Elza Huffard, president of Northeastern Christian Junior College, is scheduled to deliver the commencement address at 10:00 a.m., Friday, December 15 in the main auditorium. Huffard became the third president of Northeastern in 1962 after serving as full-time minister for congregations in Rector, Arkansas; Lincoln Park, Michigan; Philadelphia, Chicago; and the Downtown church in Seattle.

He has been involved in personal counseling for almost 30 years and is an elder of the King of Prussia Church of Christ in King of Prussia, Pennsylvania. One of the 108 graduates are receiving Master of Education degrees, with the others being awarded Bachelor's degrees.

Thirty-nine students were selected for Who’s Who Among American Universities and Colleges, a nationwide honorary based on involvement, academic scholarship, and leadership, according to Dr. James Carr, assistant to the president.

The Student Association Executive Council and faculty members recommend names to be considered. After consideration of the student’s scholarship, his academic and extracurricular activities, his service to the college, and his promise of future usefulness, the faculty voted for 39 names.

Howard secures position in Arkansas convention

by Doug Thompson

Dr. Tom Howard, director of testing, has won the position of district 49 delegate to the Arkansas constitutional convention. Total vote in the district was Howard 1,055, Searcy lawyer Robert Blount 569.

"I'm sorry our race cost the county additional money and caused the election commission additional trouble but I'm very pleased with the outcome," Howard said.

Howard also noted that he did well in all areas of the district in the runoff, although he lost the rural areas in the general election two weeks previously. Howard carried 27 or 39 precincts in a runoff held on Nov. 21. The runoff was required by law, all delegates to Arkansas constitutional conventions must have a majority vote. Howard had 33 per cent in the general election, Blount 67 per cent. Tom Quatlebaum was eliminated from the runoff with 24 per cent.

In the runoff, Howard had 67 per cent. Approximately 5,400 votes were cast in the general election. 1,569 were cast in the runoff, the first race in White County to use voting machines.

In the general election, official did not tally the votes until 4 o'clock the next morning. All of the election officials expressed approval of the new system and said that almost everyone who voted was pleasantly surprised by the simplicity of the new machines, according to Perrin Jones, chairman of the county election commission. All votes were counted by 8:47 that night.

Troubadors approach problems through acting

by Linda Hillen

Perhaps one of the most active, yet the most silent, organizations on campus is the Troubadours. Consisting of 13 dedicated students, the Troubadours were chosen "based on their obvious love for the Lord and their acting abilities. Consideration was also given to their interest in Troubadours prior to asking them to be in it," according to Jonathan Cloud, leader of the group.

Although the groups rehearses an average of 15 hours per week, the student body generally sees only one 30 minute performance each month, which is presented in chapel.

"The Troubadours have been well received by the students and that is very meaningful to us. However, I hope the group does not come to equal that acceptance with the effectiveness of our message. The two are not always congruent," commented Cloud.

In addition to presenting four chapel programs this semester, the group also performed during Homecoming festivities and at Cabot, Ark.

When asked why the name "Troubadours" was selected, Cloud stated that it was derived from The Singer, by Calvin Miller. There is a character in that script named Troubadour, who was God’s messenger. The word actually applies to a group of singers who traveled together, "but we’re applying it not just in the sense of singers, but in the sense of messengers," continued Cloud. "We’re developing a music ministry, also, which will contain hymns, as well as contemporary tunes that have a message. This will be developed further next semester."

In their second semester of existence, Troubadours added five new members to their cast. These include Susan Wallace, Karl Wood, Jeff Lindsey, Robin Cannon, and Gwen Rogers. Returning from last year were Robert Holyfield, Fayette Thammisch, Julie Swan, Debi Arns, Robin Miller, Scott Cody, and Cloud.

"Troubadors is special to each of us because we can serve God and people by doing what we love to do — get —" added Cloud.

While not being extremely unique, the purpose of Troubadours focuses on reality. "Our purpose is to identify with life where people live it, and try to lead them to answers by giving them enough insight and encouragement to move forward," stated Cloud, who writes most of the group’s material.

Harding faculty name 39 students for listing in Who’s Who 1979

Members of the Troubadours practice one of their skits, Heartbeat, during a rehearsal session Monday night. The Troubadours are a group of students who perform skits with a spiritual emphasis and a spiritual application.

Meaning and purpose of rules need definition

The question has been put before the student body to ask why Harding has some of the rules she has. Hopefully, careful consideration of this mystery has been given by the reader.

In an editorial (Nov. 17th editorial), President Clifton Ganus said that every rule at Harding has a purpose. When asked about the dress code, he said that the code helps give the campus a clean, well-disciplined look. He mentioned the letter he received from visitors to the campus commenting on the "nice way our students look." What about the inconsistency between the way the ladies dress and the attire of the gentlemen?

There is a curfew, according to Ganus, because it can be an encouragement to students to study. Do they? He also said that if there were not a curfew many students would not even come to college.

Ganus said that he saw Harding College as a protective fence around the "young sapling student." The fence protects the tree from the wild bulls of the world until that tree is strong enough to stand up without the fence's aid.

Ganus said he believed that 95 per cent of Harding graduates remain faithful to the Lord and survive the life, once they leave Harding. It is to the five per cent that the remainder of this editorial is directed.

Question: What benefit are rules if they do not help develop and discipline one's life? What good is a rule if after one leaves Harding he practices what that rule has forbidden? Has that rule taught that person anything?

Maybe Harding cannot afford to change any of her rules, but something needs to be changed. Someone somewhere needs to impress that five per cent of the few doubting Thomas who "just get by" that certain activities and practices are just not Christ-like, whether at Harding or not.

With all due respect there is a nice campus image, if one soul leaves here confused? That is too high a price to pay.

In an earlier editorial (Nov. 17th editorial) it was said that it would not be good if every student was a "sleeper" with, that a re-evaluation needed to be made to see what these rules are actually accomplishing.

What is going to happen when that "protective fence" is pulled down and that tree is not able to stand because the fence would not be there to protect it? Are they going to be taught? Is it really only five per cent that do not make it?

Look around! How many of that five per cent do you know? Are you part of that five per cent?

The answer always comes back to each individual being selfless enough to show the love of Jesus. The encouragement then is for each student who is confused and frustrated by the rules to look for those who know the answers to those who are confused. Every life needs some direction. God provides that direction. Somewhere it is hidden in the rules of Harding College. Make it plain!

Sincerely,

James Britidel

LIFE TO LIFE

Author Unknown

At the end of time, billions of people scattered on a great plain, a vast shambles of the remains of the thousands of the groups near the front plaited by the curtain of life and the cringing shame, but with bending heads and bended knees, they yielded: "We are God's children!" "Let us know about suffering!" snatched a looking glass from the floor and held a sleeve to reveal a tattooed number from a Nazi concentration camp. "We dared terror, beatings, torture, death." In another group, a Black man lowered his collar. "What about that?" he demanded, allowing an ugly silence to reign. "What about my crime but being black. We have suffered, been forced to leave, been wrenched from our loved ones, tied till only death gave release."

Far out across the plain were hundreds of such groups. Each had a complaint against God for the evil and suffering life permitted in the world. How lovely God was to live in heaven where all was sweetness and light, where there was no weeping, no tear, no hunger, no hate. Indeed, what did God know about what man had been forced to endure in the world? "After all, God leads a pretty sheltered life."

So each group sent out a leader, chosen because he had suffered the most. There was a Jew, a Black, and an unflagging from India, an illegitimate, a person from Hiroshima, and one from a Siberian slave camp. In the center of the plain they consulted with each other. At last they were ready in the very last case. It was rather simple: before God would have to make up his mind to be their judge. He must endure what they had endured. Their decision was that God justly sentenced to live on earth — as a man. But, if there was God, set certain safeguards to be sure He could not misuse His divine powers to help Himself.

Let Him be born a Jew. Let Him be tortured and let Him try to describe what no one could express. Let Him see what it is like to be abandoned by every living thing. Let Him be tortured and let Him be condemned to live and die in a concentration camp.

These things have been said before, so I would like to propose some possible changes.

1. Re-evaluate the rule on beards, or take down the pictures of the French Revolution. The French Revolution of 1789 started to free the commoner, the middle-class man from the unjustness of the monarhy. However, after the leaders of the Revolution had executed on their own guillotines, France saw a return to the gross of the monarchy. Let us learn a lesson from history and change things only through prayer and consideration for others.

2. Submit this with all due respect to brothers Mervitt, Woodroof, and Lot's wife. I urge students to constantly search for all things that are not good. I urge students to constantly be qualified to be their own judges. I urge students to constantly see what it is like to be abandoned by every living thing. It is the only way we can expect the usual tie this year.

3. Re-evaluate the policy regarding the exercise of full numbers on all physical education tests and all the papers, and all the tests and all the papers, and all the tests and all the papers. Let us be home to be reminded of how much we love as Uncle Charlie or as we may like in America. And every time we hear it we think we are developing a skin problem.

Home to food that not only tastes good, but is recognizable. For some reason this time of the year makes me think of all of Santa's helpers who are basically finishing up their work before the big night. Recently we talked to two Harding alumni who were placed by the Placement Office in Santa's Workshop at the North Pole.

Norman Nutt, who graduated as a P.E. major back in 1963 and was on the track team, has been put in charge of exercising the reindeer. Nutt lives in Lookinback, Texas (the city named " populated at each credit card in America.

Nutt has many things tried in an attempt to help John through his trauma, including playing country music to help him. However, John wants to do is thump his hooves when he hears the music, so Nutt is re-evaluating his approach.

The Harding alumni at Santa's Workshop is Frank Fruitcake. Prior to working for Santa, Frank sold maps to all the famous graves in America. Frank is the new production chief for all the red wagons put out by Santa. This also includes testing them.

Frank says he likes his job but admits that he finds the job very challenging because whenever he asks a question about Santa, "I get is a "HO-HO-HO Merry Christmas!" At First though this man is known to be self-medicating, until Mrs. Claus expressed to him that she was having chronic Dunlop disease, and the only cure she knew of was a question is when his belt is loose and he does not lap over his belt.

Frank also said that he gets to see the list of who's been naughty and nice before Santa does, and said this year to tell the Bible faculty he was not going to write to the names like all the years before.

As a tell Dr. Pryor that he can expect the usual tie this year, because he has promised that he will let you know who is on the list that lights up to say "Hi, I am the Dead" cannot be found. Finally, Frank gave us a list of students who are going to get a pass grade. He asked that we are sorry to say we have lost the list. Norman and Frank, we wish you the best of our Christmas. All men are a testimony to the kind of college education can bring you.

Santa's helpers

by Michael Gates

Well, it looks like we are going to need to read some of the tests and all the papers, and all the papers and all the papers. It is time to come to Harding to be reminded of how much we love as Uncle Charlie. And every time we hear it we think we are developing a skin problem.

Every year at Christmas time, the major studios release their year-end films, hoping to catch the vacating high school and college audiences. This year is no exception with no less than 15 major motion pictures opening nationwide beginning December 15.

The Deer Hunter - A story of friendship during the Vietnam War starring Robert DeNiro. Every Which Way But Loose - Clint Eastwood starring in (surprise!) a comedy. There is still lots of action on hand, with Sandra Locks as Clint's love interest.

Four From Navarre - A sequel to the classic 1961 World War II film The Guns Of Navarre, starring the late Robert Shaw, Harrison (Han Solo) Ford, and Barbara Bach. Invasion of the Body Snatchers - A remake of the 1956 thriller this time starring Donald Sutherland, Leonard Nimoy, and lots of special effects.

King of the Gypsies - Based on Peter Maer's best seller, the true story of a modern day family of gypsies, starring Sterling Hayden, Shelly Winters, and Brooke Shields.

Lord of the Rings - J. R. R. Tolkien's fantasy brought to the screen with animation by Ralph Baskhi. A must for Hobbit fans. Moment To Moment - A love story with the unusual pairing of Lily Tomlin and John Travolta.

Oliver's Story - The long awaited sequel to "Love Story", with Ryan O'Neal again as growing Oliver Barrett IV and Candice Bergen as the girl who helps him forget Jenny. Pass the Kleenex.

Paradise Alley - An action-comedy-drama written, directed by and starring Sylvester Stallone. The boy does get around.

Same Time, Next Year - The movie version of the hit Broadway play, starring Ellen Burstyn and Alan Alda. An excellent rating.

Superman - The colossal, super-spectacular starring newcomer Christopher Reeve in the title role, Mary Quinn as his father, Jor-El, who sent him to Earth from Krypton, Gene Hackman as his arch-enemy, Lex Luther, and an all-star cast including Glen Ford, Valerie Perrine, Ned Beatty, and Jackie Cooper. Costing over $30 million, it promises to be this year's Star Wars. Time will tell.

The Wiz - Another super-spectacle also costarring around $30 million, based on the Broadway musical. It is a modernization of The Wizard Of Oz with an all-black cast. Leading lady: Dorothy, Michael Jackson as the Scarecrow, Nipsey Russell as the Tin Man, Ted Ross as the Lion, and Richard Pryor (who else?) as the Wiz. I have heard the soundtrack album and it sounds terrific.

Christmas is also a good time to catch up on your reading. Big in paperback right now is Kramer vs. Kramer, a touching story of a father and his son and how they cope when Mom walks out on them. Midnight Express by Billy Hayes is the true story of his imprisonment in a Turkish jail and the basis of the current movie. In hardback, the big news is Mommie Dearest by Christina Crawford, in which she exposes her adoptive mother, the late actress Joan Crawford, as a sadistic child abuser. Tough, scary stuff.

If you prefer music, there are lots of new albums around just in time for Christmas shoppers. Linda Ronstadt's Living In The U.S.A. is still the top pick and one of her best efforts. Billy Joel's 52nd Street is currently number 1 on the charts and it should get an excellent rating.

Olive Newton-John's Totally Hot, Steve Martin's A Wild and Wonderful Country, and Willie Nelson's Willie and Family Live are all new and will make great gifts both for giving and receiving.

Christmas albums also abound with such packages from Wings; Earth, Wind and Fire; The Commodores; Harry Nilsson, Barbara Streisand (Volume Two); David Allen Coe, and the Steve Miller Band.

THE HARDING BISON, Searcy, Ark. 5
Bison tumble under Henderson, Reddies serve up first AIC loss

by Kenny Moorer

Despite the 31 point effort of all-AIC performer Stan Eckwood and a steady first half defense, the Harding Bison suffered their first conference loss of the basketball season to the Reddies of Henderson State University, Monday night, 87-64 in the New Athletic Complex.

The Bison, alternating between a man to man defense and a 2-1-2 zone defense, controlled the early going with Bruce Baldwin, Tim Flatt, and Eckwood firing from 15 to 18 feet, enabling the Bison to post an early six point lead. With 13:06 left to play in the first half, Eckwood rebounded his missed free throw and hit a lay up, giving the Bison the largest lead of the game, 30-12.

At this point, Henderson head coach, Bobby Reese, replaced the whole Reddie team with five fresh players and the Arkadelphia based team was on its way. Henderson’s Bruce Hines, John Hanson, and Anthony Averly combined for several points, while the Reddies held the Bison to a more sixteen points, giving the Reddies a six point half-time lead.

Harding opened the second half with a short lived fury and at one time, after a Tim Flatt bucket, took the lead over Henderson by 4 points. Sticking to his earlier statements concerning his squad, Henderson coach Reese pleased his troops once again and with fourteen minutes left in the game, Henderson led the score. The Reddies then stepped up the pace of the game wearing the Bison down and establishing a lead that would not be overcome by Harding.

With less than ten minutes to play, Bison starters Kenny Moorer and Bruce Baldwin fouled out. By this time, Henderson had structured a 16 point lead and finally held a 23 point margin at game’s end.

The Reddies, picked in pre-season polls as one of the AIC’s top teams, was lead in scoring by Bruce Hines and Anthony Avery, who finished with 26 and ten points respectively.

Henderson, in what proved to be the decisive statistic of the game, out rebounded the Bison 47-30, although the Bison deficit was only tailed, 26-14, at half-time.

Stan Eckwood, captain of the Bison, led the team with 31 points, while Tim Flatt was next with 11.

After posting a 6-2 record among non-conference foes, the Henderson game dropped the Bison conference mark to 20-12, at half-time.

Kappa Phi, Theta Psi claim A division, as women's club volleyball ends

by Kandy Nency

Volleyball championships have all been played, yielding champions in club, intramural, and all-star action.

Kappa Phi defeated Oege, 15-12, 15-10, to become the large club A champions. The main number 1 "Whoop-It" for Kappa Phi was Kristi Rollman, who lead her team to play superior volleyball. Understated Theta Psi easily claimed the first place title in small club A volleyball by overcoming Regina, 15-3, 15-12.

Trammell and Charlotte McGhee bolster the Theta Psi's ability was not really tested until the second game, when Regina's nannette team to play superior volleyball.

Pam Housley helped to pull Theta Psi through the match by executing hand-spikes by serving Kelly Price, and the well-executed overhead bump-shots of Nora Pierce, which stunted the power of Oege.

In volleyball intramurals, the Roses (Reese Lindsey, team captain) defeated the Cassans (Tammy Ratliff, team captain), 15-12, 15-11, and on the intramural all-stars, cinjcluding such greats as Kim Kesskohokali, who can spike a ball like a cannon, serve like whip, and set-up like a missile. No, she is not in the armed forces, but this volleyball wiz goes to Harding and lead her all-star team to victory, 15-12, 15-10.

Galaxy captures three division volleyball titles

by James Brittel

Galaxy showed their incredible depth in winning A, B and C classes of large men's volleyball.

Alpha Tau came out of the losers' bracket to seriously challenge Galaxy. Alpha Tau won the first match in the championship two games straight. But Galaxy solidly defeated Alpha Tau in the second round to take the championship. Alpha Tau did find consolation, however. They defeated TNT for the C class competition. Sub-F's won the D class championship. Chi Sig's placed three teams in the championship games, but dropped all three matches.

In small men's club Lambda Sigma and Knights each placed three teams in the four final brackets. Lambda's defeated Theta Tau and Knights for A and D, respectively. Knights beat King's men and then Lambda for both B and C.

Block that hit

In men's intramural volleyball action, the Elms captured the championship defeating the Bobcats: 15,11; 16,14; and 15,11. Darrell Webb attempts to block the return smash of an Elms front liner in pre-Thanksgiving play.

Student wins writing contest

Beth Gordon has been awarded a $50 U.S. Savings Bond for her winning essay on "Why I Can Believe in the Free Enterprise System." The participants were members of Dr. Donald Diffine's Economics 201 class. Miss Gordon is a senior business education major and serves as secretary of Delta Mu Delta, national business administration honor society, and a member of the American Studies Program.
Business honor society inducts 17 members

Seventeen students were inducted into the Alpha Upsilon chapter of Delta Mu Delta, a National Honor Society in Business Administration, according to Eugene Conner, chapter president. Dr. David Burks, chapter sponsor and chairman of the Department of Business, inducted the new members.

A student must have earned at least 64 hours with a major in business, accumulating a 3.2 GPA or better to receive this honor.

Also serving as officers for the 1978-79 school year are: Vice-President Edward Eichelberger, a senior management and finance major from Chattanooga, TN; Secretary Beth Gordon, a senior Business Education major from Mobile, AL; and Treasurer Harold Ann Morris, a senior Office Administration major from Florence, AL.

Tentative spring semester activities include a graduate business school seminar and a chapel program in April.
