Letter to the Editor:

It is a shame when the disrespect and immaturity of 30 or 40 students reflects upon the rest of the student body and faculty of the University as it did in chapel Thursday, the 19th. These students who whistled and were disruptive of the Metropolitan Detroit Chorus need to grow up and quit acting like babies.

Don Shackelford

AN OPEN LETTER TO A FEW HARDING UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

I truly would prefer to make these remarks personally to the few individuals who apparently need to hear them. Picking you out of a crowd is all but impossible; this is the only means I have to communicate my thoughts.

Please let me tell you a little bit about my background so that you may understand why I feel compelled to write. Until age 24, I was a member of a religious group (the Russian Orthodox Church) in which reverence before God was taught and demanded. For example, turning one's back to the altar in the church building was forbidden except when one was leaving the building. When exiting, therefore, we were required to turn, face the altar, make the sign of the cross, and then exit. Every Sunday at a two-hour-long mass sung in a foreign language, a very fidgety little girl was required to sit, stand, and/or kneel frequently and at the customary times. And—you've probably guessed—face the altar the entire time.

As a result of those man-made customs, that very fidgety little girl learned what reverence was and how to conduct herself in a public assembly. Customs are not the point. Reverence is the point. As members of the body of Christ, we are absolved from the customs but certainly not from the practice. As I see it, then, reverence is commanded in our daily chapel devotions and appropriate in all sacred programs, such as the recent presentation by the Metropolitan Detroit Youth Chorus.

In these settings, whistles, hisses, booing, and cat calls are inappropriate and irreverent. No matter how we feel about chapel per se, our behavior should be the same. During the devotional period we must be reverent, or our attempts at worship are abominable before Our Father. At other times, propriety should dictate our actions. As individuals whose sins have been cleansed by blood, our natural response should be worshipful and reverent. I dare say that no one would make a cat call in a public assembly. Customs are not the point. Respect is the point. As members of the body of Christ, we are absolved from the customs but certainly not from the practice.

Please accept this in the gentle spirit intended. I earnestly want to be tolerant and understanding. At the same time, I believe very strongly that we must be guided by propriety, which dictates that you sit quietly and listen and not hinder those who desire to worship.

Ten best of spring banquets

by Julie Symbrsky

Spring, warm weather, the buzzing topic on campus is... The SPRING BANQUETS OF '90. Who asked who? Who's going to ask who? Can't decide who to ask? Who's not going because they can't think of anyone to ask? Who said "No" to the first request and said "Yes" to the second? Who is not taking their current dating partner because they asked the former dating partner two weeks prior to the banquet while they were still going out with the former? Because this is such a hot topic, I could not resist a traditional top 10 list. So, by way of a semi-controlled consensus, these are the results of the top 10 criteria for choosing a banquet date.

1. He/She will help complete the ideal banquet picture.
2. He/She wants to be "Where the Boys were!"
3. He/She will wear, without complaining, or making fun of, the banquet T-shirt purchased by their date.
4. He/She knows how to properly eat with utensils and without a pink tray underneath to prevent any messy spills.
5. He/She has good hygiene practices (clean nails, no sunburn, no toothpaste scum in the corners of their mouth, and no stray dandruff on eyebrows... etc.).
6. He/She knows how to walk around with a pleasant countenance in case of unexpected flashing cameras.
7. He/She does not have to be in by 10:00 p.m. due to probation.
8. He/She is not from Arkansas.
9. He/She does not have a mustache.
10. He/She is having fun.

Special Olympics fulfills dreams

by Carylee Parker

Spokes glistening in the afternoon sun, she races around the track as fast as her chubby body allows. Her forehead is creased with effort, but her grin shows that she is having fun. Her sponsor waits across the finish line for victory sign. Such scenes were common last Tuesday at the 1990 Area 6 Special Olympics, held at Harding's Alumni Field. More than 120 children from White County and neighboring areas competed, 35 of which are students at Searcy's Sunshine School. The contest was originally scheduled for May 1, but was postponed because of rainy weather and the track's condition.

The contest was held Tuesday. Though not everyone won ribbons, it was stressed that all who participated in the Olympics were winners.

Everyone is invited to come out and enjoy the fellowship before Dead Week begins and the school year ends!
Student loan defaults drop considerably

(CPS) — U. S. Department of Education officials announced April 11 that the student loan default rate dipped slightly in 1989. They then admitted most of the decline was attributable to a change in the way the department figures the rate, not to any gust of student honesty.

During fiscal year 1989, which stretched from Oct. 1, 1987 through Sept. 30, 1988, 384,000 borrowers who were supposed to begin repaying defaulted on a total of $1.07 billion in loans. The defaults represented a default rate of 18.6 percent, down from the year before when 384,000 borrowers, or 17.8 percent of the total, defaulted.

The default rate in 1986 was 21 percent.

"We don't want to claim victory. We don't want anybody else to claim victory. We want to look at the data and see what they say," said Leonard Haynes III, assistant secretary for the department's postsecondary education branch.

Haynes said changes in record keeping accounted for much of the reduction. In essence, the government no longer counts defaulters from schools with fewer than 30 borrowers, schools that no longer participate in federal aid programs and foreign colleges where U. S. students are enrolled when it computes its default rate.

"There's a heightened sense across the country that defaults do matter," observed Dave Harmon, a regional vice president with the Great Lakes Higher Education Corp.

Like other companies, Great Lakes buys loans from banks so the banks themselves have more money to lend to students. When a student borrower fails to repay a loan, the Education Department repays whenever owns the loan — either the original bank that made the loan, or the company to which it sold the loan.

Based on figures from the General Accounting Office, the Education Department made almost $2 billion in default payments to lenders during fiscal 1989, an increase of 318 percent since 1983.

In 1989, such payments consumed almost half of the money Congress appropriated for student loans.

Of the 5,226 institutions the Education Department tracked, more than 70 percent had default rates under 20 percent.

An additional 482 schools have rates higher than 40 percent.

Under Cavazos' default reduction package, schools whose former students' default rates are above 20 percent must establish default management plans.

Education Department officials said 1,157 institutions had default rates between 20 and 40 percent. As mandated by the new regulations, the schools submitted plans to manage and collect past-due loans last year.

If the default rate gets higher at schools where students have had repayment records, the government can force banks to wait 30 days before releasing loan money to first-time borrowers. It can also prorate tuition refunds so that students who drop out in midterm have money to repay their loans immediately.

Beginning in 1991, schools with default rates above 40 percent will be kicked out of the federal student loan program.

The Harding University Chorus gives performance

by Sheila McFall

The Harding University Chorus gave their annual spring concert Monday night at 8:00 p.m. in the American Heritage Auditorium. Clifton Ganus III led the group in several secular selections including "Auction Crises," "Polly Wolly Doodlee" and "Stomp Your Foot." Solos were sung by David Henry and Phil Richardson.

Among those in attendance were many members of Elderhostel. This group has been visiting Harding's campus and stopped to enjoy the singing of the Harding Chorus along with many others who attended.

Second Elderhostel ends today

About 45 new participants arrived on the Harding campus last weekend for a session of Elderhostel, an education program for persons over 65.

The students registered Sunday with classes scheduled for Monday through Friday. Registrants were housed at the Heritage Inn and a full program of activities included field trips and tours.

"Our involvement in Elderhostel has proved to be most rewarding," said Dr. Jimmy Carr, director of the Harding sessions, "for we have made many new friends who might not otherwise have come to know about Harding University." Last week Carr noticed a gentleman on the campus and recognized him as a former Elderhostel participant. Upon inquiry, the man said he had enjoyed his experience so much that he brought his wife to the campus to visit.

The second session included classes taught by Dr. Tien Howard, Dr. Raymond Munsey, and Dr. Carlisle Shultz. Participants registered from 15 states, with professionals listed as retired university teachers, attorneys, judges, engineers among others.

The program will close with an entertainment session and banquet tonight. Two sessions will be held June 10 and June 24 and two more in October.

This will be one of the last performances this spring for the chorus. They will be leaving for a month this summer to visit Europe. They will be singing at different functions while touring countries like Scotland, Italy, France, Belgium and several more.

The chorus will have a short break upon their return to the States before gearing up for the fall semester.

Laura Beth Henderson, a member of the chorus, said that next year they will be as strong as ever since they are not losing very many graduating seniors. The chorus is a fairly young group that promises to continue its high standards in singing and performing.

Campus Dining Survey Response

Campus dining service student food committee conducted a campus wide survey and here are some of the comments and our response to them.

WHAT TYPE OF CHEESE IS THAT ON THE SALAD BAR?
All of the cheese used in the dining service is 100% real cheese. No type of filler or cheese food is used.

WHY CAN'T I HAVE MORE THAN ONE ENTREE AT ONE TIME?
We certainly want the students to eat as much as they would like. We do however request that only one entree be taken at a time; this ensures a minimal waste factor.

MORE VARIETY IS NEEDED, SEEMS LIKE WE ARE HAVING THE SAME THING OVER AND OVER AGAIN.
The dining service has a four week menu cycle that constantly rotates and includes fifteen different entrees every day.

SUNDAY MENU CHANGES...
Sunday lunch menu has changed to fried chicken nuggets, sliced roast beef, and turkey & dressing. These items are available in addition to ESTA FIESTA, PASTA, DELI AND GRILL WORKS.

Skim milk is available to all students at the front salad bar for all three meals daily.
The student food committee has brought several different types of breakfast cereal to our attention which we are currently stocking.

Steak Night — The student food committee suggested that we add chicken cordon bleu as another entree selection.
The dining service switched to ground turkey last February. The reason is because of the lower fat content and less cholesterol.

Tennis team takes championship

by Eric Morgan

In between fighting Arkansas’ rainy weather on the tennis courts and the wet softball field, tennis enthusiasts managed to squeeze in a few tournaments for this spring’s 1990 intramural season.

In singles, fifth year senior Darren Bonham was awarded the title of singles champion by defeating Grant Brower 6-4, 6-4 in the final.

Bonham’s experience was certainly a key factor in achieving his five victories in straight sets. He first started playing tennis in the third grade and continued all throughout high school. Before transferring to Harding, he played tennis at the collegiate level at York College for two years. With his victory over Brower this past Monday, Bonham remained undefeated and captured his third straight singles title for tennis intramurals.

Congratulations also go to third place finisher senior Henry Widodo and fourth place to Cesar Rosales beat the doubles team of Bonham and Chris Cash by scores of 6-2, 6-2 last weekend. The doubles combo of Anderson and Angulo deserve an honorable mention as well for finishing third overall.

ARCIE SHELTON steps on first base just after the ball arrives. The Bisons lost both games to Ouachita Baptist in their final game of the season last Tuesday.

Tigers beat Bisons in final games

Trouble at the plate proved costly for the Harding University Bisons last Tuesday, as Ouachita Baptist swept a doubleheader from the Bisons at Jerry Moore Memorial Park.

The Tigers pounded out 30 hits while holding the Bisons to just four in a 4-1 opening decision, then claimed the nightcap by the score of 5-2. The losses all but eliminate the Bisons from a position in the four-team NAIA District 17 playoffs, which are set to start later this week. Harding falls to 13-24-1 overall, 9-15 in Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference play.

In the second game, both the Bisons and Tigers collected seven hits apiece, but the Bisons could muster just two runs, both coming in the third inning. Bart Jones singled and moved to second on the throw to home. Harrell got a base on balls, Cooper collected his second RBI of the day when he drove Byrd home on a single. John Bonson took the loss to move to 3-7 on the season. Clint Davis homered for the Tigers.

BISON break records

By Mark Thomas

Jon Murray is a great runner. It is as simple as that. Murray makes running look easy to even people like me. He is an excellent student, majoring in business management and plans to graduate in a couple of weeks. Murray is what you call a coaches dream athlete. His accomplishments are unremarkable, holding four Bison records, and his strong leadership earns him respect from teammates and coaches. Murray claims that he is inspired by friends, coaches, and teammates to run, encouraging him to do well.

Though he is not outspoken in the public realm, he quietly runs away with victory after victory as he prepares to return to the NAIA nationals at the end of May. A typical day for Jon is a slow one, but afterwards running close to 10 miles a day. Many people don’t drive their car 10 miles a day. "I typically run five to seven days a week, about 10 miles a day," said Murray. "I run with my training plan, but afterwards running close to 10 miles a day is always a chore as many people seem to perceive it. "I enjoy running because it gets me away from things," he said.

Murray is a firm believer in goal setting. He realizes that it is easier to get things done if you set goals and try to accomplish them. Murray sets goals for just about everything. "I stop and analyze my goals from time to time to see where I am," Murray said. "My next goal is to win a marathon in the nation’s. Murray's goal is well within reach because he is only 22.5 miles away."

Murray has run the marathon in the nation’s and finished third. Murray came close to winning the race. "I reached a personal goal that day, but I wanted to win the race," said Murray. "I led the race for 23 miles, then some guy passed me and another guy passed me with 300 meters to go."

"I'm happy with my running this year," he said. Murray said that he ran well that day but just didn’t win.

Murray has holds four Bison records. "I wanted to run in the 5000 meter, 10,000 meter, and the marathon. Murray has again entered in the marathon this year which will be run at Tarleton State University in Texas. Murray has also qualified for the conference meet in three events: 5000 meter, 10,000 meter, and 5K run."

Murray is confident with his running this year and looks to finish next week's conference meet. "I'm in the best shape I have ever been in," said Murray. "Murray feels this is the best year he has had. "I'm happy with my running this year," he said. "I have had a race a month of years, but it is now coming around," he said.

After Harding, Murray plans to continue running but is not sure of his location. "I will definitely keep running, but I’m not sure where right now," said Murray. "It is my goal to run in a big race some day," he said.

Murray has enjoyed the team at Harding and says that this year's team will do a lot better than it has in the past.

Murray's great leadership and presence on the team gives Harding an extra edge that most teams are not able to have. Joe Musselwhite is a great runner and it is as simple as that.
"Time" runs out for campus tour group

Time of Day tradition ends with last show
by Randy Williams

The time is right. The Time of Day, that is, Harding University's troopers of timbre, those foot-stompin', hand-clappin', mix-masters of acoustic alchemy, will be presenting their repertoire in the Benson Auditorium Tuesday night at 7 p.m.

The show will be the final performance of the band on campus because of the program's cancellation. The Time of Day's performance schedule has been reduced to only summer. The decision was received with mixed emotions. "Doing away with the time of Day will hurt (admissions)... People will be calling for us to play and they'll have to turn them down," said member Spence Smith.

The agenda for Tuesday night's show includes nearly two hours of music from the current Time of Day set lists, music from their summer sets plus some more surprises. "We'll pull out some songs we haven't played in a while, which will be interesting, plus a lot of jamming and some special guests," Smith said.

The show will be free of charge and open to the general public.
