N.B., I am a concerned Harding coed (male) who is worried about some of the so-called WOMEN of Harding College and their futures.

It is great, girls, that you follow a daily routine of showering, washing, and rolling your hair, not to mention selecting an outfit from your SCHOOL wardrobe, and applying make-up before class. But girls, that gives you no right to accuse us of the following:

"...whereas a typical Harding male may rise 10 minutes before class to brush his teeth, but it is doubtful that he will take a shower, and even more doubtful that he will shave. Then he will select from his OFF-THE-FLOOR-ALL-OCCASION wardrobe another pair of holey jeans, smelly T-shirts, and dilapidated high tops..."

Now, girls, I take it for granted that you haven't been visiting the male dorms in the morning, so where have you acquired such a vast knowledge of the "typical" Harding male? There are many of us that go through a similar routine of washing and choosing a proper suit of clothes, but even if we didn't, it wouldn't give you the right to tell us how to dress one way or another. It is a shame that you have no incentive to get up an hour or two before class to get ready, but no one is twisting your arm.

Surely the administration will answer you as to whether Harding College is a college campus or a junior high school. It is too bad that you must spend your time writing letters to the editor, and not in some more constructive activity.

It is the right of every person to choose how he (or she) wishes to spend his time, not your right to tell him how. In all fairness, I must say that the way a male dresses does not determine whether he is a man or not. Most of the men of Harding are real men. Put your minds at rest; none of the men will wear holey jeans, smelly T-shirts, and dilapidated high tops in the business world.

A little advice to J.A.B., S.R.B., and C.N.B., and other girls who can't seem to find men: LEARN TO PLAY FOOSBALL!!!

Thank you for your interest, but keep your advice.

—Tem Elliott

Dear Editor,

Quite by coincidence before the Bison came out last week, I had already drafted a letter to "all male residents" in which I was appealing for input from the men regarding a proposed statement to be included in the student handbook next year. The purpose of the statement — to specify and to establish standards of dress for men at various locations on our campus. Our handbook, though amazingly specific on some things, is quite general as to the personal appearance of dress for men.

Why could men's garb not be influenced by women whose sense of the aesthetic is offended by such things as "holey jeans, smelly T-shirts and dilapidated high tops" in much the same way that women's garb is influenced by men whose carnal senses are offended by women's garb that is not modest?

The difference in what we are talking about here is the difference between what is ap-

see Campbell, P. 3

Nine weeks has come and gone and the end approacheth (Hallelujah). That makes those of us leaving in December take a long last look and remember.

There were discoveries to be made at first. Things like finding out that they really did throw people in the lily pool. There were holes to discover in the lawn during the rush to the cafeteria after chapel—painful as it was. I discovered how to fit into the bathtubs at Cathcart. That was major, needless to say. I discovered how to write term papers, otherwise known as one-night-stands. Enough said.

There were things I found out I liked about Harding, like the cheerleaders' chapel announcements and Dr. Joe's bow tie. I like the Christmas lights in the dorm windows and the singing in chapel because it's so loud that until everyone takes a breath and I don't, nobody knows that I sing slightly off-key.

Some things I could never forget about Harding—no matter how hard I try. I remember that first date when I tried to achieve that delicate little-girl look and bounced into a swing that promptly bounced onto the ground, which left me looking more hefty than delicate.

And I remember the night I went over for a relaxing swim in the pool. After they got me out of the water and the icicles out of my ears they told me, "Coach Pylkas doesn't want the pool heated anymore."

More recent reminiscences would include the near-explosion of the hot water heater on the back porch of our house while my roommate and I were trying to melt wax for candles and eat frozen bananas for health reasons.

Also not to be forgotten is the discovery that the pump handle on the lotion dispenser makes an excellent machine gun for pelting innocent housemates.

It's ironic that the things I remember are the things better forgotten. But I'd like to say one last word—a warning, I suppose. As a freshman, all I wanted was to get through with school. But then, like a virus, it got inside of me and I heard talk of my friends becoming professional students. Why not go to graduate school? I've gone this far. It would be stupid to stop now.

"Good Grief, my grades aren't good enough to get in grad school. I was in too big a hurry to get through."

Oh well, irony to the end.

HARDING SWINGS

A man has never lived
Till he courts in Harding's swings
Those immortal ageless inventions
The Harding love machine.

The words are more effective
Whispered to the girl you love
While the swing moves back and forth
When it's given a little shove.

Couples are brought together
Couples are broken apart
For sometimes arguments happen
Which lead to broken hearts.

If you girls have never tried it
You really are a dope
For the swings are known by a second title—
The senior girls last hope.

In Pursuit of the Great Because

By H. K. Stewart

I wake up this morning and the radio is saying today is the beginning of a new month. A new month is the time to start over and try once again to get everything right which didn't work the last time—so my radio tells me. Radios are very logical and very rational beings. I look at the morning, which is glaring at me in a very un-first-of-the-month stare, and I decide that radios are also prolific liars—or at least relatively inaccurate. It makes very little difference.

Thinking about it, new beginnings might be interesting, but they wouldn't accomplish very much. I should say I wouldn't like to try to start over at any point along the line, as they say. I would much rather have places already visited and people already met and rememberings, good or bad, to fall back on. Even bad times are better than no times at all because they show you where you've been.

I'm listening to a record which was introduced to me by a girl from somewhere back before. The music is new, so to speak, but it reminds me of a 1940's Mickey Mouse cartoon. After all, where would we be if no one could remember Mickey Mouse cartoons?

In the way of new beginnings, I remembered today what a friend told me recently. It was about a very pregnant lady who my friend saw one day while on a walk. The very pregnant lady looked happy and she apparently lived in a small house in some woods near my friend. I should say my friend's story sounded much like a dream when she described the lady's house in the woods. Even the books that were there.

I remember it as all making a very beautiful thought, as thoughts can go. It's been a month since I heard about the lady, and I've been hoping that if the lady has become a mother, she will stay a mother with a happy child.

May they have nice beginnings.

When asked about her parents' reaction, she said that her mother cried and that her father became so excited he forgot to take any pictures. Miss Hassler said she was very honored that she should be selected, not so much for all the excitement and attention that surrounds the queen, but for the fact that her friends chose her as the person they wanted to represent them at the annual festivities.

appropriate and what is modest. I believe that in a Christian College we need to recognize that both are valid considerations, and I believe that these are concerns that are involved in our education.

So, women of Harding, here's your chance. I have asked the men to submit in writing their thoughts on a dress code for men after which I would later choose an adhoc committee to help draft the statement. I will also be happy to hear from you women, too. Who knows, the women may be more interested in the men's personal appearance than the men are themselves. We'll see. How would you guys like to have a gal on that committee?

This should prove to be very interesting (which ever way it goes). Oh, yes, I cannot add your name to this committee if you turn in an unsigned suggestion. My tongue is not in my cheek.

(A male with holey clothes and proud of it.)

Dear Editor,

I have some thoughts that I would like to express which were brought about by the letter to the Nov. 2 issue of the Bison from Regina Little.

She mentioned several reasons for what she termed an "air of impatience on the campus." I'm not sure that I understand what she means here, but the first reason that she gave was the overcrowded living facilities. This is an unfortunate situation, but it could be relieved somewhat if those dorm students who had homes in town would live in them.

The second reason given for the "air of impatience" was administrative pressure to create an image. It is not quite clear to me as to what she is referring to, but as for myself, I have felt no pressure to conform to any image in the fourteen and one-half years that I have attended Harding, unless one would place exhortation to be like Jesus Christ in that category.

Miss Little mentioned the increased number of individuals refusing to be pushed into a mold that doesn't suit them. I assume that she means that the administration is doing the pushing. This isn't clear and neither is it clear what the particular mold is. If she is referring to Harding's insistence that students here abide by particular rules, she has no gripe. She does have the option of working to change these rules or of enrolling in an institution which has no such rules.

Miss Little referred in her letter th hair rules, dress rules, and other petty issues not making up just or unjust moral codes. She either is not aware of or is overlooking the facts. Dr. Ganus has emphasized that Harding's hair rules are not a matter of right or wrong but that the line had to be drawn someplace. If by dress rules she means women wearing or not wearing slacks at certain times and places, I think that she would hear the same thing on that issue from the administration.

Wilbur Mills: a friend of Harding

Congressman Wilbur D. Mills

By Ted Ary
Kensett, Ark., a town about three miles from here, is the home of Wilbur Mills, the man who has been returning to the House of Representatives since the year 1938. The local legend of the town has it that a railroad surveyor was locating a depot in the Arkansas poultry vicinity and shouted, "You ken set it over hyer or you ken set it over thar." The site became known as Kensett, Ark.

The Congressman has always been a friend to Harding College. Mills assisted one of Harding's professors, Thomas Howard, in securing a summer job with the State Department. Concerning the college itself, Mills stated, "I have followed the growth at Harding College for a number of years and have been pleased at the high quality of academic achievement attained there. In addition to this fact, the college sees to it that everyone has an opportunity to attend, through grants, scholarships and loans."

Mills stated that he was surprised at the resignation of Vice-President Agnew. He said that it seemed as if Agnew did a good job of convincing everyone of his innocence.

Wilbur D. Mills is not a politician. He is a servant of the people. His attitude can best be expressed by one of his statements to a group at Heber Springs in 1971:

"You didn't ask me for anything last year. And you haven't asked me for anything this year. You must be satisfied. But I don't want you to be satisfied. I hired out to work for you. I want you to call on me."

The Congressman's office is in Searcy, the heart of the second district. It is here that the dignitaries and friends come to chat with the official. It is here that favors are returned and partisan views are discussed.

Through the years, Mrs. Mills has assumed a quiet place in her husband's career, though she almost never misses a debate in the House, especially when her husband enters a bill on the floor. Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee is the most sought after position in the House of Representatives and Mills has held this honor since 1957. At age 48, he was the youngest chairman ever in the history of Ways and Means. Since then, Mills has earned the attention numerous times of the White House. The late President Kennedy said, "Wilbur Mills knows that he was chairman of Ways and Means before I got here and that he'll still be chairman after I've gone, and he knows I know it."

The Ways and Means Committee handles the most important legislation introduced into the House. Mills himself is chief architect of the revenue bills introduced into Congress each year. Since being in Congress, Mills has accomplished much for the state of Arkansas. Numerous government projects have aided roads and parks. The Second District has benefited, also. The district obtained 37 percent of the total federal expenditures in Arkansas in 1971.

The nomination of Mills for the presidency in 1972 was pushed but gained little momentum. The venture was best described in the words of one committee member, Sam Gibbons, (D) Fla., who asked Mills, "Why do you want to run for the Presidency and give up your grip on the country?"

The Congressman is now recuperating from recent back surgery. He is not expected to return to Washington this month, but is making considerable improvement.

Dr. Bill Verkler named secretary

Dr. Bill Verkler, professor of sociology, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Arkansas Sociological Association at their third annual convention held here Friday. ## Alumni voice pride in alma mater

By Evelyn Jones

A general survey of the alumni here for Homecoming festivities revealed pleasure and pride in Harding's activities and achievements.

"It's great to be back," was the typical reaction of the alumnus, especially Doris Healy, a '73 graduate, now a teacher at Harding Academy in Memphis, as she eagerly watched the fabulous homecoming parade, that was led by Governor Dale Bumpers and his wife, explaining how she was "really enjoying seeing her old friends and the spirit of the students still going strong."

Others compared the success of the sensational musical "My Fair Lady," put on by the speech and music department, with past productions, like "Fiddler on the Roof," and "Man of La Mancha." Each event held its own special meaning for each alumni and "winning the football game," was a big thrill for Mrs. Stevie (Green) Jones, a '72 graduate, who is also teaching at Harding Academy in Memphis.

Most of the alumni really enjoyed going to the receptions, which afforded them the opportunity to associate and meet members of the organizations in which they had formerly participated. When asked if he noticed any changes in the Student Association, David Smith, S.A. president in 1967 stated that, "My previous concern has been that of enthusiasm and interest of the students in Harding's political affairs; I've not only seen tremendous leaders, but the participation and dedication of the students is really great." Smith is presently involved in his resident internship at the University of Missouri.

The most popular comment was about the new student center. "It is really sharp," commented John Carr, of St. Louis as he was enjoying the S.A. reception in the T.V. room of the student center. "The new facilities in the student center are really nice, too bad we didn't have them when I was here," explained Lester Busby, of Indianapolis, Ind. "This is probably helpful since we have another record enrollment. I'm pleased with the increased number of black students."

The glowing of the eyes, added color to the cheeks, and a mischievous smile was often the reaction to inquiries about rules, and one disappointed coed blurted out, "but we never got late permission until one!"

'Project We Care' set to feed young

"To express our concern for others," Nov. 12-19 has been designated as "Project We Care" week on the Harding campus, according to the members of the Student Association.

"Project We Care" will be sponsored by the S. A. during which an appeal will be made to all students to donate 90 cents each to feed 600,000 children in Nigeria, Africa. The S.A. hopes that $2,000 will be raised.

According to information gathered by Junior transfer Dean Oliver, Nigeria has suffered from a draught for several years. Millions of people have died and 80 percent of the country's cattle have died because of the draught.

All the chapel programs during the Nov. 12-19 will be centered around the idea of giving to others, Oliver said.

Students, graduates plan winter weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Roy James Burton of Atlanta, Ga., announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Kathleen to Donald Lewis Shores, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Shores, Sr., of Cave Springs.

Miss Burton, who graduated in May in French and journalism, was editor of The Bison, named to Who's Who for two years, and is now a reporter for the Searcy Daily Citizen.

Shores, who is a senior speech major, is serving his second semester as station manager of KHCA campus radio. He is employed by KWCK Incorporated of Searcy as a broadcaster and newsmen.

Miss Burton and Shores will wed in the College Church of Christ at 7 p.m., Nov. 17.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mac Simpson of Clinton, Ky., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mackye Gwen, to Donald Hayward Sandlin, son of Mrs. Mary Ruby Sandlin of Lake City, Fla. and James A. Sandlin of Gainesville, Fla.

Miss Simpson, a junior majoring in English and journalism, is associate editor of The Bison.

Mr. Sandlin, a biology and physical education major, graduated from Harding in May and is presently employed by the Beebe Special School District.

The couple will be married Saturday, Nov. 17 at the Church of Christ in Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Hecker of Sellersburg, Ind., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lucinda Lee, to David Savage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lither Savage of Fort Walton Beach, Fla. Miss Hecker will graduate from Harding this December with a degree in speech education.

Mr. Savage, a 1973 Harding graduate, is currently working in the Okaloosa County Florida Public Schools as a speech therapist.

Plans are being made for a Dec. 27 wedding in Sellersburg.

Projected building plans begin at old bus garage

Harding's old bus barn is being torn down, according to Lott Tucker, vice president of finance. The building, which was the traditional setting for work on the senior class Homecoming float, is not large enough to house Harding's new bus, Tucker said.

Demolition of the barn, which will be replaced by a grocery store building on Park Avenue, began Tuesday.

The grocery building, a 52 x 125 ft. structure, located west of the campus, will house the carpenter and maintenance shops. It will eventually have to be moved to make room for the railroad to come through, Tucker said.

He continued, "With the railroad moving back and the Park Avenue converted grocery store moved, Harding's campus will expand one city block." A new road will be constructed one block west of South Turner between South Turner and Charles Street.

When these moves are completed, construction will begin on a new girls dorm, according to Tucker. Also included in the block will be a new playing field, tennis courts and parking space.

Another part of the urban renewal project is to install drainage tiles on the west side of campus, Tucker said. He stated that this work, which began yesterday, will keep that part of campus from becoming extremely muddy.

A Cappella, Chorale begin tours

The A Cappella and Chorale choruses will begin their annual fall tours this weekend, according to Dr. Kenneth Davis, A Cappella director, and Arthur Shearin, Chorale director.

Fifty-five members of A Cappella will leave Saturday afternoon to perform at Walnut Ridge. Sunday they will sing at Poplar Bluff, Mo. and Wood River, Ill. They will stop in Danville, Ill. Monday, then travel to Flint, Mich. Tuesday.

The group will sing in Beamsville and London, Ontario, Canada on Wednesday and in Royal Oak, Mich. on Thursday. On Friday they will be in Bloomington, Ind., then go to Murray, Ky. on Saturday. The tour will end with a performance in Memphis Sunday, Nov. 18.

Brett Foxx, admissions counselor, and Mr. and Mrs.

Russell Simmons will accompany the A Cappella chorus as school representatives.

The annual Harding Chorale fall tour will begin Sunday and continue through Wednesday, Nov. 14, according to Arthur Shearin, associate instructor in music and director of the group.

The tour route will include stops at the Pyburn Street Church of Christ in Pocahontas, Greenville, Mo. High School and the Humboldt, Tenn. Church of Christ. They will sing at the Western State Hospital in Bolivar, Tenn. and later tour the hospital facilities. A program will also be presented at the Bolivar Church of Christ. The last day of the tour will include stops at Henderson, Tenn. for a chapel program at Freed-Hardeman and at the Park Avenue Church of Christ in Memphis.

Forty-three members of Chorale were chosen to make up the tour group, Shearin said. This year's program will consist of hymns, spirituals, and other sacred religious music, he said.

Walk-a-thon plans announced

The White County Arkansas Youth for Retarded Children is sponsoring a walk-a-thon on Saturday, Nov. 10, according to Charlene Dietrich, college coordinator. "Miles for the Retarded" is an effort to raise funds.

Meeting at the courthouse on Saturday at 8 a.m., the walkers will hear Searcy mayor Leslie Carmichael, then travel twenty miles of the Searcy area. Every five miles will be a place to rest and get refreshments. The walkers will finish at 4 p.m., and a van will be sent out to pick up those who don't make it, Miss Dietrich said.

She also said that each walker

Monday, October 29, was the day many of us older spooks set out to "Trick or Treat" Searcy. There were many more treats than tricks.

Harding students dressed up and went as clubs into Searcy collecting food, clothes, and toys for deserving area families. According to Charlene Dietrich, social affairs chairman, for the student association, approximately two thousand dollars worth of canned goods was collected.

The students took the food to the Halloween Party held at the college gym which was decorated to look like Halloween. There, seven hundred students participated in the fun and games.

Cash prizes were given to the club and students who participated. Sub T-16 received the award for club, while Tem Elliot and Charlotte Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Dracula, received the prize for Best Dressed Spooks.

Names of families were submitted to the committee by Coordinating the college students is Charlene Dietrich and Donna Coker is coordinating the academy. Miss Dietrich stated that anyone interested in walking or being a sponsor can call her at 268-5470. She will also be in the student center Friday with more information.

All contributions will go directly to activities for the retarded children in White County.

WSRO list goals, accomplishments

By Linda McClurg

Nineteen hundred seventy-three has been a year of new beginnings at Harding, and one of the most outstanding new groups is the Women's Student Representative Organization, or WSRO.

As a representative body for resident women, WSRO was initiated to provide leadership opportunities and improve conditions for women students. This year the WSRO has already begun to get things done and has become an important part of

One act plays set

The Drama Department of Harding will present three one-act plays in approximately two weeks. The tryouts were held last week for these plays. Those in charge are Vicki McKee, Don Morris, and Charlene Dietrich. If there is a good turnout for these productions, there will be four more presented at a later date.

JoNeal Shackelford, president, reports that the group so far has performed a variety of functions, ranging from helping the Admissions Office plan housing for high school day visitors to providing doughnuts in the dorms during mid-term exams.

WSRO has sponsored a faculty tea to introduce the teachers and staff to the dorm situation, co-sponsored women's devotionals, built a float for the homecoming parade, and worked with the S.A. and Dean Joan Wood to revise the dress code.

Plans for the future include a program on self-defense for women, working with Dean Wood to establish a judicial board which will function to enforce dorm rules and regulations, and installing equipment such as food machines, lounge furniture, and kitchen facilities in the dorm.

Miss Shackelford is enthusiastic about the positive response WSRO has received among the students, and said she is "overwhelmed by the response of the faculty and their support of our purposes." Miss Shackelford, to a large part, attributes WSRO's acceptance to a "fantastic staff of enthusiastic, involved, and concerned people," and to Dean Wood, who has been indispensable in getting the organization activated. "We had the idea—she had the experience," Miss Shackelford reported.

The major obstacle that has plagued WSRO so far has been a lack of funds to work with. This has severely limited any major undertakings, but it is hoped that next semester will see the group financially and organizationally ready to begin several major projects.

Miss Shackelford sees this year as laying the groundwork and getting established. With the continued support of the Harding students and faculty, WSRO can look for a bright future as an important addition to Harding campus life, she said.

MED SCHOOL ADMISSION PROBLEMS?

EuroMed may offer RX via overseas training

For the session starting Fall, 1974, the European Medical Students Placement Service, Inc. will assist qualified American students in gaining admission to recognized overseas medical schools.

And that's just the beginning.

Since the language barrier constitutes the preponderate difficulty in succeeding at a foreign school, the EuroMed program also includes an intensive 12 week medical and conversational language course, mandatory for all students. Five hours daily, the course is given in the country where the student will attend medical school.

In addition, the European Medical Students Placement Service provides students with a 12 week intensive cultural orientation course, with American students now studying medicine in that particular country serving as counselors.

Senior or graduate students currently enrolled in an American university are eligible to participate in the EuroMed program.

By Jenny Beth Peddle
Concentrating on trying to study, what could possibly distract me from my books? A Harding coed talking about the hunt-adventures she had with her father. You mean girls can do other things besides cooking, sewing, looking beautiful and thinking of guys?

Take senior art major Alice Arrington for example who enjoys being out in nature. "One of the best ways to be outdoors is through hunting and fishing. Many times Miss Arrington has accompanied her father deer, squirrel and fox hunting. She commented that, "Dad has given me tips like when squirrel hunting, if there are a lot of beechnuts around there should be lots of squirrels." Catfish and bass are favorite types of fishing and occasionally she helps her father lay trot lines.

Anxious to ride her trail 175 Yamaha, cyclist Cathy Alton did not notice the chamber her brother had put on the bike. The chamber had made the cycle slightly louder, but too late she received a warning for "disturbing the peace." This didn't discourage Miss Alton as she took off for the country with her father, mother and brothers, cycles in the back of their pickup. Miss Alton, a senior business ed. major said, "Motorcycle riding for me is a family affair, and when we get back from a country ride full of mud holes we all wash off with a hose."

Beth Richmond, senior art major, has been sailing since 17. Her first sailing experience was on a Fleetwood Boat which was small and flat with only one sail to catch the wind. Since then Miss Richmond has been in sailboat races with her father. Oklahoma sailing behind, Miss Richmond moved to Irvine, Calif. to meet the waves of Mission Bay off the coast of San Diego. Miss Richmond said her main enjoyment from sailing comes from, "Getting out in the water and letting the wind carry you around."

"When it comes to horse-back-riding I like quarter horses and enjoy cutting cattle with them," says senior P.E. major Penny Nichols. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Street; Miss Nichols has learned the fine art of working cattle while on an alert quarter horse. Miss Nichols' interest in horses will last because as she termed it, "Riding gives you a free feeling, like there's not a care in the world."

Skiing on the slopes of Colorado every time she gets a chance is senior art major Kathy Trapp. A veteran of seven years, Miss Trapp has done most of her skiing with her family. "Dad taught us how to ski and we still look to him for giving us ski tips," Miss Trapp commented. Skiing possesses its own unique feeling. Miss Trapp conveyed this when she said, "It's the most challenging and invigorating sport I've been involved in."

Then there's Sherry Adams, all around gymnast, Jolene Hiatt, pool shark: we could never finish telling of the talent. Harding College holds many surprises to the world and its talented vivacious women are among some of them.

Intramural Sports Corner

By Charles Maxwell
Time marches on, but some things never seem to change. And so it is with Sub-T 16 as they are but one game away from their sixth straight ragtag football championship.

In a big showdown between two undefeated powerhouses, Sub-T came out on top of Alpha Tau 18-8.

Playing on a slippery field with treacherous footing, Guy Heidrick led the defending champions to a 6-0 lead. But Tau came back on a pass from Gene Burns to Tony Sneed, and with the conversion went ahead 8-6 at the half.

In the second half, Sub-T gained the upper hand and took the lead slightly more than halfway through. Randy Kirby, Jay Bonner and a stout line then crushed Alpha Tau's comeback attempt, leaving Sub-T but one victory away from another championship.

In the B Division, Galaxy jumped in front of TNT 16-2, and then held on for dear life as TNT's wild comeback fell two points short, 16-14. Galaxy must now face SubT, which returns a lot of last year's championship team.

Mohicans have yet to loose a B game and may also give Sub-T a run for their money in this division.

Knights played Theta Tau in an exciting small club game which saw the loser eliminated from the competition. After the full regulation period, there was no score.

The sudden-death period began and dragged on almost as long as the regular game. Finally quarterback Don Phillips marched the Knights down the field where they kicked a field goal and won the game.

But it was all to no avail for the Knights as Sigma Tau eliminated them in their very next game. Sig Tau and Fraters, both with victories over Knights, now meet to see who enters the championship bracket.

Kings Men, led by Jim Womack, are undefeated and appear to have the team to beat.

In small club B the championship will be divided between Lambdas, Theta Tau and Knights. Knights haven't lost yet and could be, considered the favorites.

Bison briefs

By Matt Comotto

Henderson squeezed by the University of Arkansas at Monticello last week 14-7 and remains undefeated in A.I.C. action. It is now up to either State College (Nov. 10) or O.B.U. (Nov. 17) to help give the Bison a chunk of the conference crown. The Reddies are presently rated eleventh nationally in the NAIA.

Freshman harrier, Mark Galeazzi kept the Bison string of having placed a runner either first or second in the A.I.C. cross country meet alive for the eleventh year. Galeazzi placed second behind Southern State's Mike Healer.

Snake Dixon is now the number two rusher on the all-time A.I.C. rushing list. Even though the powerful Southern State defense keyed directly on Dixon, he managed to move into the number two spot.

Women's volleyball got underway this week. Gata and Kappa Phi should be the teams to watch for the championship.

The indoor track team will open its season on December 8, in Monroe, Louisiana. A.I.C. high jump champ and record holder, Steve Celsor, will get his first taste of action for the year. Celsor will hopefully jump seven feet before outdoor track ends this May.

Jack Barber is leading the AIC statistics in two categories and is second in another. Not including the Southern State game, Barber is the leading conference receiver with 24 receptions for 448 yards and 4 touchdowns. He also leads punt returns with a 17.2 yard average and is second in scoring with 44 points.

Sports Impact

By Matt Comotto

Last week's Bison victory was like a breath of fresh air. This breath of fresh air does not consist only of athletic success, it encompasses the sportsmanship and confidence expressed by all Harding fans and athletes.

Harding fans are known for their unrelentless backing of their team. This was again evident last Saturday as 5,500 fans squeezed into alumni field to see their mighty Bisons overpower Southern State 12-0.

On October 10, 1973 the Southern State coach expressed to S.A. president, Mike Justus, the support and spirit that to him, was always evident of Harding fans.

It is indeed a fantastic attribute to Harding College that students, alumni, faculty, and athletes can grow together during an athletic competition. The football team started things rolling with their intense desire. The fans picked up this breath of fresh air and developed from it, releasing their seeds of cheers and encouragement. Harding fans were growing closer to the team all week by helping out in homecoming activities. The football team responded to this tremendous support by running onto the field as a group of champions and not a second rate power.

Things soon developed into a cycle to the dismay of Southern State. Southern State players expressed the fact that Harding just did not want to be beat. Champions keep fighting, even though they may be back in second place.

A Harding victory is not just a victory for the athletes to grasp hold of. It is a conglomeration of athletic success (winning a game) and the students feeling a part of that win.

Harding's recent year "athletic awakening" is different from that of many colleges around the country. Harding has recruited much fresh, new talent as other colleges have. But other colleges never had the support and encouragement of an entire student body, such as the one here at Harding.

New recruiting and student body support is the key to Harding's recent year "athletic awakening." Not many schools can grow together academically or socially. But such is the unique case here at Harding.

By John McGee
Quarterback Tom Ed Gooden celebrated his return to the starting line-up by tossing a touchdown pass and kicking a field goal to lead the Bisons to a 12-0 homecoming victory over the Southern State Muleriders at Alumni Field Saturday afternoon.

The victory kept the Bisons in contention for the AIC crown by remaining one game behind the Henderson Reddies. The game also eliminated the 'Riders last hopes of a championship as they fell to 2-2 in league play with only two games remaining. The Reddies are currently on top with a 4-0 followed by the Bisons at 3-1.

The Bisons got things rolling early in the contest as they took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards in 12 plays to jump into the lead. Key plays were passes of 19 and 10 yards to Perry Brown and Jack Barber. The big play was a 25-yard strike to Barber that put Harding on the scoreboard and together with Gooden's successful conversion put the Bisons on top 7-0 with 9:42 remaining in the first period.

The Bisons scored moments later when Gooden unleashed a booming 45-yard punt that SSC safety Jennings brought back to the 6. After gathering in the punt, the fleet 'Rider back attempted to cut wide to find running room only to be cut down in the end zone by the Bisons Miller and Thompson to score a safety. The tally increased the Bisons lead to 9-0 with 5:05 left in the first quarter.

From this point on, both teams defensive units dug in and prevented any major threats the remainder of the half.

The third quarter opened with neither team making much headway until late in the third quarter.

Jack Barber, after hauling in a 'Rider punt at the SSC 45, raced 18 yards to give Harding excellent field position on the SSC 27. The Bisons reached the 'Rider 18 before bogging down and bringing out the field goal team. The ball was set down 35 yards out and Gooden drilled it through the uprights to raise the Harding lead to 12-0 with 5:05 left in the third period.

After the kickoff, the 'Riders finally got their offense moving as they drove all the way to the Bison three yard line where they had a first and ten. On third down, the 'Riders fumbled and Larry Richmond pounced on the loose pigskin to abort the touchdown drive. This proved to be Southern State's only threat of the game as they crossed mid field after the turnover.

The game ended with Harding once again threatening on the SSC 30. The scoreboard told the story as the clock ran out with the Bisons on top, 12-0.

Both teams played hard-nosed football, as both teams offensive units were held below their seasonal yardage average. The Bisons employed a 'balanced attack by rushing for 131 yards while passing for 134. The 'Riders were stymied by five costly turnovers, an alert Bison secondary picked off three passes while the line covered three fumbles.

Alan Dixon moved into second place on the all-time AIC rushing list by picking up 31 hard-earned yards against a defense that was keying for him. Jack Barber lead the way rushing with 53 yards on 9 attempts.

The Bisons play the University of Arkansas at Monticello here next Saturday in their last home game of the 1973 season. UAM put a scare into league-leading Henderson last week by tying the Reddies until late in the game before Henderson won the game 21-14. The Weevils have lost their last eight conference clashes.

Harriers capture third straight title

By John McGee

The Harding cross-country team once again proved to be the class of the league as they ran off with their third consecutive AIC championship and their ninth of the last eleven years. The meet was held last Friday on the Arkansas Tech campus in Russellville, Ark. The Runnin' Bisons scored a low total of 36 points to take top honors over second place Southern State Muleriders who finished with 58.

Although the Bisons had won the last two AIC cross country championships, they started the season rated behind the Southern State squad. The Bisons lost the great majority of last year's championship squad while SSC returned the top two runners in the conference along with boasting of the best 'Rider team in several years. However; an outstanding recruiting and coaching job by head coach Ted Lloyd, coupled with the hard work and determination of the team, along with the excellent student body support, enabled the Bisons to retain their lofty perch as No. 1 in the AIC.

Team balance was the secret to the Bisons success Friday. Although SSC placed three of their runners in front of the Bisons second man, Harding's placement of all seven of their runners in front of the 'Riders' fourth man spelled the difference in the contest.

The meet developed into a Harding-SSC dual as both teams finished far in front of the remainder of the AIC teams. Placing a distant third was Hendrix, followed by Ouachita, 118; UAM and SCA, 128; Arkansas Tech, 166; Henderson, 181; and College of the Ozarks, 271.

Freshman Mark Galeazzi of Merced, Calif., led the Bisons surge to the top by placing second only to Mike Healer of SSC while ripping off a sizzling time of 25:01 over the five mile course. Larry Butler, Joe Shepherd, Matt Comotto, and Bob Mead captured the 7th through 10th spots to put the finishing touches on the victory. Brian Gildersleeve and Tony Woodruff rounded out the Bison scoring as they finished 13th and 15th respectively, just ahead of a host of the remaining Bison harriers.

The others making contributions to the Bison cause were Senior Rich Bellis, who competed in his last meet as a Harding cross country runner, Kent Johnson, Rick Trujillo, Ken Sewell, Rock Meservey, David Nixon, David Hamilton, Gary Oliver, Roger Collins, Robby Hartley, Steve Morris, Pat McClafferty and John McGee.

runner that will be lost from this year's team will be four-year letterman Rich Bellis. The top three runners in last Friday's meet were freshman.

The Bisons raised their season's standard to 45-3 with the big victory in Russellville. The only remaining meets on the Bison schedule are the NAIA District 17 meet here tomorrow at the Searcy Country Club and the State AAU and the National meet next week.

Harding will be hosting the first annual District 17 meet which will consist of the AIC schools plus UAPB and John Brown University. The top seven from this week's meet will make the trip to Kansas for the nationals while the remainder of the team will travel to Conway to defend the AAU championship Harding has won the last several years.
