Women gather to make voices heard

Weekend conference to offer ‘spiritual recharge’

SPORTS

OPINION

INDEX

COMING UP

SAINTS

CAMPUS WATCH – 12

Fitness Revolution

Honesty on the line for students

Results of Harding University Spring 2006 Academic Integrity Survey

Women gather to make voices heard

Weekend conference to offer ‘spiritual recharge’

SPORTS

OPINION

INDEX

COMING UP

SAINTS

CAMPUS WATCH – 12

Fitness Revolution

Honesty on the line for students

Results of Harding University Spring 2006 Academic Integrity Survey

Women gather to make voices heard

Weekend conference to offer ‘spiritual recharge’

SPORTS

OPINION

INDEX

COMING UP

SAINTS

CAMPUS WATCH – 12

Fitness Revolution

Honesty on the line for students

Results of Harding University Spring 2006 Academic Integrity Survey

Women gather to make voices heard

Weekend conference to offer ‘spiritual recharge’

SPORTS

OPINION

INDEX

COMING UP

SAINTS

CAMPUS WATCH – 12

Fitness Revolution

Honesty on the line for students

Results of Harding University Spring 2006 Academic Integrity Survey
Singing and be happy

Music professor feels isolated in Benson

I have been a music student at Harding University for five years. I am a member of several singing groups and have been involved in several concerts. Every time we perform, I feel a rush of excitement and the joy of being surrounded by music. However, I have noticed that students often take music for granted and do not appreciate it as much as they should. It is a shame that something as beautiful and uplifting as music is not valued more within the university community.

At Benson, music is present in different ways. There are music classes, choir rehearsals, and performances by the Benson Auditorium. Yet, it seems that students are not fully engaged with music. I believe that music has a profound impact on our lives and that it should be treated with the same respect as other subjects.

I have observed that some students consider music as a distraction or something to pass the time. They may attend concerts or listen to music during their free time, but it does not seem to be a priority for them. Other students may appreciate the beauty of music, but they do not go out of their way to participate in music-related activities. This lack of engagement with music is a concern to me, as I believe that music has the power to bring people together and to create a positive atmosphere.

I have noticed that students are not always receptive to music. They may not understand the deeper significance of music and its role in our lives. It is important to let students know that music is not just a form of entertainment, but also a means of expression and emotional release.

To address this issue, I would like to propose some initiatives. For example, we could organize more music-related events, such as workshops or concerts, to engage students in music. We could also encourage students to explore different genres of music, so that they can appreciate the diversity of musical expressions. Additionally, we could provide opportunities for students to participate in music-related activities, such as choir rehearsals or music theory classes, to help them develop a more profound understanding of music.

In conclusion, I believe that music has a vital role in our lives, and it should be valued more within the university community. I urge students to take music seriously and to appreciate its beauty. Let us make music part of our daily lives, and let us experience the joy and enrichment that it brings.
Wave of robberies breaks into Searcy community

Searcy Police Department investigates multiple thefts, assaults across town

KRISTIN KELLEY

Searcy has experienced several armed robberies, including some in the Harding vicinity, since October 2005.

The string of robberies ranges from stealing prescription drugs, robbing a grocery store, and accosting a woman in a parking lot to an in-home hold-up, convenience store robbery and stealing a cell phone from a day care center.

But Harding students do not need to panic. Amber Dillon, Searcy Police Department spokesperson said, she said Searcy is still a safe town, but as cities grow, more crime inevitably occurs. Dillon said, at my given time, 4,000 people are in and out of Searcy. The SPD always has at least four police officers on duty around the city, making the ratio of one officer to every 1022.6 people.

Despite these figures, Craig Russell, director of public safety for Harding, said Searcy is a safe place to live compared to the locations of most universities.

According to the Public Safety Office, there have been no recent reports of robberies or suspicious on campus. According to Russell, Programs like Courtesy and Safety Escort (CASE) and Survival Harassment and Rape Prevention (SHARP) are provided to help stop campus crimes before it happens.

In Searcy, the director of criminal justice program, and nevertheless, students should always be aware of their surroundings, carry themselves with confidence in public and avoid going alone.

"I'm not a burglar," Dillon said. "A lot of times, unless someone is approached, they have a false view of what crime is going on."

"Dillon said students don't need to feel alarmed. "They should be proactive in the way they do things to protect them from crime," Dillon said.

According to a Jan. 30 Daily Citizen article, the most recent robbery occurred Jan. 28 at the American Cash Office in the Harding vicinity, since October 2005.

On Oct. 7 and Oct. 4 robberies, according to the SPD. Despite those figures, Craig Russell, Searcy Chief of Police, said, "We have a place to put them, it can't be denied," Russell said.

"The facility is going to be state-of-the-art," Houston said. "We're not going to be a prison as a jail. Once the bad guys we are mean business and that's what we have to do."

In the meantime, Russell said Harding is a safe place, partly due to the Christian character and values of its students.

"While no university is completely immune to crime, we have many advantages here at Harding that you just can't find at most other universities," Russell said.

Houston said, in addition to a larger police force, the new White County Correctional Facility under construction on Booth Road can make Searcy safer.

"The facility is going to be state-of-the-art," Houston said. "We're not going to be a prison as a jail. Once the bad guys we are mean business and that's what we have to do."

In the meantime, Russell said Harding is a safe place, partly due to the Christian character and values of its students.

According to the article, Searcy mayor Delinda LaForce said hiring more police officers is important for Searcy.

"We have a lot of times, unless someone is approached, they have a false view of what crime is going on."

"Dillon said students don't need to feel alarmed. "They should be proactive in the way they do things to protect them from crime," Dillon said.

According to a Jan. 30 Daily Citizen article, the most recent robbery occurred Jan. 28 at the American Cash Office, according to Russell. According to the SPD, two armed thieves entered the store, where they were met at the doorway, asked for an income tax check to be cashed. More employees Annie Culmood and she was unable to cash the check, and the female suspect took out a small handgun and demanded more money. She gave her the money and the suspects fled the scene.

According to the SPD, Tabitha Simmons, who was carrying a handbag, was robbed at gunpoint by a male suspect.

The robbery occurred over the past several months since October 2005. According to the SPD, the suspect responded to a robbery at Medici Do Dr. on Dec. 11, 2005. An employee told officers that a white male had come into the store and handed her in his pocket, making a clicking noise like a gun. The suspect grabbed a bottle of Xanax, a prescription medica­tion used for anxiety disorders. The employee complied, and the man left the store.

The next day, SPD responded to a robbery at the Country Mart, at 2900 E. Race Ave. The Daily Citizen reported that a man with a knife attempted to rob the store.

According to the police report, the store manager did not give the suspect any money. Detective Lauren Bright investigated the case, Oct. 7 and Oct. 4 robberies, according to the SPD. Bright interviewed James Cabin Lindal, of Judsonia, who had been identified by a Judsonia police officer during a routine traffic stop. Landis was arrested on counts of armed aggravated robbery.

A woman was robbed at gunpoint at the Hampton Inn parking lot, Oct. 23, 2005, according to a police report. A black male with a gun approached Jill Farley of Plano, Texas, and took her purse and car keys and fled the scene. The purse contained $8, a debit card, a credit card, $30 cash and a gold ring valued at $40, according to the report. The SPD is still investigating this unsolved robbery.

On Nov. 13, 2005, Randall Estes was held at gunpoint when he went to put black male into his Melody Lane apartment after they requested to use the phone. They searched the apartment and took two cell phones and $4,000 among other items, according to the police report. This case is still under investigation by the SPD.

Two white males robbed Allison's Convenience Store at the Phillips 66 gas station, 35 E. Benton St., on Nov. 30, 2005, according to the SPD. Two Harding students, senior Jason Bal­ engers and junior Elizabeth Cranfill, witnessed the robbery at 10:20 p.m. As they filled their cars with gas, they noticed two men in ski masks outside the store.

According to Cranfill, "Those two guys look like they're about to rob the place."

One man stood outside by the door while the other went in the store with an old-looking handgun in tow, Cranfill said. Both men ran off toward the apartments behind the store after the robbery, taking an undisclosed amount of money, according to the police report. "It looked like something off a bad TV show, like a some someone got the wrong idea from an after school special," Ballenger said.

Police are still investigating the case.

In another robbery, an unidenfied man armed with a handgun stole a portable phone from Ms. Sharon's Daycare at 211 S. Oak St. on Jan. 10, according to a police report.

Two white males assaulted a man at the intersection of Mohawk Drive and Benton Street on Dec. 17, 2005, according to a police report. Jack McKinney, of Indian Trail, Searcy, was jogging around 4:30 p.m. when the men grabbed him and demanded money. He was able to free himself and escape, McKinney said. According to the police report, the man was able to go somewhere safe and call police.

As they filled their cars with gas, they noticed two men in ski masks outside the store.

According to Ballenger, Cranfill said, "Those two guys look like they're about to rob the place."

One man stood outside by the door while the other went in the store with an old-looking handgun in tow, Ballenger said. Both men ran off toward the apartments behind the store after the robbery, taking an undisclosed amount of money, according to the police report. "It looked like something off a bad TV show, like a some someone got the wrong idea from an after school special," Ballenger said.

Police are still investigating the case.

In another robbery, an uniden­

fied man armed with a handgun stole a portable phone from Ms. Sharon's Daycare at 211 S. Oak St. on Jan. 10, according to a police report.

Two white males assaulted a man at the intersection of Mohawk Drive and Benton Street on Dec. 17, 2005, according to a police report. Jack McKinney, of Indian Trail, Searcy, was jogging around 4:30 p.m. when the men grabbed him and demanded money. He was able to free himself and escape, McKinney said. According to the police report, the man was able to go somewhere safe and call police.
Islam parodies spur violence, deaths

TARI PATTLE

student reporter

"Two Rooms," a Feb. 7 BBC article reported story printed that the cartoons depict Muslims destroying the Holy Bible, inviting Muslims to be angry and kill the artist. In the framework of art and design, Muslims have the freedom to do some things but not others. According to the BBC, Muslims would like to see the Brooks in the office building, and in some ways, the Brooks could be a reference to what the artist's audience, the perceived dangers of the cartoons, but wrong in their resulting actions. "It has shown a contrast of culture," Dry said. "Most Americans would not be offended at the point of the game in schools as part of the curriculum is a good idea. Allen said. "I played DDR for the first time last year, and I think it was a good workout." Chealse Robertson contributed to this article.

School tests integrity

Continued from page 1

The Center for Disease Control said food among students is likely to become overweight, with 16 percent of students statewide. The game is provided workout.

Continued from page 1

"Two Rooms" is written in words about a lack of what is appropriate," Orgen said. "Some cheating is deliberate, but not all is cheating." Shawn Daggett, associate professor of biology and member of the弑杀委员会, said the concept of dishonesty comes when the information is improperly attributed, but the student can check their work before he or she turns it in. "On occasion, students take quotes from straight from documents," Daggett said. "This is where it is my job to look at the report and see if the student put the statement in quotes and footnoted it if they did, there is no instruction." Organ said he finds Turnitin.com helpful because of this lack of understanding. "Turnitin.com could really help students out," Organ said. "I would not have gotten the grade I did on a paper in the spring without it." Daggett said the Web site helps organize his work. "I have all of the assignments arranged by class and category," Daggett said. "I don't have to worry about losing anything."

According to a Psychological Record survey, cited on Hispanic Heritage Month, 30 percent of undergraduates have admitted to plagiarism. 2

"Two Rooms" is a message of love that shall dwell actions of time each day.

"Two Rooms" is a message of love that shall dwell actions of time each day.
Born to be wild

MELISSA MCDONALD assisted news editor

Barry Bentley, director of parking services, said he has been interested in motorcycles since he was young.

"Mom and Dad treated them like evil South boys," Bentley said. "I went out and bought a Harley. It caused a minor crisis, but they've finally gotten used to it.

"Also, I have had fun with my and his two sons would want road bikes. I really do not want them to want a bike like I have. I care about their safety even more than I do.

Timothy Pitt said many of the injuries he sees in the emergency room are due to inexperience.

"It depends on how you ride down the road," Cox said. "I drive a car, I roll all the windows down."

"I love the idea of a free spirit flying down the road," Cox said. "When you are on a motorcycle, it is like a dream come true."

"It is less traffic and people are in less of a hurry. Rural areas are much better for riding than the city," Cox said.

"My motorcycle monthly notes are considerably more than the monthly note on my [previous] house," Pitt said. "I don't spend much money on anything else. I'm not getting any younger. I'm even going to have a size bike, one that I really want, I can't wear another 20 years. There's no point. I
Aspiring filmmaker debuts in documentary

MARY HARDAGE
student reporter

Children have different dreams of what they want to be when they grow up. Some may want to be firemen, while others want to be doctors, cowboys, princesses or astronauts. One boy had the dream to participate in re-enactments and began it with a part in a film.

Graduate student Casey Cochran made his onscreen debut in the PBS documentary "The War That Made America," which details the French and Indian War. The four-hour movie aired Jan. 18-25 in four installments.

Cochran was an extra, playing the part of a soldier in the film. He had no speaking lines but interacted with one of the main characters in one scene, he said. Cochran said there were about 90 extras on the set with him. Two weeks after his 2004 wedding, he traveled to Pennsylvania for a two-week shooting period.

Cochran's wife, Rachel, said she was excited for her husband's chance to be in a film. "I was excited, too," she said. "I was eager to be a part of the documentary." Rachel Cochran added, "I was a little hesitant since he had to leave immediately after we got back from our honeymoon, but I was really glad that he could go."

She said she fully supported his decision to participate in the film.

"I wasn't surprised that he wanted to be involved with film - it's the perfect combination of his love for film and his love for re-enacting," Cochran said. "It also gave him an opportunity to be on the other side of the camera for a while, as I thought that was next for him."

Cochran said he enjoyed participating in the film because of previous experience with re-enactments. Since he can remember, Cochran and his father have attended at least two re-enactments every year in New York.

At one of those events, Cochran visited a company's booth that was looking for people interested in being in a documentary. Cochran said he filled out some information and "basically forgot about it."

Two years after signing up at the booth, he received the part as an extra.

Cochran began war re-enactments at a young age. In junior high, Cochran and his father participated in various re-enactments of frontier Ohio with an organization called Frontier Spirit.

"The re-enactors would come to a park, set up along forest trails and tell the history of Ohio for observers," Cochran said.

Cochran said being an actor came naturally.

"[Acting] didn't make me nervous," Cochran said. "It was not that hard to ignore the camera because it was far away."

Cochran had various jobs around campus as a videographer and helped with uplift and Lectureship videos. For Uplift 2005, he filmed students throughout the day and made a video to be shown at night.

"I know what it's like being behind the camera," Cochran said. "It was fun to be in front of the camera, not having to worry about all the other stuff."

Cochran graduated from Harding in Dec. 2005 with an electronic media production degree. He and his wife are now graduate students in Harding's counseling program. His future goal is to tie together his undergraduate degree with counseling.

"I think counseling is a good service opportunity," Cochran said. "There are not a lot of service opportunities in camera work."

In the application process for graduate school, Cochran began war re-enactments at a young age. In junior high, Cochran and his father participated in various re-enactments of frontier Ohio with an organization called Frontier Spirit.

"The re-enactors would come to a park, set up along forest trails and tell the history of Ohio for observers," Cochran said.

Cochran said being an actor came naturally.

"[Acting] didn't make me nervous," Cochran said. "It was not that hard to ignore the camera because it was far away."

Cochran had various jobs around campus as a videographer and helped with uplift and Lectureship videos. For Uplift 2005, he filmed students throughout the day and made a video to be shown at night.

"I know what it's like being behind the camera," Cochran said. "It was fun to be in front of the camera, not having to worry about all the other stuff."

Cochran graduated from Harding in Dec. 2005 with an electronic media production degree. He and his wife are now graduate students in Harding's counseling program. His future goal is to tie together his undergraduate degree with counseling.

"I think counseling is a good service opportunity," Cochran said. "There are not a lot of service opportunities in camera work."

In the application process for graduate school, Cochran began war re-enactments at a young age. In junior high, Cochran and his father participated in various re-enactments of frontier Ohio with an organization called Frontier Spirit.

"The re-enactors would come to a park, set up along forest trails and tell the history of Ohio for observers," Cochran said.

Cochran said being an actor came naturally.

"[Acting] didn't make me nervous," Cochran said. "It was not that hard to ignore the camera because it was far away."

Cochran had various jobs around campus as a videographer and helped with uplift and Lectureship videos. For Uplift 2005, he filmed students throughout the day and made a video to be shown at night.

"I know what it's like being behind the camera," Cochran said. "It was fun to be in front of the camera, not having to worry about all the other stuff."

Cochran graduated from Harding in Dec. 2005 with an electronic media production degree. He and his wife are now graduate students in Harding's counseling program. His future goal is to tie together his undergraduate degree with counseling.

"I think counseling is a good service opportunity," Cochran said. "There are not a lot of service opportunities in camera work."

In the application process for graduate school, Cochran began war re-enactments at a young age. In junior high, Cochran and his father participated in various re-enactments of frontier Ohio with an organization called Frontier Spirit.
Tired fairy tale

ESTE ALEGRIA
student reporter

Just when I had quit
expecting fairy tales and
retired my old copy of
"Tinkle Fink,"
"Hoodwinked" came out. It wasn't
charming, though cliché.
flies are the deal.
It was funny, but the animation
left me craving a refund.

The main character, Red, works as a delivery girl at her grandmother's baked goods empire. She is sweet, bright-eyed and judicious, longing for the freedom to visit
dear places. This is starting to sound familiar.

Snack shops across the forest are
being shut down by a "mysterious bad guy"
who continually steals the shops' secret recipes. Red decides
to take it upon herself
to put up a fight. She is a pizza girl and
arcade combined to create a lively atmosphere. The owners
say the restaurant opened on Nov. 25, 2005,
and has been going strong ever since.

The movie is the Wein
stein Company's first animated release. Although the animation is not as expected in the 21st century, the movie
may be entertaining. Don't be that cliché movie snob. It's okay.

"You've Got Mail" תאשתית

Feb. 18 7 p.m.

"You've Got Mail" is a film
about the rollercoaster
drama of love.

"Sleepless in Seattle" Benny Aud. Feb. 17 7 p.m.

FEBRUARY 17, 2006 THE BISON 7

ENTERTAINMENT

Tired fairy tale

ESTE ALEGRIA
student reporter

Just when I had quit
expecting fairy tales and
retired my old copy of
"Tinkle Fink,"
"Hoodwinked" came out. It wasn't
charming, though cliché.
flies are the deal.
It was funny, but the animation
left me craving a refund.

The main character, Red, works as a
delivery girl at her grandmother's baked goods empire. She is sweet, bright-eyed
and judicious, longing for the freedom to visit
dear places. This is starting
to sound familiar.

Snack shops across the forest are
being shut down by a "mysterious bad guy"
who continually steals the
shops' secret recipes. Red decides
to take it upon herself
to put up a fight. She
is a pizza girl and
arcade combined to create
a lively atmosphere. The owners
say the restaurant opened on Nov. 25, 2005,
and has been going strong ever since.

The movie is the Wein
stein Company's first animated release. Although the animation is not as expected in the 21st century, the movie
may be entertaining. Don't be that cliché
movie snob. It's okay.

"You've Got Mail" תאשתית

Feb. 18 7 p.m.

"You've Got Mail" is a film
about the rollercoaster
drama of love.

"Sleepless in Seattle" Benny Aud. Feb. 17 7 p.m.

FEBRUARY 17, 2006 THE BISON 7

ENTERTAINMENT

Tired fairy tale

ESTE ALEGRIA
student reporter

Just when I had quit
expecting fairy tales and
retired my old copy of
"Tinkle Fink,"
"Hoodwinked" came out. It wasn't
charming, though cliché.
flies are the deal.
It was funny, but the animation
left me craving a refund.

The main character, Red, works as a
delivery girl at her grandmother's baked goods empire. She is sweet, bright-eyed
and judicious, longing for the freedom to visit
dear places. This is starting
to sound familiar.

Snack shops across the forest are
being shut down by a "mysterious bad guy"
who continually steals the
shops' secret recipes. Red decides
to take it upon herself
to put up a fight. She
is a pizza girl and
arcade combined to create
a lively atmosphere. The owners
say the restaurant opened on Nov. 25, 2005,
and has been going strong ever since.

The movie is the Wein
stein Company's first animated release. Although the animation is not as expected in the 21st century, the movie
may be entertaining. Don't be that cliché
movie snob. It's okay.
The Elusive Area

open house: Two hours of intense awkwardness, strange smells

Conversation tags after an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?

Proposal of cutting funds to Palestine not a simple matter

Humor

Conversations linger as an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?

LETTER POLICY

The Bison welcomes your views. Letters to the editor should be limited to 250 words and may be edited for length. Submit letters to "Bison," The Bison, Harding University, Searcy, AR 72148, or submit online at bison@harding.edu. Submissions can also be faxed to 501-279-4696. The Bison reserves the right to not publish a letter for any reason. Letters will be editorialized by student editors prior to publication.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Rebecca King's editorial "They elected terrorists; we pull our ads" fails to address the fundamental question of why the Palestinian people chose to put Hamas into power. Does she think the people didn't realize it would be a monumental disaster? Or does she not want people to realize that the people were so fed up with the corruption and incompetence of Fateh they were willing to go on a limb and support a party that has proven commit­ment to the people by investing in social programs and welfare systems? As Westerners we should know people are going to vote for or against two things; if they believe they will serve them best no matter what other countries think.

The United States has no right to punish a people for trying to vote the way they see best for their country.

By putting Hamas into power, the people of Palestine have forced the party to address the issue of how their platform affects global relations. Hamas, in the political arena, is the antithesis of the soft approach that so many of its members are seeing to have a direct impact on foreign aid. We should be grateful for this opportunity to see the monetary impact we have over the country to influence its decisions. The United States knows that if Western aid is pulled from Palestine, the countries that still fill in the gaps will be countries like Iran and Syria, and the like which could be disastrous in the Middle East.

It may not be a popular choice with those people who think we shouldn't support terror, but in the long run it's best for them.

Amber Satter, senior

The Power of the Decisions

A lthough some of us are hesitant to make financial decisions due to potential problems, a question often posed is: "Who can become a fidu­ ciary of such a large fortune?" We don't have to worry about this type of question because we can hire a professional financial advisor. The better decision is the one that yields the largest return. The professional advisors are often the ones who earn the most money because they are the ones who have the most clients.

As a country, we have to make decisions about the future of our country. The better the decision, the better the result. In the end, it all comes down to the future of our country. If we make the right decision, our country will be in better shape.

The Elusive Area

open house: Two hours of intense awkwardness, strange smells

Conversation tags after an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?

Proposal of cutting funds to Palestine not a simple matter

Humor

Conversations linger as an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?

LETTER POLICY

The Bison welcomes your views. Letters to the editor should be limited to 250 words and may be edited for length. Submit letters to "Bison," The Bison, Harding University, Searcy, AR 72148, or submit online at bison@harding.edu. Submissions can also be faxed to 501-279-4696. The Bison reserves the right to not publish a letter for any reason. Letters will be editorialized by student editors prior to publication.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Rebecca King's editorial "They elected terrorists; we pull our ads" fails to address the fundamental question of why the Palestinian people chose to put Hamas into power. Does she think the people didn't realize it would be a monumental disaster? Or does she not want people to realize that the people were so fed up with the corruption and incompetence of Fateh they were willing to go on a limb and support a party that has proven commit­ment to the people by investing in social programs and welfare systems? As Westerners we should know people are going to vote for or against two things; if they believe they will serve them best no matter what other countries think.

The United States has no right to punish a people for trying to vote the way they see best for their country.

By putting Hamas into power, the people of Palestine have forced the party to address the issue of how their platform affects global relations. Hamas, in the political arena, is the antithesis of the soft approach that so many of its members are seeing to have a direct impact on foreign aid. We should be grateful for this opportunity to see the monetary impact we have over the country to influence its decisions. The United States knows that if Western aid is pulled from Palestine, the countries that still fill in the gaps will be countries like Iran and Syria, and the like which could be disastrous in the Middle East.

It may not be a popular choice with those people who think we shouldn't support terror, but in the long run it's best for them.

Amber Satter, senior

The Power of the Decisions

A lthough some of us are hesitant to make financial decisions due to potential problems, a question often posed is: "Who can become a fidu­ ciary of such a large fortune?" We don't have to worry about this type of question because we can hire a professional financial advisor. The better decision is the one that yields the largest return. The professional advisors are often the ones who earn the most money because they are the ones who have the most clients.

As a country, we have to make decisions about the future of our country. The better the decision, the better the result. In the end, it all comes down to the future of our country. If we make the right decision, our country will be in better shape.

The Elusive Area

open house: Two hours of intense awkwardness, strange smells

Conversation tags after an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?

Proposal of cutting funds to Palestine not a simple matter

Humor

Conversations linger as an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?

LETTER POLICY

The Bison welcomes your views. Letters to the editor should be limited to 250 words and may be edited for length. Submit letters to "Bison," The Bison, Harding University, Searcy, AR 72148, or submit online at bison@harding.edu. Submissions can also be faxed to 501-279-4696. The Bison reserves the right to not publish a letter for any reason. Letters will be editorialized by student editors prior to publication.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Rebecca King's editorial "They elected terrorists; we pull our ads" fails to address the fundamental question of why the Palestinian people chose to put Hamas into power. Does she think the people didn't realize it would be a monumental disaster? Or does she not want people to realize that the people were so fed up with the corruption and incompetence of Fateh they were willing to go on a limb and support a party that has proven commit­ment to the people by investing in social programs and welfare systems? As Westerners we should know people are going to vote for or against two things; if they believe they will serve them best no matter what other countries think.

The United States has no right to punish a people for trying to vote the way they see best for their country.

By putting Hamas into power, the people of Palestine have forced the party to address the issue of how their platform affects global relations. Hamas, in the political arena, is the antithesis of the soft approach that so many of its members are seeing to have a direct impact on foreign aid. We should be grateful for this opportunity to see the monetary impact we have over the country to influence its decisions. The United States knows that if Western aid is pulled from Palestine, the countries that still fill in the gaps will be countries like Iran and Syria, and the like which could be disastrous in the Middle East.

It may not be a popular choice with those people who think we shouldn't support terror, but in the long run it's best for them.

Amber Satter, senior

The Power of the Decisions

A lthough some of us are hesitant to make financial decisions due to potential problems, a question often posed is: "Who can become a fidu­ ciary of such a large fortune?" We don't have to worry about this type of question because we can hire a professional financial advisor. The better decision is the one that yields the largest return. The professional advisors are often the ones who earn the most money because they are the ones who have the most clients.

As a country, we have to make decisions about the future of our country. The better the decision, the better the result. In the end, it all comes down to the future of our country. If we make the right decision, our country will be in better shape.

The Elusive Area

open house: Two hours of intense awkwardness, strange smells

Conversation tags after an hour or so, and someone suggests going to Hastings, but why leave The Forbidden Area before you have to?
An evolving conflict
Appreciating Darwin's contribution to the Christian situation

O ne thing Christians used to be united in was their thinking about the origin of the universe. Not anymore.

Across the country Feb. 12, hundreds of Christian churches celebrated Charles Darwin's birthday, according to a report by the Chicago Tribune. This group of churches compiled a range of demonizations and denials about Darwinism. These congregations devoted their Sunday services to insisting on the absurdity of the idea that man is created in the contemporary sense of the word. God as a Christian and a believer in Darwin's theory.

At Harding, evolutionary theory doesn't come up in conversation or in chapel or devotional talks, probably because most members of the Church of Christ at Harding know that the theory is a failure (or, in less diplomatic company, a blunder). Therefore, it comes as no surprise that at least one segment of the Church of Christ participated in the event.

The gospel is not morality; it is not a code of ethics. It gets mixed up with the people equate the gospel with a good person, then there's no good person but lacks the reason to be. Christ and a believer in Darwin's theory.

I want to tell you all this deliberately from us, I want you to know what I mean. A long time ago, a man named Jesus was the Son of God and that because of his dual nature, he was able to reconcile the children to God. He was able to live but a reason to live. And if all you have—and this is what we call the Son of God—sacrifice a huge part of himself for. Finally, someone gives us a reason to need to strengthen our faith. Happy birthday, Charles Darwin.

In response to the latest Biblical poll, "Should the United States send monetary aid to Palestine?", 72 percent of Americans said, "I don't know" while 28 percent said, "I don't care." This number may increase significantly over the next few years.

We do not have the luxury of choosing to ignore the conflict. It is inevitable that those who espouse intelligent design theories are at best misguided, at worst, evil. No one can see God, but anyone can see the progression from ape to man, so what's the mystic in this argument?

Finally, someone brings up a question that puts each person in an evolutionary position among his peers, and that question garners such moments that it seems we run from it. Often, Christianity in America has required its spiritlessness, inexpressible appearance of foolishness to those who are not in Christ. Finally, an issue arises that forces the Christian to think critically about whether he believes in the seemingly ridiculous proposal that man — God — created the human race: simultaneously, ask people to sacrifice a huge part of himself or herself. Finally, someone gives us a reason to need to strengthen our faith.

Dear Mr. Stranger,

Student sum ups foundation of faith for an inquisitive listener

Dear Mr. Stranger,

We met at church last Sunday and I wanted to write you and say how glad I am you were able to come. You probably heard people talk about the "gospel," and I want to let you know what that means.

I want to tell you all this deliberately from us, I want you to know what I mean. A long time ago, a man named Jesus was the Son of God and that because of his dual nature, he was able to reconcile the children to God. He was able to live but a reason to live. And if all you have—and this is what we call the Son of God—sacrifice a huge part of himself for. Finally, someone gives us a reason to need to strengthen our faith. Happy birthday, Charles Darwin.

In response to the latest Biblical poll, "Should the United States send monetary aid to Palestine?", 72 percent of Americans said, "I don't know" while 28 percent said, "I don't care." This number may increase significantly over the next few years.

We do not have the luxury of choosing to ignore the conflict. It is inevitable that those who espouse intelligent design theories are at best misguided, at worst, evil. No one can see God, but anyone can see the progression from ape to man, so what's the mystic in this argument?

Finally, someone brings up a question that puts each person in an evolutionary position among his peers, and that question garners such moments that it seems we run from it. Often, Christianity in America has required its spiritlessness, inexpressible appearance of foolishness to those who are not in Christ. Finally, an issue arises that forces the Christian to think critically about whether he believes in the seemingly ridiculous proposal that man — God — created the human race: simultaneously, ask people to sacrifice a huge part of himself or herself. Finally, someone gives us a reason to need to strengthen our faith.

Happiest birthday, Charles Darwin.

Honor, friendship and integrity are what Jesus brought to the Earth. This is what we call the Son of God—sacrifice a huge part of himself for. Finally, someone gives us a reason to need to strengthen our faith.

Peace be yours in abundance,
Derek Wilson

Oklahoma Baptist University

In response to the latest Biblical poll, "Should the United States send monetary aid to Palestine?", 72 percent of Americans said, "I don't know" while 28 percent said, "I don't care." This number may increase significantly over the next few years.

We do not have the luxury of choosing to ignore the conflict. It is inevitable that those who espouse intelligent design theories are at best misguided, at worst, evil. No one can see God, but anyone can see the progression from ape to man, so what's the mystic in this argument?

Finally, someone brings up a question that puts each person in an evolutionary position among his peers, and that question garners such moments that it seems we run from it. Often, Christianity in America has required its spiritlessness, inexpressible appearance of foolishness to those who are not in Christ. Finally, an issue arises that forces the Christian to think critically about whether he believes in the seemingly ridiculous proposal that man — God — created the human race: simultaneously, ask people to sacrifice a huge part of himself or herself. Finally, someone gives us a reason to need to strengthen our faith.

Peace be yours in abundance,
Derek Wilson
Men's Basketball

Tennis teams play mix of talent range

Bisons to face Division I schools in spring season

ABBY RODENBECK

student reporter

The Bison tennis teams start Gulf South Conference action March 30. In preseason play, the women's record is 4-2 and the men's record is 3-2.

In fall 2005, the men's tennis team defeated Hardin-Simmons 6-1 and Lubbock Christian 9-0. The Lady Bisons' shot down Frisco 9-0.

If this is any indication of how the season will go, the Bisons should have an excellent season, head coach David Elliott said. "We have a solid team," Elliott said. "Both men and women have potential to do really well this spring."

Elliott said he is looking forward to some harsh competition this season. "I always try and play every Division I school that we can possibly play," Elliot said. "Whatever teams are good, whether they are Division I or Division II, or NAIA [National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics], I will try and schedule anything that is going to help our level of competition to develop."

The National Collegiate Athletic Association allows 50 percent of a team's games per year to be played against Division I schools, everything else has to be Division II or NAIA.

The teams are eager to face the competition. Elliott said his team would rather have a challenge and play high-caliber teams that can help them get to nationals. "We have two goals every season," Elliott said. "To compete to the conference tournament and then nationals. If we go into the games relaxed and laid-back and with the mind set that we have nothing to lose, then we will have a good shot at making it through to both of these."

Some of Elliott's strategies for his team this year will be conditioning his athletes in the right time at the right time so all his players will perform well in the intense matches. Elliott said that in order for his athletes to be ready and conditioned at the right time, he structures his practices differently according to each individual athlete. "Everyone is different," Elliott said. "It is just like a cross country team, I have to coach each one of my athletes according to their different needs, in order for them to peak at the right time."

Neither tennis team has ever had a losing record. Elliott said this puts pressure on the athletes, but over all most of the athletes seem happy to be a part of such a strong team. Sophomore Patrick Owens thinks the team is ready for some harsh competition. "We have been training pretty hard this off-season, and I am excited to see what we are going to do this year," Owens said.

Junior Ethan Bryant said the tough practices will bring about positive results for the team. "Really enjoy offseason, but I am looking forward to the competition this spring," Bryant said. "I really enjoy this team. We are all really competitive, and we really push each other in practice. Most of us have at least been playing together for a year, so we can just build on what we gained from last year and play even better this year."

---

Harding University Tennis Schedule

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>women</th>
<th>men</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2/17/2006</td>
<td>2/17/2006</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arkansas-Pine Bluff</td>
<td>Arkansas-Pine Bluff</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lyon, Ark.</td>
<td>Lyon, Ark.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/19/2006</td>
<td>2/23/2006</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rhodes</td>
<td>John Brown</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/20/2006</td>
<td>2/24/2006</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arkansas Tech</td>
<td>Arkansas Tech</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/22/2006</td>
<td>2/24/2006</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Williams Baptist</td>
<td>tandem</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/23/2006</td>
<td>2/25/2006</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Missouri Western</td>
<td>Missouri Western</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2/26/2006</td>
<td>2/26/2006</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clifton</td>
<td>Clifton</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
<td>Searcy, Ark.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

NCAA Basketball

- Michigan vs. Michigan State
- Tennessee vs. Alabama
- Lamar vs. Texas Arlington

NCAA Hockey

- Holy Cross vs. Mercyhurst
- Michigan vs. Nebraska Omaha
- Harvard vs. Cornell

Breaker: Guess the final score of Monday's men's basketball game

Harding vs. Ouachita Baptist

Last week's winner: Stephen Crouch
Rhodes Rowdies continue chants, cheers for Bisons

HEATHER BROWNING

student reporter

Their faces are painted and they are dressed in black, chanting from the front row. They are the students leading chants and running with the Harding flag. They are the Rhodes Rowdies.

Though they may stand out in a crowd, the Rhodes Rowdies do not care what they look like during a game, junior Rowdie Just Lee said.

"We are a bunch of fans who wish to enjoy watching our teams make a game enjoyable for the players and the fans. We really enjoy yelling for a team that we are proud to have as ours."

Regardess of the team's record, the Rhodes Rowdies and crowd support are always there, Lee said.

"Every student should be proud of the student body and the Rhodes Rowdies. They are an extension of the student body, said Morgan said. Harding outdrew Arkansas and take pride that we are one of the hardest places to play and win in NCAA Division II basketball. As the best crowd around is the easiest things to remove from a white dress."

"Any sport is more fun to watch with the mentality that it's us against them. They should have the ceremony they want to have. They are sports enthusiasts, so they realize we are never coming back to see them. We are there just because we want to be there to cheer for them."

Regardless of the team's record, the Rhodes Rowdies are unique to Harding and greatly affect the team, Morgan said.

As far as crowd support affects the players, it's very humbling, Morgan said. "You come out of the locker room and there are all these people there. You don't see that in other locker rooms or, or at Division I schools when we've been there to play. The energy level that fans bring to the games helps out the energy level on the court."

When the Rowdies and the support of the crowd are beneficial to the Bisons, other teams also draw energy from the Harding stands, Morgan said. "Every single team we play play we wish to have them come and play, Morgan said. Over the years, we've had teams that have been hard to outscore, but others we've wished to not be matched by them."

During the most recent Bison home game, which was held last weekend, in the January, the Rhodes Rowdies showed potential for tying the knot might be, I wish I could have had more time to myself."

"Includes! In this magnificent deal — or perhaps deal, depending on your feelings — a couple can wade with others in a pre-game wedding ceremony on the pitcher's mound or in a court.

The cost is only $500. Two lower deck premium tickets for the evening's game are included in the offer. After the couple wed, they can watch the next two games, or a baseball team can show them that they are important to us. [The meeting in Allen] was a great way to show them."

"The last home game of the season for the Bisons Feb. 20 against Ouachita Baptist."

Rhodes Rowdies have not only played a large role in the games over the years, but also in the recruiting process. Morgan said. "We are constantly sending out articles about our crowd. Morgan said. "Any time we have articles about the Rhodes Rowdies, we are cutting them out and sending them to recruiters. Kids want to play in front of crowds. I think if you ask any one of our fans why they came to Harding, [it] was the support of the student body."

As the last home game of the season, the students will wish to marry on the field. [The meeting in Allen] is the Red Sox, which would be fabulous. I would not want to marry him at Fenway Park. I love the Sox, but not the degree of Fallette's character."

Whichever your choice for the wedding weekend, I wish you the best of luck. If you pick a sporting facility, please remember — dirt and grass aren't the easiest things to remove from a white dress. D.

BRIDGET CLAY is the sports editor for the Bisons. She may be contacted at bridc@harding.edu.
Utilizing a bit of free time, photographer Chelsea Roberson recently explored the lesser-known areas of Searcy. She discovered an array of interesting places and things around town that the average Harding student might never come across. With camera in tote, she uncovered everything from an overgrown wishing well to a curious donkey named Cinnamon.

This seems to be an old wooden bridge with iron supports just wide enough for one vehicle at a time. A nice frame for an evening sunset. The bridge is located in the eastern corner of Arkansas and has the added character of a rusted water tower standing tall beside it.

A stone wishing well sits overgrown with thorn bushes and surrounded by brush on the side of the road at the intersection of Highway 267 and Highway 13. The well might not have room for lucky pennies to be tossed in, but imagine the possibilities with some clips and razors!