Dear John:

I have learned through your mother of your hospitalization and sincerely hope that this letter finds you in a good condition. I was pleased that you went and hope that you are taking advantage of the opportunities that such a place affords you.

I can well understand the restrictions that have been placed on you and especially as it restricts your opportunity to worship according to your beliefs each Sunday. However, we must recognize that every situation has its extenuating circumstances and that the prevailing concern on God's part is for you to be a sound individual who can offer full service in the Kingdom. This larger issue when properly understood can cause your immediate problem to be placed in its proper position.

I hope that I have demonstrated from time to time my genuine concern in your problem. Please realize the importance of fully co-operating with the doctors by taking advantage of every opportunity offered you. This stay can make a great difference in the rest of your life. I want you to accept my deep concern and genuine best wishes.

Your brother in Christ

John Allen Chalk
