Dear John Allen:

Thanks for the commendation of the Yale Lectures. I am particularly grateful to know that you are finding them of value in your present reading.

You do ask the most embarrassing questions! Let me say that I still try to find some time regularly for reading in the various fields. Because of the press of work at Hillsboro and Lipscomb, most of my reading has to be done in areas directly related to my preaching and teaching. My best time for reading a few books in other fields is during the travel-time to speaking engagements and during the free time during gospel meetings. In addition, I try to keep up with current events through the news magazines and also enjoy sampling current thinking in other magazines, both secular and religious. Still, there is a great backlog of reading that I intend and need to do.

Best wishes in your lectures at Oklahoma Christian. I wish I could be there to hear you.

Cordially,

Batsell Barrett Baxter
Chairman, Department of Bible
