TV 12 undergoes staff changes

Campus television station, TV-12, has undergone a series of staff changes for the new semester. The station has added the talents of several new anchors to fill positions left vacant from last semester. Veterans from last semester, Jo-David Keith and Jill Savage will be joined by newcomers Leslie Mortensen, filling in for Jeannie Shipp and Steve Parrett for Chris Clarke.

Keith is the most experienced member of the anchor crew returning for his third semester. A radio and TV major from Oak Ridge, Tenn., Keith seems to feel satisfied with his position. He describes it as "Time consuming but rewarding." Keith is no stranger to the set. He has done his internship at Channel 3 in Memphis and plans to go into production after graduation in May.

Savage is a marketing major from Cincinnati, Ohio. Her experience with the TV station is broad and spans work with news, weather and sports. Savage says she is starting to get interested in the sales aspect of television and hopes to eventually move to Nashville and look at potential TV stations as well as marketing firms.

Savage is very enthusiastic about the world of television journalism, "I look forward to going to work every night because it's exciting and the people I work with make it fun." Savage has had a diverse experience major from Spokane, Wash., who has had extensive experience in broadcasting, mostly in the area of radio broadcasting. She presently works as a D.J. at KSSV in Seattle and has done work for KXRA as well. Mortensen auditioned for her newly acquired position last semester but feels more confident in her abilities now than during last semester.

Mortensen hopes that her new anchor position will open the doors for career opportunities in the field of television broadcasting and engineering. "I'm always game for new and exciting opportunities to come my way. I'm willing to try new things to gain useful experience."

"I look forward to going to work every night because it's exciting and the people I work with make it fun."

In the same tradition in which it was honored by the Freedom Foundation of Valley Forge, Pa., the Harding American Studies Lecture Series will present a group of outstanding speakers for the spring semester.

Beginning the program for 1986 was commander John Creighton, who spoke to an overflow crowd on Jan. 21. Creighton addressed many topics relating to the work of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, particularly in the area of space shuttle deployment.

Clarence Pendleton will speak Feb. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the American Heritage Auditorium. Pendleton served as president of the Urban League of San Diego, CA and currently serves as chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Pendleton also serves as chairman of the San Diego Local Development Corporation, chairman of the San Diego Transit Corp., Trustee of the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation. He is involved in various political and municipal works in the San Diego area. On Feb. 18, Thomas Peters will speak in the Benson Auditorium from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for Harding's annual Management Seminar. Peters is author of numerous publications, including In Search of Excellence: Lessons from America's Best Run Companies which became the first management book ever to rank number one on the National Best Seller lists. He has also authored over 50 articles for The Harvard Business Review and other publications as well as working occasionally for The Wall Street Journal and the Tribune Company.

Peters has spent over a decade analyzing the factors that contribute to corporate revitalization, to continuous innovation, to customer satisfaction enhancement, to productivity improvement, and to strategy implementation.

Former U.S. Ambassador Jean Kirkpatrick will highlight the series on April 1 at 7:30 in the Benson Auditorium. Kirkpatrick has lectured extensively in the United States at conferences and forums on political and international issues. She has also participated in the programs of the U.S. Information and Latin America. During the 1980 presidential campaign, she was a member of President Reagan's foreign policy and advisory group.

Kirkpatrick, following her tenure as U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., was appointed United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations by President Ronald Reagan in January, 1981, making her the first woman to serve as chief United States representative to the world body. She resigned her seat on the U.N. after serving the longest term of any United Nations Ambassador since Adlai Stevenson. Kirkpatrick has since returned to private life to teach, write and lecture.

Tragedy strikes, unites

Stunned. Shocked.

These words described President Reagan and thousands of television viewers as the space shuttle Challenger exploded Tuesday. The shuttle apparently had a perfect lift-off, but malfunctioned 72 seconds into flight.

The number of reporters present to cover this particular shuttle take-off was about double that of past shuttle flights because of New Hampshire teacher Christa McAuliffe, who was to be NASA's first civilian in space. The broadcast was also being watched by thousands of school children across the country, especially those in Concord, N.H.

Jeff Scott, a Harding sophomore from Concord, said, "Christa McAuliffe meant as much to New Hampshire as the Bears mean to Chicago."

Here at Harding, many students gathered around televisions in the Student Center and dorm lobbies as newscasts continued throughout the afternoon. President Ganus gave his condolences in chapel, and the flag on the front lawn was flown at half-staff.

For the few students at Harding that actually knew McAuliffe, the tragedy was more closely felt, but Americans everywhere are grieving at this loss, not only of McAuliffe, but of the other crew members, and what this misfortune will mean for the further development of the space program.

President Reagan consoled the nation saying, "I know it's hard to understand, but sometimes painful things like this happen. It's all part of the process of exploration and discovery. It's all part of taking a chance and expanding man's horizons. The future doesn't belong to the faint-hearted. It belongs to the brave."

The space program has had numerous successes. Many men and women have died to bring the space program and discovery. It's all part of taking a longs extension and development in any area.

President Reagan condoled the nation saying, "I know it's hard to understand, but sometimes painful things like this happen. It's all part of the process of exploration and discovery. It's all part of taking a chance and expanding man's horizons. The future doesn't belong to the faint-hearted. It belongs to the brave."

The space program has had numerous successes. This one failure, although it was such a national tragedy, will not put an end to our nation's space expansion and development in any area.

Disease strikes unsuspecting tourists

Faster than a speeding bullet!
More powerful than a locomotive!
And often able to make the unsuspecting leap over tall buildings in a single bound!

Traveler's diarrhea (TD), known to many as Montezuma's revenge or "tourists," will be experienced by as many as eight million Americans who visit developing countries during the coming year.

Characterized by an increased frequency of unformed stool, TD appears "like a thief in the night" usually during the first 5-7 days of travel. Associated symptoms may include abdominal cramping, fever, nausea and general malaise, but rarely does TD cause actual vomiting or bloody stools. The disease lasts approximately 72 hours, and it may occur more than once during periods of extended travel.

Available studies implicate a host of microorganisms as causative agents for traveler's diarrhea. Among bacteria pathogenic E-coli, Salmonella and Shigella are commonly detected, and parasites (Giardia lamblia and Entamoeba histolytica) are responsible for about 10 percent of cases.

Destination of travel is a useful indicator of risk for developing traveler's diarrhea. High-risk areas for TD include (1) the African continent (2) most middle-eastern countries (3) the Far East, excluding Japan, Hong Kong and Singapore and (4) the developing countries of Latin America, Southern Europe and several of the Caribbean islands (Haiti and the Dominican Republic) comprise the middle-risk group. Those countries considered low risk for TD include Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Northern Europe.

Since no vaccination is available for protection against TD, preventive measures remain the best source of treatment. Traveler's diarrhea is acquired from consuming contaminated food or water. Ingestion of raw vegetables, unpeeled fruits, partially cooked meats and seafood are high-risk food items. Bottled carbonated beverages are predictably safe. If careful hygiene and diet are insufficient to prevent onset of TD, specific medications have proven effective in shortening the course of illness. Use of diphenoxylate or loperamide (Lomotil or Imodium) provides relief by decreasing the motility of the gastrointestinal tract. Their continued use beyond 48 hours, however, is not recommended.

Antibiotics, such as doxycycline or trimethoprin-sulfa twice a day for three days, should be reserved for the more severe cases of TD (three or more watery stools within eight hours).

Treatment of TD may be complicated by inac-cessibility to an English speaking physician. If you are preparing for summer travel to a high-risk area for traveler's diarrhea, consider consulting with your personal physician about taking appropriate medication with you.

Mr. Writer takes a trip through the dormitories

Hi there. Did you miss me? I sure missed all of you. A whole bunch.

What's that? Where have I been? Well, Mr. Writer went to see Mr. Federal Judge about some money problems. It's very complicated. Can you say "taxation litigation"? How about "three to five in federal housing"? Anyway, I've been having a very exciting time, what with all the court appearances and all. The judicial system is very interesting. Kind of like the digestive tract of a cow. But let's not get into that. We're here to learn more about those fascinating people called Harding students.

Today we're going to look at how these students spend their time while not in class. We'll visit a boy's and a girls' dorm, and some off-campus entertainment. So, let's all hop on Mister Trolley and be on our adventure. Ding ding. Ding ding. Yes, let's not get into that. We're here to learn more about interesting. Kind of like the digestive tract of a cow. Students direct one-act plays
by Leigh Ellis

Two one-act productions will be presented this semester by student directors in fulfillment of course requirements for CompT 310.

The first show, Services Rendered, directed by Charles White, senior, will be Jan. 30, 31 in the Little Theatre at 7 p.m. "Directing is definitely a learning experience," said White. Admission is $1.00 per person, $1.50 per couple.

Todd Thompson, senior, is directing the second show, The Valiant, which will be Feb. 13, 14.

The cast of Services Rendered consists of Darren Longar, sophomore, playing Benson; Melanie McKechnie, sophomore, playing Benson; Jim Bob Atkinson, freshman, playing Harry; Alice Adams, freshman, playing Elizabeth, and Cynthia Henson, freshman, playing Sibb.

The plot of the play involves a group of young people who are caught up in questioning about the disappearance of a friend. Although the summer was spent together, they do not want to become involved. They are not willing to pay the price for friendship and love, or are they? The actions and reactions of the group make for a gripping and meaningful play.

"This play deals with everyday life. Anytime you are involved in something there are consequences, good or bad," said director Charles White.

The drama, The Valiant, reflects another type of searching and discovering. A girl comes to a prison looking for her brother. The warden brings out a man who talks to her but demands that he is her brother. Before he is taken to be executed, a conversation between the Warden and the prisoner reveals his identity and what brought him to this point.

SPACE SHUTTLE EXPLODES
Plagued by postponements and bad luck, the space shuttle Challenger exploded Tuesday 1:12 minutes after what appeared to be a perfect launch. This was the first launch to include a citizen, school teacher Christa McAuliffe, in NASA's citizen space program. The mission was to deploy a satellite to observe Halley's comet and another satellite as part of NASA's shuttle tracking network. CBS reporter Bruce Hall said it appeared that the solid rocket boosters exploded and then the Challenger itself exploded.

KHADAFY ADVANCES SEAWARD
Libyan president Muammar Khadafy advanced into the Mediterranean on Saturday to meet the U.S. 6th fleet in a patrol boat loaded with four missiles. "Libya cannot be patient forever to live under America's international terrorism," said Khadafy in a news conference in Misurata harbor. "I am going out to the parallel 32.5, which is in the line of death, where we will stand and fight with our backs to the wall." Khadafy delivered his new challenge to the United States one day after the U.S. 6th fleet announced naval exercises off the Libyan coast.

RA's serve fellow students

by Deanna Hollifield

Awakening at 5 a.m. to unlock the doors in dormitories, working various hours during the week, working till late on weekends, and checking rooms for cleanliness along with room check at curfew are just some of the responsibilities of a typical day and life of an R.A. One of the reasons to become a resident assistant, better known as R.A., is to be of service to your fellow students.

"I usually have to let at least two people in their rooms each day who have either misplaced or forgotten their key," said Todd Kerby, an R.A. in Keller dorm. "And my roommate insists there are half a dozen more that come by when I'm not in." Several R.A.'s said that when freshmen first arrive on campus they are naive to the curfews and responsibilities of a typical day and life of an R.A.

"I'm glad to carry out discipline with residents because even though the R.A. is an authority figure, he is also a peer," said Kerby. "You need to lay the foundation at first," states Loogie Lafferty, an R.A. in Stephens. "I believe that my goal is to be something somewhere between a helper and a disciplinarian. I must help students understand regulations and penalties and to realise that they are responsible for their actions that violate the regulations."

Being an R.A. means a lot of dedicated time and responsibility. An R.A. is essentially a role model and he or she should incorporate Christian principles into his life and work as an R.A.

The next event taking place shortly after the Graduate Alpha Chi chapter has planned three events to highlight their activities this semester.

Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the Heritage Auditorium, the induction ceremony for Alpha Chi took place. Fifty members were inducted at the ceremony. Proceeding the ceremony an informal dinner was held in the Heritage cafeteria. Following the ceremony, Elizabeth Mason was the speaker, shedding light on the life of Michelangelo. The formal part of the induction was conducted by Dr. Neal Pryor and Dr. Don England, with the help of four assistants, Drs. Dennis Orgen, Dr. Larry Long, Dr. Arthur Shearin and Patty Barrett.

The next event taking place shortly after is the Graduate School Seminar. It takes place on Feb. 1 at 10:30 a.m. in the Mabee business building, room 107. This seminar is for anyone interested in attending graduate school. There will be three main speakers at the seminar. They are Dr. Maribeth Downing, David Tucker and Dr. Rod Brewer. They will discuss such things as applications, differences between Harding University and graduate schools, financial aid and how many years it takes to get a degree. After the speakers are done, a question and answer period will occur. The seminar should be ended by 12 noon Saturday, Feb. 1. If anyone is interested in attending and would like more information, Fran Coon is in charge of that event.

The final event is the Region 2 Convention. It is the regional convention of the Arkansas Eta Chapter of Alpha Chi. This year it is being held at Harding and takes place April 6. There are 36 chapters in the region and 106 delegates altogether. The states which participate are Arkansas, Louisiana, eastern Texas and Oklahoma.

The Bisons have been playing under some rather intense pressure the past week. They escaped with a 72-71 win over Arkansas-Monticello on Jan. 23 and lost to College of the Ozarks in overtime 64-62 on Monday.

"They kept their poise down the stretch and kept getting the free throws," head coach Jess Bucy said of Thursday's win. The Bisons led at intermission 37-36 after a first half that saw numerous lead changes. They managed to gain a 33-26 lead with 2:12 left, but allowed UAM to narrow the lead to 37-36 with 2:20 left. The Bisons led at intermission 37-36 after narrow the margin to a 56-48 lead with 8:38 left. Guard Daran Reeves' basket at 10:08 narrowed the lead further, but the Bisons kept the ball from the Boll Weevils to secure the victory.

"Defense dictated the tempo of the game," Bucy said. "They're so talented, so much bigger. We worked to keep pressure on guards."

Kenny Collins led the Bisons with 22 points, while grabbing 10 rebounds. Defense also played a critical role in Monday night's game at the New Gym, although the Bisons would have a little rougher going this time. College of the Ozarks, the second place team in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference, got out to an early 7-2 lead. But the Bisons went ahead at 15:36 on a basket by guard Tim Smallwood. The lead changed hands several times, as the Mountaineers' tough defense forced the Bisons to shoot from outside several times -- the first half, the Bisons shot only 38.5 percent, while the Mountaineers scored 45.2 percent of the shots to keep them close. Hughes led the Boll Weevils to secure the victory.

"You have to be pleased with the way we were playing!"

-- Kenny Collins

But the Bisons would have to play most of the overtime period without Fowler, who fouled out with 30 seconds gone. Although the Bisons grabbed the early lead on a pair of free throws by Hughes, the Mountaineers went ahead 56-55 by 2:47 on a shot by guard Terrance Rhodes and Rodney Foster. The lead was extended to 64-61 at 1:15, when Rhodes sank two foul shots after forward Kenny Collins had fouled out of the game.

"You have to be pleased with the way we were playing." Collins said, although adding, "we missed some free throws down the stretch that we usually make.

He said Ozarks were forcing the Bisons to shoot from outside, although Hughes made the shots to keep them close. Hughes led the Bisons in scoring with 20 points.

S.A. plans
The Student Association discussed plans for upcoming events in their meeting last week.
On Feb. 4 Harding will present the Harlem Magicians in the New Gym. The event is sponsored by the Jaycees with the proceeds going to charity. Cost for Harding students will be $2.50. Feb. 9-10 has been declared friendly week. There will be a wide variety of activities including another chance to make your own buttons for abortion.
The Student Association Movie Committee has done a great job of acquiring quality movies including Pee Wee's Big Adventure which has been declared Sadie Hawkins date night.

March for Life
Several Harding students participated in the eighth annual March for Life held at the state capitol last Sunday to protest the Supreme Court's 1973 decision to legalize abortion.

Scholarship opportunity
The Arkansas Bankers Association is accepting applications for a $2,500 college scholarship, J. Paul Nipper, section president, has announced.
The scholarship, which is awarded annually by the Young Banker Section, will go to a bona fide resident of Arkansas who is a student in a four-year college or university in the state. The recipient must be a senior during the 1986-87 academic year. In addition, the recipient must be majoring in banking, finance or business, must have plans to enter the banking profession and must have a grade-point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale.

Applications are available from the Business Department or from the Young Banker Section of the Arkansas Bankers Association, Suite 1027, 221 West Second Street, Little Rock, Ark. 72201. Completed applications must be submitted no later than Feb. 28.

March prepares for AIC meet
The Harding swim team placed high in two recent competitions, in preparation for the AIC swim meet to be held Feb. 26-27, at the University of Central Arkansas.
Just before the Christmas holidays Harding traveled to the Austin College Invitational Swim Meet, and placed second in a four team field. Glen Alexander placed first in 1600m freestyle and Gano Butcher placed first in 200m breaststroke. Alexander set a school record in 100m butterfly (50.56.78) and Alexander, Gary Ashley, Allen Fitzgerald and Stephen Herryman set a school record in 400m freestyle relay (3:29.04).

Scott Peyton practices his kicks that, with good times at the conference swim meet, Alexander, Ashley, Butcher and the 400m freestyle team, have a good shot at nationals.
"The team has been working 18 to 20 hours, swimming between 26 and 30 miles a week," commented Denny.

When asked about the upcoming conference meet, Coach Boustead stated, "The AIC is a very tough conference, but with our team's good depth we have a chance to compete well and possibly outscore Hendrix."
