Second Winter Festival to honor basketball team

Three queen candidates will highlight the Second Annual Winter Festival, sponsored by the Gata social club, in honor of the Harding basketball team and as a fund raising effort for specific charities.

The queen will be crowned during the half-time show of the Harding-Central Arkansas basketball game, Feb. 3.

The three candidates, Donna Bates, Becky Mulvaney, and Andee Lawyer, were selected first by the basketball team and then by general election of the student body.

Miss Bates is a senior home economics major from Memphis. Mrs. Mulvaney is a junior physical education major from Little Rock, and Miss Lawyer is a junior elementary education major from Searcy.

One representative from each class was also chosen to comprise the queen's court. Kathy Malone was selected by the senior class, Nancy Cochran by the juniors, Mary Margaret Ramsey by the sophomores and Kimberly Webb by the freshmen.

Bart Angel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Angel, and Joy Wilson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ed Wilson, all of Searcy, will carry the crown and flowers for the queen.

Baskets will be passed during the half-time presentation for donations to Camp Wyldewood. Last year the money that was raised was given to the Sunshine School for the Handicapped.

Men of the faculty and administration will serve as escorts for the court. Dr. Clifton Ganus, Jr. will crown the queen.

S.A. votes on dress code change

By a seven-to-five vote the Student Association approved the motion Tuesday night to recommend to the administration the "allowances be made for girls to wear pantsuits to classes."

Dewitt Yingling, treasurer, made the motion at last week's meeting and the motion was tabled until council members could discuss the proposal with the student body.

Susie Priddy, sophomore women's representative, made a study in the women's dorms on the dress code situation. According to Miss Priddy, she received 178 responses to questionnaires that were randomly passed out to the women. "Sixty-seven percent of the responses were positive (in favor of wearing pants to classes) and 33 percent were negative," said Miss Priddy.

Lott Therrio, junior men's representative, said that the girls he talked to "overwhelmingly stated they'd rather wear dresses because of the femininity involved."

Discussion before the motion was voted on continued as to the pros and cons of the issues. One of the most eminent problems of the motion was the defining of what kind of pants could be worn and how enforcement of that definition be barred out.

Sue Foley, freshmen women's representative moved that a second motion be made that added "exclusive of jeans" to the original motion. The motion was seconded and approved.

One council member pointed out that the present dress code for women concerning dress lengths was not being enforced, therefore it might be hard to enforce pant rulings.

The repercussions of women wearing pants was also discussed. Vice president Mike Lincoln pointed out that the decision would reflect on Harding in years to come. "I hope that we will not only look at Harding College today but Harding College in the future as well."

The business agenda then turned to the price increases on campus.

President Bill Fowler reported that College Inn prices had been rolled back to what they were before the latest increase. According to Fowler, Lott Tucker, vice president in charge of finance, investigated the prices and found them not to be too far out of line compared to the prices in town.

Lincoln reported the computer dating committee has formulated plans to carry out the computer

Courses changes effective next fall

Departments add new majors

Four new major were approved in three departments during Monday's faculty meeting.

The new majors, which go into effect next fall, include a major in violin or viola in the music department, majors in economics and marketing in the department of business and economics and a major in gerontology in the department of sociology and social services.

A major in the violin will require 54 credit hours and a major instrument half-recital during the junior year, and a full recital given during the senior year.

A B.S. degree in marketing or economics require 67 credit hours.

Requirements for a major in gerontology, the study of the processes and problems of the aged, include 59 credit hours.

A major revision was made in the psychology department which will begin offering two majors, one in academic psychology, for those planning to do graduate study, and one in applied, for those planning to counsel or work in children homes.

A minor in psychology will also be offered specifically for those majoring in Bible.

Education 302, will be changed from two credit hours to three credit hours. This change will give elementary teachers the background needed in special education and will also meet the certification requirements in Missouri and other states.

The art department will add Art 312, weaving, to be taught in the fall. The department already has the equipment for this course. The course is designed for students who work in summer camps and it is expected to draw people from the community.

The department of modern foreign languages will add French 450 and 550 and Spanish 450.

History and social science department will drop

Geography 400 and Political Science 355 and add Geography 301, Geography of the United States; History 251, History of the Civil War. Also the minor in social science will be changed to include 18 hours in history, political science, geography, economics, and-or social science, including six upper-level hours.

Greek 306 will be dropped from the department of Bible and Greed 307; Hebrew 255 and Intermediate Hebrew Reading will be added.

Changes in a major in Bible and Religion for the B.A. will include addition of three hours to the textual division and a reduction of four hours in the preaching division.

Hunting and Gun Safety along with bait casting, Fishing and Boating Safety will be offered by, the physical education department. The credit hours for majors were also changed from 33 to 34 hours.

The humanities course will be changed to a upper-level course and will be open to upper-classmen. The requirements will include an ACT English score of 25 or a cumulative 3.00 average as prerequisite.

A new requirement for admission to the 300-level courses in social work is a cumulative grade-point average of 2.3 or a grade-point of 2.5 in the prerequisite behavioral science courses.

New sociology courses added are Sociology 400, Group Processes; and Sociology 345, Introduction to Gerontology.

Changes in the business and economics department includes the retitling of existing courses to Managerial Accounting, Operations Management, Human Relations, Personnel Administration, Economics of Labor Relations.

The department will add Intermediate Macroeconomics, Intermediate Microeconomics, Comparative Economics, Economic History of the United States: 1800 to Present.

Dormitories open doors for visitation

Open House visitation in the men's and women's dormitories will be permitted next Tuesday and Thursday, respectively, announced S.A. president Bill Fowler this week.

On Tuesday, Feb. 4, women may visit in the men's dormitories from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Then, on Thursday, Feb. 6, men may visit during the same hours in the women's dormitories.

Open House annually attracts many students to visit the rooms of friends as it is the only time during the year that inter-dormitory visitation is permitted.

Junior Gary Cline summarized the advantages of Open House in a three-fold way. "Dorm maintainance, such as lighting is improved. Some parts of the dorm, especially stairwells, are thoroughly cleaned." He added, "It promotes a good atmosphere among the students."

The secret of having guests in your room, according to sophomore Kathy Adams, is to bake some cookies. "Open House," said junior Twila Copley, "is a good way to meet new people."

DR. CLIFTON GANUS and IVAN BENSON were among the crowd of people who saw Kathy Roberts and the other Belles and Beaux off from the Little Rock Airport as they left on a eight weeks USO tour of the South Pacific.

ERA extremes violate Christianity

With the Arkansas legislature scheduled to vote on the Equal Rights Amendment with in a few weeks, we'd like to encourage our readers to make a decision as to whether or not to support the issue, and then to let our congressmen know how they feel.

We have spent much time in researching and sorting out the various aspects of the proposed amendment, and now there is only one decision we can make. The ERA as it stands now would violate many Christian principles if it were passed, and, therefore, we cannot support it.

The amendment, as it is presently stated, allows for no discrimination between sexes. That means, or seems to mean according to general application, that men and women are to be treated the same in all situations. We can't buy that.

We can't see men and women using common restrooms in public buildings or sleeping in common barracks or dormitories. And we know all the arguments against such reasoning — "The ERA doesn't say that separate bathrooms are illegal; that's purely a social matter." We agree. We know that's true. But it won't be left at that. There are fanatics around who won't stop until every "Men's" or "Ladies'" sign is removed from every door.

And it's these fanatics that keep us from supporting the Equal Rights Amendment. Do not misunderstand. We are for equal pay for equal work. We are for equal opportunity employment.

Therefore, the best solution we can find is to propose a new amendment which would make financial discrimination illegal. The amendment should provide for equal pay and equal job opportunities for women. It would not be so general as "no discrimination at all" and then let the crackpots take it. But working women would not be discriminated against, and we could still go to the john (or jane, whichever you prefer) separately.

The System

System becomes a problem; corrupt officials force change

If all goes according to plan, this column should be appearing under the heading "The System." That's quite an appropriate title, because that's what the column's about.

The System is a familiar phrase. It's most often heard in expressions such as "working within the system" or more commonly, "You can't beat the system." The System is more than just the government. It entails not only the way things are in theory, but the way they are in fact. The System is how things get done and why they don't get done.

A lot of people don't like the System. A lot of people don't like the weather, too. Very little is done about either.

Of course there was a time, now half lost in myth and legend, when a large number of people did try to change the System. This fabled age was called the 60's. Remember the political activists? Remember the protest marches? Remember idealism? Ah, nostalgia!

Now, though, we're halfway through a new decade and the key words are disillusionment and apathy. If the System is changing, the change is not positive evolution, but decay. Further, the change is being forced, not by interested and informed members of the public, but by the ineptitude and corruptness of our officials.

This goes far beyond the self-destruction of the Nixon administration. The drama of Watergate was merely acted out on a large stage. The tragedy (or comedy, depending on your point of view) has been presented in almost every nation on earth.

Most countries did not start 1975 with the same head of state they had at the first of 1974. Some were replaced in regular elections and some nations in Africa and South America seem to change governments like most people change socks. However, a great many rulers left office in a series of unprecedented resignations.

For example, in West Germany Willy Brandt left office because he couldn't keep his own cabinet free of communist spies.

Kakuei Tanaka of Japan was forced from power in disgrace for using the power and prestige of his office for personal financial gain.

Golda Meir stepped down from her post in Israel's government over what her legislature considered unpreparedness in military and diplomatic policy.

Few of the successors to Nixon, Brandt, Tanaka, Meir or many others came to office with a great ground-swell of reforming public support. In most cases the replacement is a new face spouting the same old policies and positions.

All governments lately seem to be running a Red Queen's race: changing as fast as they can to stay exactly where they are.

Student unhappy with chapel shows

Dear Editor:

The recent chapel offerings have again included a generous supply of beauty-popularity contests, no doubt intended to stir us to a greater dedication and devotion to our Lord.

Perhaps we can imagine Paul and Peter rounding up all the believers in Jerusalem so that they could parade the sisters across the porch of the temple to select the queen of the Christians for the big Friday night game against Rome. No doubt the young ladies were dressed to the hilt for the occasion (the better to imitate Christ), and perhaps even a bit less modestly than usual (the brethren would expect it!)

You wouldn't see it. Peter and the rest were intent on conquering a world, on dying for Christ, not on playing their favorite meaningless games in their own private little club. From the Christian perspective, this activity is at best trivial and irrelevant to the Christian mission, and at worst it encourages pride and worldliness.

Far more, however, is the fact that such activity is jammed together with a hurried song and prayer hopefully referred to as a 'devotional.' Our worship must rise as an awful stench before God when we tack it on to our fun and games like the pagans tack a prayer on to the start of the Sunday afternoon game. To assume that the silliness of chapel can be turned in an instant to the reverence of worship is sorely mistaken. Simply noticing the amount of time given respectively to 'our devotion' and to the day's helping of frivolities is evidence of the prevailing attitude.

Jim Woodroof suggested last Sunday that the brunt of a continuing restoration must fall on the younger generation. But, if we seek to limit restoration to a single hour or day a week, and do not allow it to examine all aspects of life, despite prevailing social customs and outlooks, we are doomed to failure.

Christians indeed have the right to times of joy, but the Bible says we have joy from our hope, in the promise of eternity with God, and not in watered down imitations of the world's games. Those who seek to hide themselves from the cross in 'harmless' activities will be just as lost as the blatant 'sinner.' "If the salt loses its saltiness, how can it be made salty again? It is no longer good for anything, except to be thrown out and trampled by men."

Let's use chapel to honor Jesus Christ; not for immaturity, immodesty, and our own glorification.

In Christ,
Terry Christlieb

Reader casts doubt on writer's sincerity

Dear Editor:

Last week's letter which voiced distaste for the College Inn operation was quite impressive. I was deeply moved by the writer's extensive research indicated through such profound statements as, "According to Section 11-A of Act 41, page 9 of the Arkansas State, Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of 1953..."

Furthermore, I was stirred by "Name Withheld's" attempts at being humorous; for example, "The management would do better to serve just the patty in a bowl of milk and label it as a breakfast cereal special."

Perhaps many of the straight forward comments in the article were legitimate. However, I feel that if the writer felt so strongly about his distaste for the College Inn operation he should have signed his name.

If "Name Withheld" felt that his reputation would be affected by signing his name, perhaps in the future he will keep his opinions to himself. How can he expect Bison readers to take such a series of blunt statements seriously if he is apprehensive about signing his name?

Sincerely,
Billy Pullen

Former golf coach upset about error

Dear Editor:

Perhaps I should address this letter to your Business Manager, Matt Comotto, because I have a comment to make about an article that appeared in the Harding Bison, Volume 50, Number 14, dated January 17, under the heading "Bison Briefs" by Matt Comotto.

The article stated that Bill Fowler was team captain of last year's golf team even though he only participated in one golf match throughout the season. Matt Comotto considered this a noteworthy fact.

I took the article as a slight adverse criticism of last year's golf coach, since Matt Comotto mentioned that the new coach, Phil Watkins will attempt to alleviate that matter.

Since I was last year's coach of the golf team, may I correct Matt Comotto's noteworthy "fact." Bill Fowler was not the captain of last year's golf team. Now he perhaps could have been appointed captain if he had participated in the practice golf matches and gone to the AIC tournament; but Bill did not letter in golf last year; and there was no way he could have been captain of the team with such lack of participation.

I was associated with Harding's golf team for seven years; the first two as assistant coach under Bob Gilliam; and the last five as the head coach. We did not make it a practice to officially designate a "captain" of the team. We usually looked to our "best" golfer who was classified as a senior for student leadership. Then for all practical purposes, this golfer was looked upon as "captain" of the team.

Now my memory is not as good as I would like for it to be; and I turned over all my records to Coach Groover who undoubtedly gave them to Coach Watkins; so I cannot check them. But I believe that I did not designate one specific golfer as "captain" of the team. I know it was not Bill Fowler. One of the most avid, enthusiastic, and active golfers on last year's team was Harding's first left-handed golfer, Harry Roe. Harry was classified as a junior but I looked to him for leadership; and if anyone was captain of last year's team, it was Harry Roe.

I could probably write a "book" on college golf; and include in it some of the reasons I believe that the golf teams at Harding will find it extremely difficult to achieve even third or fourth place in the finals of the AIC tournament. But even now, this goes beyond my purpose for writing this letter.

May I say that I enjoyed the association over the year with those students and athletes who participated on Harding's golf teams. For the most part, the students that participated on the golf teams were the type of young men that Harding was proud to have on its campus.

Frankly, I miss being with them this year.

My best wishes go with Coach Phil Watkins. And I certainly give my best wishes to Harding's golf team for 1974-75, and its captain.

Sincerely,
Norman F. Merritt, Jr.

Bison briefs

By Matt Comotto

The first lily pool sports spectacular mishap of the 1975 season occurred recently when Terry Moore, a noted intramural athlete, was flung a reported six inches into the depths of Harding's green trench (lily pool) and emerged with one less toe nail. Moore is recovering nicely from his near fatality and is expected to see action with the next few days.

The Water Buffaloes last week downed the University of Central Arkansas (formerly State College of Arkansas) in their opening meet of the 1975 season. Harding, attempting to win its first conference swim crown, sank the Bears with a score of 65-48. Double winners for the Bisons were Dale Linge, Paul Knarr and Mark McInteer.

The golf team will open its 1975 campaign on March 3. The team is hoping to improve on last year's second from last place conference finish.

The biggest sports scoop of the week is that this brief marks the 200th one produced over the last year or so that this column has been in existence. It is not every day that the Bison Briefs staff is in a position to be humbled by such an honor.

Intramural Athletes of the Week

Men's — Steve Spillman and Vince Adams.

Bowlers open defense of AIC; cop second in SWBC tourney

The Bisons bowling team got the second semester off to a good start as they captured second place in the tough Southwest Baptist College Invitational in Bolivar, Missouri last weekend.

Harding rolled up 5,585 pins to take the runner-up spot against Arkansas State, one of the best teams in the NCAA mid-west. Harding's B squad turned in a fifth place performance in the 12 team affair with a pinfall of 5,441 behind Wichita State's 5,484 and Cherokee's 5,448 totals.

Brad Davis was the top Bisons individual and was also the tournament singles champion, rolling up 1,255 pins for an excellent 209 average. Zearl Watson also had an outstanding tournament as he posted 1,161 for a 193 average and a third place finish overall.

Other finishers in the tournament were: Southwest Missouri 5,429; Kansas State, 5,302; Southwest Baptist, 5,270; Ouachita Baptist, 5,270; Missouri, 5,250; Missouri "B", 5,070; and Central Missouri State, 4,958.

The Bisons are the defending champions in AIC and NAIA 17 champions are coming back from a third place finish in the nationals last season. Returning lettermen are Davis, Watson, Don Mitchell, Gary Beck and Steve Kloske.

Rally falls short of Scots, 83-73

The snake-bit Bison basketball squad suffered their sixth straight AIC setback, absorbing a 83-73 setback at the hands of the Arkansas College Scots Monday night.

The loss dropped the Bisons league standard to a disappointing 1-8, well out of contention for championship honors. Henderson State and Ouachita are turning the conference race into a two team affair, with both teams atop the AIC with 8-0 and 7-1 marks.

Harding suffered through a cold shooting first half to trail 42-35 at intermission. The second half was an on again — off again affair with the Herd making repeated charges at the Scots only to see Arkansas coming up with a flurry of points to keep the Bisons at bay.

Harding did make one bona-fide threat in the second half when they climbed to within three with only 12:07 left in the game. Gary Baker hit a jumper, Tim Vick a long shot and Randy Reynolds a shot from the corner to appear ready to overtake the Scots at 52-49. At this point the Scots meshed eight unanswered points to shove the Bisons back into a nine point deficit.

Harding made one more mild threat before the game was over, coming from 14-back to climb to within six. Baskets by James Winston, Vick Butch Gardner, and Reynolds shaved the margin to 73-67 but the Bisons could get no closer with the final score closing out at 83-73.

Winston came up with one of the finest games of his career as he sank 23 points to lead Harding. Baker converted 16 for the Bisons and AIC league leading Butch Gardner chipped in with 12 in the second half. Other scorers were: Vick, 10; Tony Snead, 6; Reynolds, 4; and Jerry Morgan 2.

Monday Harding will entertain the University of Central Arkansas in the Bisons annual Winter Festival. The Bisons lost the previous encounter with the Bears 80-71 in Conway.

Current AIC standings with the exclusion of last night: Henderson 8-0, Ouachita 7-1, Southern State 7-2, Central Arkansas 6-3, Hendrix 6-3, Arkansas College 4-5, Ozarks 2-7, Arkansas Tech 2-7, Harding 1-8, and UA-Monticello 1-8.

The Nuclear 500. Are you good enough to be one of them?

This year the Navy will seek about 500 of the country's top college graduates for its nuclear energy program. It's the most comprehensive training available in today's most exciting energy field.

It's got to be. More than 70% of the country's nuclear reactors are operated by Navy men.

So our standards are extremely high. To qualify, you must have a solid background in engineering, math or physics. And have what it takes to become an officer in the U.S. Navy.

If you're selected, you'll be paid a starting salary comparable to most salaries given junior executives in private companies. And be placed in a position of responsibility quickly.

If you're still in college, there are several special programs for you, including a full scholarship available for your junior and senior years.

Do you think you're good enough? If so, mail the coupon below. Or call our toll-free number, 800-841-8000, anytime, day or night, and ask for the Nuclear Desk. (In Georgia, call toll-free 800-342-5855.)
